KANSAS CITY TAKES A PRESIDENTIAL HOLIDAY

Gives Executive an Elaborate Reception.

Unparalleled Enthusiasm Is Manifested.

Kansas City, May 1—President Roosevelt spent five hours in Kansas City today and later was the guest of Kansas City, Kansas, just across the state line, for two hours, leaving for the West at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In the two cities the president was driven over a route fifteen miles long, reviewed nearly 30,000 school children, made two speeches, one at Convention hall, before the greatest crowd that that noted structure has ever held, and partook of a luncheon at the Baltimore hotel as the guest of the Commercial club, of Kansas City, Mo. In the party here was Elihu Root, secretary of war, who had joined the party at St. Louis at the express wish of the president.

The reception given President Roosevelt was intensely enthusiastic, and it is estimated that 100,000 persons, several thousand coming to town from surrounding places, greeted him. The schools were closed, business generally was suspended, the mayor having proclaimed it a holiday, and many residences and business houses were decorated. Never before had there been such a general desire on the part of citizens to show their esteem for a distinguished visitor.

The presidential party arrived in the city from St. Louis at 9:10 in the morning and were met by a reception committee at Fifteenth street, in the southeastern portion of the city, two miles from the business center. The reception at the train was brief and informal. Five members of the committee, J. F. Richards and E. M. Clendenning, president and secretary respectively of the Commercial club; H. W. Evans, chairman of the reception committee; Mayor James Reed and Col. William R. Nelson also entering the private car of the president to greet him. There was a great crowd on hand, and it cheered from the moment the train hove in sight until the president's carriage moved away for a drive, a few minutes later, at the head of a long line of carriages. A detachment of mounted police, together with the Third regiment, M. N. G., which had just returned from St. Louis, acted as an escort. The route, starting from the train, took in five miles of Kansas City's boulevard system. Passing first through the Paso, a driveway a mile in length and almost a block wide, the president was greeted by over 20,000 school children, white and black, from private and public schools, who stood seven deep on the grass plot between the two driveways and formed a line that extended for three blocks.

When President Roosevelt appeared each of the children waved a tiny American flag, cheering the while, and finally, as the president passed, the thousand voices broke forth singing "America." In the sunlight the thousands of happy-faced children, backed by rows of residences, decorated and covered with spectators, proved one of the most pleasing scenes of the day.

Then the party was driven through the business section to Convention hall, where the principal exercises of the day were held. The great hall was reached at a few minutes after 11 o'clock. There the two sections of the reception committee were consolidated.

The decorations of the hall were profuse. Great flags weer strung from the center to the sides of the stage, back of which and raised to a height of twenty-five feet was an immense golden eagle. The boxes and the sides of the balcony were draped with red, white and blue bunting and from the roof numerous banners of huge size were suspended. Every available foot of space in the hall, which has a seating capacity of 18,000, was occupied. As President Roosevelt emerged onto the stage the band started "The Star Spangled Banner," and the current was turned into two great electric flags that formed part of the ceiling decorations. Instantly the crowd broke into tremendous cheering, while sixty Harvard graduates with vigor gave their college yell, ending with the word "Roosevelt." The graduates, seated in a body in the balcony, were led in the cheering by three men who attended Harvard at the time the president was a student there.

Portions of the hall were set apart for Federal and Confederate soldiers, of whom there were 500; a body of the Daughters of the Revolution and the

Automatic Safety Appliances Avert a Terrible Collision at Crossing at Columbus.

Columbus, Ohio, May 1.—As the Little Miami & Baltimore & Ohio trains leaving here at 7:15 a. m. were approaching the crossing west of the city, the derail was thrown against the Miami train to prevent a collision.

The injured were John Gallagher, Xenia, baggageman, left arm dislocated, cut about the face and head; James Moran, fireman, Cincinnati, injured internally, not considered serious; Cahries Keck, engineer, Cincinnati, leg slightly cut, bruised about legs and body; L. E. Daily, engineer, Cincinnati, slightly cut about hands with broken glass; news agent, also cut about hands.

With the danger block set "against it", Pan Handle train No. 21, bound for Cincinnati on the Little Miami division, struck the derail at the Baltimore & Ohio crossing in the West Side at 7:40 o'clock this morning and was ditched. The Baltimore & Ohio passenger train whized past a moment later. The Pan Handle engine and baggage car and a passenger car were turned completely over and the day coach was dragged into the ditch, but remained upright. The diner and Pullman cars did not leave the track. Baggageman John Gallagher, of Xenia, suffered a fracture of the left arm and was cut about the head and face. James Moran of Cincinnati, fireman, was injured internally, but jumped in time to save his life. Charles Keck, engineer, of Cincinnati, was cut in the leg, but also saved his life by jumping. He had a narrow escape from being pinned under his engine.

L. E. Daily, an engineer, who was deadheading home in the baggage car, and the news agent were slightly cut about the hands by broken glass. The passengers were imprisoned in the train, it being vestibuled and many leaped from the windows.

The train was in charge of Conductor A. Reaser, of Springfield. He escaped without injury. Brakeman John T. Blevins also escaped. Train No. 21 left Columbus at 7:30. Engineer Keck was approaching the Baltimore & Ohio crossing cautiously, knowing that a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train was about due. Sparks from a switch engine obscured thes ignals and the train ran into the derail and was ditched. The Baltimore & Ohio train dashed past a moment later. The engine was wrecked. The baggage car lost most of its windows and was badly twisted, the tender was stripped of its trucks and crushed.

THOUSANDS OF EMPLOYES QUIT WORK THROUGHOUT COUNTRY

All Are Seeking to Better Their Condition.

Business Is Paralyzed In Many Places.

Omaha, May 1.—Eighteen hundred men, including teamsters, hotel and restaurant employes and members of the building trades, went on strike today. Sympathetic strikers are anticipated, which will bring the number on strike to 3000. The city presented a Sunday appearance today. Hardly a wagon was to be seen on the streets, the large restaurants were closed and the strikers stood on corners quietly discussing the situation. The hotels are not directly affected, but may be drawn into the trouble. The hotel and restaurant employes demand a six-day week, and other branches of the striking laborers demand an increase in wages of from 10 to 20 per cent.

Chicago, May 1.—Two thousand five hundred members of the Laundry Workers' union quit work today, precipitating a famine of clean linen upon Chicago and its suburbs. Chinese laundries, of which it is estimated there are nearly 1000 in Chicago, are to be involved. The employers have issued a call for a meeting of every laundry proprietor in the city and suburbs for 2 o'clock this afternoon, and efforts are being made to induce the Mangolian washermen to stand by the Laundrymen's association in its efforts to withstand the demands of the workers. The women and men on strike are asking an advance of wages, ranging from 10 to 50 per cent, and the proprietors say they cannot afford to pay the advance.

Bloomington, Ill., May 1.—Bloomington witnessed the most extensive strike among trades' unions today that has ever been inaugurated in many years. Every member of the Carpenters' union, Horse Showers' union and several other minor organizations laid down their tools this morning when the bosses refused to sign the new scale of increased wages.

New York, May 1.—Following the agreement reached last night between the marine engineers employed by the railroad companies and their employers to arbitrate their differences, the threatened tie-up in the harbor did not develop today. The situation practically is unchanged from that of yesterday. Many of the important tow boat companies had their boats tied up, but the railroad tugs were doing business as usual.

The prevailing opinion among towboat men is that shipping conditions in general would not be disturbed to any appreciable extent.

Boston, May 1.—Not in many years has the labor situation in Boston presented a more complicated aspect than it did today. The employers in nine trades at least have made demands on penalty of strike, and 10,000 men were interested in the issue. In many cases, however, partial settlement has been reached, or was in prospect. In only a few instances had there been positive refusal on the part of employes. Nearly all the building trades are included. Those employed in the building trades demand increases in pay, while the others demand shorter hours.

St. Paul, may 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sheet metal workers of St. Paul are out on strike. There are about ninety-five members of the local union and this morning, instead of repairing to their shops, they gathered at Federation hall. The complaint is of wages, the union endeavoring to establish a minimum scale of 40 cents an hour.

Philadelphia, May 1.—More than 7000 men in the building trades went on strike today. This action directly affects 1000 additional workmen, and should the strike continue a week building operations will cease and over 40,000 men will be rendered idle. The carpenters demand 50 cents an hour for an 8-hour day. The hoisting engineers ask $21.65 a week. Strikes were also inaugurated by several smaller unions, including stone derrick men, marble cutters and the plasterers' laborers, all of whom demand an increase in wages.

New York, May 1.—The strike of mechanics and laborers which had been looked for today did not materialize to the extent that had been anticipated, although a great many men, including

DIPLOMATS' DAY AT ST. LOUIS FAIR DEDICATION EXERCISES

Eloquent Speeches By M. Jusserand and Senor Ojeda, the French and Spanish Ministers.

St. Louis, May 1.—"International day," the second of the trio devoted to the dedication of the Louisiana purchase exposition, broke fair with promise of better weather than that of yesterday.

The day was devoted of greetings to and responses by representatives of foreign nations, which will have buildings at the fair, the proceedings constituting the dedicaction of the foreign section.

The history of the Louisiana purchase under its three sovereignties—Spain, France and the United States—was suggested in the appearance of three speakers—Senor Ojedo, the Spanish minister; M. Jusserand, the French ambassador, and D. R. Franics, president of the exposition.

The liberal arts building, where the exercises took place, still wore its dress of yesterday—the mingled colors of Spain, France and the United States—and in the speeches the trinity of interests in the exposition was noted.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning the diplomats gathered at the St. Louis club, where an informal reception was held. From the club they were taken in carriages, under military escort, to the liberal arts building. The audience did not begin to approach in size that of yesterday, but there was this advantage—those who were present could hear the speeches.

At noon the assembly was called to order by Conlin W. Spencer, chairman of the exposition committee on ceremonies. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Carl Swenson, following which ex-Senator John C. Thurston of the national commission was introduced as president of the day.

Commissioner Thurston extended a greeting on behalf of the exposition to the representatives of the foreign governments, and President Francis made a similar address. Then a distinguished looking man in a diplomatic uniform stepped forward. It was M. Jusserand, ambassador to the United States from France, who made a fine address on the transfer of the Louisiana territory from France to this country and its splendid consequences for America. He said:

When the treaty signed in Paris one hundred years ago and by which the area of the United States was to be more than doubled, stood for ratification before congress, there were, contrary to what we might suppose, protracted discussions, and objections of many sorts. Some thought that the title to the new acquisition was not a sufficient one; others were anxious on account of the very magnitude of the new territory, and expressed the fear that the federal tie would be loosened if extended to such remote and partly unknown regions. Many were the criticisms, and long the speeches.

Senator Jackson, of Georgia rose, and, turning towards one of the hostile party said: "In a century sir, we shall be well populated, and instead of the description given it by the honorable gentleman, be the liberal arts building. The audience did not begin to approach in size that of yesterday, but there was this advantage—those who were present could hear the speeches.

But he would not be surprised if he learned that the federal tie has not been loosened; that the number of states has increased, their wealth too, the number of their inhabitants, their importance in every respect, and that they consider as more and more sacred the bond which unites them to the older part of the community. Such is the efforts of liberty and just laws.

In this triumphant day, amid the shouts of joy, the reports of the guns and ringing of the bells, considering the splendid

IMPRISONED MINER TELLS STORY OF ESCAPE AT FRANK

Were Confined In the Mine By the Great Landslide and Reached the Surface After Digging Through Forty Feet of Rock.

Frank, N. W. T., May 1.—Samuel M. Mackenzie, an intelligent miner, gives a thrilling story of the experience of himself and companions who were imprisoned in the mines for more than twelve hours by the great landslide and who eventually escaped by digging through forty feet of rock and debris.

"Three other miners and myself, working a cross-cut off from No. 8 man-way," says Mackenzie, "were imprisoned between a chute board and the coal. I went down to the lower entry to see how the water was rising. I found the run quite alarming, and figured that at the rate it was coming up we might expect it to flood the mine today about 4 o'clock. We selected a place near the mouth of the main entry and started to work. We timbered as best we could as we went toward the surface. We had worked, changing hands, for more than five hours, when, as I was punching with a bar, it suddenly went through the debris, and a breath of air greeted me. I gave a few more punches and a rock big enough to kill us fell in. When we saw we had reached the surface we were mad with delight."

ROBBERY OF AGED EXPRESS AGENT SHROUDED IN MYSTERY

No Clue Has Yet Been Obtained to the Perpetrators of Robbery of $10,000 From Old John Peterson at Britt, Iowa.

Britt, Iowa, May 1.—Outside of the statement of a farmer's wife, living a few miles north of Britt, that she saw a man answering the description of the men whom Agent John Peterson, of the United Express company claims robbed him of a package containing $10,000, not a single clue has been obtained. Detectives of the express company and local police officials have been scouring the country since the finding of Peterson gagged in the express office, but so far have made no progress. Not a breath of suspicion has been aroused against Peterson, who is 70 years of age, and has the contract to carry the mails from the train as well as the xpress packages. His son, only 12 years old, found him gagged with a gunny sack over his head and unable to speak. The express office is in the heart of the town and business stores throng on all sides. To the right of the store is a bowling alley, and it is believed that the noise from this place deadened that made by the robbers when they held up Peterson and compelled him to open the safe containing the package. Peterson, in his description of the two men, decares that both were 50 years of age, and that one wore a gray overcoat with a blue striped suit. Not a train had entered the town from the time of the robbery until Peterson was discovered. The whole affair is shrouded in the deepst mystery.

THIRTY-SIX ROADS MORTGAGED

St. Paul, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mortgage deed given by the Northern Pacific Railroad company in February, 1902, to secure bond issues, has just been filed in the office of the register of deeds. One of the mortgages is supplemental to a prior lien mortgage of the Northern Pacific to the Mercantile Trust company given Nov. 10, 1896, to secure an issue of $10,000,000 worth of 4 per cent bonds, known as the prior lien gold bonds. The mortgage deed covers the title to thirty-six different railroads in Minnesota, North Dakota, Idaho and Washington, which the Northern Pacific has added to its system since 1896.

The other mortgage is a first supplement to a mortgage given by the railroad company Nov. 10, 1896, to the Farmers' Loan and Trust company. The mortgage was given to protect an issue of $190,000,000 worth of bonds, of which $56,000,000 worth are out at present.

HORRIBLE BRUTALITIES REPORTED

Vienna, May 1.—Horrible brutalities were reported to have occurred during the recent riots at Kischeneff, Besarba. Many women and children were victims of the mob, which included even the better classes of the inhabitants. Some of the victims were thrown from windows to the pavements. The rioters also pillaged and defiled the synagogues and killed the caretakers. What the looters of houses were unable to carry off they saturated with paraffine and burned. The damage done to property is estimated at several million roubles. The Jews who escaped from Kischeneff are seeking refuge at Odessa and elsewhere.

FIERCE SAND STORM AT ROCHESTER

Rochester, N. Y., May 1.—One of the most severe sand storms that ever visited this locality struck Rochester yesterday. People in the streets were blinded and suffocated and the wind played havoc with everything portable. The atmosphere was a peculiar red color, and the haze settled down in a thick cloud of black dust all over the city. Many accidents resulted, and considerable damage to property. The temperature rose from 69 degrees to 85 in nine hours and then dropped to 58 in three hours. The wind blew at the rate of sixty miles an hour.

KILLED WHILE ASLEEP.

Chinese Highbinder Kills Employer, Another Chinaman.

St. Paul, May 1.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Ching Oyes, an alleged Chinese highbinder, early today killed his employer, Lee Wah, by beating his head to a jelly with an ax while the victim was asleep. The tragedy occurred at Kalispell. Ching told several Chinese of his deed, collected some money due him and fled. He was apprehended in Columbia Falls, where he acknowledged the crime. He declared that Wah had refused to pay him $50 due him, and that he had taken the law into his own hands, as was the custom in China.

PUT ON RECORD.

Verbal Statements of Russia Are Duly Acknowledged.

Washington, May 1.—Secretary Hay has made a graceful acknowledgment of Russia's statement of her purposes relative to Manchuria, involving her reputation of sinister designs in that quarter. The secretary's note, addressed to Count Cassina, expresses regret that there should have been even temporary misconception or doubt as to Russia's position in the matter, and seized the opportunity to return the thanks of this government for the frank declaration of Russian principles. Incidentally, of course, the note serves to make a permanent record of Russia's position as verbally explained to the United States.

POSTMASTER GOES WRONG.

Manila, May 1.—O. G. Milne, postmaster of Tacloban, capital of the island of Leyte, has been convicted of misappropriating funds, but no sentence has yet been pronounced. Milne is also charged with embezzlement.

NEW YORK POLITICIAN BRUTALLY MURDERED

James McMahon Found In Hallway With His Skull Crushed.

New York, May 1.—With his skull crushed in and the marks of a cleaver on his neck and shoulders, James Edward McMahon, a brother of former Police Justice Daniel F. McMahon, was found murdered early today in the vestibule of the flat house in West One Hundred and Fifty-third street, where he lived.

In the pools of blood that were around the body were the footprints of one or two men, and the two families who live on the ground floor of the house told the police that they had been awakened about 3 o'clock this morning by the sounds of a struggle in the hallway. The body was found by Matthew McArdle, 14 years old, who lives on the top floor with his parents. His father rises early every morning, and the boy was on his way out of the house to get something for breakfast when he found the entrance to the house blocked by the body. The boy was terror-stricken and ran to a patrolman who was stationed near by, notifying him of what he had seen.

McMahon lived with his brother-in-law and an unmarried sister. The family gave the police little information which threw any light on the murder. George Miscke, who occupies an apartment on the ground floor, said he and his family had been awakened about 3 o'clock by hearing a pounding noise in the hallway. Miscke said he thought there were at least three men in the hallway, and the noise made by them was terrific. He said he heard the struggle going on from one end of the hallway to the other and heard the sound of oaths intermixed with blows incessantly.

Then he heard the doorway slam, he says, and heard men walking away. He was afraid to look into the hallway, he said.

McMahon, it is learned, left his brother-in-law's apartments at 5 o'clock last evening, saying he was going for a shave and would return in a short time. The police say that between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning McMahon was in a hotel in Harlem. They think that perhaps McMahon was followed by rough characters, and after being murdered was robbed. Certain dance halls in Harlem are frequented by a rough element and are kept open until very late. They have been closed repeatedly by the police, but the raids had no effect.

McMahon was 37 years old. He was formerly chief clerk of the building department. Since losing his position he had remained idle. He always went around with a considerable amount of money in his pockets. His brother, ex-Police Justice Daniel F. McMahon, one of the most prominent leaders in Tammany Hall, was married a few days ago.

RUSSIAN EXILE GETS AWAY SAFELY

Honolulu, May 1.—The Japanese liner Nippon Maru, which arrived from the Orient today, had among her passengers a Russian exile named Ivan Von Boninski, recently escaped from Sagalin island. He boarded the vessel at Yokohama as a stowaway. When discovered he said he was the son of a wealthy resident of St. Petersburg. While a student at a military college he was convicted of rioting, and with a number was sent to Sagalin island. Here two of them had died before Von Boninski with another student made his escape. On hearing his story the passengers on the Nippon Maru purchased a first-class passage for him to this port. He will join the Russian colony near Hilo.

HAVANA STUDENTS THROW STONES

New York, May 1.—The law students of the university of Havana have become riotous, says the Havana correspondent of the Tribune, because the date of the examination was changed from September to June. The students refused several days ago to attend classes until the order was changed. Yesterday five students entered the class room with the professors. When the five refused to leave, the others began stoning the building. Dean Lanuza left his room to entreat the students to desist. A stone knocked him down. The students threw stones at the windows of the university, breaking nearly all of them, and destroying several oil paintings on the walls. In the afternoon they paraded before the palace, where a commission waited on President Palma for the purpose of protesting against the changed date of the examinations.

WEDDING PARTY PELTED WITH EGGS

Morristown, N. J., May 1.—The marriage of Harry Hilderbrandt, white, and Clara Van Dunk, black, was the cause of a race riot. Hilderbrandt had been in town only three days. His acquaintance with the Van Dunk woman extended over a period of twenty-four hours. They were married in the African M. E. church parsonage. When the colored people found out that the Van Dunk woman was going to marry a white man they were angry, surrounding the parsonage, shouting and hooting. They tried to break up the ceremony, but, failing in that, waited outside until the couple came out. Hilderbrandt and his wife then were pelted with decayed vegetables, sticks, stones and tin cans all the way to the station, where they boarded a train.

Kansas City, May 1. President Roosevelt received the keys to Kansas City yesterday and now wears the guest of Kansas City across the state line, for Chairman Harris for the West at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In the two cities the procession was driven over a route whose course long reviewed nearly a million people, made two speeches and covered half the distance between the two cities. Governor Hall, the governor of the state, and governor of Missouri, the Commercial club of Kansas City, the party here was Major General Leonard Wood, who had joined the party at St. Louis at the express wish of the president.

The reception given President Roosevelt was tremendously enthusiastic, and it is doubtful that 100,000 persons, several thousand coming to Kansas City from surrounding towns, greeted him. The procession was delayed nearly two hours by the never having progressed at a greater pace than a walk. Governor Dockery, Governor Folk and Governor Hall were in carriages with the president, and the carriage was preceded by a platoon of mounted police. Then came the carriage containing Mayor Jones, Mayor Reed and Mayor Crittenden, and then the carriage containing Governor Dockery, Governor Folk and Governor Hall. Then came

EGGS HAVE A RAISE

Packing Companies Are Placing Them In Storage.

Butter Has a Decline—Fine Stawberries Are Coming.

A stiffening in the price of eggs was the feature of the produce market during the past week. They are now selling at 15 and 16 cents per dozen. The shipments have fallen off to some extent since Easter and the big packing companies are placing great quantities in storage at the Twin Cities and Chicago. The packing companies are said to have narrowly escaped heavy losses on their storage eggs last season. They were caught in the spring with a large quantity on their hands which they had to unload at a very low price. This has not deterred them from heavy storing this spring.

Butter is lower. Fancy dairies are selling at 18 and 20 cents and creamery prints at 28 cents. Grass butter is commencing to come in and a further drop in the price is expected.

Arkansas strawberries are being received this week. They are of a higher grade than the Mississippi berries which were coming in last week. They are selling at $3.50 per crate of twenty-four quart boxes.

Pineapples are cheaper, selling at $3.50 per crate.

Other fruit and vegetable prices remain unchanged. The dealers report a rather dull week. The cold wet weather of the past few days has interfered materially with their trade.

Shipments of dressed poultry have almost ceased. The live poultry is coming in more freely. The dealers report a good week's trade with a brisk demand.

June lard has dropped nearly a cent a pound and is now selling at 9⅝ cents. There has been no change in the price of compound. Meat prices remain firm and unchanged. Mutton is selling at 11 cents and dressed beef at 7 and 8 cents.

The week has been a fair one for the meat dealers. The range towns have been heavy buyers, although the city trade has been somewhat dull.

The Cudahy Packing company has commenced work rebuilding and refitting its storage room after the recent fire. The office will be moved to the second story and the entire first floor devoted to storage purposes.

MARRIED BETWEEN ACTS

But Bride Soon Regretted the Hasty Act.

Newark, Ohio, May 1.—A case is being heard in Judge Seward's court, the features of which are unique in the history of Licking county jurisprudence. It is styled May Herring against Clifford Herring, and is brought to set aside a marriage contract entered into last Christmas day in Covington, Ky.

The plaintiff, aged 19 years, is the accomplished daughter of Baggagemaster Cherrington, living in the Avalon flats here.

While attending school in Cincinnati Miss Cherrington had for a schoolmate Clifford Herring. For seven years they were companions, but they were never considered lovers. Last December Miss Cherrington visited Cincinnati, and on Christmas night young Herring took her to see "Florodora" at the Grand. The youth proposed marriage, was accepted and the two boarded a car for Covington and were married by a Baptist minister. They returned, took their seats in the theater and remained till the end of the performance.

Another young couple accompanied them to Covington and witnessed the ceremony and agreed to keep the matter a secret till the consent of the girl's parents could be obtained. The bride went home and Herring returned to his own apartments. Next morning Mrs. Cherrington saw in the papers an announcement of the wedding. Mrs. Cherrington brought her daughter home immediately, but the boy husband accompanied them to the station in Cincinnati and bade them good-bye.

Smythe & Smythe, attorneys for Mrs. Herring, contend that the marriage contract is void, as neither party is of legal age under the Kentucky law. Herring being a minor is not capable of being sued in Ohio, so Frank A. Bolton has been appointed guardian ad litem and attorney for the defendant. He has filed an answer, denying the allegations in the plaintiff's petition.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and Return $50.00.

May 3 and May 12 to 18 the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to above points and return for $50, going and returning same route, or going one way and returning another for $64. Final return limit July 15. Stop-overs allowed

DANGER IS OVER

As Far as Floods at Frank Are Concerned.

Eighty-Three People Lost Lives By the Landslide.

Vancouver, B. C., May 1.—William Pearce, inspector of surveys, sent to Frank by the department of the interior, last night reports that since the excitement is partly over, there is no doubt in the minds of anyone that the disaster was caused by huge landslides and that there was no eruption or explosion. He says there are eighty-three known dead, of whom fifteen are women and fifteen children. There is no further danger from floods through the damming of the river. The rock slide is about 4000 feet long, extending from the top of Turtle mountain westerly. The debris is spread out in a fan-shaped mass, so that there is no trace of the river for one mile, but the water is now going through the rock as fast as it is coming down.

Frank, N. W. T., May 1.—It is definitely known that fifty-six people lost their lives here before daybreak on Wednesday by the sliding of the rocky top of Turtle mountain down upon the sleeping village of Frank. Besides killing fifty-six people, the slide destroyed the plant of the Canadian-American Coal and Coke company, did a vast amount of damage to the mine and completely devastated about ten square miles of the finest and most picturesque portion of Crows Nest Pass.

It is expected the majority of the bodies of the dead will never be found. Some cabins are buried under 150 feet of rock. Although organized efforts were made to search for bodies only nineteen have been found so far. Most of the corpses were mangled beyond recognition.

The disaster happened at 4 o'clock in the morning, when the sleeping inhabitants of Frank were suddenly awakened by a tremendous crash, followed by a shaking of the buildings.

It was still dark and for a time the greatest confusion prevailed, no one knowing just what had happened. As soon as day dawned it was seen that the whole side of Turtle mountain had fallen away and the valley for a distance of two miles was entirely choked up by rocks and debris piled to an average height of sixty feet.

Simultaneously with the piling of the rocks on Turtle mountain, there opened an immense fissure of the earth on the northern side of Turtle mountain. This fissure extended for a distance of three-quarters of a mile and was many feet in width.

This yawning chasm still remains open, according to reports brought in by men who have been on the other side of Turtle mountain. In the downward rush of the debris the entire operating plant of the French-American Coal company was carried away. The buildings demolished include the tipple, the boiler house, the engine house, the repair shops and a row of coke ovens. Seven houses owned by the company were smashed into kindling wood, six of them being obliterated and their occupants killed, while ten houses, which were situated in the valley east of the town, were demolished. The people living in these houses were killed as they slept. The direct monetary damage will exceed $1,500,000. Th actual loss to the mining company probably will not exceed $200,000. The Canadian Pacific lost heavily through the blocking of its track. The scene of this catastrophe was formerly one of the most picturesque valleys in Canada. Through the center of this beautiful valley ran the Old Man's river, which had its source on the western slope of the Crow's Nest pass. The total width of the valley was a little more than a mile and a sheer wall of rock rose to a height of 3500 feet above the level of the town. Old Man's river, which flowed through the valley, followed the side of Turtle mountain, close up against the foot of which the town of Frank was built. The mountain wall was before the fall to tall and precipitous that even in the longest day in midsummer the sun set in the town of Frank at 3 p. m., and after that a twilight ensued. The wall threw off an almost perpendicular wall of rock and filled the valley for almost a mile each side of Frank.

Of the many beautiful homes, fertile farms and flourishing ranches there is now nothing but ruin and desolation, and the valley now has all the appearance of a volcano.

The natural gas and coal deposits are now buried many feet deep undr rock and are valueless. As there is no geological expert resident in the town, it is impossible to determine the true cause of the explosion, but judging from th opinions of those who have inspected around the outside of the mass of rocks, it seems it was a landslide or a natural gas explosion. A theory advanced by many of the mining men of the town is that the cliff had been undermined by some subterranean branch of Old Man's river. The general opinion is that the trouble was not volcanic as at first supposed.

Pieces of rock are still falling from the strangely altered top of Turtle mountain. These rocks are in many cases huge masses, weighing hundreds of tons, and as they fall, crashing down with a noise like thunder, they start other particles of rock in the path, which rush down bearing destruction.

STONE FROM DEER'S STOMACH

Is Credited With Many Wonderful Cures of Hydrophobia.

New York, May 1.—Learning that cases of hydrophobia had appeared in New York, Capt. F. B. Orchard, of Augusta, S. C., has sent here a Congaree madstone. The nodule of calcareous matter, for such it seems, was consigned to the brother of the owner, I. E. Orchard, a musical critic, who says the use of it may be had "without money and without price," by any person who thinks he has been bitten by a rabid dog. It has been many years since the Congaree stone has performed its function as an extractor of poison, and the consignee would like to see its powers tested.

This stone, it is said, was found in 1805 in the stomach of a deer which was shot in the Congaree swamp, South Carolina. It began its career of usefulness a few years later, and it was reported that 145 persons who had been bitten by supposedly rabid dogs were treated with it and that none died from hydrophobia.

"Most medical men, I daresay," said Mr. Orchard, "would not think much of this madstone, but I am very anxious to have someone actually test it. It may be that its qualities are not of any value, and that imagination and superstition have had much to do with its alleged cures. On the other hand, I have considerable leaning toward a belief in its curative qualities, for of the many cases in which it was employed surely there must have been some of genuine hydrophobia."

The Congaree madstone is one and a half inches in length and one inch in width, and about three-quarters of an inch through at its thickest portion. In color it is a light brown. The outer layer, except where a portion of it has crumbled, is highly polished.

DIRECTORS FOR CRAMPS.
Philadelphia, April 30.—At a special meeting today of the board of directors of the William Cramp Ship and Engine company, the following voting trustees were elected: E. T. Statesburg, of Drexel & Co., Richard H. Rushton, and G. F. Baker, president First National bank, New York. The directors finally approved the $5,000,000 loan and the $1,500,000 additional stock. The directors were reticent concerning the business transacted at the meeting, but it is asserted on good authority that all the directors resigned and that no action was taken on the resignations. The board did not reorganize.

PROBABLY SUICIDE.

Man Mailed Poisoned Food to Himself.

Elgin, Ill., April 30.—Chief of Police Freeman of this city is of the opinion that Roland L. Morgan, a former resident, who recently died at Pensacola, Fla., of eating poisoned breakfast food received through the mails, mailed the poisoned package to himself. Just what reasons the chief has for thinking so he does not divulge, but he states that Morgan had lost considerable of his fortune and that, being a proud man, he could not bear the thoughts of poverty in his old age, and that he did not like the city where he recently lived as a home. As there was apparently nothing for him but to remain where he was, it is the opinion of the chief that he decided on this means of ending his existence. That he was discouraged is well known, and it is thought that perhaps he took that means of ending his existence in order to save his wife the shock of his being declared a suicide.

WAGE SCALE

Of the Amalgamated Association Is Adopted.

Columbus, Ohio, May 1.—The wage scale of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers for the United States was adopted in its complete form at yesterday's session of the convention.

The official announcement is made from the convention that the prices that will prevail after June 1, next, will be practically the same as are now in existence. The committee on constitution presented its reports. There are no radical changes recommended.

LIMBER AND LIVELY.

Miss Roosevelt Does Stunts For Girl Admirers.

Washington, May 1.—Miss Alice Roosevelt was the guest of honor a few nights ago at the home of Postmaster General and Mrs. Payne. The especial hostess of the evening was their niece, Miss Louise Jones, one of the social favorites of the administration.

Miss Roosevelt is a favorite. Irrepressible spirits she has inherited from her father, and she keeps a table in a gale of laughter with her wit and reparte. After dinner, when the men remain at the table to sip their cordials and to smoke, the young women, with Miss Roosevelt as their leader, have a jolly time in the drawingroom.

While the men are engrossed elsewhere this merry young maid will do all sorts of acrobatic feats for her fair admirers. Her great stunt is to put her foot on the back of her neck, and there are other equally interesting things she can do with equal facility.

WORKINGMEN AND CHURCHES

Rev. Charles Stelzle Working to Bring Them Together.

Rev. Charles Stelzle, of St. Louis, pastor of the Markham Memorial church, of that city, arrived this morning to make a series of addresses in Duluth, following out an effort to bring church work closer to the workingman.

Mr. Stelzle is sent out by the board of home missions of the Presbyterian church, which is in touch with all the Presbyterian churches of the United States, and he has a special mission to the city churches along the lines suggested. He is sent out in the interests of more aggressive work among the workingmen, who have been in a measure alienated from the city churches because of real or fancied barriers of caste. He has been a workingman himself, having had eight years experience as a machinist in one of the largest shops in New York, and for ten years he has been engaged in religious work among workingmen in the principal cities of the country. This makes him well qualified for the important mission upon which he has been sent. He is considered to be an expert on the social problems of workingmen, especially as they relate to the church, having been a frequent contributor to the press along this line. He has lately written and published a book on "The Workingman and Social Problems."

His home church is in itself an interesting study. Located on the east side of St. Louis, among the homes of the poor, it is designed to bring the gospel to them and incidentally to aid and uplift them physically, intellectually and socially as well as spiritually.

Mr. Stelzle will speak tonight at the Second Presbyterian church in the West End; Saturday night at Westminster Presbyterian church in West Duluth; Monday morning at the First Presbyterian church; Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. hall, and Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian church again. His Sunday afternoon talk at the Y. M. C. A. will be on "The Workingman and the Church," and it will be intended especially for workingmen, showing the attitude of the church toward their social problems. Sunday evening he will give an illustrated lecture on "The Social Problems of the City Church."

Monday morning Mr. Stelzle will address the Duluth Ministerial association's monthly meeting.

ORE TRIMMERS NEGOTIATING

Call on Railroad Officials to Obtain Some Concessions.

Trouble is threatened by the ore trimmers or dockmen at the big iron ore docks at Two Harbors, Allouez and at the Missabe docks.

The nature of the trouble can not be ascertained, but it is persistently rumored that they have sent a demand and ultimatum to the Great Northern and steel corporation authorities to the effect that they will have to be given some concessions.

A delegation of men from the docks of the steel corporation were down this morning and said their intention was to confer with the head of the dock operation.

Those in charge of the work on the docks at Allouez, Two Harbors and on the Missabe docks denied absolutely that there was any trouble.

Four boats cleared from the Missabe docks today and more are expected to be out tonight.

It is evident the men are continuing at work while negotiations are going on.

The trouble has been in the air for some time, and for the past few days there have been grave apprensions around the steel corporation building, with a meeting of the heads of the operative department night before last, which lasted into the night.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Springfield, Ill., May 1.—Henry Yates, superintendent of insurance of Illinois and brother of Governor Yates, died very suddenly about noon at his home in this city from paralysis. He leaves a widow, but no children.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 1.—A San Francisco dispatch tells of the death by asphyxiation of D. T. Hedges, formerly of Sioux City. Hedges was one of the "big four" boomers here and in boom days was rated as a multi-millionaire. He was widely known as a financier and promoter of railroad lines.

Pittsburg, May 1.—Capt. John B. Ford, the pioneer manufacturer of plate glass, died today at his home at Creighton, Pa., of cancer, after a year's illness. He was 91 years of age last November.

GRIND ON MAY 11.

Duluth-Superior Milling Company Will Start Then.

At the office of the Duluth-Superior Milling company this afternoon it was said that the mills here would begin grinding again about May 11 and that the reduction of 2 cents a hundred to the seaboard was an encouraging announcement.

The local mills will only fill local orders and carload shipments that are necessary to customers until the rate goes into effect, but it is doubtful if any more grinding will be done till the time for the heavy shipments comes, when the rate is down, unless the prices of grain regulate things sooner than that.

A BOUNDARY IS SETTLED

District Court Decides a Dispute Over Boundary Lines.

Judge Ensign has filed in district court a decision in favor of William Rock and their associates in their suit against the Donora Mining company and others relative to a disputed boundary line between sections 27 and 28, near Little Mesaba lake.

The question involved a triangular tract of land on the shores of the lake, said to be valuable for underlying iron ore bodies, to which both parties in the suit claimed title.

The conclusions of the court were as follows: That the boundary line between the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 27 and the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 28, starts at the south end at a point 5404 7-10 feet northerly in a straight line from the southeast corner of section 34 and easterly in a straight line 5265 9-10 feet from the southwest corner of section 28 and 5504 feet southerly in a straight line from the northwest corner of section 27, which point is indicated on the ground by a maple post four inches square, and the boundary line between the two tracts of land extends in a straight line the whole distance in which they adjoin towards the northwest corner of section 27, which is the northwest corner marked and indicated by a monument in the form of a two-inch gas pipe with a brass cap or top. Plaintiffs are given judgment establishing the boundary line between the two tracts of land and for the costs and disbursements of the action.

The case was started for trial in district court last fall and the litigation is said to have brought the court costs up to a considerable amount.

The plaintiffs were represented by Davis, Hollister & Hicks and the defendants by John G. Williams.

HONOR IS THEIRS

Freimuth Team Captures the Indoor League Championship.

Defeats Great Eastern Men In a Very Close Game.

Stubborn fighting for every point and immense enthusiasm on the part of the large crowd preser characterized the last game of the indoor baseball season at the Armory last evening when the Freimuth nine won the season's championship by defeating the Great Easterns with whom they were tied by a score of 9 to 8.

In the first inning the Freimuth men somewhat marred the looks of the score by running in six points, but after that the game was more even with a steady gain shown in favor of the Barrows' team. In the final inning it looked as though the Great Easterns would tie the score but the Freimuths took a brace and narrowly averted it.

Hulbert of the Freimuths did some very good work in the box and Schipper was a close second. The game was a little slow, but on the whole was very satisfactory as a championship contest.

Both teams had ardent supporters in the galleries who cheered deafeningly when there was anything doing on the diamond. White and Chalk umpired the contest.

Freimuths won the championship of the first series earlier in the year so there is now no one to disputé their title to the championship and the season may be considered closed.

The beautiful silver cup which is to be given the winner as a trophy will be given over to the keeping of the Freimuth men until next winter when it will again be played for by the teams which compose the league.

Plans are already under way for another successful season next winter are already being discussed and the league will certainly be called into existence when the snow flies next year. It will be composed of about the same teams that have played this year.

Most of the players are also outdoor baseball men and they will now be seen with their bats and mits chasing grounders over the open country.

The score by innings and the line-up in last night's championship game are as follows:

Freimuth—		Great Eastern.
Gotsdiman	catcher	Dash
Hulbert	pitcher	Schipper
Carroll	first base	Lungren
Peterson	third base	Cummings
Bennett	right short	King
Kelly	right field	Jones
Wegaman	second base	Whiteside
Medley	left short	Irvin

Bill Lambert, the handsome, hard-hitting popular outfielder of other days has signed with the Northern league team and will be seen during the coming season either on first base or in his old position in center field.

He is the only member of the old guard to wear the Duluth uniform during the coming festivities in connection with the glad rag chase of the prospective champions.

The team candidates that will report here for practice within a few days are as follows:

Catchers—Leonard and Smith.
Pitchers—Dellar, Dodge and Booth.
First base—Lambert or Price.
Second base—McCoy.
Short stop—(One large surprise).
Third base—Olmstead or Schmokek.

Manager Van Praagh is still looking for another speedy pitcher and may land a promising man from the farm squad of a major league team.

The Fargo team with which Duluth opens the season is certainly a strong proposition. Its latest feat is to shut out the Dubuque team by a score of 5 to 0.

A. W. Kuehnow has taken the interest in the Duluth baseball team formerly held by Charles Marshall, of the Lyceum theater, and was yesterday elected treasurer of the team.

"Red" Hanlee, the well known Superior twirler, has reported for duty with the Grand Forks team of the Northern league.

The Freimuth's baseball team will shortly be in the field seeking local amateur honors. It will consist largely of the players of the championship indoor team.

Minneapolis has lost every game played this season and seems determined to equal the record made by Louisville last year—the Kentucky colonels losing twenty-six straight games.

THE STAGE.

Hi Henry's minstrel aggregation was given an enthusiastic reception at the Lyceum last evening. The entertainment was first-class in every respect, clean, bright and funny. The scenic effects and costumes were especially good. Among the vocalists George S. Van and J. P. Moore were heartily encored on rendering baritone solos. Master Sam Edwards, the boy soprano, made a great hit with the audience. He has a remarkably sweet clear voice. The comedians Billy Clark, Johnny Dove and James Corrigan were good in their song and dance turns, and the jokes were generally new and funny. George Van made a fine interlocutor, not permitting things to get dull for a moment. Hi Henry was given an ovation when he rendered his cornet solo in the second part of the program. He responded to several encores. J. A. Probst as "The Human Song Bird," gave a really remarkable performance of his whistling powers, imitating closely the songs and calls of familiar members of the feathered tribe, as well as clever imitations of a train and sawmill. He was recalled several times. Billy Clark in his specialty entitled "mind wanderings" kept the audience in laughter during his entire turn. In the acrobatic line the Brothers Latoy, with their sensational jumping feats and the Renzetta troupe of four gave a very interesting entertainment rounding out the evening.

One of the best plays presented by the Ferris comedians was that of "Per Home and Honor," which was given at the Metropolitan last night. It is a sensational comedy drama in four acts. Numerous outbursts of applause and curtain calls were given. Gus A. Forbes, as Capt. George Tempest, handled his part in his usual clever way. Will White, as Staunton Mordaunt, was at his best. Albert Dorris was good, as Gussie Low; William Z. Lang made a capital Capt. Chris Webber, and William Clark as Del Kirkland and Harry Langdon as Commodore Whhite were fine. Miss Mona Carrington as Margaret Mardoumn, Lillian O'Neil as Nanoette Zedue and Miss Josie Haines as Tempest, were all excellent. The scenic effects were good.

The indoor circus still continues to amaze the audience by the cleverness and sensationalism of the big acts. It will be given tonight and tomorrow only.

Of Bruno Steindel, the famous cellist, who will appear this evening in the Star lecture course at the First M. E. church with his own company, the New York Times said:

"Mr. Steidel has already been heard in so many obligatos that his hearers were prepared to find in him a cellist of the first rank and their expectations were not disappointed. "Tone" is nine points of a violincellist, and there are those who are inclined to hold that it is also the tenth, so much more important is it in a cellist to have a good cantabile than to have all other things and to lack this. Mr. Steindel's tone is excellent. He is, first of all, a singer upon his instrument, and his technical equipment is complete. He is distinctly a classical player, his effectiveness is secured while carefully avoiding exaggeration, and his playing is marked by taste as much as by skill. In answer to a hearty recall Mr. Steindel gave without accompaniment his own arrangement of Schubert's song 'Am Meer.'"

"Uncle Josh Spruceby" will be presented at the Lyceum tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening. The play of "Uncle Josh Spruceby" is a story of New England farm life, full of fun that keeps the audience in a merry mood through the four acts, and with a vein of pathos that will cause a tear or two to in Vermont and some of the characters are taken from the life and daily habits of the people the author met there. The company presenting the play this season is said to be an efficient one, and in addition to considerable special scenery, an orchestra is carried.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

North Dakota Likely to Go Dry For Thirty Days.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks.—It has been discovered that peculiar condition of affairs will exist effecting the druggists of the state in connection with the Shields bill passed at the last session of the legislature.

The law goes into effect July 1. All permits to sell liquor must be renewed at that time. The applications for renewal cannot be made before that date and the law provides that a published notice of thirty days must precede the hearing before the county court before the application can be acted upon.

This will leave the druggists for an entire month without authority to sell a drop of liquor for any purpose whatever. As $50 reward is offered for evidence that will convict a druggist for violation of the law this states without doubt will be practically liquorless for thirty days. The peculiar situation has aroused great interest here, but the legal lights can discover no way around the difficulty.

Casselton—There was a rather peculiar coincidence at the recent meeting of the Fargo presbytery. Rev. Willard Crosby Lyon of LaMoure was chosen as the ministerial delegate to the general assembly, and his father, Cashier S. S. Lyon of Fargo, was chosen as the lay delegate.

Fargo—Mrs. Mary Falls, 63 years of age, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. A. Devenpeck. Her husband is at the Soldiers' home in Hot Springs, S. D. For many years they made their home at Millbank, S. D.

Wahpeton—M. V. B. Knox, D.D., who for years has been prominent in educational affairs, departed for Vermont to spend the rest of his days. Citizens and students at the university gave him farewell receptions.

Devils Lake—Judge Cowan issued a temporary injuction against the sale of bonds for the Pelican Point bridge, recently issued by the city of Devils Lake.

Minto.—The Baptist church has been sold to the Polish Catholics for $1400. They will erect an addition and a gallery.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Two alleged horse thieves, who eluded the Minnesota officers, are believed to be in this section, and the sheriff of Murray county, that state, is in this vicinity striving to get trace of them. The fugitives fled from Slayton, Minn., several days ago with a team and buggy. Officers have found the rig at Egan.

Harry G. Hall, of Pierce, who was recently convicted of selling liquor to Indians belonging to Cheyenne River Agency, will be sentenced by Judge Carland on Friday morning. He expects to take an appeal.

Officers of the United States court are making preparations for a term which convenes at Aberdeen Tuesday morning. It is probable the term will last several days, as there are a few government cases, two personal injury suits against railroad companies and a few other cases.

Pierre—When it was learned that the valued policy insurance law applied to mutual companies as well as to the old line companies, there was a roar made that all mutuals would have to go out of business. Evidently all people do not look upon the effects of the law in the same light, as two more mutuals have just been organized at Sioux Falls. These are the Sioux Falls Mutual Fire association and the Retail Merchants' Mutual Fire Insurance company.

Aberdeen—John Bergman, 9 years old, son of Peter Bargman, living ten miles from Aberdeen, was found dead with a bullet in his head. He had been playing with a companion 11 years old, who said he found him so after being in the barn alone for a while.

It is believed the boys were playing with a loaded revolver kept in the house, and that Johnnie was killed accidentally while the revolver was in his companion's hands.

Rapid City—Joseph Mukilzik, aged 27 years, died of injuries received from the falling limb of a tree.

The new board of education elected J. S. Gantz, presiden; Mrs. M. La Mear, vice president; O. L. Cooper, secretary.

Edgemont—Edgemont was a rendezvous of pickpockets on the occasion of the reception to President Roosevelt. It develops that visitors lost money and jewels amounting to $1000.

THE DRUGGISTS' DEADLOCK.

Havana, May 1.—Gen. Nunez, civil governor of Havana, has advised the provincial council to end the druggist deadlock by authorizing the affixing of tax stamps to patent medicines when sold to the consumer, instead of as previously, when the medicines were received in stock. The provincial council amended the medicine tax according to the suggestion of Gen. Nunez. The principal druggists of Havana, however, declare they will not open their stores unless the tax is entirely cancelled.

THOMSON'S "GLOVE-FITTING" CORSETS.

In many styles—for many figures—at prices from $1 to $25—but all alike in the one vital particular, they are all "GLOVE-FITTING" and gowns fit like a glove when worn over them. ALMOST A RIOT

About 300 strikers and sympathizers detached an engine from a car containing fifty non-union men and endeavored to tip it over.

Officers Olson and McDonald held the strikers back and succeeded in coupling the engine on each time they detached it until finally the non-union men were hauled to a place of safety.

The trouble occurred in the Northern Pacific yards, almost under the Garfield avenue viaduct. The non-union men were being taken from freight dock No. 2, on Rice's Point, to dock No. 5, near Lake avenue, for their dinner, which is furnished them from boarding cars.

As the engineer slowed down to switch around on the main track after hauling the car over from the dock the strikers appeared in force and uncoupled the car.

Officer McDonald was in the car, and he called on the crowd to move back, but instead of doing so it pushed forward and when some person yelled, "Upset 'em," a hundred or more pair of husky shoulders were put to the car and it was raised perceptibly.

About this time Officer Olson charged the crowd from the rear, and reaching the engine, succeeded in again attaching it to the car. The engineer started up and the crowd again detached the car. This occurred three times before the engineer finally got away with a quick start and took the car and non-union men flying up toward the Union depot.

The crowd then espied several Assyrians that have been "scabbing" on the four docks since the strike began, and made a rush for the foreigners. The Assyrians showed fight but the officers finally rushed them into their dwelling at the foot of Fifteenth avenue West and told the women in the house to lock them in. The women did this and the crowd made a run for the house. Officer Olson informed the leaders that he would use his gun if they attempted to take those men out of their homes, and looking back he saw a little Assyrian coming out of the building with an open jack knife, yelling defiance at every person in sight. The officer took the fight out of him with one squeeze about the neck, and the women again took charge of him, while the crowd retired to some distance to talk the situation over.

In the meantime some person had sent a riot call to police headquarters and every available man was hastened to the scene o fthe trouble, but after the Assyrian incident the crowd dispersed.

While the car was being detached from the engine the second time, a shot was fired, and it was reported that the strikers were armed. Investigation of this report, however, shows that the strikers were not armed and that the shot was fired by a private detective of the Northern Pacific, who was in the car, and he shot through the roof simply as a warning to those that were trying to upset it.

There was a report this morning that the freight handlers' strike was about to be settled. However, the settlement this afternoon appears to be as far off as ever and the contractors, Knudsen & Eden, deny that there is any negotiation with a view to throwing up their contract.

MISSION IS MOVED.

Rev. John Callahan Accomplishes a Quick Job.

One of the quickest moving operations on record in the city occurred last evening when the Star of Hope mission, conducted by John Callahan on the upper side of West Superior street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, was transferred across the street to No. 622 and was completely installed between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock. The moving took place at the end of the evening service, Mr. Callahan requesting that the members of the audience assist in the moving. Every man, woman and child picked up their chair and carried them into the new quarters and the platform and fixtures, which were soon loosened, followed in short order. The new rooms will be more commodious and will have steam heat.

This evening Rev. Alexander Milne, of the Pilgrim Congregational church, will speak at the mission. He will be assisted by the young people of the church and congregation.

AMONG THE ROADS

The Soo Will Build a Long Extension In Minnesota.

Some Duluth Men Will Have Much Sub-Contracting Work.

The Richards-Sundeen company, of Minneapolis, successor to the Halvorson-Richards company, contractors, has secured the contract for the construction of 125 miles of new trackage for the Soo line northward toward the boundary line from Glenwood, Minn. This will be the largest railroad construction work in the Northwest this season, and it is expected that a large part of the work will be let within the next few days to sub-contractors in Duluth. Arrangements are being made to send about 1000 men and 500 teams out on the new work from this city.

The new line will be constructed through some of the finest farming country in the western part of this state. The material to be worked through is mostly a sandy loam and much of the road will be built through cultivated fields.

It is estimated that seventy-five miles of the new line will be team work, and fifty miles of it car work. Clearing prices will range from $20 to $30 per acre, grubbing $1 per square rod, and earth work from 10 to 18 cents. It is claimed that there will be some station work on muskegs with sandy bottoms, at 12 to 15 cents.

The new line will give the Soo road an outlet to the Canadian border. It will cross the Great Northern line at Alexandria and the Northern Pacific road at Henning and Detroit, Minn.

The work will give employment to an army of laborers all the rest of this year, as the contract calls for the completion of the new road within that time.

Mr. Richards, of the Richards-Sundeen company, is expected to arrive in the city today or tomorrow to make arrangements for the sub-letting of contracts and for the transportation of men and teams to the scene of the work. A number of the local loggers who have teams that were employed in the woods all the past winter are figuring on putting them at railroad construction work this summer.

Changes on Central.

C. W. Booth became assistant general superintendent of the Wisconsin Central railway today, and J. B. Whaling becomes purchasing agent of the road. The appointments were announced yesterday by General Superintendent Potter.

CUT FLOUR RATES.

Tariff From Chicago to the Seaboard Is Reduced.

As a result of a joint session held in Chicago between representatives of eastern railway and lake lines, the rates on grain products were reduced 2 cents per hundred from Chicago to the seaboard, both export and domestic, effective May 11.

Some difficulty was experienced in bringing about the reduction by the fear on the part of traffic men that the effect of such a reduction would be taken as a compliance with the finding of the commission that the rates were too high.

The traffic men united in protesting that the commission's threat to institute proceedings if the rates were not lowered had not the slightest influence in producing the result. It was asserted that commercial conditions also supplied the cause for the rate reductions.

The mills of the Twin Cities will now, it is asserted, begin working again to their full capacity. The rates as now fixed from Chicago to the seaboard are 18 cents on domestic and 15½ cents on export, all rail route; 16 and 13½ cents on domestic and export respectively, part rail and part water routes. The rates from the Twin Cities and Duluth are 7½ cents higher than the Chicago rate.

STILL WITH LEHIGH.

E. B. Sutton Will Act As Lehigh's Contracting Agent.

E. B. Sutton, who has been the agent of the Lehigh Valley road, in Duluth, will act as the contracting agent here in the future.

Western Freight Agent E. J. Henry sent out announcements today from Chicago stating that Mr. Sutton would act in that capacity in the future.

The same circular contained the information that John P. Gordon would act as the agent here, as announced in the newspapers some days ago. Mr. Gordon succeeds Mr. Sutton in his former position.

It was stated at the time the first announcement was made that Mr. Sutton would go into private business, but he has decided to accept the appointment and remain with the road here as the contracting agent.

WORK COMPLETED.

New Great Northern Roundhouse at Allouez Is Done.

The 12-stall round house which was built for the Great Northern company at Allouez for the engines engaged in the ore trade, has been completed and was turned over by the contractors to the company, today. The round house cost about $20,000. All that is necessary to place it in condition ready for use will be the construction of the tracks leading into it from the main line and yard tracks.

New Ashland Train.

A decision for the plaintiff in the action of Lyndon Hawkins against G. W. Horton and Sydney Brown, was filed in district court by Judge Ensign this morning. The action was tried during the April term and involved the title of lot 12, block 95, Endion division. The court holds that the plaintiff has no right or title to the premises described, that the defendant owns and has a judgment against the land for the sum of $135.73 with interest, since Feb. 8, 1894, and that subject only to the lien of the judgment, the defendant G. W. Horton is owner of the premises.

SUCCUMBED BY THE WAYSIDE

The West Duluth police received word that an unknown man was lying unconscious on the road from Bay View Heights to West Duluth. Patrolman Johnson was sent out with a carriage and found the man, who is a resident of Bay View Heights and a brother of a Mrs. Magnuson, who resides in that part of the city, whose name could not be learned.

He had been ill for several weeks and had but recently recovered. He started for West Duluth this morning, but the exertion proved to be more than he could stand in his weakened condition, and he fell unconscious at the side of the road.

The officer brought him to West Duluth, where medical aid was summoned. His relatives sent for him this afternoon.

DECISIONS BY SUPREME COURT

St. Paul, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a decision filed today, the state supreme court holds that a verdict recovered by a shipper for damages against an express company for birds confiscated from the express company by the state game warden is warranted.

The supreme court sustained a decision of the Ramsey county court whereby Url Lamprey, of St. Paul, is declared to be entitled to 50,000 acres of land valued at $100,000, claimed by Russell Sage, of New York. In 1887 the St. Paul & Chicago railway entered into a contract with Lamprey to convey to him about 100,000 acres of land and later, claiming a failure to complete the purchase, deeded the land to Russell Sage. Today's decision confirms the title in Lamprey on payment of $62,262.

A MATTER OF DRESS.

The action of the principal of the high school in urging parents and guardians of students who are to graduate from the school this year to prevent undue display in the matter of dress and adornment at the commencement exercises, meets with very general approval. It is a difficult question for the school authorities to handle, but it is undoubtedly true that something should be done to remove any appearance of inequality between the rich and the poor students on these occasions, and to protect the parents of the latter from being compelled to go to expense that they cannot afford. Simple and inexpensive dress at graduation exercises should be the rule, and it is pleasing to learn that practically all the students agree with this view and will carry out the wishes of the school authorities, as expressed in the circular letter issued by the principal.

Elaborate costumes and expensive flowers are out of place at such times, and no young woman or young man with a correct sense of what is fitting and appropriate would indulge in what under the circumstances would be vulgar display. The school board has given notice that it will furnish all the flowers and decorations it considers necessary, and with this item of expense eliminated, and the rule of simple apparel observed, there can be no ground of complain on the part of the students whose means are limited.

CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

Practical co-operation in the management of stores and small industries is one of the most successful features in the Socialistic line among the Jews of the United States. This movement is really about three years old, and has grown steadily until the New York society has a membership of 600 persons, the Philadelphia society a membership of 1500, the Boston society a membership of 300, and other societies are being formed rapidly in other Jewish centers. The New York society has for over a year conducted a prosperous hat and shoe and men's furnishing goods establishment, which sells the goods made by the Jewish labor unions of the East Side workers. Most of the purchasers are in some way partners in the undertaking, and all of them of course will share in the profits from their purchases. Very recently the New York society opened a tea store, and is hopeful of success along this line also. In Philadelphia the Jewish co-operative society has been in business for two years, and has recently purchased its own building. The hat and shoe stores conducted by the Philadelphia society have been prosperous and constantly growing establishments. In Worcester, Baltimore, New Britain, Newark and other places where smaller societies have been started, plans for similar undertakings are being eagerly pushed. In some cases the capital for these undertakings is obtained by the sale of shares at $5 each, and in other cases social entertainments are being held to raise the needed funds. Like all other socialistic enterprises, time alone will tell the story of success. Many have failed, while on the other hand a few have succeeded.

DIFFERENT FROM McKINLEY.

With the brilliant receptions accorded President Roosevelt on his journey through the country in mind, it is sad to learn by a Washington dispatch that for some reason or other the photographs of the present executive are not good sellers. A Washington photographer who has made a specialty of selling pictures of presidents for years, is authority for the statement that he has done little or no business with the Roosevelt pictures. "There is no demand for them," he says, "I can't tell why, but no one seems to want them. I had laid in a large stock of various photos of the president, anticipating a lively call for them, but I still have them on hand. When Mr. McKinley was president we sold twenty of his photographs where we now sell one of Mr. Roosevelt. Photographs of McKinley still outsell those of Roosevelt. I do not believe this is because the latter is unpopular. The only explanation that I can offer is that the class of people who buy the pictures of presidents to put into their parlors, were in love with McKinley and don't care much about Roosevelt. As a rule, people who buy portraits of McKinley are the ones who keep 'God Bless Our Home' over the door and have a large Bible on the parlor table."

The statement of the photographer contains a world of truth. President McKinley was admired for his character and loveableness, and people like to have portraits of such men in their homes. President Roosevelt is a different kind of a man. He is of the class whose present deeds commend them. His nature is different, however, from his predecessor, and he will never appeal to the hearts of the people as did the martyred president.

The latest biographer of Edgar Allen Poe settles the old dispute as to his birthplace by stating with emphasis that he was born in Boston, Jan. 19, 1809. This may explain some of the eccentricities of his genius.

The Associated Press dispatches did not include Governor Van Sant and his brilliantly-attired staff in the great parade at St. Louis. Is it possible that they were ignored in the make-up of the procession?

Grover Cleveland could not let pass the opportunity to give a hard rap to those who in recent times "flippantly attempt the adjustment of our constitution to purposes of interest and convenience."

IRISH EMIGRATION.

Will the Irish land measure now before parliament, stop the great drain on Ireland's population, which has continued for years? It is, of course, hard to tell, but it would seem that it would serve to keep many of the youth of that country on their native soil. The life of Ireland has been gradually ebbing away through the steady emigration to other countries, and it cannot be kept up much longer without serious consequences.

The vital statistics report of the registrar general for Ireland, for the year ending Dec. 31, 1902, shows the total number of emigrants was 40,401, or 9.1 per 1000 of the country's population, as estimated in the month of June. These emigrants comprised 18,893 males and 21,508 females, an increase of 531 over the number emigrating during the preceding year, 1901. The province of Connaught furnished the largest proportion of this outflow, compared with its population, the number being 11,533, or 17.8 per 1000; next came Munster, with 15,872, or 14.7 per 1000; then Ulster, with 9091, or 5.7 per 1000, and Leinster, which contains Dublin, with 3694, or 3.2 per 1000 of the people. Compared with the year 1901, these figures show an increase of 204 emigrants from Leinster, a decrease of 509 from Munster, an increase of 351 from Ulster and an increase of 441 from Connaught. The portions of the report taken up with the tables and the analysis of the emigration figures since May 1, 1851—the date on which the collection of these returns commenced—show the enormous drain of population that has taken place. Between May 1, 1851, and Jan. 1 of the present year the emigrants from Ireland make up the enormous total of 3,921,222, comprising 2,040,236 males, and 1,180,986 females. The largest number in any one year was 190,322 in 1852, and the smallest 32,241 in 1898. If to the total by emigration is added those who died of famine and of typhus fever, superinduced by insufficient food during 1846-49, who numbered, according to Mr. Mulhall, in round numbers about 1,225,000, we get the enormous depletion of 5,225,000 of the population, without reckoning the large emigration of which there is no complete return, that occurred between 1846 and May 1, 1851.

This record is serious, and a stop in the outgoing seems absolutely necessary. A change in the economic conditions of the country is necessary, and it is possible that the changes to be brought about by parliament will improve the situation. It is to be hoped that they will.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP.

The great increase in taxes and rapidly growing municipal indebtedness in English cities has caused somewhat of a revolt against municipal ownership. Various societies are being organized and a strong effort is being made to arouse the average respectable citizen to a realization of conditions that are beginning to exist and the dangers of the future. Municipalism has become strongly entrenched, however, and the antis will have no easy task to overthrow the plan which has strongly appealed to the common people. According to Sydney Brooks, in Harper's Weekly, Glasgow is by far the most active city in Great Britain in municipal ownership. The corporation—that is to say, the city council—supply the people of Glasgow with water, gas, electric light, cable and electric cars, and telephones; they control eleven public parks and galleries, thirteen baths and wash-houses, a fruit and vegetable market, a dead-meat market, a home cattle market, two foreign cattle markets, a cheese market, a bird and dog market, and an old-clothes market, four slaughter-houses and offices, four hospitals, and one burying-ground; they are the owners of 2488 municipal houses, seventy-eight lodging-houses, of which they manage seven themselves; a family home, which they also direct; 372 shops, forty-nine stores, forty-three warehouses, forty-three workshops, twelve halls, two churches, two hotels, one theater, one studio, one pawn office, one nursing home, one powder mill, one laundry, one bakehouse, one golf course, and one gospel tent; they farm over 1000 acres of land, where large crops are grown, including all the hay used in the stables of the cleansing department, as well as crops of oats, wheat, turnips, etc.; they convert the city sewage into solid matter, and sell it to farmers for manure; they carry on business as market gardeners; they possess stone quarries and 900 railway wagons; they build street cars, reclaim hogs, conduct a civic granary, raise $5000 a year on the clinker from the refuse-cremating furnaces, collect and sell waste paper, and are not above melting and disposing of the solder from the old tin cans they find in the dust heaps. Glasgow, moreover, is only one of many—an extreme, but by no means unique, example of what is going on all over the kingdom.

Side by side, and intimately connected with all this, are to be noted a prodigious expansion of municipal indebtedness—it now stands at well over $1,500,000,000—and an increase in local rates almost as great. The way in which local authorities plunder manufacturers, industrial companies, well-to-do traders, and property-owners, that some fresh municipal enterprise may be undertaken, is almost incredible. The question of local rates is becoming as formidable to British industry as the question of trades unionism. Moreover, it is a fact that the "new municipalism" is the direct outcome of the concerted movement which English trade unionists, Socialists, and labor men have organized for the capture of the local authorities.

American cities can profit by the expense of these British cities. Municipal ownership of public utilities has been demonstrated, under conservative management, to be a good thing for all concerned, but when a step is made into the ordinary channels of trade then trouble begins. That step should be avoided.

A canvass of the Virginia legislature has revealed the fact that a majority favor Senator Gorman as the Democratic candidate for president. But there are other states with larger electoral votes to be heard from.

The new Chinese minister at Washington is a baseball enthusiast, and it is said that he can pitch curves that puzzle. Some of the other diplomats have curves that are puzzling, although they know little about baseball.

Boss Croker does not need the perquisites of New York politics. He is reported to be making more than $100,000 a year with his racing stable.

Something must be done by the administration to suppress that man Fairbanks of Indiana. Now it is reported that a campaign in his favor has been begun in Kentucky and North Carolina.

The president was compelled to eat at a lunch counter at St. Louis, and the sight engrossed the attention of the crowd.

The Panama canal treaty is held up at Colon, but it has not reached a full stop.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The advance guard of the grand rally of the Ladies of the Maccabees arrived this morning at the hotels in the city. Supreme Commander Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit, registered at the Spalding hotel early this morning, and was engaged all the morning in conferences and visits preparatory to the meeting this afternoon.

Mrs. Hollister is a middle-aged woman, with a natural dignity and the appearance of countenance that distinguish the successful business man from the usual run of average humanity. She looks like the leader that she is, and it does not need a second glance to see that her confidence in what she believes is right, is without end.

Mrs. Hollister is a woman of culture and refinement. She has traveled extensively over the globe, besides her many journeys through the United States since reaching the position she now occupies. She speaks several different languages fluently and is a most entertaining conversationalist in her native tongue.

Besides being the supreme commander of her lodge, Mrs. Hollister is interested in the W. C. T. U. and other benevolent and praiseworthy associations.

She arrived in Duluth early this morning and had not been given a chance to look around very much this morning. She held a little informal reception of local Ladies of the Maccabees at the hotel, and this afternoon will be the main figure at the meeting in the Armory.

Besides Mrs. Hollister there are registered Dr. Susan F. Rose, supreme medical examiner of the order, from Port Huron. They are accompanied during their visit here by Annie M. Welch and Mabel M. Teare, of Minneapolis.

Senator C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, registered at the St. Louis hotel last evening and will be in Duluth for a short time.

Superintendent J. H. Hearding, of the Spruce mine, at Eveleth, is in town and is registered at the Spalding hotel. He was in conference at the offices of the Steel corporation yesterday. The Spruce mine is in full working order, and the repairing has been all completed in the shafts which burned out some weeks ago, when the fatal accident occurred. Mr. Hearding will leave for home today or tomorrow.

O. H. Gates, superintendent of the Indian school on Vermilion lake, is in the city and registered at the Hotel McKay. Mr. Gates is supposed to be looking for cooks and household help for his school.

The problem of securing competent girls for housework and hotel work is becoming as serious in the range towns as in Duluth.

The Hotel McKay is experiencing a famine in dining room help, and Manager William McKay said this morning that he was having a hard job to gather in the number requisite for the easy operation of the hostelry, the business at this time of the year being rushing.

A case or two of illness and some trivial vacation causes great disarrangement of plans, and the result is the hotel is looking for help and willing to make it an object for recruits in the ranks at that place.

The strike of waiters will not reach beyond the restaurants of the city. At none of the hotels will there be any trouble on account of the trouble now pending, and none of the hotel employes are participating in the conferences of the organized waiters, so far as is known.

D. Marc, of Paris, and J. Hayward, of Liverpool, England, are at the Spalding hotel. Mr. Hayward is here in the interests of a large grain house of Liverpool. He left for Chicago today and will contract for shipments there. He made no announcements of what business he did in Duluth, though he was here for two days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Moore, of Virginia, were at the Spalding hotel yesterday. Mrs. Moore and little son have been in the East and were on their way home.

Capt. D. M. Agnew of the Mahoning mine, at Hibbing, was in the city and registered at the Spalding hotel. The work at the mine is booming along, and the shipments being made are running larger than last year at this time.

M. S. Hawkins, of Mountain Iron, was at the Spalding hotel last night. Mr. Hawkins is superintending the beginning of the work of stripping of the Crosby mine, near Nashwauk. The men are now engaged in the actual stripping, it having been started the middle of the week. Mr. Hawkins figures the mine will start shipping by the middle of July, though it may be sooner, if conditions are favorable.

Ely people who were down from the range yesterday said there was a foot of snow at that place, and it looked as if it were going to stay a while, as it was a rather solid looking coating when the storm was finished.

* * *

SMILING REMARKS.

Detroit Free Press: Frederick—A penny for your thoughts, Flora.

Flora—I was thinking of a $15 hat.

New York Sun: Stella—Cholly and Mable are not on speaking terms any more.

Bella—Why, I thought they were engaged.

Stella—So they are. They just sit for hours and hold each other's hands.

Brooklyn Life: "Mrs. Jones seems to be heartbroken over her husband's death."

"Yes, even her hair has turned black again."

Chicago Tribune: Gwimpole—Squallop told me yesterday he was suffering from a gathering in his head.

Sflint—It oughtn't to cause him any suffering. He has plenty of room there.

Chicago News: Slifkins—Is there any truth in the report that Blank's wife suffers from dipleptomania?

Timkins—No, I guess not. I understand it is the shopkeepers who suffer.

Puck: Farmer Barnes—Yes; poor Josh Medders wuz run over by an auto, but he seems happy.

Farmer Hedges—Does the doctor say he can recover?

Farmer Barnes—No; but the lawyer does!

Chicago Tribune: Mr. Ferguson (with an air of being bored)—Haven't you talked long enough about your trouble with the neighbors' chickens, Laura? Think about that Kansas man that yawned the other day and dislocated his jaw.

Mrs. Ferguson—If he yawned while his wife was talking to him it served him right!

A SISTER'S LOVE.

A sister's love—a love that knows
No earthly strain, no selfish part;
A love pure as the love that glows
In heaven within an angel's heart.
For you in early morning light,
For you in suence of the night,
Its prayers go up to heaven above.
This is a true sister's love.

A love that if you faint and pale
Beneath the burden of your cross,
Will share your griefs and sorrows all,
And help you to return the lost.
A love all patient to endure
A love forever strong and sure,
Yet meek and gentle as a dove;
This is a true sister's love.

A love that as the years go by
And age and days of pain draw near,
Still like a star that shines on high,
Will shine upon the pure and clear;
A love no absence can estrange,
A love no time can chill or change
Or from its deep foundation shove;
This is a true sister's love.

A love that still will live when this
Brief life has like a vision passed;
When you shall sit enthroned in bliss,
In your celestial home at last.
A love that will unchanging be,
Through all the glad eternity—
Part of that blessed life above.
This is a true sister's love.

An Old Phrase Overworked.

New York Times: John Burns, M. P., somewhat shocked the "Mother of Parliaments" on Wednesday by applying to industrial America the familiar and hackneyed description of the City of Pittsburg at night, "hell with the lid off." It was not an apt application of the phrase, which he had picked up in this country, and he did not improve matters by repeating it and adding, "You may smile, but it is true!" Orators who use the extravagant and lurid phrases of American metaphor should be gifted with a sense of humor, but that is something most conspicuously lacking in Mr. Burns' mental make-up.

Granary of the Nation.

Charles M. Harvey in World's Work: The states and territories of the purchase produced 264,000,000 bushels of wheat in 1900, valued at $152,000,000—more than half of the wheat crop of the whole United States; 1,013,000,000 bushels of corn, or 48 per cent of the country's product; 38 per cent of the country's oats. The wheat, corn, oats, rye, barley, cotton, hay and potatoes produced in this region in 1900 brought $755,000,000, and its farm animals were valued at $825,000,000, 38 per cent of those of the whole country.

Shouldn't Make It a Monologue.

Nashville Banner: Having again denounced Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Bryan, by political courtesy, should withhold further denunciation of the ex-president until Mr. Waterson gets in his alternate inning.

Violets.

Violets, shy violets!
How many hearts with ye compare?
Who hide themselves in thickest green,
And thence unseen
Ravish the enraptured air
With sweetness, dewy fresh and rare!

Violets, shy violets!
Human hearts to me shall be
Viewless violets in the grass,
And, as I pass,
Odors and sweet imagery
Will waft on mine and gladden me!
—GEORGE MEREDITH.

His Lawful Wife

By Don Mark Lemon.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

She of the people, he of the aristocracy, and a young wife of a year, wronged and forsaken. The first two in latitude 37 degrees, longitude 144 degrees, five minutes, sailing for Japan, alone. The guilty lovers fleeing from the voice of condemnation and the long arm of the law; the wife following, seeking to reclaim her infatuated husband.

The old story of criminal alliance, as ugly as when first told, and that never came to good; but as Robert Thorton drew Mme. le Clere's cloak closer about her shoulders he drowned in the warm breath from her lips all memory of a deserted wife, and in the blue pools of her delectable eyes all recollection of a wrcked life and a lost honor.

What if men were heaping odium upon his name, back there 4000 miles, where the Pacific, lapped alongthe shore of a free, new land—were not all the gods of love whispering his name—and her name—there where the sun was going down into a summer-tossed sea of glory?

Behind them, a mere speck upon the waters, another ship rode. But they did not see it, nor were they troubled by forbearings of a lone woman walking the deck—a dark haired, soft-eyed little woman; but whose face would have been to the guilty lovers the very specter of alarm! A patient, faithful little woman—the wronged and forsaken wife of Robert Thorton!

Days passed, then the coast of Japan came into view, and the vessel in the lead rode into port and her passengers stepped ashore. Four hours later the passengers from the other ship also went ashore.

Robert Thorton hurried Mme. le Clere to what seemed a secure retreat where, under an assumed name, and as man and wife, the guilty lovers proposed to pass a day and night; then travel further inland. But a quiet, patient face at a window, looking out upon the passing throng, shook them like the incarnate face of Justice, and they hastened down to the wharves and took passage for Ceylon. Another ship followed in the wake of theirs, and the guilty lovers felt that they were being tracked.

But again they caught sight of the patient face of a woman looking down from a window upon the passing throng,and Robert Thorton and Mme. le Clere fled into Russia.

Here the doors of escape aid retreat seemed more open and secure, for Robert Thorton's deserted wife was the daughter of a noble Russian political refugee, and she scarcely would dare to venture into Russian territory. Then, too, Robert Thorton's abandoned wife had taught him the Russian language, which he now spoke with considerable fluency, and to commensurate advantage.

Then again that quiet, patient face, looking down upon the passing throng. The face of a woman, seeking and hoping and waiting; but waiting more, than hoping. Robert Thorton looked up at the face and the face looked up at him; then the man turned and fled. His lawful wife had found his guilty Eden, and instant flight was the only hope.

Back to Mme. le Clere he hastened, and at the news of their discovery the latter drew her ermine cloak about her white shoulders and shivered as from sudden cold. Then she laughed lightly.

"Faugh!" she said; "that meek-faced thing!"

But Robert Thorton begged for flight, and Mme. le Clere promised: "upon the morrow."

The morning came, and with it a guard of gendarmes, that filed into Mme. le Clere's luxurious apartments and took possession. Robert Thorton protested against the outrage, but the influexible, pointed to Mme. le Clere, warm in cloak and ermine for immediate flight, and demanded.

"Is that your wife?"

Robert Thorton was about to aonswer, when the door opened, and a patient-faced woman stood upon the threshold. The lieutenant of gendarmes seemed not to notice her, and again pointing to Mme. le Clere, demanded:

"Is that your wife?"

Robert Thorton looked from Mme. le Clere to the woman in the doorway—from mistres to lawful wife; and well he knew the strictness and tyranny of the Russian police, and realized that if he should refuse to answer he might be placed under arrest and his identity as an American forger and refugee be discovered.

Again came the stern question: "Is this your wife?"

There was no escape; he must answer; he must shield this woman, his mistress. Turning to Mme. le Clere, he caid: "Yes, this woman is my wife."

"Robert!"

It was a sound of a heart breaking, more than a spoken word, and Robert Thorton's wife came forward and knelt at her husband's feet and clasped his knees in dumb, piteous pleading.

Still seeming unconscious of the wife's presence, the lieutenant of the gendarmes lifted his hand.

"Will you swear before God that yon der woman is your lawful wife?"

Slowly the lieutenant's hand descended till it pointed to Mme. le Clere, who stood near with heaving bosom and alarmed eyes.

With his eyes turned full upon the voluptuous beauty of his mistress, so that he would not lose courage, Robert Thorton lifted his hand and swore:

"Before God, I swear that this woman is my lawful wife!"

The lieutenant addressed Mme. le Clere in English:

"Will you swear that this man is your lawful husband?"

Mme. le Clere looked into the eyes of her lover and read their message.

"I swear!" she said.

"Before God?"

"Before God!"

The lieutenant of the gendarmes drew a paper from his uniform and read:

"To Paul Vladimir, lieutenant of the police of Poltava: You are commanded to siezc the person of the lawful wife of Robert Henry Thorton, refugee from the United States of America, and banish her for life to the colony of Barliach, in Siberia. By order of the prefect."

There was a sudden, precise movement upon the part of the gendarmes, and Mme. le Clere was surrounded. For a moment she seemed like one stupified by horror; then, with a shriek, she reached out her arms to her lover.

Robert Thorton leaped forward, but between himself and the voluptuous beauty of Mme. le Clere there suddenly flashed a row of bayonets. Driven back, baffled and maddened, he turned upon the lieutenant.

"What is the meaning of this?" he demanded.

"Sir," came the cold reply; "your wife is the daughter of Count Ostroff, a Russian refugee."

Robert Thorton understood—but too late! The woman kneeling at his feet—his lawful wife—was wanted by the Russian government, which, like the spirit of heredity, punishes even to the third generation—because she was the daughter of a great Russian political agitator, a nobleman who had stood for the just, but the losing side; and now Mme. le Clere was to be banished to Siberia in her stead, since she had sworn before God that she was his lawful wife.

He turned to Mme. le Clere. The gendarmes had stripped her of her ermine and diamonds, and thrown about her form a coarse sacking. And from her white wrists they had taken the jeweled bracelets to make place for the law's manacles.

She moaning with fright, holding out her gyved hands, begging her guilty lover to save her. But it was too late! Her pleadings, her vows that she was not the wife of Robert Thorton, but only his mistress, fell on headless ears. Was she not named in his pasport as his lawful wife? Had she not sworn before God that she was his lawful wife? Had not Robert Thorton sworn before God that this woman was his lawful wife? What further proof was wanted by a swift justice?

Then Mme. le Clere and Robert Thorton—mistress and lover—turned to the wife, the woman they had wronged, and begged her to speak the few saving words—begged that she confess herself to be the lawful wife of Robert Thorton.

In an agony of suspense they waited for her words. Steadily they came, as with uplifted hands she pointed to Mme. le Clere:

"Before Almighty God, I swear that that woman is Marie Ostroff, daughter of Count Ostroff, the Russian refugee and the lawful wife of that man!"

"Forward!" commanded the lieutenant of the guard.

ONWARD.

(The first ten lines of this hymn were left a fragment by Henry Kirke White, written on the back of one of his mathematical papers, and dated 1806. The hymn as it now stands was completed by Fanny Fuller Maitland, and published in 1827.)

Much in sorrow, oft in woe,
Onward, Christians, onward go;
Fight the fight, and, worn with strife,
Steep with tears the Bread of Life.

Onward, Christians, onward go;
Join the war, and face the foe;
Faint not; much doth yet remain;
Dreary is the long campaign.

Shrink not, Christians! will ye yield?
Will ye quit the painful field?
Will ye flee in danger's hour?
Know ye not your Captain's power?

Let your drooping hearts be glad;
March, in heavenly armor clad;
Fight, nor think the battle long;
Victory soon shall tune your song.

Let not sorrow dim your eye,
Soon shall every tear be dry;
Let not woe your course impede;
Great your strength, if great your need.

Onward then to battle move;
More than conquerors ye shall prove;
Though opposed by many a foe,
Christian soldiers, onward go.

—HENRY KIRKE WHITE.

Would Eat It, Anyhow.

Washington Post: Representative Cushman, of Washington state, told a new story in the Republican cloak rooms a few days ago. He stated that a number of years ago the lawyers of that state at one of the meetings of the state bar association gave a banquet to all the lawyers present.

"One of the old-timers," said Mr. Cushman, "was on hand from the wilds of Wahkiagum. He had practiced law in the territory when Grant was in the white house. The old fellow wore a long-tailed claw-hammer coat, with brace buttons, and other prehistoric raiment.

"When he took his seat at the table there was before him in the center of the table a large silver pudding dish filled with custard, upon the top of which was floating an inviting snow-white frosting. The old gentleman, not recognizing the conventionalities of the occasion, went for it like a Dolly Varden trout for a salmon egg. He reached over the table and pulled the dish gently toward him. Capped the silver ladle deep into the delicious compound, and sucked the ladle dry with one distinctly audible smack. Just as he dipped the ladle in a second time one of the colored waiters spied him, limped up, hurrying up to the old man, and whispered in his ear:

"'Don't eat dat, mistah. Dat's de dessert.

"The aged lawyer looked up in innocent amazement, with the ladle poised in air, and said:

"'Dessert, eh? — I'm not afraid of it. I'd eat it if it was a wilderness!'"

In Serenity of Spirit.

As then the tulip for her morning sup
Of heavenly vintage from the soil looks up,
Do you devoutly do the like, till Heaven
To Earth invert you—like an empty cup.

Perplext no more with Human or Divine,
Tomorrow's tangle to the winds resign,
And lose your fingers in the tresses of
The cypress-slender minister of wine.

And if the wine you drink, the lip you press
End in what all begins and ends in—yes;
Think then you are today what yesterday
You were—tomorrow you shall not be less.

—The Rubalyat of Omar Khayyam.

A Sympathetic Link.

Philadelphia North American: While traveling on skis in Yellowstone Park the president fell head first in a snow drift. We shall expect to read a sympathetic and reminiscent editorial in the next issue of the Commoner. Mr. Bryan had a similar experience on two occasions.

An Indiana Practical Joke.

Indianapolis News: Bert Beeler, clerk in Room 1 of the Marion county superior court, "got his" yesterday.

Some one called up and Beeler answered the phone.

"Superior court, Room 1?"

"Yes."

"This is the wire chief. Your phone is not working right, and I want to make some tests. Please stand over to the right about a yard and say hello."

Clerk Beeler did as directed.

"Now stand over to the left about a yard and a half," requested the man making the tests.

Beeler complied.

"Now stand about two rods away, directly in front of the phone, and speak real loud." Beeler was getting tired, but he did as he was told.

"Now, you lobster, stand on your head and whistle."

Beeler tumbled, and, with an "O, you go to —," slammed up the receiver.

French Reconteurs In Danger.

St. Louis Star: It is rumored that in the event of the withdrawal of Ambassador Porter from France, Chauncey M. Depew will be appointed to succeed him. Possibly no man could be selected that would give American people better satisfaction.

The Weary and Heavy Laden.

Chicago Record-Herald: Mr. Baer, of the Reading, says he is president of so many companies that he can't remember the names of them all. Isn't "Providence in its infinite wisdom" putting a heavier load on poor old Baer than he ought to be called upon to tote around?

No Fun In It Now.

Milwaukee News: The president's sojourn in the Yellowstone Park has been brought to a termination. He is now speeding westward, and will continue his swing around the circle. It will now be safe for newspaper correspondents and dogs to visit the park.

BRYAN FOR TEDDY

Eastern Observers of Political Signs Foresee That Possibility.

Would Rather Support Roosevelt Than Any Easterner Named.

Minneapolis, May 1.—A Washington special to the Journal says: Washington politicians are wondering if there is to be a split in the Democratic party next year, the East against the West. There are signs in the West which point toward it, and the subject is one which is attracting a good deal of attention among politicians of both parties everywhere.

Several propositions bearing upon this possible split and seemingly encouraging it are self evident:

First—Bryan must be reckoned with in the 1904 campaign; first, in the national convention; second, if that body refuses to follow him, in the regular campaign.

Second—The Eastern Democracy, which dislikes Bryan, and the trust promoters of Wall tsreet, strong supporters of Republican policies until now, who dislike Roosevelt, are united in an ardent desire to retire both permanently from active participation in public affairs.

Third—The rumor of a coalition between these hitherto hostile elements has reached the great West, with the result that both Bryan and Roosevelt have been much strengthened in that quarter.

Fourth—This situation gives promise that the 1904 Democratic national convention will be one of the liveliest for many years. The Eastern branch of the party will go to the convention supporting Judge Parker, Olney, Gorman, or some man of that type; the Middle West Democracy will go opposing any man whom the East may present. In the struggle which will follow, Bryan will probably be defeated. Then what?

It is a curious fact that the Democrats of the great West, who followed Bryan to defeat in two national campaigns, are friendly to President Roosevelt, and entirely satisfied with him as a man and as president. Free silver being dead, they stand for him on all the great issues of the day, and are prepared to support him so far as the tariff is concerned. What these men will do next year will depend very largely upon Bryan. At this time it looks as if one of two things would happen, assuming that Bryan cannot control the 1904 convention:

(a) The nomination, at Bryan's suggestion, of an independent Democratic ticket, adhering to the Kansas City platform, and protesting against the swallowing of the Eastern wing of the party by Wall street; or

Bryan's friends in the West have said openly, and Bryan has said the same thing in his public utterances, but more guardedly, that the Western democracy will not support any man next year who is under suspicion of being managed by the trusts. Cleveland, Olney or Gorman would be repudiated on their records; Judge Parker because of the company he is found in, another case of Old Dog Tray.

It is so evident that the Bryan people will not vote for any man who is nominated at the behest of the old-line Eastern bosses, that argument of the proposition is useless. If the Eastern states are not acquainted with the Western Democratic situation, they are sadly behind the times. There are signs, however, that they are acquainted with it, else why the rumor, so frequently repeated of late, that it is the intention of the Eastern managers, after they have gained control of the party in the national convention, to cut loose from Bryan, abandon the great West to Roosevelt, and focus the campaign on the so-called trust states, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Delaware and West Virginia?

With the electoral votes of these states, added to those of the solid South, and of such states as Indiana, Roosevelt's defeat would be more nearly possible than some of his sanguine friends now think.

It is another curious fact that President Roosevelt will probably poll next year the largest labor vote ever cast for a Republican presidential nominee. Hitherto this vote has been largely Democratic. It is gathered together in the great cities, and explains, more than any other single fact, why these centers of population are usually Democratic.

Roosevelt's course regarding the settlement of the anthracite coal strike, and his manly, courageous and fair attitude toward all questions concerning labor, have won the hearts of the laboring classes. They like his frankness, his very evident purpose to take the people fully and freely into his confidence, his stand for higher ideals and a purer citizenship. They believe in him because he is typically an American citizen, his veins filled with rich, red American blood, and his impulses steadily and immovably on the side of the right. They will vote for him in large numbers, and help swell the popular majority by which his admirers believe he will be elected. In this connection it may be said that the Roosevelt boomers insist that he will break all records next year so far as popular vote is concerned, and in the event of a Democratic split establish a new high-water mark in the electoral college.

This estimate of Roosevelt's labor strength is made as the result of personal inquiries made within the past two months in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Kansas City and St. Louis, in which cities Democrats as well as Republicans, and best of all, business men not in politics, call attention to the curious political phenomenon of organized labor preparing to rally in support of a Republican presidential candidate.

The feeling that the trusts do not like Roosevelt has been a factor in this change of labor sentiment.

CONTINGENT FUND GIVEN

Legislature Provides For One For the County Attorney.

The passage by the state legislature, at the last session, of a law providing for a contingent fund for the county attorney, will greatly facilitate the work of that office in this and other counties in Minnesota. The act provides that the money shall be for the use of the county attorney for the payment of such expenses as may be necessary and not otherwise provided for in the trial and preparation for trial in criminal cases and in investigations before the grand jury.

Previous to the passage of the act the county attorney has been at a disadvantage at times for want of funds to carry out the work of his office. Occasions have arisen where it was almost imperative that he should have funds to carry out certain projects, but under the law he could only advance the money from his own pocket and then present a bill to the board of county commissioners.

Under the new law, designated as chapter 204 of the new statutes, the county commissioners of each county are authorized to set apart, at their annual meeting in January of each year, such an amount as may be deemed necessary for a contingent fund, not less than $100, nor in excess of $1000. This fund will come from moneys in the county treasury not specially appropriated or set aside for other purposes, and will be for the use of the county attorney.

All the disbursements from this fund are to be made in the regular manner by the county treasurer on a warrant from the county audltor, issued to a person designated by the county attorney, and countersigned by any judge of district court for the same county.

If the judge of district court, who signs the order, does not think public interests will be prejudiced thereby, he is to file with the county auditor an itemized and verified list as furnished by the count yattorney.

The contingent fund will place within reach of the county attorney's office available means for prosecutory warfare against gambling and vice in St. Louis county that that officer has not previously had.

The act goes into immediate effect, and the county commissioners are authorized to create the contingent fund from any moneys in the treasury not already set aside for other purposes. If there is any sum remaining in the county attorney's contingent fund at the end of the year the county auditor is to transfer it to the general revenue fund of the county.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Lunatic Leaves Newberry Asylum Because "Pay Is Small."

Gladstone—Charles Soder, an inmate of the Newberry insane asylum, was found here on the street early this morning. He said he left the asylum because they did not pay enough. Arrangements are being made for his return, as he is dangerous at times.

Sault Ste. Marie—The telephone question is prominently before the people of the Soo. Some time ago the council passed an ordinance fixing telephone rates at $24 a year for business places and $12 for residences, a special committee having reported these gures to be equitable. The Michigan Telephone company, however, ignores the action taken by the council and is still charging $36 for business and $24 for residence 'phones. It denies the authority of the council and claims to be operating under a state law. Several citizens have tendered to the company the prices fixed by the ordinance, but in each case the proffer has been refused with warning that unless the company's rates were paid the service would be cut off. Now a movement is on foot to test the validity of the ordinance, and a case that will eventually find its way to the supreme court will soon be commenced.

Munising—The Chicago Lumber company of Manistique has placed a contract with Finn & McCann, of Munising to peel 7000 cords of bark, and to cut 6,000,000 feet of hemlock and a large quantity of cedar. Two camps are being established ten miles south of Shingleton.

Grand Marais—Two dogs were seen playing with a human hand. The authorities are investigating, but so far the matter is shrouded in mystery. The hand is that of a man, and the flesh is still intact.

Houghton—Attorneys for John McLachlin, convicted of arson, have given notice that they will move for a new trial on the ground that McLachlin was insane at the time of the crime.

Bessemer—Vincento Belgo, suspected of complicity in the Colloseco murder at Fink, was caught by Undersheriff Rowett and landed in jail after an exciting chase.

Hancock—Gus Westerback, who ran amuck at Suomi college with a revolver, is confined in the county jail, hopelessly insane.

DECLINES TO ARREST.

Sheriff Butchart Does Not Obey Ely Telegram.

Sheriff Butchart was notified by a telephone message from Ely last evening to take into custody Mrs. Henry Logan, wife of a Methodist minister at Ely, the husband claiming that she, with the children, was deserting him. The sheriff investigated the case, interviewing Mrs. Logan at the hotel where she was stopping until her train left for the West. She said that she was on her way to Winnipeg to visit her mother, and the officer decided that he had no call to arrest her. It is claimed that domestic relations between the Ely pastor and his wife have not been agreeable and that she left him two years ago, returning to his home later and remaining until yesterday.

A FORTUNE HANGS

On Outcome of Fraud Charges In United States Court.

Alleged Girl Is Not Legal Heir of Boy's Paternal Grandfather.

Kansas City, Mo., May 1.—Is Mary Bunel-Key the grand-daughter of Charles Bunel and entitled to a share of his large estate?

Out of a mass of depositions, petitions, cross-bills and answers filed in the United States court for the Western district of Missouri must come the answer.

Judge Phillips has under advisement the first phase of the suit that involves property in Missouri, New York and in far-off France.

The case comes up from Springfield, Mo., and involves the titled of $100,000 of property in bonds, mortgages and real estate, and is brought by Henry Napoleon Bunel of New York to recover money paid out of his grandfather's estate to Mrs. Bunel-Key.

The matter before the court at this time is a petition of Mrs. Key to withdraw an answer she previously made admitting she is not a legal heir of old Charles Bunel.

It is alleged by the young woman's attorneys that her answer was secured through undue influence, duress, perjury and fraud.

The story of the Bunel case is a chapter from real life that reads like the modern historical romance. In 1803, Charles Bunel, the ancestor who left the estate now in controversy, came to America from France. He engaged in the bakery business in New York city and amassed a fortune of $99,000. At the end of ten years he sold out his New York property and returned to France. But he had a son, also named Charles, who imbibed the spirit of the Americans. He refused to return to Europe.

There was a quarrel between the father and the son and the former returned to his fatherland, while the son came West. Young Charles Bunel loved the sky and the air and the wilderness. He cared little for money and less for France. He settled in the Ozark country in southern Missouri, and wedded a Missouri girl. Young Bunel was pleased with Missouri and never attempted a reconciliation with his father. But the old folks sent many appeals to return to France and take charge of the estate there. The appeals passed unheeded.

A year after the marriage of Charles Bunel, Jr., his son, Henry Napoleon Bunel, the claimant in this suit, was born. In 1881 the daughter, Mary Bunel-Key, defendant in the suit, was born. Charles Bunel, Jr., died soon after the birth of his daughter and her mother soon after married J. T. Earles, whom it is now claimed was the father of Mary Bunel. This is the cause of all the trouble.

Old Charles Bunel, in France, did not long survive his son. In 1885 Mrs. Bunel, Sr., came to America, and induced her son's widow to allow her to take young Henry Napoleon Bunel to France. When it cattained his majority he came into the fortune left by his grandfather, amounting to about $250,000. He then removed to New York, which is still his home.

Three lawyers in southern Missouri, E. Y. McClendon, G. Roper and the late Thomas Kersy, became acquainted with the case and they brought suit on Mary's behalf in New York for one-half of the estate and received a judgment for $70,000 half of which it is said was retained by the lawyers as their fee.

The girl was then carefully guarded and sent to school, but she did not do well in the several institutions of learning to which she was sent. When she was 16 years of age she eloped with Henry Key, a farmer boy who had his eye on the fortune, and they were married in the Indian Territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Key made their home in Springfield, and though the girl's parents have become reconciled to the marriage, they have made repeated attempts to cause a separation. Three times has Mrs. Key filed suit for divorce in the circuit court, and each time her allegations were of a sensational nature, but they were withdrawn before they came to trial.

Henry N. Bunel began the present suit in the federal court at Springfield against his sister and the curator of the estate. He alleged that the New York decree was based upon perjured testimony. It is alleged in this motion to withdraw the answer that it is based upon undue influence, duress, perjury and fraud. The answer sought to be withdrawn was made by Mary Bunel-Key. It acknowledged that she was not the child of Damas Bunel, the heir through whom the estate came, and that she relinquished her interests.

LOUBET AT MARSEILLES.

Given Warm Reception on Entering Port.

Marseilles, May 1.—President Loubet arrived here yesterday from Biserta, Tunis, on board the warship Jeanne D'Arc, escorted by the French fleet. As the president's ship approached the port moving at a slow speed she was saluted by the land batteries and the American warships under the command of Rear Admiral Cotton.

As the Jeanne D'Arc entered the roadstead Admiral Cotton proceeded in a steam launch alongside of the French cruiser.

He was met at the rail by the captain of the vessel, who presented him to M. Loubet, Admiral Cotton greeted the president and expressed the affectionate sentiments of President Roosevelt and the American people toward the government and people of France.

NOT ACTIONABLE

Is Statement Made By Head of Department.

Washington, May 1.—The district circuit court yesterday decided in favor of the defendant in the suit of Charles A. Dearnaud against Gen. F. C. Ainsworth chief of the records and pension division of the war department, for $50,000 damages for alleged libellous statements in a report on Dearnaud's military record. The court said that a report made by the head of a government department, under the provisions of law, is privileged, and even if actuated by malice, if made in the line of duty, is not actionable. Appeal was taken to the court of appeals.

TITLE TO POEM

Called "Paddle Your Own Canoe" Claimed By Woman.

Hoosier Guests at French Lick Springs Are Startled.

French Lick Springs, Ind., May 1.—"I am Mrs. Bolton—Sarah T. Bolton. You have doubtless heard of me as an authoress, as I have written and published a great deal of worthy poetry. One of my little poems, written years ago has been much quoted—has made me somewhat famous, in fact. Its title is 'Paddle Your Own Canoe.' Don't you remember it? The refrain, I mean—

"'Never sit down, with a tear or frown,
But paddle your own canoe.'"

This statement was made by an elderly woman, with iron gray hair, much "frizzed" in front, wearing an expensive and rather too youthful gown, and a profusion of diamonds, to a party of Indianapolis people in the hotel lobby here. It was rather a startling statement to at least one of the older men who heard it, as he well remembered Sarah T. Bolton, the Indiana poetess, who died a few years ago, and whose book of poems can still be found in the libraries of thousands of Hoosier homes. Among these poems "Paddle Your Own Canoe" was the most famous—the most quoted, teaching as it did in a quaint but effective way the lesson of perseverence and self-dependence. To those who had seen this gifted Indiana woman, had heard her read her own poems, remembered her Kindly face, with her white-waved hair, combed down over the temples. In the style stately women wore their hair in the days when the state was young, the contrast between her appearance and that of the Mrs. Bolton now at Frenchlick Springs was more than striking, and it seemed perhaps something more than a coincidence that two women, one of them long since dead, of the same name, should have both claimed the authorship of a little poetical fragment that had been recited in school rooms and read in parlors in days before the present generation.

The Mrs. Bolton who is here is a well-preserved woman, who says she is 60 years old and looks even younger. She has been much in evidence about this resort for a week, making acquaintances and apparently enjoying the varying phases of life and diversions here. She talks well, says she is a member of the New York Women's Press club, and spends her time writing and traveling. She came here on week ago yesterday and registered as "Mrs. C. L. Bolton, San Antonio, Tex."

Mrs. Bolton sat in the Casino last night with a friend at the bookmakers' table, and made a few small bets, which she lost and good-naturedly scolded the young man who ran the wheel for not letting her win. "I don't gamble—at least, not much," she said. "Only occasionally like this in a small way for diversion. One must do something here to amuse one's self, you know."

I said to her: "And so you are Sarah T. Bolton, the famous Indiana poetess?"

She looked me squarely in the eye, hesitated for a moment and said: "No, I am not she. I am Sarah T. Bolton, who wrote 'Paddle Your Own Canoe,' but I am not the Indiana woman. I am only a cousin of hers. Her husband's father was my husband's uncle—no, that's not the way it was—I've forgotten just how, but, we are cousins. I haven't seen her for a long while. She is much older than I am, you know."

I did not tell her that Sarah T. Bolton, the original, had been dead several years, but asked, "Will you tell me now you came to write 'Paddle Your Own Canoe?'"

"I wrote that little thing thirty-five years ago—think of it; thirty-five years—it's a long time, isn't it? I was but 25 then. I have just passed my threescore and have the ten or more yet to go. I did not think much of the poem at the time, but others apparently did, for it has made me somewhat famous."

"Are you doing literary work now?"

"Yes, I love it. I am just back from a long trip in Texas and Mexico, and am writing an account of it for publication. Oh, I only write as I feel like it: frequently little things for children, published in Sunshine, you know. I travel a great deal, and meet and know all sorts of people—glad to know them, for I get pointers, character bits and inspiration from them. I can do that sort of thing freely, you know, at my age, without any scandal. Only last night I met two of Weber and Field's company over at the Colonial, and had a jolly time with them. I also met a funny little prize-fighter over there, and talked to him. I got some good points from him." She did not say whether or not they were "scientific points" for which he sparred in the ring, but I inferred they were not. "I study life and character," she continued. "It is the only thing to study in my business. I delight in clever people—those who know things and can tell about them. I am going to New York tomorrow to take up my work, which has lagged behind. If you would like it, I shall send you a copy of 'Paddle Your Own Canoe' and some of my other trifles.

ECZEMA

The World's Greatest Skin Torture

Many Infants are Born with Eczema

THE ONLY INFALLIBLE CURE IS CUTICURA

It is in the treatment of this most distressing of torturing and disfiguring skin and scalp humours, with loss of hair, that the Cuticura remedies have achieved their greatest success. Original in composition, scientifically compounded, absolutely pure, unchangeable in any climate, always ready, and agreeable to the most delicate, they present to those suffering from Eczema the most successful curative of modern times. We know that this will be considered strong language by those acquainted with the character and obstinacy of the disease under consideration, but it is justified by innumerable successes where all the remedies and methods in vogue have failed to cure, and, in many cases, to relieve, even.

The first step in the treatment of the chronic forms is to remove the scales and crusts and soften the skin, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap. The scalp, ears, elbows, hands, ankles and feet will require frequently a thorough soaking in order to penetrate the thickened skin and crusts with which these parts are often covered. Dry carefully, and apply Cuticura Ointment, lightly at first, and where advisable spread it on pieces of soft cloth and bind in place. Take the Resolvent, pills or liquid, in medium doses. Do not use cold water in bathing, and avoid cold, raw winds.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), Ointment, 50c.; Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 135 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Proprietors. Send for "How to Cure Eczema."

WILL NOT ENTER

St. Mark's Church Until Reparation Is Made For Insult.

Bishop Considers Vanderbilt-Rutherfurd Wedding Great Scandal.

London, May 1.—At the night session of the London diocesan conference the bishop of London, the Rt. Rev. Arthur F. Ingram, made a statement to the effect that he had thrice sent for an explanation from the Rev. Hadden regarding the Vanderbilt-Rutherfurd wedding and that none had been received.

The galleries and the floor of the little church house, in the shadow of Westminster abbey, were crowded in anticipation of the bishop's announcement.

Rising amid intense silence, the prelate said he had hoped to present to the conference an explanation from the officiating clergyman in the matter of the "grave scandal which recently had occurred in the diocese." He could only surmise that a family bereavement, the death of a child, was responsible for Mr. Hadden's having entirely ignored the bishop's letters and messages. The bishop characterized the use of St. Mark's church for the performance of the ceremony as constituting a "grave moral scandal," and expressed his determination not to enter the church until due reparation had been made.

The prelate then briefly recapitulated the contention of the chancellor of the diocese that he, the chancellor, was obliged by law to issue a license to divorced persons if any clergyman could be found to marry them; that the chancellor's jurisdiction was entirely independent of the bishop's, and that the license went out in the chancellor's name and not in the bishop's. Continuing, the prelate said:

"It only remains for me to express my own opinion of the great scandal which has been perpetrated in the diocese, more important than any question of ritualistic observance because of the moral scandal involved."

The bishop then read an extract from the decision of the Lambeth conference of 1888 in condemnation of the practice of marrying divorced persons, in which it is recommended that in case the innocent party to the divorce should desire to remarry, the question of the church service should be left to the bishop of the diocese.

"There has been considerable question on this point," continued the prelate, "and the opinion of the church has been strongly against even this concession.

"The law does not compel the loan of the church and much less of a clergyman to solemnize such a marriage. The present scandal, I hope, will not fe without good effect if it directs the attention of the entire world to the attitude of the church on this subject and emphasizes the fact that the proceedings of the chancellor are entirely beyond the control of the bishop.

"I hereby express my earnest wish that the clergy do not celebrate such marriages, and I certainly shall not enter St. Mark's church until reparation has been made for the insult thus offered the diocese."

The bishop's remarks were vigorously applauded and the session ended with the passage of a vote of thanks, moved by the suffragan bishop of London.

A UNION DRIVER

Will Be Provided For President at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 30.—President Roosevelt will ride through this city in a union carriage driven by a member of the Hack Drivers' union. The reception committee had planned to have the president occupy a private carriage belonging to a wealthy woman of this city whose coachman is non-union. The officers of the union notified the reception committee that no union driver would appear in the procession following a non-union driver and the committee changed its plan.

NEW FOOD LAWS

Regulations on Milk and Cream Dealing Are Enlarged.

General Laws Passed Against Adulterating Human Food.

One of the products of the late session of the legislature was a revised and amplified edition of laws designed to insure pure milk and dairy products.

It enlarges the powers and duties of the dairy and food commissioner and his assistants, and it contains new provisions that will, it is believed, help toward assuring consumers reasonably pure milk and cream.

The old law gave the department officers access to all restaurants, cafes, hotels, etc., for the purpose of ascertaining the quality of dairy products handled, but the new law adds to this list dining cars, eating houses, hospitals and lumber and railroad camps.

Another change requires stables where cows are kept to be well lighted as well as well ventilated, and the provisions of this section have been enlarged so as to prohibit any unsanitary surroundings whatever. Another provision is that milk and cream shall not be kept in unsuitable places.

An important provision that has been added relates to the quality of cream and butter. All cream that contains less than 20 per cent of fat, or that contains any added thickener or foreign coloring matter, shall be deemed adulterated. All dairy or creamery butter that contains more than 16 per cent of water shall be deemed to be adulterated, also.

All creameries, before delivering to any patron any skimmed or separated milk must pasteurize it at a temperature of at least 180 degrees.

The dairy and food commissioner must cause the inspection of all creameries, cheese factories and all other places or buildings where dairy products of any nature whatever are manufactured, stored or kept for sale, and he is given authority to require the construction of necessary drains or improvements to correct any unsanitary or improper conditions.

Milk dealers in towns of more than 1000 inhabitants must take out licenses, and this has been enlarged to include wholesale dealers as well as retail. The commissioner is given authority by the new law to revoke the licenses of dealers who fail to comply with the law or who sell milk or cream from dairies that are unsanitary.

Where anybody sells substitutes for butter or cheese not wholly made from milk or cream, he must post a conspicuous notice in letters not less than six inches in height, stating that such imitations are sold there. Proprietors of hotels, restaurants, camps or other places where the victims are fed substitutes for butter must also post the fact conspicuously.

The old law required an annual statement in November, from all creameries and cheese factories, on the amount of milk and dairy goods handled and other points, and the new law permits the commissioner to call for such statements at any time.

The new law is believed to be much stronger and more effective than the old one.

Several other laws to insure pure food were passed. One of them prohibits adulteration of vinegar, and provides that it must contain not less than 4½ per cent by weight of acetic acid.

Another law is generally designed to prevent adulteration or misbranding of food, and makes it a misdemeanor to do either. Adulterations include mixing substances to weaken or reduce strength or quality; substitution of inferior articles; abstraction of any valuable constituent; addition of poisonous or injurious substances; use of decomposed animal or vegetable substances, or if it is an animal product, when it comes from an animal that has died otherwise than by slaughter; mixing, coloring, powdering or staining so as to conceal inferiority or damage. Adulterating or handling adulterated goods is punishable by a fine of $25 to $75 or by imprisonment not exceeding ninety days.

Still another law prohibits the sale of food when mixed with any chemical preservative injurious to public health, or which tends to conceal or destroy the evidences of putrefaction.

NO BRIBERY ATTEMPTED

Illinois Legislative Committee So Reports—It Condemns Reports.

Springfield, Ill., May 1.—The committee appointed to investigate charges of bribery in the Illinois legislature submitted a final report to the house last night. The report declares that no real attempt was made to bribe Speaker John H. Miller, whose attempt to gavel a traction bill through the house led to a riot, and whose explanation was that he believed bribery had been resorted to in the interest of a rival bill.

The speaker, in his explanation, made mention of an editorial in the Chicago Inter-Ocean. In this connection the committee condemns George W. Hinman, editor of the Inter-Ocean, for his charges of boodleism relating to traction legislation. The report says:

"Your committee examined as witnesses, besides Speaker John H. Miller, Messrs. Anderson and George B. Albert, as to the statement made by the speaker, being all of the witnesses obtainable from the nature of his statement.

"As to the editorial referred to, it examined G. W. Hinman, editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean; Herbert Vanderhoof, Frank Armstrong and John J. Lane, reporters of that paper; Senator D. A. Campbell, State Treasurer Busse, Representatives Lindley, Nohe and Mitchell; Assistant Clerk John A. Barnes, E. H. Bliss, L. Minzesheimer, William F. Feldmann, Paying Teller of the Metropolitan Trust & Savings bank of Chicago, and upon their request, E. Burritt Smith and Walter L. Fisher."

The report then states that the committee is unanimous as to the following conclusions:

"First—That the evidence produced before us does not establish any real attempt to corruptly influence the action of the speaker of this house.

"Second—That there wa sno reasonable nor substantial ground for the editorial entitled 'Boodle,' published in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, April 21, 1903, and that the charges therein contained and as specified further in the testimony of Mr. Hinman, were wholly without truth or foundation as to any member or officer of this house, so far as we have been able to discover."

The report was adopted without a dissenting voice.

SIMPLY BREATHE IT.

A Few Minutes Use of Hyomei Four Times a Day Cures Catarrh.

The pleasantest, most convenient and the only scientific method for the treatment and cure of catarrh is Hyomei. Simply put twenty drops of Hyomei in the inhaler that comes with every package and then breathe it for a few minutes four times a day.

It seems remarkable that so simple a way of treating catarrh will effect a cure, but the most important discoveries of science have always been the simplest. By breathing Hyomei in this way every particle of air that enters the air passages of the throat and head and goes into the lungs is charged with a healing balsam that kills the germs and instill of catarrh and soothes and allays all irritation.

The first day's use of Hyomei will show a decided improvement and in a short time there will be no further trouble from catarrh. Its action is rapid and lasting.

You take no risk in buying Hyomei. A complete outfit costs $1.00, and if after using you can say that it has not helped you S. F. Boyce will return your money. What other treatment for catarrh is sold under a guarantee like this? None other has sufficient merit.

FEELING IN ARMY

That Gen. Wood Will Be Governor of the Philippines.

The Objection to This Is Very Strong and Deep.

Washington, May 1.—While Brigadier-General Leonard Wood, known as the close friend of the president more than for military achievement, is being showered with European honors on his way to the Philippines, army officers are wondering what is next in store for him.

They are doing a lot of thinking, but they do not think aloud, for to President Roosevelt and Secretary Root any criticism of Gen. Wood or his methods of securing advancement, however mild the remark, is little short of treason.

Army officers strongly suspect that Gen. Wood will not have been in the Philippines long until he is installed as governor of the islands in place of Judge Taft, for whom a good position will be found in Washington.

Mr. Root has repeatedly denied that there is any such intention, but he has denied it so often and on such slight provocation as to make it appear to those who are most interested, that he is protesting too much.

Mr. Root's oft-repeated statements have not convinced his subordinates. They believe Gen. Wood will soon be at the head of the Philippine government, and resentment over this new mark of presidential favor is deep and strong throughout the war department.

The resentment is not due to jealousy over the rapidity with which Gen. Wood has been advanced over the heads of men who had long been his seniors because he has the friendship of those in authority, but to dislike of his methods.

Gen. Wood has become one of the most unpopular officers in the army because of the general belief that he has built himself up by secretly undermining others, including his best friends, and taking credit that was not rightfully his.

Army officers learned nothing that they did not already know from the disclosures concerning Gen. Wood's close relations with Capt. Bellairs. They know more of the methods of which Gen. Wood is alleged to have won advancement than has ever been published.

Gen. Wood owes his start to the fact that he cured Senator Alger of a mild case of the grip when Alger was in the cabinet.

As a reward Alger gave him promotion "for meritorious service in Arizona" Indian fights.

Next came Wood's appearance in Cuba as colonel of Rough Riders. His first feat in Cuba was to run his regiment into an ambuscade at Las Guasimas. Where Col. Wood was during the battle of San Juan hill has never been determined. He must have been somewhere in the rear, for he did not go up the hill with his troopers.

This does not seem to have impressed Mr. Roosevelt for he and Col. Wood became fast friends while they were in Cuba. When the war ended, Col. Wood stayed in Cuba, and on Aug. 10, 1898, he was ordered to report to Gen. Lawton, who was in command of the department of Santiago. It was then, it is alleged, that Col. Wood began his undermining tactics.

It is charged by men who ought to know and who say they do know that he secretly sought to prejudice the authorities at Washington against Gen. Lawton and in favor of himself. This was done, it is said, by letters to President McKinley, Secretary Alger and Gen. Miles, which were marked "personal" so they would not go in the regular mail.

It is said that when Gen. Lawton drank too much wine one day in trying to fight off fever, Col. Wood cabled the president that Lawton was drunk.

On Oct. 6, Gen. Lawton was ordered home on sick leave, though he had not complained of being ill and his command was turned over to Col. Wood.

It is alleged by army men that Wood never inaugurated one reform in Cuba, but carried out the work precisely as Gens. Lawton, Brooke, Ludlow, Wilson and Fitzhugh Lee had planned it. He is said to have taken all the credit, however. When Gen. Lawton reached Washington, he found that he had lost caste, but could not learn why.

He refused then to believe that charges had been made by Gen. Wood, and it was not until shortly before his death that he was convinced that he had been undermined by the officer he had befriended.

After many appeals, Gen. Lawton was assigned to the Philippines on Dec. 28, 1898. The reputation that had been given him in the "secret and private" letters from Cuba followed him and Gen. Otis reflecting the sentiment of his superiors viewed him with suspicion and hesitated to give him a command.

Yet, the suspicion followed him and, in every case, he was recalled just when he wanted to go ahead and finish.

Public sentiment at home finally forced the administration to recognize his distinguished bravery and Otis had been notified that Lawton would be promoted to a brigadier general in the regular army. He was then only a colonel and a brigadier general of volunteers. Otis knew this when Lawton returned to Manila from the front on Dec. 17, but did not tell him the good news.

On Dec. 18, Lawton, still determined to retrieve his lost honors, went back to the front. The next morning he was killed in the battle of San Mateo, where he exposed himself with all the reckless daring of a man who was desperately fighting for his honor.

Had Otis told Lawton he was to be made a brigadier general he probably would not have gone to San Mateo and certainly would not have exposed himself as he did, for he would have known that he had at last vindicated himself.

Lawton died without knowing that he had won what he had been fighting for, but he died believing that he had been systematically undermined and betrayed by Gen. Leonard Wood.

BROTHERS TO BE HANGED.

On Same Day For the Same Crime.

Clarksville, Tenn., May 1.—For the first time in the history of the state, three brothers, all negroes, have been sentenced to hang on the same day for the same crime, that of murder. John, Pete and Clay Johnson were sentenced by Judge C. W. Tyler, in the criminal court, to be "taken from the county jail on Friday, May 29, between the hours of 2 and 4 p. m. and hanged by the neck until they are dead."

Before this sentence was passed each was given a chance to speak, but they refused to say a word. The three men heard their sentence pronounced without showing the slightest emotion or interest, and were taken to the jail, closely guarded, to await their doom.

The crime for which the three were sentenced to hang was committed in the Needmore vicinity last October and was cold blooded. A negro festival was in progress. Oscar Redmond, colored, had been engaged to keep the peace. The Johnson brothers attended the festivities and raised "rough house." Redmond attempted to quiet them. The three set upon him, chased him home, into his house and out again, firing as they ran. The fatal shot was fired by John Johnson, it is alleged, as Redmond was leaving his own house after being run out by his pursuers. He fell dead just outside the door.

MUNYON'S WITCH-HAZEL SOAP

IT MAKES THE HAIR GROW THICK
IT MAKES THE HAIR GROW STRONG
IT MAKES THE HAIR GROW BEAUTIFUL

Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap is truly a blessing to those who are losing their hair and becoming bald. This soap is a food and vitalizer; it stimulates and acts as a gentle tonic to the weak and sick roots, and gives them new life and vigor. It promptly removes dandruff, scales, humors and all sores of the scalp. Give this soap a fair trial, and if there is a particle of life in the roots, this soap will stimulate and invigorate them into new life and healthy growth. Of course, you know that Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap for the complexion and for the toilet is superior to any high-priced French soap made. It makes the skin soft as velvet and keeps one free from pimples, blotches and most skin eruptions.

If your blood is out of order, take Munyon's Blood Cure. It will drive all impurities from the system and make good, rich, red blood.

If your liver is sluggish and you have a sallow complexion, use Munyon's Liver Cure. These two remedies, taken in alternation, will soon rid the blood and system of all impurities, and give life and vigor to the whole body, and when used in conjunction with the soap, makes the skin glow with youthful freshness.

HE TOSSED A COIN

Then the Young Merchant Hied to the Matrimonial Altar.

Bridegroom Kept a Prisoner In the Cafe Three Days.

New York, May 1.—A silver dollar thrown to the ceiling of the cafe of the Hotel Victoria fell to the floor, heads up, and Hiram E. Maxfield, a young merchant of this city, who tossed the coin, said:

"Well, that decides it, boys. I" get married right now, and you are all invited to attend my wedding at the 'Little Church Around the Corner' as soon as we can get there."

Suiting the action to the word, Mr. Maxfield went to the parlor of the hotel, where Miss Helen F. Godwin, a beautiful Brooklyn girl, was waiting. He had brought her to the hotel for dinner, but while in the cafe had decided by the toss of the coin to marry her at once if she were willing.

She expressed her willingness and they started for the "Little Church Around the Corner," in Twenty-ninth street, followed by every traveling man that had witnessed the pitching of the coin in the cafe. The Rev. George Houghton performed the ceremony and the procession returned to the hotel, where Mr. Maxfield engaged the bridal suite.

This all happened last Friday afternoon. Only on Monday Mr. and Mrs. Maxfield were able to tear themselves away from their boisterous friends and start for Scranton, Pa., where they will spend their honeymoon with friends of the bridegroom.

Before the departure Mr. Maxfield deposited $1000 with the desk at the Victoria to pay the expenses of the jollification of his drummer friends, leaving instructions for them not to let up until the fund was gone, and if it was gone, and if they didn't feel that the celebration was complete, to draw on him for another thousand.

From all indications the traveling men will "draw" for the other thousand, as the celebration has lasted since the hour of the marriage on Friday, and at a late hour last night showed no sign of abatement.

The parties to this remarkable marriage have been sweethearts for sometime. It was generally believed by their friends that they would be married, but no one expected it to come so soon, and in such a jolly, romantic way.

Until Sunday afternoon the young couple were practically prisoners in the Hotel Victoria. The bridegroom was held captive by his irrepressible drummer friends in the cafe, and the bride remained in her apartments, which were literally filled with flowers sent by the friends of her husband, who was being lionized in the cafe.

It had been the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Maxfield to leave for their honeymoon trip on Friday night, but when they returned to the hotel from the church Mr. Maxfield was lifted on the shoulders of his demonstrative fellows and carried directly to the cafe. His wife did not see any more of him until Saturday afternoon, and then for only a few minutes, for he was carried away again to the cafe and kept there until Sunday afternoon, when he escaped, no one seems to know how, and with his wife hurried to Brooklyn to break the news to the bride's grandmother, with whom she had made her home at No. 526 Bedford avenue.

The trip to Brooklyn was made in an automobile. After receiving the blessings of the aged grandmother, the happy couple started back to the hotel, while the whole neighborhood came out to look on. Their auto went all right for about fifteen feet, when it broke down, right in the middle of Bedford avenue, leaving the loving couple high and dry. There they sat for twenty minutes, the chauffeur finally announcing that the machine was useless for that afternoon at least, and they got out and sent for a carriage.

The friends of Mr. Maxfield are not surprised at his unusual manner of deciding his fate. They sum up their opinion of him, however, by saying: "He's all to the good."

He is a traveling man, and until a week ago was the New York salesman for a big machine company in Lawrence, Mass. He started in business for himself last week, establishing himself at No. 136 Liberty street. He is 28 years old, and is well known in business circles.

The bride of this unconventional and original drummer, Miss Godwin, is better known in Brooklyn than in Manhattan. She is 22 years old, and possessed of great charm.

Mr. Maxfield explained before leaving that he had always intended to marry Miss Godwin, but no wedding day had been arranged. He said he didn't know why he tossed the coin—inspiration more than anything else, he thought.

He said he had the dollar in his hand and involuntarily threw it in the air, saying: "Heads, I marry her now; tails, I don't." It came heads, and he would not back out.

MORE WELCOME THAN CHILDREN

There is a daily dog parade on the avenue—not a red and tinsel affair with a brass band—but a parade, nevertheless, in which dog fanciers would be light, for only thoroughbreds of the highest money value, accompanied by handsomely gowned women, sit on their satin cushions and take their daily airing.

"The number of dogs seen every afternoon on Fifth avenue in the carriages which fill society's lane exceeds this spring that of any previous year," said an observing policeman who had been on the avenue for years.

The view from Forty-second street, looking down Fifth avenue on a bright afternoon, is a moving picture of carriages. Handsome turnouts, with elegantly gowned women and faultlessly attired men repeat the panorama of New York's gay life.

Women, accompanied by men, elderly women and young, breathe the exclusive air of Fifth avenue in each other's society, but in the victorias and broughams, in which the women ride without a grown-up companion, the place is filled by his majesty the dog. Dogs are the common sight in carriages, children a rarity.

A reporter stood at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street for an hour yesterday and counted the carriages passing this point, in which dogs and children rode.

The cry that dogs are more welcome than children in the circle of the smart set prompted a test observation.

Between 4:30 and 5:30 p. m. 1106 carriages passed on the uptown side. On Saturday afternoon, after the matinees, the average is 150 carriages in five minutes. Of the 1106 carriages nineteen held children. There were seventy-one dogs.

Dogs of all kinds and sizes, accompanied by women of as many different types, but all bearing the stamp of luxury and wealth, were taking their daily outing on the avenue. As the carriages stopped at Forty-second street, waiting for the cross-town traffic there was an excellent opportunity to observe the supremacy of the canine ruler of society.

A handsome victoria, drawn by two blooded horses, stopped at the policeman's whistle. In the victoria sat a woman of fashion, dressed in mourning. A smart French poodle sat on the seat beside her, and on a cushion at her feet lay a decoratively sheared water spaniel. Both dogs were in mourning also, and wore black bows on their collars. The woman, whose attention seemd fixed on something beyond her Fifth avenue environments, was called to earth only by the movements of her poodle, which she fondled and petted with all the affection of a mother.

NEGROES ARRESTED

On Suspicion of Knowing Something About Murder.

Minneapolis, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—R. Lewis, W. Towne and C. McDavid, negroes, are under arrest on suspicion of knowing something of the murder of the unknown white man found dead in an alley back of C. L. Loomis' saloon Wednesday morning. There is no positive charge against the prisoners except that they were found loitering about the alley.

The identity of the dead man has not yet been established. The police are convinced that the man was murdered.

CULLOM RESIDENCE BURNED.

Peoria, April 30.—Fire destroyed the birthplace of Shelby M. Cullom, United States senator from Illinois, near Deer Creek in Tazwell county yesterday afternoon. The origin of the fire is a mystery, although it is supposed to have started from a defective flue. The house was a frame building and one of the landmarks of the locality.

SIX SOLDIERS ESCAPED.

Cincinnati, April 30.—Six soldiers serving terms of imprisonment for desertion in the guard house at Fort Thomas, Ky., escaped last night and have not yet been recaptured. Circumstances indicate they were assisted by outside persons, as the panel of the door had been sawed from the outside.

MANY DESERT.

Uncle Sam's Sailors Say Fare Is Very Poor.

Vallejo, Cal., April 30.—There has been an epidemic of desertions from the navy on this coast some months past, but this month's report beats the record. It is said that 150 men have failed to return to the receiving ship Independence since last pay day. When the enlisted men are questioned for excuse, all claim that it is because of the poor and scanty fare.

THE CHASE CASE.

Indianapolis, April 30.—The hearing of the petition for a writ of habeas corpus for Moses Fowler Chase, the demented millionaire, began today in the federal court. E. W. Kittredge took up the argument for the writ of habeas corpus, asking that Chase be brought before the federal court within the next ten days.

WILL START TUESDAY.

Washington, April 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Richards, commissioner of the land office, and G. Pinchot, forester of the agricultural department, and Inspector Bruce, of the land office, leave here next Tuesday for an inspection of th eChippewa reservation of Minnesota.

FIRE AT BOSTON.

Boston, April 30.—Fire at the abattoir plant in Brighton today caused a loss of $150,000 to $175,000. A building used by John S. Kelly & Co., for the slaughtering of sheep, a small butter factory, and other buildings were burned. Four firemen were hurt, but not seriously.

FREEDOM'S DAY

Poles Will Celebrate Their National Anniversary Sunday.

Commemorates the Adoption of the Constitution of 1791.

Sunday, May 3, is the Polish national anniversary, as deeply regarded as the Fourth of July is by Americans, and it will be celebrated in Duluth by exercises at the Polish school, at the corner of Fourth street and Fourth avenue east, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

In spite of the dark and bloody stories of persecution and oppression that fill Polish history, the Polish people are as patriotic and country-loving a race as there is on earth, and many of them still cherish dreams of the day when Poland will be free again.

The event celebrated Sunday is the 112th anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of 1791, which gave the Poles greater freedom and introduced among them a truly Democratic order of things. The noble families, inspired by the deepest patriotism, relinquished their hereditary rights in the interests of common humanity, and joined with the common people in the preparation of this constitution, which was modelled somewhat after the ideas for which the Americans had just won their fight on the new continent. The spirit of liberty was abroad in those years, and marked in frightful aspect was chopping heads off and shaking a throne in France, and in milder guise was laying the foundation of a great new nation in the western hemisphere.

Thaddeus Kosciusko, whose name is dear alike to Americans and Poles, and who was a brilliant figure in the earlier days of the American revolution, was a leader in the formation of the new constitution, and in the uprisings that spread through several subsequent years, when Poland made repeated attempts to secure independence.

The episode followed the first partition of Poland, in 1772, and it led directly to the second partition, in 1793. The great nations that were encroaching on Polish territory feared the result of a government so enlightened as that proposed by the new constitution, which was modelled somewhat after that adopted two years before by the United States, and in the second partition they attempted to close down upon poor Poland still closer. This led to unsuccessful though bloody insurrections, and in 1794 came the third partition.

The adoption of the constitution is the great event of Polish history, and it is this that the Duluth people of that nationality will celebrate Sunday evening.

"We take this occasion," said a prominent Pole this morning, "to teach our people not only reverence for their native land, but for the country of their adoption as well. We usually try to get speakers who will tell our people of American institutions, in order that they may understand more fully that in this country has been realized some of the dreams of the Polish people. Our love of native land does not interfere with our American citizenship, and our intention in these celebrations is to bring our people closer to the institutions of the land of their adoption, while keeping warm the fires of love for stricken Poland."

Mayor Hugo and others will address the meeting Sunday night, though the program is not yet fully made up. There will be musical numbers by the Polish Singing society and by the choir of the Polish Catholic church. The Polish priests of the head of the lakes, including Rev. W. Rokowski, of the West End; Rev. A. Babinski, of West Superior, and Rev. John Sroka, of Duluth, will make addresses in Polish.

DIPLOMATS' DAY AT ST. LOUIS DEDICATION

results, it is only natural that we carry our look backward to the past, and have a thought for the lonely pioneers of long ago, who came, one by one, to this then unknown land, and tried among incredible difficulties, to make it less unknown, to make it more productive and easier to reclaim for you, their distant inheritors. No one I am sure will think it unjust that I, a compatriot of theirs, and a representative of their country, recall at this day their efforts and express today's gratitude for yesterday's work. For they were hardy men, those children of distant France; they were plucky, enterprising and courageous; they led strenuous lives indeed; all qualities for which you ever had a special regard. To say that they did not fear danger is to slander them; they loved it.

Soldiers, missionaries, governors of cities, explorers came year after year, from the time of Louis XIV, attracted by the chances or the beauty of the unknown, the opportunity of increasing their country's dominions, or of becoming famous, or of instructing souls, and of dying, if death was to be met, bravely and honorably. Very French they were, with all the qualities of their race, and something else perhaps, some of them, than the qualities. As they went down the great rivers from the regions of the Canadian lakes to the Mexican sea they gave them French names, and the reading of a map of that epoch strongly reminds one of the century of the Sun-Kings—there he is with all his court, figured in lands, cities, lakes and rivers. Louisiana bears his own name, Lake Ponchartrain, the name of his minister of marine; Fort Duquesne, the name of his famous sailor. There were also the rivers Colbert and Seigneley, better known nowadays as Mississippi and Illinois, those of the great lakes had been named after the duke of Orleans, another of the great Conde, the winner of Rocroy, another after his brother, Prince de Conti, but the last inland sea as indeed most of the others soon resumed its Indian name, the homely name of Lake Erie, the lake of the Cat.

Very French were those men, this Father Marquette, who with Joliet, first beheld the magnificent river that washes your walls, the vast existence of which was then unknown, and who explored it down to the country of the Arkansas; this Robert Cavalier Sieur de La Salle, who had, long before our days, our day's notion of the importance of the great commercial routes; whose purpose was to open one to China, across this continent, at the very spot where your northern lines of railways have opened theirs; who called his first house on the American soil La Chine, in order that he might never forget his initial purpose. He died in the quest, but not before he had explored the Mississippi down to its mouth; not before he had ascertained that its source was to the west, and that the river, therefore could be used as a guiding thread towards the Pacific; not before he had made the first French settlements in this your country and given it a name which has not been replaced by another, and is its present name of Louisiana.

Long is the roll and great were the hardships. To the same region with the same object of discovering and improving came that typical cadet de Gascogne the chevalier Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac, who on the 21st of July 1701, unfurled the French flag at a certain spot where he began the building of a town, now the town of Detroit; he became afterwards governor of Louisiana. Then such men came as du Tissenet, as the brothers Le Moine d'Horville and Le Moine de Bienville, this last the founder of New Orleans; as father de Charlevoix who gave the best account we have of the country and spoke most wisely about its future, as La Clede, worthier than any one to be remembered at this day and this place, as he was the founder of your town.

Long is the roll and great were the hardships. The explorations of the coasts had been comparatively easy and thousands had attempted it. Settlers from France were the first to try their chance inland; they traveled across a huge continent more unknown then to the civilized world than was in our times the Africa of Livingstone and Stanley. They did it in a cheerful optimistic spirit, that nothing daunted but death. Living as they did in truly "howling wilderneses" there remained yet with them something of the mother-country; and that appeared not only in taeir speech and manners, but in their very attitudes. Charlevoix meets figures of dead men fabricated by Indians; he was glad to find that they were represented with falling arms, from which he concluded that the authors of these trophies had massacred some of their own kin. When Indians killed French people the figure represented men with their fist on the hip, Versailles fashion. How could it be otherwise when they lived, some of them, on a settlement owned by a gentleman called d'Artagnan, and managed, as was appropriate, by two musketeers. One almost expects the names of these two to have been Porthos and Aramis, but they were D' Artigulders an Du Bence.

And these men recalled their country in more important things than names and attitudes. Cadillac had scarcely given on a name to the spot where he meant to create a town than he sent for his wife and younger son; it was to be a town indeed with wives and children, and family life; and it was so and it has ever been so since Cadillac willed it. When La Salle was killed in his second journey on the Mississippi, in 1687, he had with him his brother and two nephews. The new comers soon discovered that the region was not the metallic Eldorado, they had dreamt of in Europe, but that it was a matchless argicultural country and they began cutting the trees, and tilling the ground with none of the modern implements and helps; no harvesting machines from "Chicago" as the then desert spot was called in their days, no horses, no horned cattle. They led indeed, not in fiction but in truth, and long before the famous "Mariner of York" was wrecked by the Orinoko river, the life of Robinson Crusoe.

> Unknown to Europe, far from any neighbors, by the shade of the pathless forest, they tried best; they died, many of them obscurely, leaving no name to be engraved on the bronze tablets of history, but leaving better than a mere name, families, many of which still subsist; better than families; examples of earnestness and endurance, creating a tradition which will never die out. "Rien ne se perd."

The greatness of their difficulties, the scantiness of their means, the wisdom of many of their views are equally striking. More than one did their utmost to teach and improve their Indian neighbor; they forbade, at an early date, the selling to them of the destructive "fire-water." Cadillac did so from the first. The Marquis de Vaudreuil reissued the same orders later. They soon discovered that the northern regions alone could produce wheat enough to feed the whole county "though it should be quite peopled down to the sea." The question of labor was one of prominent difficulty and importance. Should it be the hired labor of freemen, or the compulsory labor of the imported negro? summed up his opinion in the following memorable sentence: "Hired servants should be preferred. When the time of their service is expired they become inhabitants, and increase the number of the king's natural subjects, whereas the slaves are always strangers, and who can be assured that by continually increasing in our colonies, they will not one day become formidable enemies? Can we depend upon slaves who are only attached to us by fear and for whom the very land where they are born has not the dear name of the mother country?"

More striking than all was the observation of a Frenchman who never visited America, except in thought, but saw distinctly its future. When no one yet believed it, that great economist and statesman, Turgot, said: "America one day will be free."

Years went on, the dark shadows and splendid rays of light with which French history is interwoven shone and vanished in their grand and awful alternance. One day the French flag was lowered in Louisiana; that was at the close of the Seven Years War. Another day the same flag was seen on the mast of a small vessel leaving the harbor at Bordeaux, and sailing for America, the ship happened to bear the auspicious name of "La Victore," and it bore La Fayette. Then it was the alliance of 1778, and the coming, on the same year of the first envoy accredited by any nation to this country, my predecessor Gerard de Rayneval, a staunch friend of America; then the peace of 1783, when, with the accent of the whole world, to the joy of every French heart, thirteen stars shone on the American flag.

France recovered then neither Louisiana nor Canada, nor anything. But she never intended it. She won a friend and a friend, and such a friend is better than any province.

She was happy, having exactly fulfilled, without charge, bargain or extenuation, the task she had mapped out for herself in 1778, when she declared in the Alliance treaty, that the "direct and essential object of the same, was efficiously to maintain the freedom sovereignty and absolute and illimited independence of the United States." The joy was such, in Paris, at the news of American independence that performances in the theaters were interrupted the great event was announced, and audience rose to their feet to cheer the new born republic. Festivities were given and colored prints were scattered all over France for the benefit of those who could not be present. Such souvenires were proudly kept in families. One such came to the remote house of my own parents in the mountains, and it was carefully preserved and I possess it at this day.

> I do not think that there is another example in the history of the world of a cession of such vast territories thus obtained by the representatives of one of the parties to the purchase and with the heartfelt consent of the representatives of the other.

The treaty giving away in full possession and forever Louisiana to the United States; allowing them to spread without meeting nay foreign neighbors from one ocean to the other, of adding fourteen states to the original thirteen, was signed one hundred years ago, "au nom du peuple francais," in the year XI of the French republic. The results have passed the most sanguine hopes, but they have not gone beyond the extent of our friendly wishes for the sister republic of America. The representative of France comes to this spot that was French in former times, with a feeling of admiration for what you have done, and no feeling of regret. He sees a splendid development, arts, sciences, trade and agriculture, equally prosperous; he applauds your success and expresses from his heart his good wishes for your grand exhibition of next year.

As for his own country, if she no longer holds those immense domains she has on the other hand found other territories for the peaceful employment of her inexhaustible energy, with results which will forever redound to the praise of the government of the republic. And, as for Louisiana itself, France rests satisfied with remembering that she could not have more friendly nor more sympathetic intentions. She remembers also, not without pride, that her sons first discovered and tilled the soil; first described it and first drew a map of it; that one of her most famous writers first revealed to the world the springs of poetry that lay concealed as much under the fir trees of the Mississipi Valley as under the plane trees of Tempe; the diplomat and literary artist who made all those who had a mind and heart weep for the fate of Atala.

Seing the results, my countrymen have never ceased to approve of the treaty signed a hundred years ago, "au nom du peuple francais," 1803 is the third memorable date in the relations between France and America. In giving the United States, according to the words of your negotiator, their place among the greatest powers in the world, 1803 did nothing but perfect what had been gloriously begun in 1778 and 1783.

The "Hallelujah chorus" from "The Messiah" was sung by the chorus of 2000 voices, and then Senor Ojeda, the Spanish minister, representing the country which had control of the Louisiana territory for many years, delivered the second notable address of the day. Senor Ojeda said:

Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen: I greatly regret my inability to respond to the very flattering recognition of the part played by Spain in the early history of this territory. I wish I were endowed with the same eloquence displayed by previous orators, which it has been our privilege to listen to and admire. Still had not the national glories of Spain been so brilliantly alluded to, were I able to recall them now with colors as glowing as the warmth their memory brings to my Spanish heart I feel I could not raise to them a loftier or more eloquent monument than has been raised by these immortal works of Washington Irving. Prescott, Lowell and Ticknor, which have made the Spanish traditions as familiar a household patrimony of this nation.

I am sure you will agree with me in thinking that I could do no better, that I could not pay a higher, nor more honorable nor lasting tribute to our share in the history of this continent and of this country than by voicing the testimony of your own literary geniuses and by referring now to that grateful recognition which moved the founders of this republic to associate the revered memory of Isabella, the soul-stirring deeds of Pizarro Cortez and Ojeda with the temple of your nationality.

If ever any one doubts the engrossing consciousness of your wonderful prosperity, the strenuousness of your life, the standard of your citizenship let him ascend the gateways of your exposition and he will see carved in bronze on the threshold of your proudest monument the effigies and the names of those Spanish heroes, who discovered, conquered and pointed to you the way into which path you have successfully followed. As a guest sitting now for the first time at the monument of the monument nation, I feel impelled to pay tribute to her for the eminent kindness shown to me by your people since I landed upon your shores.

> As the representative of the nation whose ancient and honored flag was first to be floated in the majestic course of the father of American rivers, I feel my first appearance before an American audience is associated in both your minds and mine as commemorative of an event which is far-reaching in the respective histories of three great nations, has and never will be darkened by the rankling memories which war and national strife always leave in their wake.

For, Mr. President, Spain, exclusively devoted today to the task of developing her immense national resources is happily associated with your celebration of a peaceful event. Believe me, Mr. President, the Spanish people will enter into this noble competition for the prizes of progress and civilization with that same stubbornness with which for centuries they maintained the heroic struggle which saved Europe and the Christian world from the baneful effect of the invasion of the African hordes. Spain has ever shown herself in quest of progress that same indomitable spirit which gave to the world a new one, over whose brilliant destinies she watches and will watch with undying pride.

Spain welcomes with pleasure an opportunity to participate in your glorious exposition, to display the results of a peaceful conquest in the domain of America and is especially bent upon attracting towards her the benefits to be derived from this tendency to interest in her commercial, industrial and agricultural interchange. She could not but welcome with sympathetic feeling this vast enterprise as a means of extending her moral and material prestige with other nations and will indefatigably strive to attain further glories. I am in fact authorized to ask for the requisite appropriation as soon as parliament assembles. Spain will appear before you, if not in all the splendor that the requirements of her wise economical program now forbid, at least in the many garb of a native meaning to show to the world that her gloriously checkered career instead of impairing our vitality has retempered the ever elastic steel of our national fibre and concentrated and directed all its latent energies toward the modern conquests of progress, labor and civilization to which the city of St. Louis is now erecting a temple worthy of the city itself and of the auspicious event which we are commemorating.

And now, Mr. President, in wishing you success in your noble undertaking I beg to express my gratitude for the numerous expressions of good will toward Spain which have been uttered during this solemn celebration. I beg to bow to that new flag of your exposition. In the flag are blended the past and present with the glorious colors of three nations representative of St. Louis early and contemporary history. Let us welcome its appearance.

After another selection by the chorus and orchestra, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Samuel J. Nicolls, and with the centennial salute of 100 guns the services in the building were ended and the novel display of daylight fireworks began.

TOSSED UP CENT FOR PREACHER

New Method of Deciding an Assignment By Methodists.

Iola, Kan., May 1.—Kansas Methodists have evolved a new method of settling the vexed question of who shall be pastor, and, as a result, Iola is to have the services of the Rev. John MacLean, a preacher of ability and eloquence. The story, as told by a preacher just home from the Fort Scott conference, is that the toss of a cent decided the question.

Under the rules of the Methodist church all the appointments and assignments of preachers are made by the bishop. He has jurisdiction over several conferences, in each of which several hundred preachers are to be stationed. Naturally he is unable to know the local conditions in each town.

The result is that he must depend largely on what he can learn from local members. In the larger churches the selection of a preacher is usually made by the board of trustees. Unless the bishop has some unusual reason for deciding otherwise their choice is usually final.

Not long ago the trustees of a city not far from here, where Mr. MacLean had preached several times, met to decide on whether to call him or another man. Half the members wanted Mr. MacLean to be placed in charge. The other half wanted the man who is now in charge. They argued and debated the question for several hours, but each ballot was just the same.

One of the trustees finally proposed that they toss a cent to decide the question. One old gentleman was inclined to demur, but the others were tired of the wrangle and readily agreed.

The coin was tossed up in the air with the understanding that if it lit head up they would ask for the man now in charge. It did light with the head up. The trustees stayed by their agreement, asked for the man accordingly and the bishop sent him there.

The few members of the conference who had known the means employed smiled broadly when the bishop read the appointment in a sonorous voice. So far, both selections have proved good ones.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c, $1.00.

The Time Honored

Emerson Piano

One of the oldest and most celebrated in the piano trade. The manufacture of this famous instrument was begun in 1849 by William P. Emerson. At no time during the history of their make has there been one shadow of doubt as to its high standard of musical value or its wonderful durability. Their factory today has an output of 6000 pianos yearly; positive evidence of their popularity in all quarters of the globe. In every large city in the world the Emerson is represented by the largest houses. Why? Because of the prestige and tone it gives to the retailer. We are proud of this piano and know that with each one sold another solid friend is made for us. There are 80,000 of the instruments giving pleasure in 80,000 homes today.

Are You Looking for That Kind of Piano?

In our warerooms can be found the cream of their product in beautifully designed cases, in all rare woods, such as San Domingo mahogany, blister walnuts, burled walnuts, quarter-sawed oak, old English oak, French and Circasian walnuts, etc.

MOVEMENT OF ORE

Shipments In April Fall Below Those of Last Year.

Strike, Later Opening and Other Causes Are Responsible.

Three hundred and fifty thousand tons of ore less than in the month of April last year, have been shipped from the head of the lakes in the past month. The total amount of ore placed on the three big docks here in April was 737,290 tons.

The opening month of the ore transportation for 1563 is not a brilliant, shining success, as compared with last year.

The strike of the lake firemen, the late date of the opening of navigation, which was nine days later than last year, and the storms on the lakes which prevented fast time by boats enroute, have conspired to cause the falling off in tonnage shipped, from last April.

Nineteen days were consumed in shipment this year, while last year there were twenty-nine days used.

The amount of ore placed on the docks at Two Harbors, Allouez and Missabe, this year, and compared with last year, is as follows:

Two Harbors..	262,091	532,483
Missabe.....	239,945	314,707
Allouez..	235,254	247,999
	737,290	1,095,189

The greatest falling off was the Iron Range road, which delivered less than one-half of what it brought down a year ago in April.

The Missabe road is short of its last year's figures about 75,000.

The Eastern Minnesota has come nearer its figures of last year than the steel corporation roads and is within 12,700 tons of its record in April, 1902. The docks at Allouez are in better condition than a year ago, and was in better shape to receive ore, though shipments could not be made as early.

The new dock room at Allouez will be ready in a week and one of the biggest months in the history of that busy locality may be expected in the month of May.

The range roads are about 345,000 tons short of what they had carried last year in April. The Iron Range is off 250,392 tons, or more than it carried this year, making the shortage something over 50 per cent.

The reason for the falling off was the failure of the boats to arrive in time at the Duluth and Two Harbors docks, though the railroads were ready at the drop of a hat to begin the heaviest kind of ore transportation.

April 11 was the first boat taken from the docks this year, while last year the first boat went out April 2, and there were a lot went afterwards.

May will be a big month for ore shipment, for today fourteen boats will leave the docks at Missabe, and the amount of ore to be removed at this particular time will be almost 50,000 tons. For the first of May that is a big one.

The largest shipment in any one day from the Missabe docks here this year was on April 15, when 29,800 tons were sent toward the Cleveland harbor. Last April there were two different days when there were 28,000 and 28,000 tons taken from the docks.

The eleven days of semi-paralysis of the railroads just previous to the settling of the firemen's strike, is responsible for the showing made this year. For two weeks the roads handles wild trains of ore, and they were put into the docks at leisure, as there were no boats in sight.

Bad weather after the opening of navigation has also conspired with the other conditions to keep the boats from being quickly handled, and the snow storm of this week, caused the Missabe docks to fall short of the record of last year. If it had not been for the heavy storm of this week it is more than likely that the 75,000 ton shortage would have been made up.

The Two Harbors' docks have had the same trouble—no boats. But the falling off there has been infinitely greater than at the Missabe docks, the boats arriving having been handled at the Missabe docks with greater frequency.

If the Missabe dock is to come up to the estimate of the shipments laid out for it in the estimates sent here from Cleveland this spring, there will have to be more than 1,000,000 tons of ore a month shipped out from it. Last year, though a great effort was made in June, July and August, to reach the million mark, 940,000 was the limit.

This year the chances of an increase are better, for the handling of the boats has been made easier, by unloading machines at the lower lakes. The docks at the Erie ports being crammed full of ore, and the fact that the boats have had to unload onto the cars, has caused some of the delay of this month.

TOWN ESCAPED.

Watsonville Was Not Wiped Out By Flames.

Bradford, Pa., May 1.—Late advices from Watsonville, the town supposed to have been wiped out by flames yesterday, indicate that it escaped almost miraculously from the fate which had been predicted for it. The property losses in the vicinity are large. In the vicinity of Simpson and Bingham it is estimated that at least 1000 oil well rigs were destroyed. From points along the Bradford, Burdell and Kinzua road 125 refugees were brought to the city this morning. Rain began to fall during the night and the fires are dying out.

ASKS SENTENCE COMMUTED.

Constantinople, May 1.—The czar has requested that the sentence of death passed upon Ibraham, the Albanian sentinel, who recently assassinated M. Stcherbina, the Ruslan consul at Mitrovitza, be commuted to penal servitude for life.

CLOSE THE DOORS

Eight Restaurants Serve No Dinner, Waiters Going Out.

Hundreds Compelled to Go Hungry—Chance For Settlement.

Striking cooks and waiters closed eight of Duluth's largest restaurants today.

Promptly at 11 o'clock the members of the union seeking an increase in wages, took off their aprons and jackets, put on their street clothes and walked out leaving quite a few hungry patrons sitting at lunch counters half-served.

Incidentally several hundred business men, women and boys employed in downtown stores and offices were compelled to go hungry owing to their inability to get in the only three Superior street restaurants that remained open between the Bowery and Lake avenue.

Not a meal was served during the noon hour in the Crown, Grill, New England, Haley, Criterion, or Metropole restaurants, and only a few were served in the Boston restaurant, where the patrons were waited on by the proprietor and his wife.

The three restaurants not employing union help did a tremendous business, as did the hotels and the Commercial club. Still it is estimated that hundreds of hungry persons were unable to get a bite to eat though they tried to during most of the noon hour.

The restaurant proprietors are advertising for fifty waiters and waitresses to go to work immediately, and it is said that several expect to be able to open their doors tomorrow and do business as usual.

However, at a late hour this afternoon a committee from the Cooks' and Waiters' union met a committee from the Restaurant Keepers' association in a conference held at Haley's restaurant, and it was reported that a settlement of the difficulty was not altogether an impossibility.

The waiters say they are the poorest paid working people in the city, the women members of the union receiving but $7 a week for 77 hours' work and the men $8 and $9. The cooks have been getting $17 and they ask $19, while the waiters and waitresses ask for an increase of $1 a week.

FATAL ENDING

Of Owen Aldis' Trip to Holy Land.

New York, May 1.—Owen William Aldis, only son of Owen F. Aldis, of Chicago, is dead at the Hotel Manhattan. He was 32 years of age. Mr. Aldis' death was due to blood poisoning, resulting from operations rendered necessary by an abcess in each ear. He was in good health when he left Chicago, April 18, preparatory to embarking on a six-months' sojourn in Palestine and the Holy Land, but developed a case of measles soon after reaching this city.

No serious consequences were apprehended from his illness until the formation of an abcess in each ear caused his father and other members of his family to be summoned East.

Owen W. Aldis was born in Chicago, and had devoted his life to preparing himself for entering the Episcopal ministry. He was graduated from Harvard university and since that time had been a student of the Chicago theological seminary. He was widely known in Chicago for his work among the poor.

THE DRESS MATTER

Question Is Absorbing Topic Among the Senior Girls.

Position Taken By the Board Is Generally Appreciated.

The circular letter which Principal Smith of the high school sent out yesterday to the parents and guardians of students who are to graduate from the school this year, with reference to apparel worn at commencement, has been the cause of much comment among the students and others interested.

Young women who are to graduate have done little since its announcement but discuss the question. The boys of the senior class are less interested, because it does not affect them, beyond cautioning them against overdress. The masculine graduates have always appeared simply attired in black, and consequently no reform is necessary.

The measure is aimed at the young women who are wont to appear in elaborate costumes and laden with expensive flowers. They are the only ones who do not take the measure with favor.

According to the resolution the school board will furnish all of the flowers and decorations which it considers necessary, and the well-to-do girls of the senior class know that under that arrangement they will not make their appearance on graduation evening laden with from $5 to $25 worth of flowers, as some of their predecessors have done.

Some of them, however, cherish the desperate spirit sufficiently not to care to do so, and this leads to complaint against the provision so far as it affects horticultural decoration.

"I don't think that there is anyone in our class who intended to make any unusually elaborate preparations for commencement," said one of the senior girls yesterday. "All of the girls have discussed their dresses and are to have about the same thing. Most of us have already planned our dresses and most of them are already made or are undergoing the process.

"For the last few years the graduating girls have worn too many flowers—so many, in fact, that it has detracted from the good appearance of the class, as it underwent the final ceremonies."

"Well, some of the girls who have them will appear in party capes," said another. "We haven't all got them, and if some have them, the rest of us want them too."

"That's just it," broke in a member of the faculty, anxious to draw a moral. "Some have them and the rest want them. That's why the board passed the resolution, and that's why you all will do well to take heed to the regulation."

Most of the young women have prepared two dresses for their graduation, a colored gown for class night and a plain white one for commencement. When the news of the letter regarding graduation apparel was first circulated it was understood that it provided for only one dress for both occasions. This aroused alarm, and dearness was suggested.

"They'll have to send me home with my second dress to keep me in the limit one," said the girls whose ingenuity has been taxed of late by their plans for two dainty toilettes.

But on better information it was discovered that the measure was not so drastic as at first supposed, and there is no doubt but that the girls will comply with its specifications.

The measure of the board has met with approval from most of the parents who appreciate the situation.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The war department has decided to issue several medals to all the officers and men of the regular army who participated in the Spanish war, the Philippine insurrection, or the Chinese campaign. About 25,000 medals will be required.

Forest fires have been raging in the vicinity of Cortez, Fla., a lumbering town, Tuesday, and nearly a thousand persons are fighting the fire.

The discharging of cargoes of vessels in Montreal went on somewhat slowly Thursday, under the protection given by the military. The striking longshoremen were not allowed on the wharves.

At the invitation of William Ziegler, the National Geographical society will send W. J. Peters, of the United States geological survey, with the Ziegler Arctic expedition as chief of the scientific staff.

The transport Thomas will sail Saturday for the Philippine Islands, taking the Twenty-third infantry and the Twelfth cavalry. The transport also will have on board considerable treasure, consisting of $2,500,000 silver coins, weighing about forty tons and valued at $800,000.

YOUNG INDIAN IS CAPTURED

Escaped From Morris School and Was Catching Muskrats.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Rodwell, Indian agent here, has succeeded in capturing a young Indian 17 years of age after a most exciting search. The youth's name is Henry Scott and he with three others escaped from the Indian school at Morris two months ago. The Cass Lake Indian police after diligent search at last discovered the youth in the woods and apprehended him, but he outwitted his captors. They pursued him and caught him at Pigeon river, where young Lo was quietly catching muskrats. His old and inherent desire to trap the cunning rat was greater than his love of books and he fled to the river on the reservation. The doctor sent him back to Morris school under guard. The youth was very sad and dejected.

W. C. Lemen, in charge of the United States government survey of the army lands near Lake Winnebigoshish, says that the lines of the land condemned by the flowage caused by the government dam will be ready in May and that the Morris bill will not be delayed as reported, because those lines were not ready. They expect to finish the survey in May. Mr. Lemen had a narrow escape from drowning in coming here from his camp. The wind blew fiercely across the lake and the boat was almost uncontrollable. He was dragged from the boat by a limb of a tree into the river and was compelled to swim to shore, which he did with great difficulty.

TROUBLE FOR WYNNE.

Charges Against First Assistant Postmaster General.

Washington, May 1.—From inside sources at the postoffice department it is learned that as soon as President Roosevelt returns early in June charges will be filed with him against First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne. Wynne's enemies in the department, who accuse him of instigating the investigation that is now going on, have not changed their intention to oust him if possible, but have thought it the part of wisdom to wait until the president returns before making an active and open fight.

The charges against Wynne will contain two principal allegations—one to the effect that he has been talking too freely, and the other charging him with nepotism. The first assistant postmaster general is blamed for a free use of his tongue in spreading the scandals of the department, and it will be represented to the president that nearly all of the ugly stories that have been published about the irregularities in the department have been inspired by Wynne.

The latest development in the postoffice department investigation is the discovery of extreme looseness and irregularity in assigning employes to work of an entirely different character from that which they were appointed to perform, and for which they are being paid. There is every reason to believe that this scandal is far-reaching in the department. How many employes are involved cannot now be learned, but it is believed that they are numerous.

Juveniles In Court to Be Protected From Public Gaze.

Law Passed By the Last Legislature Provides For This.

In the future the municipal court room will be cleared of all spectators when girls and boys under 16 years of age are on trial.

Juveniles will be isolated from the idle public gaze that is a feature of nearly all trials, especially when the charges are of a sensational nature.

Judge Windom has already inaugurated the court room clearing innovation and any disappointed spectator that doubts his authority should read chapter 287 of the laws passed by the legislature at its recent session.

Only court attaches, regularly licensed attorneys, witnesses and relatives of the person accused will be permitted in the court room during such hearings.

The new law also provides that no court or magistrate shall commit a child under 14 years of age to jail or a police station pending trial. If unable to furnish bail for appearance in court, the juvenile prisoner may be committed to the care of the sheriff, police, public officer or probation officer, who shall keep the prisoner in some suitable place which shall be provided by the city or county.

Another feature of the new law is that prisoners under the age of 16 shall not be allowed to come in contact with prisoners of a greater age and they shall not be confined with other juvenile prisoners.

While this is new in the law it is not a new practice in this city. Since Chief Troyer has been at the head of the police department he has taken special precautions to see that youngsters when arrested shall be kept separate from all other prisoners, and, as far as possible, has insisted that when two or more juveniles are in custody at one time, they shall be kept separate from each other, but this has been rather difficult under the arrangement of the old jail.

The central police station is now bein gremodeled and a special department for the isolation of juveniles will be one of the new improvements.

In a year from now the patrol wagon will be covered instead of open, the legislature having passed a law, which will go in effect on Feb. 1, 1904, abolishing the open patrol wagon and providing for the isolation of all persons arrested from the public gaze, so far as possible.

Covered patrol wagons have been used for many years in nearly all the Eastern cities and it is claimed that they are more satisfactory to the police, except when a particularly scrappy prisoner is in custory and the complaint then is that the coverings handicap the officers in taking care of the fighter for lack of space.

FROZEN SALMON TO BE REVIVED

Novel Scheme to Be Attempted By a Tacoma Firm.

Tacoma, May 1.—A local company proposes to freeze live salmon in blocks of ice, ship them to New York and then bring them to life. It is claimed that experiments have demonstrated that the freezing of live fish in this manner is possible, providing the temperature of the fish is not far below the freezing point, and certain conditions are complied with in resuscitating. Further tests are to be made this summer on the Alaskan coast, and, if successful, shipments of fish in this manner to Eastern cities will be commenced next fall.

An expert who has been conducting experiments in Oregon, says that salmon can be frozen solid and thawed back to life if not exposed to the sun or allowed to get more than fourteen degrees below the freezing point. It is well known that Alaskan lakes and rivers which freeze solid from top to bottom during the winter are filled with fish every summer. The fish they contain are frozen, and remain in the ice during the long winter. This fact forms the basis of experiments now being conducted.

ROCKEFELLER

Sends Large Check to the Salvation Army.

Cleveland, May 1.—Col. Holz, of the Salvation Army, has received a check for $10,000 from John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate. This is the first donation Rockefeller has ever given to the Salvation Army. Rockefeller some time ago offered the local Salvation Army $10,000 upon condition that the army would raise $20,000 by November of this year. The army expects to use the money to build a citadel in this city, but was unable to meet Mr. Rockefeller's offer. Col. Holz wrote to the millionaire stating that the army could not raise $20,000 within the time limit and Rockefeller responded by removing the time limit and sending his check for $10,000 at once. Mr. Rockefeller also gave $20,000 to the Cleveland Medical Literary association.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

Says Negroes Do Not Want Social Position.

Fort Monroe, Va., May 1.—Booker T. Washington preached a sermon against social equality in his speech at the celebration of the Hampton Normal and Industrial institute. It was the first time in all his long career as a negro educator that he ever made a set speech on this line.

"The negro is seeking no social equality," he declared. "The negro is as proud of his own race as the white man is of his race. I believe it is the duty of the white people to try to get an insight into the domestic, business, moral and religious life of the negroes and this they can do without introducing the bugbear of social equality.

"I believe the white people of this country have begun to realize that they can't get rid of the negro. The negro is not going to colonize, he is not going to Africa, he is not going to die out and you can't hury him. You have got him here and the best thing you can do for him is to make him a decent, self-respecting, honest American citizen."

Ever since the dawn of civilization men have striven to leave records of their deeds. They have heaped up stones, have carved on obelisks, have written on parchment, and have printed in books. Thus, step by step, and piece by piece, the history of the world has accumulated from age to age.

In the process of time, a great general repository for all this record and fact was planned and prepared. For a century and a quarter the world's great scholars labored upon it. It was called and it stands today as the one comprehensive and complete reference work in the English language. BRITANNICA is not only "The Eye of the World," but also "The Pen of the World," setting down all the deeds and thoughts of past ages for the alert, thoughtful men of today

A RAVING MANIAC

His Last Sane Act Saved Lives of Many Passengers.

St. Louis, May 1.—A telegraph operator's last act in Poag Station, Ill., before becoming a raving maniac, was to turn on the red danger light, thus saving the Chicago express on the Wabash from possible destruction.

Whirling through space on a down grade at the rate of sixty miles an hour, Engineer Dongan, of the express train, gave a cry of astonishment as the great throbbing engine swept around the curve into view of the station of Poag. The red eye of a semaphore flashing its message of danger to all eastbound trains, caused him to reach for the reverse lever with one hand while with the other he sought the small handle that controls the air brakes.

No, is the fast Chicago express, is a privileged train, and all others seek side tracks when it encroaches upon their right-of-way.

Believing that the rumble of the train would notify the operator at Poag that the Chicago express was coming, Dongan refrained for thirty seconds from checking the speed of the flyer. But when the sharp blast from his whistle brought no response and still the red beacon did not change to white Dongan acted.

With a shriek the powerful locomotive yielded to the unrelenting clutch of its superior air brakes and drew up panting before the little station.

The conductor and brakeman hurried to the engine in alarm. Dongan swung himself down from his cab and the three men hurried into the telegraph station amazed and nonplussed to understand why they were compelled to stop.

As they opened the door and caught sight of the figure sitting at the telegraph key they sprang back with exclamations of horror. Gibbering to himself, unmindful of the tatooing of the sounders and relays calling frantically "G," "G," "G," the signal of the Poag office, D. S. Ranshaw, of Litchfield, the operator upon whom depended the safety of all the trains on that division, sat at his instrument a raving maniac.

The trainmen realized for the first time the gravity of the situation. Neither of them was an operator, and the uninterrupted clicking of the instrument was meaningless to them. They were powerless to go forward or backward. They did not know what danger confronted them.

Not for half an hour were the train officials able to find the day operator and get their clearance orders. Fortunately they discovered that Ranshaw had not committed any serious blunders.

When Ranshaw reported for duty the night before, he was in his usual health. He had been partially paralyzed for some time before, and had been removed from a more important station to Poag, where the work is lighter and where he might have a chance to recuperate.

It is believed from subsequent developments that Ranshaw began to lose his mind early in his night's work. Growing more and more oblivious to his work, yet receiving and relaying train orders mechanically, he finally, with his last conscious act, probably realizing the danger that confronted him, turned on the red light to warn the on-rushing flyer.

It was his long training as a railway man which probably caused him to take the only course to save the great express. Had the flyer gone on through, a smash-up somewhere on the line must certainly have occurred, because Ranshaw was in no condition to take or send the necessary orders to keep the trains moving systematically and safely.

The men put the madman on the train that carried him to his home at Litchfield. He will be removed to an asylum.

THOUSAND HOUSES

Were Burned In The Town of Mariquina.

Manila, April 30.—The town of Mariquina, province of Manila, has been destroyed by fire. A thousand houses were burned and the inhabitants are in much distress. The people of Manila are relieving the sufferers. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin. Members of scattered insurgent bands are suspected of setting fire to the place.

GOOD BLOOD SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

You know when rich, red blood is coursing through the veins, for it shows in the brightness of the eye, the beauty and clearness of the complexion, the smooth, fair skin, and robust, healthy constitution. It is good blood that imparts strength and energy to the body and keeps it in a state of healthfulness and vigor. Good blood is the foundation of good health, and to be physically and mentally sound it must be kept pure and untainted.

People with good blood possess strong, steady nerves and are blest with good appetites and digestion, and enjoy sound, refreshing sleep. If we could always maintain the purity of the blood then we might enjoy perpetual health, but it becomes infected and poisoned and most of the ills that afflict humanity and undermine the constitution are caused by an impoverished or polluted condition of this vital fluid.

When the blood is diseased the skin loses its healthy appearance, and the complexion, its freshness and beauty and becomes red and rough and full of pimples and splotches. Itching, scaly eruptions, blackheads, boils and rashes break out upon the body when the blood is too poor or too thin and acid, and is not supplying proper nourishment to the system. Debility, poor appetite, bad digestion, restless sleep and nervousness more often come from sluggish, impure blood than any other cause. To build up the blood, restore its lost properties and make it rich and nutritious again is the only rational treatment, and the proper way to get rid of skin troubles. There is no remedy like S. S. S. to accomplish this and it does it promptly and thoroughly. S. S. S. antidotes and removes from the blood all poisons and humors, and restores it to a normal, healthy condition, and invigorates and tones up the general health. When rich, red blood is again flowing through your veins all skin eruptions disappear, the appetite improves, the complexion clears and you get rid of those miserable depressing feelings and nervousness, and enjoy once more the blessings of good health. S. S. S. is nature's remedy for all blood and skin diseases. It contains no minerals whatever, but is guaranteed purely vegetable.

This was fifteen years ago, and I have never since seen any sign of my old trouble.

STUDIES IN ACTS

PAUL ARRESTED

International Sunday School Lesson For May 3, 1903.

Acts 21:30-39. "And all the city was moved, and the people ran together, and they laid hold on Paul, and dragged him out of the temple: and straightaway the doors were shut. And as they were seeking to kill him, tidings came up to the chief captain of the band that all Jerusalem was in confusion. And forthwith he took soldiers and Centurions and ran down upon them: and they, when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers, left off beating Paul. Then the chief captain came near, and laid hold on him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and inquired who he was, and what he had done. And some shouted one thing, some another, among the crowd: And when he could not know the certainty for the uproar, he commanded him to be brought into the castle. And when he came upon the stairs, so it was, that he was borne of the soldiers for the violence of the crowd; for the multitude of the people followed after, crying out: Away with him.

"And as Paul was about to be brought into the castle, he saith unto the chief captain, May I say something unto thee? And he said, Dost thou know Greek? Art thou not then the Egyptian, which before these days stirred up to sedition and led out into the wilderness the 4000 men of the assassins? But Paul said, I am a Jew, of Tarsus in Cilicia, a citzen of no mean city: and I beseech thee, give me leave to speak unto the people."

Golden Text: "If any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed." 1 Peter 4:16.

POLICY VERSUS PRINCIPLE.

When Paul arrived for his last visit in Jerusalem, the gospel had been fairly well established among the Gentiles. In neighboring Antioch, in idolatrous Ephesus, in colonial Philippi, in learned Athens, in commercial and wicked Corinth, Paul had preached the gospel and labored for Christ, winning converts to his faith. He had established some churches which had become centers of influence, such as the one at Ephesus to whose elders he had bidden such an affectionate farewell in the expectation that they would see his face no more.

Paul's arrival at the Holy City was the signal for Jerusalem's final rejection of Jesus. Paul was there rejected successively by the council, the spiritual chiefs and the political rulers, and in rejecting him they also rejected the gospel he preached. But the worst feature of Paul's sufferings in Jerusalem was the fact that so many of the Christians were arrayed against him. He was received cordially by some of the "brethren" and even given a home for his stay. James, the Lord's brother, and the other elders of the church treated him kindly, listening interestedly to his story, but maintaining a safe reserve that must have been very chilling to Paul's enthusiasm. They gave no expression of appreciation of Paul's work, but praised God for the spread of the gospel. Then they quickly made a suggestion that was equal to a rebuke of Paul for his liberty in receiving the Gentile into the church without circumcision and obedience to the law of Moses.

The scheme was a politic one intended to appease the wrath of those believers in the Messiahship of Jesus, who thought that Christianity was only a phase of Judaism and that all Christians should carefully observe the ceremonial as well as the moral law of Moses. One is surprised that Paul entered into it. But there was nothing intrinsically wrong in his entering into a religious rite with the four devout Jews. The idea was for him to give a practical illustration of the fact that he was accustomed to fashion his own conduct in the manner of a devout and orderly Jew. He undertook to pay for these four men the expense of the offerings a Nazarite had to make before shaving his head (Numbers 6:15-18) and to join them in the rites of purification. But his well-intended effort was misconstrued, and it brought upon his head a rain of mad fury such as he had never experienced in all his missionary journeys.

It is always dangerous to allow "policy" to dictate a course of action contrary to the natural leadership of the principles of life one has thoughtfully adopted. Expediency may at times seem to require it; but the occasions are rare when principle should be yielded.

ENEMIES THAT FOLLOW.

Paul followed out the plan of being at charges for the four Nazirites, and on the seventh day of the purification he went with them into the Jewish court of the temple to perform the closing devotions of their vows. But Paul had enemies there who had followed him all the way from the far regions of his missionary labors. These enemies had previously seen Paul in company with Trophimus of Ephesus. On seeing him with the four Nazirites, they said, here Paul has brought a gentile into the sacred precincts of the temple reserved for faithful Israelites; he is profaning the temple. They industriously spread that report. They laid hands on Paul and cried, "Help!" as if they had discovered some thief or murderer. But their honor was worse than that of a man who wishes to make sure of restraining some criminal. They had for a long time been protesting against Paul's actions and teachings among the gentiles. At times they had been very angry with him. Now, all their pent-up disapproval and indignation was augmented by the idea that Paul was adding to the offense of admitting uncircumcised gentiles into the church the more heinous crime of leading these gentiles to profane the temple. The case was like that of a volcano full of hot lava and steam and needing only a slight additional pressure to make it burst forth in the cry. "This is the man that teacheth all men everywhere against the people, and the law, and this place; and moreover he brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath defiled this holy place."

A general Oriental religious frenzy was stirred up, the crowd of Jews in the temple became a mob, and Paul was forcibly dragged out of the place where he had a perfect right to worship undisturbed with his Nazirites. The doors leading from the court of the gentiles to the inner court, where Jews only were allowed, was shut to keep Paul from escaping, there to find refuge at the altar. The city outside the temple enclosure caught the spirit of religious wrath, and the people ran together, adding volume to the storm cloud.

There are two kinds of enemies that follow one through life. On the one hand, if a person does right, there may be those who oppose him with hatred, willing to pursue him to any end of persecution necessary to hinder or thwart the good he is doing. A mild form of such enmity was seen in the case of a man who favored the liquor interests in a recent fight for local option in a Virginia village. After the election was past, the leading temperance man of the village entered the liquor man's store and requested to use his telephone, but was blankly refused. In other ways this liquor man has sought to make it unpleasant for the temperance man. If one does right from strong conviction, he is not deterred from doing his duty by the pursuit and persecution of those whose enmity springs from mistaken or unrighteous opposition.

On the other hand, through indulging in sin, a person creates enemies that will follow him all his days. Such enemies are to be feared. They may be men or women with whom one has sinned, and whose companionship will always be dangerous, because likely to lead into sin. Or, appetites, passions, and habits may be cultivated in evil directions; these may rise to curse and plague a man's life at most any turning in his career.

PAUL'S DEFENSE.

Paul's life was in danger from the mob. Several hundred Roman soldiers were quartered in the tower of Antonia, which overlooked the temple enclosure. The noise of the tumult came to the ears of their commanding officer, who quickly took several companies of men with their proper officers and hurried to the scene. The mob was beating Paul; but promptly stopped on seeing the Roman arms. The captain thought that Paul was a certain Egyptian bandit who had been creating considerable disturbance. He therefore had him bound with chains. The people yelled one thing and another in response to the captain's inquiry about the trouble. Such was the confusion that the officers could not understand anything. They took the safe course and brought Paul into the castle. When they got him on the stairs, the crowd cried against him very much, as it had done against Jesus on the same spot, "Away with him!"

The captain of the guard was very much surprised to have Paul speak to him in Greek instead of in the language of an Egyptian. The crowd had been so violent that the soldiers had to pick Paul up and carry him out to escape the fury of his detractors. But Paul gained the privilege of speaking to his fellow-countrymen in their own language. He did so apparently with the hope of winning them to hear his gospel. He had assured the captain that he was a Jew of Tarsus. He addressed the Jews as "brethren and fathers."

His defense was a straightforward relation of his experience. He had nothing to hide even from his enemies. The whole course of his early life had been lived according to their ideas. He had been instructed in the law and had been zealous in its behalf. If his life differed at all from theirs, it was because God had directed the change and had fashioned his life anew. In fact, God had arrested him in the midst of a career that was directed against those who believed in Jesus as the Christ, and his life had been entirely changed by the conviction of the resurrection. Even after his conversion he desired to preach the gospel to the Jews in Jerusalem, because he loved that city and its people. But God forbade him, saying, "Depart: for I will send thee forth far hence unto the Gentiles." Everything in his life to which they were objecting had had its origin in the direct influence of the command or Spirit of God.

The utterance of the word "Gentiles" was made the signal for a fresh outburst of rage. The mob yelled again, "Away with such a fellow from the earth!" They "cried out, and threw off their garments, and cast dust into the air," all signs of rage in the Orient. The captain of the guard thought that such an outcry of the people indicated something very bad in the man against whom it was directed. So he ordered that Paul should be scourged until he confessed his crime. But Paul appealed to the fact that he was a free-born Roman citizen, which appeal stopped the scourging and gained him a friendly talk with the captain. Before the Jews he had appealed to the fact of his Jewish blood and training, but got only an infuriated clamor for response. The bare mention of his Roman citizenship, however, brought him the immediate protection of the majesty of the greatest state of the time. The rights of her citizens was fundamental with Rome.

No man need ever fear the white light of public inquiry or accusation so long as he can freely and frankly tell the full story of his life as his best defense. It is the deeds and thoughts that skulk away into the dark that fill one with dread. Guilt is the father of fear.

SHE PASSED FOR A MAN

For Thirteen Years, Acknowledging Sex on Her Deathbed.

Madisonville, Ky., May 1.—For thirteen years Mrs. Fred Green, once of West Virginia, masqueraded as Aaron Barque in this village. Only at her death last Tuesday was the identity of her sex discovered. She revealed her true name to a neighbor woman shortly before she died. The reason she gave for assuming male attire was that she couldn't make a living as a woman.

The woman first made her appearance in this neighborhood something over twelve years ago. Dressed in male attire, she was taken for a man. She had a child in her arms and applied to J. H. Torrey, a charitable Muhlenburg farmer, for a night's lodging. She said her name was Aaron Barque.

After the stranger had finished his supper they engaged in conversation, when Barque stated that he was a native of West Virginia and since the death of his wife had been in very bad health and had been advised by his physicians to make a change of location, and that he had decided to locate in Kentucky on a farm, if it were possible for him to rent or buy a small plantation in some high remote place where he could have a rest from the world.

Mr. Torrey was the owner of several small farms in that section, and as his guest pleased him in his appearance, he informed him that he had a small farm adjoining his home place he would sell to the right party at a low rate and at satisfactory terms. The following morning they went out and looked over the farm which the old gentleman proposed to sell him, and a trade was soon consummated. The terms were $250 cash and the remainder in two years from date of purchase, which at the end of two years was met promptly.

"Barque" kept two hands employed most of the time, and it was noticed that the landlord did scarcely any work, but was always in the field with the employes attired in male costume. The woman's voice was coarse for a woman, and she was never suspected of being anything than a man. The little daughter, Carroll, has never known her mother to be other than her father.

"My name is Mrs. Fred Green, and not Aaron Barque," she said on her deathbed. "I am the mother of my daughter and not her father. I was born and reared in Staunton, W. Va., and was married there, my parents dying shortly after my marriage, which was soon followed by the death of my young husband, who was a pharmacist, leaving me with about $2000 in cash and a small babe.

"My future appeared to be clouded, and I took my plans under consideration, but could think of nothing by which I could earn money to support myself and child, and finally decided to travel in search of some employement. I secured a position as teacher in a small village school near the Kentucky-Virginia line, but failed to please the patrons at this, and was again turned out to face the world, when I attired myself in male costume and started with my baby in my arms to face the world."

Her last words were spoken in asking her daughter to forgive her.

8 EAST SUPERIOR STREET, DULUTH.

AT WEST DULUTH

A decided improvement has taken place in the condition of Miss Augusta Peterson and good hopes are entertained for her recovery. She is resting quietly and it is hoped that she will escape without serious complications setting in.

The two suspects brought from Cloquet were released by the police this morning. They gave their names as James Kelly and Henry Bronson. When taken before Miss Peterson this morning she declared that neither of them was the man who fired the shot and they were allowed their freedom.

The police are kept busy following up the clews supplied them by various people who believe they saw the mysterious assailant.

Lieut. Briggs this morning denied that the police were contemplating the arrest of a former lover of Miss Peterson's, who lives in the locality where she resided.

"The story that we have the name of the man and his whereabouts, and will arrest him before night, is false," said Mr. Briggs. "We are busy following up the various clews but have found nothing yet that will lead to the identification of the criminal."

The fact that the police believe the description given by Miss Peterson to be wrong has complicated the affair, and has left them almost without facts upon which to base a theory of the shooting.

ANOTHER BALL TEAM.

Second One to Be Called Hubs Has Organized.

A second baseball team has been organized in West Duluth. It will be called the West Duluth Hubs.

The new organization has had an auspicious start. A number of good men who have already joined are: Harry Ross, John Kemp, Walter Dash, William Paradise, P. Young, Charles Spitz, Frink, Sudhoff and Martin.

Frink and Sudhoff will do the pitching for the new organization and Martin will play behind the bat.

The Hubs will use the grounds at the head of Fifty-second avenue. The West Duluth team has the grounds for Thursday afternoons only, and the Hubs will select some other day for practice. The first practice will be held Sunday afternoon.

Harry Ross is manager of the new club. He has already written to Tower, Aitkin, Iron River, Lake Nebagamon, Hibbing, Grand Rapids and Cloquet for games. The Hubs will also go after the West Duluth team and a game will be arranged for the first open date.

The West Duluth team will leave Sunday morning for Cloquet. The suits have not yet arrived from Minneapolis, but will be here in time for the game with Hibbing, May 10.

DISPUTES RECORD.

Considerable discussion has arisen among sawyers in West Duluth as to the record cut in a day's work for the mills at the head of the lakes. A well-known sawyer in West Duluth cites a new record cut.

"On May 21, 1898," he says, "with Louis Beirl as sawyer and Nathan Bailey as filer, the single band saw of the Merrill & Ring mill cut 101,000 feet in 9½ hours actual work. This was done with the assistance of two ordinary workmen and the lumber cut was all white pine."

The famous goat case of N. P. Grahn against James McArthur came up for hearing before Justice Stone this morning. Grahn was suing McArthur for $35 damages which he claims the goats belonging to the defendant were responsible for. The hearing was postponed until May 14 to give McArthur an opportunity to settle with the complainants.

H. G. Barnum, of Grand Forks, is in West Duluth today. He is visiting his mother, who resides on Fifty-eighth avenue.

Large additions have been made to the working force of the National iron works during the past few weeks. The plant is now being run to its fullest capacity and employes nearly 200 men.

The plan of filling in the ravines under the bridges on the road to West Duluth is a topic of much interest to residents of this section of the city. The city engineer is preparing estimates of the cost of the work. The plan is favorably considered if the cost is not prohibitive. Alderman Barnes asked for the estimates at the last meeting of the council.

James Brotherton has returned from Stillwater and will leave for Ely this afternoon.

Observe his Style

He is a representative in appearance of thousands who have sought "The Hub's" aid in selecting their Spring attire. Every line, every curve, every detail of his suit is correct, as you'll admit. It is what is known as a ready-made suit. Formerly this man had his suit made to order and paid three times as much for the style, the pattern, the effect, that he paid here for this very fashionable outfit. Could anything be neater or nobbier? And combining all these elements of fashion which this suit undeniably presents, with the advantage of the lowest price possible, the question naturally arises

Why squander your money;
Why not look as stylish as this man for

An Accidental Discovery Regarding Finston Rays.

Philadelphia, May 1.—A Germantown physician has made the discovery by accident, that the so-called Finston rays have valuable anaesthetic properties. On March 16 he was called upon by a man who was suffering with a wound on the forearm. After cleansing the wound the doctor placed the arm in the violet light of his minin lamp for the antiseptic effect of the rays. When he started to sew up the wound the patient told him that the operation gave him no pain. The physician has since used the rays with equal success in a score of minor operations.

GIRLS AND MEN

Western Union Now Has Them In Its Messenger Service.

Miss Anna Berg Again Tackles It—Strikers Sanguine.

Girls and men are working in the places of the striking Western Union messengers today.

With the exception of taking a boy away from the board of trade service, the strikers have not interfered with those delivering telegrams.

Miss Anna Berg, the original girl messenger, who had such a strenuous experience Tuesday, has returned to work and put in an exceedingly busy morning.

She does not seem as popular with the boy strikers as she was—at least not a boy followed her about town during the early hours, but at noon she again had quite a following.

Manager Humes of the Western Union says the local delivery service is being improved each day, and today the company is able to make deliveries much more promptly and with less inconvenience than at any time since the messenger boys quit work.

The man that struck a striking messenger with a whip yesterday was arrested and fined $1 and costs in the municipal court. He entered a plea of guilty as soon as taken to court. This assault occurred in the wholesale district where the messengers were endeavoring to induce a private messenger to quit working for the Stone-Ordean-Wells company.

The board of trade incident today was amusing. When the strike of the messengers was first declared, the boys heard that a "strike-buster" from Minneapolis was working for the Western Union on the board floor, and a delegation waiting on him induced him to quit work.

Yesterday this boy went back to work and announced that he was there to stay, strike or no strike. This morning Tom Furey, treasurer of the Striking Messengers' association, called on him and offered to get him another job if he would quit work. The boy promptly quit and was put to work in a bowling alley. Another boy was working on the board during the day.

The messengers say they are meeting with all kinds of success in their independent co-operative movement, and consider themselves better off financially than they would have been had they remained with the Western Union at the old wage scale.

S. V. GILBERT'S FUNERAL.

Dr. Robert Forbes Delivers the Sermon.

The funeral of the late Samuel V. Gilbert was held at the family residence, 5000 London road at 2 p. m. yesterday. Rev. C. F. Davis, of Lester Park, read a scripture lesson and Dr. Ryan offered prayer, after which Rev. Dr. Forbes spoke in part as follows:

"After the comforting words of scripture to which we have listened, and the words of prayer which have been spoken, it would be fitting if we should proceed at once to convey the remains of our departed friend to his long sleep in the peaceful grave, but custom and our own feelings of sympathy dictate that a few words should be spoken. We cannot solve the mysteries of God's Providence. In former times, when men felt it necessary to attempt an explanation, theologians sometimes said that death was a part of the penalty for sin. That was an awful mistake, and its influence is still felt, even where the doctrine is no longer taught. Death is not a punishment for sin. In the old story of Genesis, God spoke a loving warning to man, telling him that the result of sin would inevitably be moral and spiritual death. But physical death was no part of that penalty. If it were so, the good and the innocent would not die, but death comes alike to all.

"It is a wise provision of divine Providence that there is so much uncertainty about death. If all men lived to be one hundred years old, it would be useless to preach to the man of fifty or of ninety years, for each would feel that there was plenty of time for him to make his peace with God. But no man can tell how soon death will come to him. You and I will go from this place today with a more solemn realization of our duty, of the brevity and uncertainty of life and the need of so living that if our time should come tomorrow we should not be ashamed.

"It is well that we should consider the influence of life, its fruition. When a man has lived a strong, clean, manly life, as our friend has lived, the influence of that life will not die. And just because his sudden cutting off, in the very prime of manhood, serves us all for a warning of life's uncertainty and solemn meaning, there is a sense in which he died for us. May the influence of such a life never be lost upon us. May the richest blessings of God's peace and comfort come upon you neighbors and friends of his, whose lives will be lonely because he is gone; upon the brothers who are left to mourn his loss; and especially upon the widow and the little child who will scarcely know a father's love, but God has promised to be a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless."

"Cure the cough and save the life." Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures coughs and colds, down to the very verge of consumption.

A Delightful Affair.

The musicale-dance given last evening by the Mozart club at the Spalding was a most delightful affair. The musicale which was given by the members of the club, who are piano pupils of Mrs. D. H. Day, was greatly enjoyed by the friends of the little ones present. Splendid work er. After the program a dancing party was shown by both the pupils and teach- followed for which Flaten furnished the music. The proceeds of the dance is for the benefit of the children of the Women's and Children's home.

officers of the Third regiment.

On the platform, besides the president's party, were the members of the reception committee, among them Governor A. L. Dockery, Congressman William S. Cowherd, United States Senators J. R. Burton and Chester I. Long of Kansas, Congressman J. D. Bowersock of Kansas, Lieut. Roland Fortesque, of Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Mayor James A. Reed of Kansas City, Mo., and Mayor-elect T. B. Gilbert of Kansas City, Kan.

President Roosevelt was introduced by Mayor Reed. A great demonstration took place as he arose to speak. The president spoke for fifteen minutes.

Shortly before noon a start was made for the Baltimore hotel, where, after a brief reception in the parlors, a luncheon, perhaps the most elaborate ever given in Kansas City, was served. The decorations were strikingly beautiful, and consisted principally of the national colors, silk flags being draped everywhere and almost concealing the entire wall space. Above the president's chair was an electric flag which was illuminated when President Roosevelt entered the room. J. F. Richards and Governor Dockery were seated on the right of the president, and Henry W. Evans on the left. The guests numbered 140.

Just as the president arose from luncheon Mr. Evans presented him with a beautifully carved silver card, encased in sealskin. The card bore the shield of the United States and that of the state of Missouri, with the following inscription:

"Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States. The Commercial club, Kansas City, Mo., May 1, 1903."

The luncheon over, the president, at 1:45, was delivered into the hands of a committee of the Mercantile club, of Kansas City, Kan., and he became the guest of that city. Evan H. Brown, president of the Mercantile club, presented President Roosevelt with a large silk sunflower, and he was escorted to a carriage decorated with sunflowers and silken American flags. The other members of the party and the reception committee entered carriages and started for the Kansas side. A company of the Fourth United Statese cavalry, in command of Capt. Tyree Rivers, who was with the president in Cuba, and a squad of mounted police, acted as escort to the state line in the wholesale district of the west bottoms.

As the party passed beneath the bluffs overlooking the Union depot a presidential salute was fired from cannon placed high above the procession. At this signal every whistle in the city added to the noise, and church bells everywhere were rung.

A squad of mounted police from the Kansas metropolis relieved the police escort from the Missouri side and 650 mounted stockmen from the stock yards fell in line.

Huron place was reached about 2:15, and there, from a platform in the open, surrounded by the members of two G. A. R. posts and contingent of letter carriers, President Roosevelt spoke briefly.

The president spoke a word of greeting to his audience and then greeted especially the men who wore the blue and those who wore the gray.

"I do not usually say anything about our being a reunited country," he said, "because it is not necessary. Of course, we are a reunited country and in every Northern audience, wherever I see a group of men wearing the button of the Grand Army of the Republic, I am certain to find a group of men ready to cheer every allusion to the gallantry of the men who wore the gray." (Applause.)

The president discussed the question of good citizenship and then said:

"In our complex relation of employed and employer," he said, "of one class with another, of one section with another section, we can work out a really successful result, only if those interested will get together and make an honest effort each to understand his neighbor's viewpoint and then an honest effort by each, while working for his own interests, to avoid working to the detriment of his neighbor. Wrong is wrong just as much if it is done by the little man to the big man as by the big man to the little man—to the capitalist by the wageworker or to the wageworker by the capitalist.

"In the long run wageworker and capitalist will go down in common ruin if each does not honestly try to get on with justice to the other and work out a scheme of action which shall be to their own common advantage."

Later the president reviewed 8000 school children.

The party was then driven back to the state line to the live stock exchange, where there was a demonstration by the stockmen in honor of the president. From the stock yards the party was driven through the suburban towns of Rosedale, Armourdale and Armstrong, encountering 3000 more school children and crowds of patriotic citizens.

At the Union Pacific station at Armstrong the president, just before his departure for the West, received a delegation of students from the Kansas City university, who presented him with a gold badge, set with pearls and diamonds, and designated him an honorary member of the University Library association.

PRIZE PLANS FOR A $2,000 HOUSE

A few weeks ago a prominent New York paper offered prizes for the best plans submitted of a house costing not over $2,000. We reproduce herewith the photographs and plans of the two houses which were awarded the prizes.

So many interesting plans and attractive photographs of houses were sent in response to the prize offers that it was difficult to make a choice for the awards. When one sees what a beautiful home can be built for the modest sum of $2,000 it is surprising that every one is not the owner of a cottage somewhere. That amount is not an unusual charge for an apartment which it is impossible to endow with any sort of a home feeling.

Most of the descriptions sent by readers were based upon actual experience, either that of the owner or the architect or builder, and were accompanied by a guarantee that the house could be built for the sum specified in the locality named. A woman who sent a photograph of a commodious house which she had planned herself, wrote that she had lived in it for several years and that its convenience and comfort appealed not only to her but to all of her friends who had been in the house.

Several plans were for houses to be built on city lots. One for a bungalow in Connecticut, it was stated, could be carried out for $1,800, and would make a delightful summer home.

The houses selected for the first and second prizes were chosen, not because they were superior to all the others, but because they were fairly representative, and embodied features that would interest the largest number of prospective builders.

The first prize was given to R. Clarence Rapp, of No. 1829 Church avenue, Flatbush, for a tasteful, comfortable and convenient house that can be built in New Jersey, within thirty miles of New York city, for $2,000.

The roof and sides of the house are of cedar shingles. Inside, the trim is of white wood, with the exception of the kitchen, which is in yellow pine, and the stairs, from the first to the second floor, which are of oak. The dresser in the dining-room shown in the plan is not included in the $2,000 price. Everything else is.

Mr. Rupp's itemized statement of cost follows:

Mason work (including all excavation)	$280.00
Carpenter work (including all sashes, timber and painting)	1,280.00
Plumbing (including gas fixtures)	230.00
Heating (furnace in cellar)	175.00
Incidentals	35.00
Total	$2,000.00

The second prize was awarded to Arthur H. Smith, who built the $2,000 house here shown in Rutland, Vt.

The walls are of stone laid dry, pointed both sides, underpinning rock faced local marble, laid in mortar, backed with brick to give air space. The frame is of spruce hemlock boards, papered, back plastered on lath between the studs. The shingles are of cedar, brush coated once with stain, green on the roof, gray on the sides, shingle six inches to the weather, wood trimmings outside painted white. There are no mouldings of any account on the exterior work, shingle being finished to shingle and cut to a pattern over all windows at base on bottom of gables. The shingles are also cut at right angles to the rake of gable.

Inside the finish is No. 1 spruce, with doors of second quality pine, all stained a rich brown, one coat of stain and one coat of varnish. There are finished floors of spruce, except in the kitchen and bathroom, where Carolina pine is used. There is a hot air furnace and plain open plumbing.

SECOND STORY PLAN

Boarding House For Cats.

"King Cyrus will have a satisfactory boarding place while we're away from home."

The visitor, looking at the pampered Persian cat stretched before the fire, said: "I suppose he is particular."

"Very. He stayed in various places, and he didn't like any of them, until the last time we stowed the house, when he boarded at Katherine Jane's and was contented. She always had a nice set of boarders."

"As refined and elegant as Cyrus?" inquired the caller, as she noticed the immaculate plaid ribbon around his snow-white neck.

"None of them are so handsome and affectionate," replied his adoring owner, as the King jumped on her lap and submitted to her caresses, "but there are some nice, paying guests there, for Katherine Jane is particular."

"How many can she accommodate?"

"Twenty."

"Does she prefer cats to human beings as boarders?"

"Unselfishly. Wouldn't you?"

The visitor reflected. "Cats cannot talk or play the piano or sing or typewrite and will not scratch unless interfered with. "How did she happen to go into such an unusual business?

"She always loved cats and generally had several about the place, for her friends formed the habit of asking her to care for their pets when they were leaving home. This went on for several years, her feline and friends increasing in number annually and her property shrinking in a corresponding ratio until there remained nothing except the house and five acres of land surrounding it. Finally, a practical business woman called a halt. 'Katherine Jane,' she said, 'you can't afford to feed so many. I want to send my Black Tom over here for a couple of weeks, for it's such a comfort to know he'll be well looked after, but I shall not do so unless I pay for his board.' Katherine Jane demurred, but the other woman was determined, and they agreed that a dollar a week was a fair equivalent for Black Tom's board and lodging. Other persons insisted upon making similar arrangements, and her house became so popular that she was forced to provide extra accommodations and assistance."

"How does she manage to look after so many? Do they stay in the house?"

"Some of them do. Yesterday there were three sunning themselves in the bay window, in the dining room a great, handsome black tabby was lying before the fire on a white fur rug—cats are vain and know the effectiveness of contrasts—and there were several in the halls. The back porch is enclosed in a wire netting, and the boarders spend considerable time there, for they get plenty of exercise, fresh air and sunshine and at the same time are out of the way of stray dogs, though it would be a courageous canine who would venture a second time upon those domains. Teddy, the tortoise-shell who lives next door to us, was spending a few weeks at Katherine Jane's last spring, and the first day a pert little scrap of a Scotch terrier walked in and sat himself down on the front veranda. Teddy saw him and in an instant the atmosphere seemed to be filled with yellow cat and yellow dog. When they were separated the terrier was a wreck, but with the exception of his left ear, Teddy was as good as ever.

"A favorite out of door resort is a half acre of land enclosed in barbed wire. Within it grow green things that cats love to eat and there are small bushes and dwarf pines planted in clusters or separately. There is also to the yard a house about thirty feet square, made entirely of fine wire, except the roof, which is weather-proof, and many boarders spend the nights there, though some prefer the cellar.

"Katherine Jane keeps a cow and has a weekly contract with a butcher, and her sister, who runs a boarding house for school teachers, sends the scraps from her table, so that it costs about fifteen cents per week to feed each cat, aside from the expense of boarding and paying another person to help look after them.

"No boarder is supposed to be out at night, so that when one hides for several days it is clearly with the intention of breaking this rule. Another unpopular regulation is the weekly bath. It is remarkable that so many apparently refined cats will resort to any subterfuge to avoid this necessary function.

"Prices vary at Katherine Jane's. She has to make allowance for the troubles caused by peculiarities of temperament. Cyrus is nervous, so when she mentioned $1.25 a week for him I couldn't object. Besides, as he is white, he is difficult to keep clean. An ordinary black and white or a Maltese gets half bedroom rates, but the tortoise-shell next door and the Angora across the street pay $2 a week, for it requires tact to maintain harmony between them and otherwise peaceable boarders.

"Like every business that is successful, it requires constant attention and hard work. The originator, however, not only meets her expenses, but is able to put aside a little money.

Across The Sea With Bag And Baggage.

After the first rapturous realization that she is really "going abroad" the first question that occurs to the average woman is, "What shall I wear?" a question more often answered by the capacity of her trunk than by a realization of what she will need.

But why take a trunk? It means not only that you will take along things you have no need for, but also bother in checking it, hunting it up at stations and recovering it when it goes astray. It is much better to have your things under your own eye all the time, and you can always get a porter or some one to carry them for you.

Having simplified matters by deciding not to take a trunk, what shall we take? First, a leather handbag, in which bottles can be packed upright. One of the bottles must contain a good cleaning fluid. Around the bottle wrap a piece of white flannel to remove spots from your light waists, &c., and also a bit of heavy dark woolen cloth for rubbing coat and skirts. A bottle of smelling salts should follow, some Jamaica ginger and a wee flask of brandy for emergencies, and, if you like, headache cologne, camphor or blacking.

In this bag you will also pack the small things so indispensable to comfort which go astray when they are needed—hairpins, nail file, button hook, scissors and the neat little workbox some one is sure to give you, which ought to include a bag of assorted buttons.

You will also put into this bag handkerchiefs and any small valuables which are safer under lock and key. Your soap box, tooth powder, tooth brush, nail brush, sponge bag, hair brush and comb, clothes brush, &c., will go here, too.

The next bag to be packed is the dress bag—one of those large extension bags made of Japanese straw, with a waterproof lining. They are light in weight and look well; though, if you prefer, one of the dark gray cloth-covered ones will do as well. Get one at least thirty inches long, and keep it exclusively for your skirts and waists. You will be surprised to see how much you can put into it, placing your skirts at the bottom and waists on top. Resist the temptation which so besets the feminine packer and do not tuck folds and ends into the vacant corners or along the sides. They are sure to gravitate to the bottom, and then one must pull and muss everything to find them, or else remove everything and repack from the beginning, except the photographs one picks up. The bottom of the bag is an excellent place to carry them, as they can be kept flat.

The third piece of luggage, the catch-all, or whatever one wishes to call it, is an adaptation of the old-fashioned and useful shawl strap. If it is not procurable in this country you can make one with little trouble or expense. The materials needed are a piece of stout canvas or heavy denim, a yard and a half square, a wooden rod about an inch thick and twenty-two inches long (a small curtain pole will answer the purpose admirably) and a pair of stout shawl straps.

How to Make the Catch-all.

Cut a piece of cloth twenty-two inches long and sixteen wide out of two adjoining corners, as shown in the illustration. Round each of the corners of the canvas slightly and bind the edge with a heavy braid. Then about eight inches from the small end of the canvas stitch on a strip cut from one of the extra pieces, twenty-two inches long and two wide, leaving one end open to admit the pole. It is better to stitch this several times, as much of the strain comes upon this part. The pole should run parallel to the shorter end of the canvas. Slip this pole into the pocket thus formed for it and sew the cloth firmly at the end, so that the pole cannot slip out. Then screw the handle of your shawl straps to the middle of the pole so that the straps will come on the side of the canvas which you intend for the outside. A very stunning one can be made of brown canvas, bound with leather, with a monogram cut out of leather stitched on the end. Natural colored linen canvas, bound with navy blue and with a navy blue monogram, also looks very well.

When packing this catch-all lay the things you wish to put in it together, as neatly as possible, at the wide end of the canvas and right in the middle; fold the sides of the canvas over like flaps, and then roll your bundle up toward the pole, holding it firmly together; fasten the straps as tightly as possible. You will find, if you do it just right, that you will have a neat parcel, with no lumps or loose ends.

The extra pieces of canvas can be utilized for pockets to be stitched on in the middle of the end furthest from the pole—pockets that are the right size to hold a pair of shoes, rubbers, nightdress, etc.—and these also help to keep your bundle symmetrical.

In this catch-all you will carry shoes, rubbers, hot-water bottle, alcohol lamp (if you must have one), soiled linen and things that do not fit into the other bags. Under the straps on the outside you can slip your guidebook and whatever magazine or reading matter you wish on the train.

The advantage of this catch-all is that it can hold as much or as little as you choose, and can be folded inside another bag, only to merge when needed. Do not be discouraged at your first attempts to pack it. The first time it will probably look queer and lumpy, but you will soon learn how to lay your things compactly, and the secret of making a shipshape bundle is to have the corners square and as solid as the center.

What to Wear on Board Ship.

In regard to your steamer clothes, it will probably be cold, even in the heart of summer, and although you will find it warm enough below, you will wish to spend most of your time on deck. A pair of waterproof shoes with rubber soles and heavy golf stockings will spell comfort, and a knitted golf jacket will look smart and add to your well being, while a white tam-o'-shanter of felt or wool is what you need for your head.

A heavy wrap that will cover you from head to foot is affected by some women, but it is heavy and tiresome to walk in, and you cannot be comfortable with one rug. You need also a heavy walking skirt for the steamer, to wear in bad weather.

These rugs and steamer things need not add to your baggage, for at the end of the voyage they can be made into a neat parcel and checked at the offices of the steamship line, to await your return. And if you expect to come back by another route, thus sailing from another port, your bundle can be sent to that port by express. Sew your things up securely in a square of stout drulm or canvas, and then sew upon the outside your name and directions. Always take a receipt for it. Usually on the large steamers there is a baggagemaster, who will attend to this checking for a small fee.

For wear ashore have the smartest hat your purse can afford. A shabby hat makes the entire outfit look shabby, while a good hat will stand any amount of dust and wear and brushing. Don't wear a mannish Fedora, even with a quill in it and fancy your-self prepared for all occasions; you are much more likely to look "tough!" A good straw with a smart ribbon bow, or a made hat of silk and cloth, or silk and straw, will be satisfactory. Be careful that it is not heavy.

There will be occasions when you would like to have a dress hat. You can provide yourself with one in this country, but you can buy pretty hats almost everywhere.

Being an American girl, you will wear shirtwaists with your traveling coat and skirt, and you will not be sorry if you have them all white or linen color, or perhaps a black and white stripe. Six shirtwaists should see you through. Wash silk waists are satisfactory, and the foreign cleaners do satisfactory work. Two or three silk shirtwaists, if they are not too light, will suffice, and you will find them deliciously cool.

Your traveling suit should be of some firm material that does not easily wrinkle or get out of shape—a Venetian cloth or a closely woven cheviot, or what I believe is called "suiting." A loose canvas or etamine will look shabby in no time.

A long, lightweight dust coat or raglan will be a most useful garment than a mackintosh, but even that is not indispensable. Of course, one will accumulate a great deal of dust driving in the country or on trains, but a vigorous brushing soon removes it and one is none the worse.

Besides the traveling suit you will be glad if you take with you a pretty foulard or a lightweight challie made smartly; whatever it is, it must not muss or wrinkle easily. A light silk waist to wear with this will make a change, and even on the steamer one must dress for dinner.

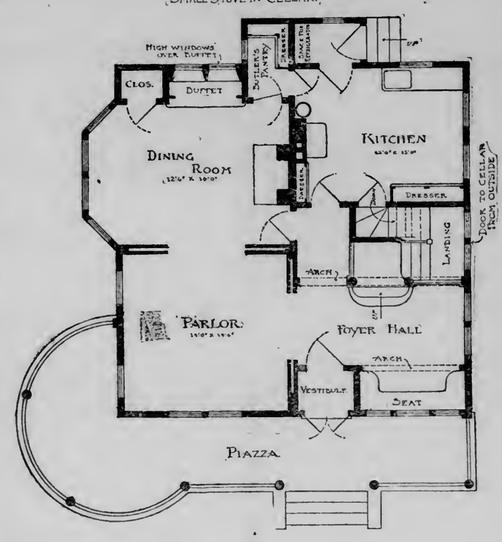
Your extension bag will easily hold your foulard and your shirt waists, with some room to spare for underwear. Of the latter, take about what you would need at home. You will probably stop long enough in most places to have your laundry done. The chambermaid is the one to apply to. She will know some one to recommend.

Don't insist upon wearing white skirts, whatever you do. You will find that a silk petticoat will be a luxury much appreciated when traveling on account of its light weight, but an alpaca or a pongee, or a lightweight sateen will do very well. It is essential that it be light in weight and not hold the dust. Some careful soul will probably advise you to take an extra one in case yours wears out or is accidentally torn, but you can easily buy another in case of need.

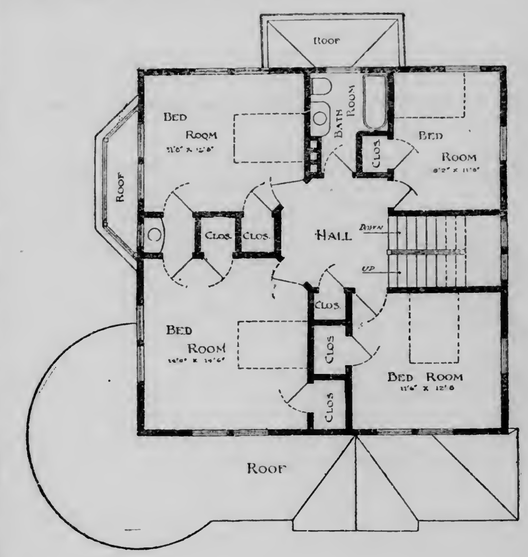
I make an exception in the matter of shoes. Get whatever shoes you need here. If you like a lightweight walking shoe, don't get a heavy one just because you are going abroad and expect to walk a great deal. Uncomfortable shoes will destroy all your pleasure, and you will find that you think more of finding places to sit down than of all your sightseeing. When you enter a gallery you will rush to the divan in the center and sink upon it with a sigh and be content to see what pictures you can from that point rather than accompany your friends upon a more thorough round.

An umbrella and rubbers, of course, you will have, and, if you like, a golf cape. It is so easy to throw a cape over one's shoulders, if one chances to be cold or in a draught.

You should carry with you a coat hook. You can get one that folds into a wire frame about six inches long. It takes absolutely no room at all, while its value in keeping your coat in shape cannot be told.



FIRST STORY PLAN



SECOND STORY PLAN

The Care Of Turkish Rugs.

There is a wide difference in the way a Turkish rug is cared for in the land of the "bubble bubble"—the home of its nativity—and the usage it is subjected to after reaching this land of hustle bustle.

In the Orient familiarity does not breed contempt, for the housewife, appreciating the time and infinite labor required in the manufacture of a rug, counts its proper care one of the most important of her household duties.

Combined with this affection and appreciation of her rugs is also the laudable desire to keep the health of her family intact, for in spite of all our boasted civilization and higher culture for women, the Oriental housewife can still give points to her sister of the Occident in many of the first principles of household sanitation.

That anybody could be so grossly untidy as to come in from the dust and dirt of the streets, and, without removing their shoes, walk upon the white scoured floor or precious rugs passes her comprehension. At the entrance to each Turkish home, every mosque, Turkish bath or school a pile of yellow babouches or wooden pattens stands waiting, and each individual as he comes in from outside slips off the street shoes and puts on the house slippers before entering. In view of these frequent puttings on and takings off a special style of footwear prevails in the Orient. All the women wear loose, untidy looking slippers, out of which she wriggles her toes at a moment's notice, while the boots of the men have a spur-like projection at the back of each heel, enabling the wearer to undress one foot with the other with a remarkable dexterity born of long practice.

Turkish Rugs Need Sun and Water.

Aside from all the pains taken to avoid bringing dirt on to the rugs each one has a frequent sunning and shaking from the roof or balcony and an annual or semi-annual bath. Sunlight and water are considered vastly improving agencies in the care of a Turkish rug. The colors, made of vegetable dyes, cannot fade, and the natural wool but tightens in the process of washing, becoming firmer and dustproof.

Even when a rug is new the Turkish woman washes it in cold water, rubbing its surface vigorously with a bunch of twigs and sandsoap, but always with the warp, not against it, in order to bring out the original lustre of the material.

Always Beat a Rug on Its Face Side.

Twice a year all the Kuz Kilim curtains are also washed in cold water—a sanitary custom that might prevail here to advantage. In the Orient rugs are shaken, not beaten. In this country, if they are beaten it should always be on the face side. If they are beaten on the back it will break the thread. After the dust is shaken or beaten off, small rugs can be put in plain cold water in tubs, right side out. Then, with a brush and sandsoap, the entire surface can be gone over, but always taking pains to rub in the same direction with the warp. Large rugs, after shaking or beating in the direction toward which the wind blows, can have the garden hose turned on them to advantage, after which they should be dried in the sun. In the winter they can be cleaned by spreading on the snow covered ground and sweeping off with the snow. A Turkish rug should never be sent to a cleaner's, unless it is one who uses hand cleaning, not machine.

When sweeping a rug always use the sweeper or broom in the direction the warp runs, otherwise you will find the dirt dragged out of the sweeper instead of being taken up. In closing a house for the summer the rugs should be shaken, washed, if they have not already been treated to their annual bath, then rolled up with tobacco, camphor, cedar shavings or moth balls, and closely covered with newspapers and unbleached muslin sewed about them.

With intelligent care a Turkish rug lasts a lifetime, growing ever silkier and richer as the years go by, while its sanitary cleanliness commends it to the housewife, who realizes what a nest of infection lies in the costliest carpet, that cannot be often and thoroughly cleaned.

The cottage awarded second prize.

WHEAT HAS BULGE

Market Makes Higher Prices Under Generally Bullish News.

Crop Damage Talk and Good Export Demand—Flax Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 1.—The shorts in wheat had a severe time of it today, there being a sharp advance in all markets and it was an advance that came not from manipulation apparently but from legitimate causes. To begin with cables were higher. Liverpool closing with an advance of ½d. Then came the Modern Miller with a report suggesting damage to wheat in winter wheat sections stating that the plant has lost its green and healthy look and is changing to a yellowish or reddish brown. County elevator stocks showed a decrease of 360,000 bushels in the month of April and are now only 88,000 bushels, the lightest on record at this time of year. The export demand was good also. New York reporting 43 loads of wheat taken for export including that taken at Duluth which is supposed to have been nearly half.

There were no deliveries of wheat in Duluth and there will be none during the month. Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease this week between 540,000 and 600,000 bushels.

Argentine shipments of wheat this week were 2,416,000 bushels which is about what was estimated. Last week they were 1,864,000 bushels, and last year 1,012,000 bushels. Bradstreet reported American clearances this week of 3,118,289 bushels, as compared with 3,888,542 bushels last week. Primary receipts of wheat were 383,000 bushels, last year 230,000 bushels. Shipments were 202,000 bushels, last year 225,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 322,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 183 cars, and at Chicago, 85, a total of 268 cars, against 167 last week and 292 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed 1d lower to ½d higher. In the Chicago market July corn advanced 4c and July oats were a shade lower. Primary receipts of corn were 412,000 bushels, last year 321,000 bushels. Bradstreet reported clearances this week of 3,118,289 bushels, against 2,888,542 bushels last week. Clearances 239,489 bushels. Bradstreet reported weekly clearances of 2,240,155 bushels, against 1,469,995 bushels last week. Argentine shipments were 734,000 bushels, against 282,000 bushels last week, and 848,000 bushels last year.

Trading in the Duluth market was light but prices were strong. May opened a shade higher at 76⅞c, and sold up to 76⅞c at 10:30. After holding there for a time it advanced to 77⅛c at noon and closed at 77⅝c an advance of 1-4c. July opened unchanged at 76⅞c sold up to 76⅝c at 10:17, reacted to 76½c at 10:35 and then bulged again and closed at 76⅝c. This was an advance of ⅝c. In Chicago May advanced 1¾c and July ⅜c. In Minneapolis the advance in July was ⅝-⅜c and in May ⅝c. In Nov. May was 1¼c higher and July ⅞c higher.

Cash prices were steady at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under for No. 2. Sales were 5000 bushels.

Flax deliveries today aggregated 1,500,000 bushels. The market was quiet. May advanced ⅝c to $1.11¼ and closed there. July held at 2c over May.

Stocks of flax in Duluth are estimated to decrease 150,000 bushels this week. Argentine shipments this week were 736,000 bushels, against 440,000 bushels last week and 96,000 last year.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 78½c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; No. 2 northern, 76½c; May, No. 1 hard, 78½c; No. 1 northern, 77⅝c; July, 76½c. Flax, in store, $1.10¼c; to arrive, $1.11⅛; on track, $1.11¼; May, $1.11⅛; July, $1.13½; September, $1.11½; October $1.09½; November, $1.11. Oats to arrive, 32c on track, 32½c; May, 32½c. Rye on track 49½c; to arrive, 49½c; May, 49½c; March, 52½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Daily Commercial Record: The exceptionally favorable conditions for wheat seeding in the Northwest are liable to seriously cut into the area that might have gone into flax. Farmers in North Dakota figure that wheat seeding completed by May 1 is fully in season, and here on the first of May a full 75 per cent is completed. Farmers are watching with considerable interest the flax price and are figuring that barley at 40 to 50 cents is a better crop than flax at $1.10 to $1.20. This will also influence a considerable curtailment in the flax area. It will be impossible to present accurate estimates on flax, or even wheat, for some weeks yet.

Modern Miller: Reports are coming from many localities indicating a material change in the heretofore exceptionally promising appearance of winter wheat crop, plant, it is stated, has lost its green healthy look having changed to a yellowish or reddish hue, growth too apparently is being checked and plant is becoming spindly. This change is charged to adverse influence of insects and unfavorable weather conditions. These reports come from central regions of winter wheat belt east of the Rocky Mountains. The extent of damage cannot be estimated as present unpromising appearance of plant may be recovered by favorable weather conditions.

Minneapolis: The Northwestern Miller says: reports from winter wheat belt as to condition of new crop are unusually favorable, crop killers stories notwithstanding. Spring wheat seeding is progressing rapidly under especially good weather and soil conditions, and will be about completed in Minnesota and Dakotas in another week. In western Canada seeding also is well under way.

Snow's weekly report says that the past week has been unfavorable, both for farm work and planting growth. Little progress was made in plowing for corn and some oats are yet unsown. Freezing temperatures as far south as Kansas and Missouri are calculated to tart wheat damage complaints, but injury will occur only where the plant is jointed. This exists to some extent in Kansas, but the percentage of the crop thus far damaged is very small and the total damage to the crop will not be large.

FIRE AT WEST POINT, VA.

Two Blocks of Buildings Are Burned In That Town.

Richmond, Va., May 1.—Over two blocks of buildings in West Point, Va., the York river terminus of the Southern railroad, are in ashes as the result of a fire of unknown origin, which sarted early today. Among the buildings burned are the express offices, the postoffice, the Pemberton house and a number of stores. A fire engine was sent from this city on a special train.

The people fought the fire with buckets until the arrival of the Richmond firemen, when it was gotten under control. Rough estimates put the loss at $125,000, with no estimate of insurance. The fire practically wiped out the business section. No lives were lost.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Steady, Fell and Later Advanced.

Chicago, May 1.—Wheat opened steady today along with the cables with July unchanged to a shade higher at 72⅝@73c to 72¾c. Selling by local traders on favorable weather reports caused an easier tone early. July selling off to 72c, but later, on covering by shorts the price advanced to 72⅝c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 163 cars, which with local receipts of 32 cars, none of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 195 cars, against 167 last week and 292 a year ago.

The market became strong later in the day on higher outside markets and good export demand, and after selling up to 73c, July closed 3c higher at 72⅞@73c.

The corn market was steady to a trifle easier early, with July unchanged to ⅛c lower at 45c to 45¼c. Selling by local traders, influenced by good weather reports developed further weakness and July went off to 44⅜c. There was only a light trade and no feature to the market. Local receipts 201 cars, with six of contract grade.

Rather bullish foreign advices and a fair demand held the market firm; July advancing to 45⅝@45¾c and closing at the top.

Oats opened easier on improved weather and increased receipts, July being unchanged to shade lower at 31⅝@31⅞c to 31¾c, and on scattered selling with light demand, the price held steady at 31¾c. Local receipts were 171 cars.

Provisions were irregular with commission houses inclined to sell on increased hog receipts. There were fair trade at the opening with all July products off 2½c, pork being $17.12½, lard, $9.37½ and ribs, $9.47½.

Close: Wheat—May 78¼; July 72⅞@73; September 70¾@73c. Corn—May 44¾c; July 45⅛@45¼c. Pork—May $17.25; July $7.00; Sept., $16.65. Lard—May $9.12½@9.15 July 9.02½@9.05; Sept., $9.27½. Ribs—May $9.40; July, $9.40; September $9.32½. Rye—May 49¾; July 50. Flax—Cash N. W. to about yesterday's closing figures on the old crop months, which were still subject to manipulation, while the new crop positions snowed an advance of 1 to 3 points on continued covering and small investment demand on account of unfavorable weather prevailing in the cotton belt.

A NARROW MARKET

Extreme Dullness Was the Prevailing Feature In Stocks.

Movement Generally Was Listless and Closing Was Heavy.

New York, May 1.—Opening dealings in stocks were languid and the changes from last night's level of prices were unimportant and somewhat mixed but were gains in a majority of cases. There was a good absorption of Reading and Pennsylvania and those two stocks and Metropolitan Street Railway and St. Louis & San Francisco showed large fractional gains.

While the demand for stocks was only nominal offerings were equally scant and the early market showed much stability. A few of the less active stocks were opened about a point higher than yesterday's close, notably Wabash preferred, St. Louis & San Francisco, Denver & Rio Grande preferred and Consolidated Gas. The usual speculative favorites hardly varied ⅛ from their initial prices. Pennsylvania was lifted 1¼ and Missouri Pacific a point with some hardening effect on the market, but the demand was soon over and the market became dull again. Prices fell back a fraction. Tennessee Coal lost 1⅜ and rallied about a point. Bonds were firm.

The declaration of the usual dividend on Pennsylvania proved to have been discounted by the earlier rise in the stock and the announcement was without any marked effect. Aside from some heaviness to Copper speculation was without essential change and room traders were content to await definite operations by the larger interests.

The paucity of offerings rather more than any keen demand for stocks induced the traders to bid the market up late in the day. Even important stocks made good responses, but the movement generally was listless and of little significance. Metropolitan Securities advanced 2 and New York Central, Manhattan, Brooklyn Transit and Ice 1. Wisconsin Central preferred declined 1.

Delaware & Hudson was marked up by wide intervals 3¾ in all. Minneapolis & St. Louis rose 1¾. In the general market a small selling movement to take profits clipped fractions off the top prices. Metropolitan Securities reacted 1½ and Third Avenue declined 1¼. The close was intensely dull and heavy.

THOUSANDS OF EMPLOYES HAVE QUIT WORK

20,000 Italian excavators, are on strike. The agreement reached last night by the railroad officials and the marine engineers to submit their differences to arbitration put a stop to the general tie-up of all freight steamers in this district. Freight continued to move as usual, but the demands of engineers has temporarily demoralized the movement of craft which depend on tug boats. A number of the owners of tug boats decided to resist the demands of the engineers and tied their boats up, while in other cases the engineers left their posts. Some of the companies were successful in securing non-union men to take charge of their engine rooms. The situation is not nearly so serious as had been looked for. The only serious aspects are in connection with the movement of barges which bring New York's ice supply and the docking and taking to sea of the big ocean liners.

The strike ordered by the Teamsters' union last night has not as yet reached any proportions. The orders were issued to 6000 members, but not one-fourth of these quit work.

Some 20,000 Italian excavators and rockmen engaged in the subway struck today. They ask $2 a day for all men, experienced and inexperienced, while the contractors say they can pay this to experienced men only. The strikers paraded the streets, each waving an American flag. This strike practically puts a stop to work on the subway, and also on excavations for new buildings.

The strike of the boilermakers was settled last night and the shipyards today are operating with full forces. Another strike settled today was that on the Muscoot dam, the 300 men returning to work.

In the building trades there is not a strike or interfere with work, the only trouble being that occasioned by the differences between the Amalgamated and Brotherhood carpenters.

Toronto, May 1.—About 5000 men are involved in a strike which began here today. Carpenters, builders, laborers and cement pavers demand an increase of 5 cents an hour.

THE AMES TRIAL

Minneapolis, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial of former Mayor Alonzo A. Ames, charged with bribery, began in earnest this morning, the jury having been secured after four days of steady work. The twelve men on the jury are: George F. Reid, grocer; Hugh W. Williams, grocer; Theodore J. Worthman, express clerk; John E. Empanger, fruit grower; A. E. Balliff, cross roads merchant; Claus F. Peterson, carpenter; Frank De Camp, farmer; Fred A. Cutler, mortgage banker; Charles E. Sampson, hotel clerk; Otto M. Ford, railroad clerk; Fred Wakeman, lineman; Alexis Roy, carpenter, foreman. The last juryman, Alexis Roy, was selected late yesterday afternoon.

County Attorney F. H. Boardman, in his opening address, declared that the state would prove that Mayor Ames had instituted a system of "graft," using as the go-between Irwin A. Gardner, a medical student in his office, whereby he collected "protection money" from keepers of resorts outside of the recognized "red light district." He explained that in that district keepers of resorts paid regular fines in the municipal court, but outside of it there was a wide field for graft.

After his address, Gardner himself was put on the stand and told a frank and complete story of the manner in which the money was extorted from the women every two weeks; how he had the add of members of th epolice force assigned by the mayor for that purpose; how street-walkers were driven from the streets in order to improve the "business," and how the money thus obtained was distributed. Gardner had previously been convicted of bribery, but secured a new trial from the supreme court and has now decided to make a clean breast of the operations so far as he knew them.

IS A TOTAL WRECK

Belle P. Cross Went to Pieces on North Shore.

Hardly a Timber Left When the Wreckers Reached Her.

The tug Smith has returned from Gooseberry river where she went to render assistance to the wrecked steamer Belle Cross.

The Cross, which was a steamer of 208 tons owned by Nicholson & Clow, of Duluth, was a complete loss. Hardly a timber was to be seen when the tug arrived at the scene of the wreck. She was loaded with cedar ties.

The officers and crew returned on the tug.

"We stepped ashore dry shod," said Captain Clow today. The steamer was beached just at the corner of a little pier and the men simply stepped from the side of the boat on to the pier. The boat and cargo are a complete loss.

"It is a conundrum to me how the wreck occurred. The mate was steering at the time when suddenly without any warning we ran ashore. It was blowing heavily at the time and the wind was accompanied by a blinding snow storm. Vessels around us were blowing and it is probable the mate thought he was some distance to the south on the regular course of the vessels. At any rate he veered to the north and without any warning the ship struck. Near where we struck was a light for the guidance of tugs belonging to the Nestor camp. He may have thought this light belonged to a vessel."

Lake seamen who arrived in port yesterday say that the storm of Wednesday in which the Belle Cross came to grief was one of the worst in their experience. Not only was the wind high and the sea tremendous, but the heavy snow storm made it impossible to see more than a few yards from the boat. All the vessels which were unable to gain shelter proceed very slowly to avoid accidents. The seamen say that it was fortunate no collisions were reported.

Capt. Clow, of the Clow & Nicholson Transportation company, stated this afternoon that the steambarge Belle P. Cross is a total wreck and that the company's loss will reach $14,000. No insurance was carried on the boat as the marine underwriters will not accept risks on vessels engaged in the beach combing trade. Capt. Clow says that a few pieces of the wreckage have been picked up and an effort will be made the first of next week to recover the machinery of the Cross, which lies in about fifteen feet of water off Gooseberry Point, where the boat was wrecked.

LUMBER CARRIERS' RATE.

Meeting to Consider It to Be Held Tuesday.

A meeting of the board of general managers of the Lake Lumber Carriers' Association will be held in Detroit Tuesday when it is expected the matter of lumber rates will be brought up.

Since the opening of navigation there has been considerable complaint from vessel owners that the present rates are not sufficient to pay the operating expenses. The present rate from the head of the lakes to the lower lake ports and Chicago is $2.50 per thousand. The vessel owners say that with the increased wages and the higher price of fuel this is not enough to pay the cost of transportation and a strong effort will be made at the meeting to raise the price to $3 per thousand.

GRAIN RATES SETTLED.

Chicago, May 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freights have settled at 1 cent for wheat to Buffalo, with an occasional squeeze of an eighth one way or the other, according to conditions. The Gladstone was placed for wheat and corn to Buffalo, and the Brittanic will take wheat to Kingston at 3¾ cents.

DENIES THE STORY

W. A. Eden Says His Firm Still Has the Contract.

Have 135 Men at Work on Northern Pacific Docks.

Knudsen & Eden still have the contract for the handling of freight on the Northern Pacific docks, and today there are 135 men at work for the contractors.

Mr. Eden was much wrought up this morning over a report in the morning paper that the contract was to be taken from him, or had been, because he possesses a contract which would make it absolutely necessary for the Northern Pacific officials to confer with him before they could take any action toward relieving him of the contract. General Agent T. E. Blanche said this morning there was nothing in the story, and the operating department of the road here also said that the firm would continue to carry out the contract, as they have the endorsement or at least the good will of the road in everything they have done as yet.

"We are doing the work and getting the Northern Pacific freight on the docks and on the boats, which is what the transportation company wants," said Mr. Eden this morning. "We are having no trouble. There are 135 men working for us, and they are living in the boarding cars near the docks. They do not come across the yards, unless they want to get licked.

"There has been no one to see me regarding the story, and if they had come, they would have found out. There is little danger of our letting go of the contract this season, as it extends during the season of navigation."

CHANGES IN SHERIFF'S FORCE

Two Deputies Resign and New Men Are Appointed.

Several changes were announced at the county sheriff's office this morning. Deputy Sheriffs Otto Erickson and Josiah Wiles have tendered their resignations to Sheriff Butchart and they have been accepted. J. E. Hager, of the West End, formerly a chemist in the employ of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern company, has been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of one of the officers. Mr. Wiles was acting as jailer and Deputy Horgan has been designated to attend to the duties of that position. Deputy Sheriff Walter Butchart has been made assistant jailer. Mr. Wiles is going back to his old trade of carpentering, as the confinement of the office does not agree with his health. Mr. Erickson has another position in view.

STATE OF SIEGE

Has Been Proclaimed at City of Salonica.

Constantinople, May 1.—A state of siege has been proclamide at Salonica and extraordinary military precautions have been ordered everywhere in the empire, as it is anticipated that outrages similar to those propetrated here yesterday, may be attempted at Constantinople and elsewhere. The action of the Macedonian committee in directing attacks on foreign property was evidently with the view of provoking the intervention of the powers. It is feared the outrages may lead to massacres of Macedonians and Bulgarians by Mussulmans who are in a state of dangerous excitement.

PUNCTURE STORY

Police Have No Clue to Miss Peterson's Assailant.

Affair Is as Much a Mystery as It Ever Was.

"Within twenty-four hours the assailant of Augusta Peterson will be under arrest. His name, residence and whereabouts are known to the police."—News Tribune.

Grief-stricken detectives gazed solemnly at this. They also inspected other paragraphs of the same article which read like the preface to a "dope" book, but the mystery only deepened.

Chief Troyer and the plain-clothes men that have been working on the Peterson case say that it was the first intimation they had that they knew anything definite about the would-be murderer.

Briefly, the officers say that there is nothing in the story. There is a man living out near Midway that used to call on Miss Peterson frequently, and who might possibly answer the description of the person that the morning paper intimated will be "jugged" within twenty-four hours.

However, the authorities say they have not the slightest clue that would involve this particular admirer of Miss Peterson's, and the girl herself stoutly denies knowing the man that shot her.

Yesterday two men arrested at Cloquet were taken before her at the Red Cross hospital for possible identification. She did not recognize either, and in addition to this both were able to put up a good alibi.

Aside from the puncturing of the News Tribune's story, there was nothing new in the case today, though the officers detailed on the case are running down every scrap of information they can obtain in the hope of securing some reliable evidence of the identity of the would-be murderer.

Miss Peterson, not having read the article that is agitating police circles, is resting comfortably, and physicians say that if she does not have a turn for the worse between the ninth and fourteenth days, she will be pronounced out of danger by this time next week.

NEW IRON FIND.

D. E. Woodbridge Has Struck Ore Near Buhl.

Two drill holes are in ore in the northwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 15, 58-19, and explorations are being furthered under the impression that large bodies of ore lie in this locality.

The explorations are being made by Dwight E. Woodbridge, who has taken options on the property. One drill is working on the property now.

The forty lies just north of the new Shenango mine, west of the Great Northern's property, and the Stevens eighty is just southeast.

The district is a short distance east of the city of Buhl.

FOREST FIRES

Are Raging In Woods North of Montreal.

Montreal, May 1.—Extensive forest fires are raging about fifty miles north of here between the towns of St. Jovite and La Belle. The flames have reached the Canadian Pacific railroad line and the more inhabited portion of the Laurentian district. Today the village of Morrison, containing a mill and about a dozen farm houses, was entirely destroyed, and the flames were so severe on both sides of the railroad track that people could not stand on platforms as the train rushed through, the cars being badly scorched. The inhabitants of the district are leaving their animals and possessions to the flames.

St. Louis and Return $22.30

From April 26th to May 1st, the Great Northern railway will sell, on account of the Good Roads Convention and Exposition Dedication, round trip tickets to St. Louis from Duluth at $22.30, good returning up to May 4th. Three trains a day except Sunday. Leave Duluth one afternoon and reach St. Louis the next. Magnificent trains and dining cars; beautiful scenery and important thriving towns en route. Call at City Ticket office, Spalding Hotel corner.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis.—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, April 24th, 1903.

On receiving and filing the petition of Ellen Rafferty, of the county of Barron, state of Wisconsin, representing, among other things, that John Rafferty, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the ninth day of April, A. D. 1903, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the mother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to John Rafferty granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Monday, the 25th day of May, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 30th day of April, A. D. 1903.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 16th, 1903.

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the Last Will and Testament of Isaac A. Isaacs, late of New York city, deceased, and the probate thereof in surrogate court of the city and county of New York, N. Y., have been delivered to this court;

And whereas Agnes Isaacs has filed therewith her petition, representing, among other things that said Isaac A. Isaacs, lately died in said county of New York, testate, possessed of certain real estate situated in said county of St. Louis, and that said petitioner is named as executrix in said will and has qualified as such, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court at the probate office in said county, on Monday, the 11th day of May, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument.

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 16th day of April A. D. 1903.

KING EDWARD VII IS THE GUEST OF PARIS

Witnesses the Maneuvers of Many Picked Troops.

A Martial Panorama of Imposing Proportions.

Paris, May 2.—King Edward today witnessed the maneuvers of 14,000 picked French troops on the parade grounds at Vincennes. It was a martial panorama of imposing proportions, resembling as near as possible the conditions of warfare, the troops being uniformed and accourted for actual service.

The king drove to Vincennes in an open state coach, accompanied by President Loubet, the cabinet ministers and the heads of the army and navy. The escort consisted of a regiment of cuirassiers. The streets were densely packed and the people continuously acclaimed the king. Even the woods of Vincennes were swarming with sightseers.

As the equipage entered the field of maneuvers, batteries of field guns, in a deafening roar, fired a royal salute. King Edward drove along the line of troops while fanfares of trumpets were sounded, standards were dipped and bands played 'God Save the King.' The king, who again wore the uniform of a British field marshal, with a gray military cloak thrown over his shoulders, surveyed the scene seriously and evidently. On ascending to the tribune where, under a canopy of flags and surrounded by the chiefs of staff, the king witnessed the review, the spectators vociferously acclaimed him, the women crying "Bravo, Edward."

Gen. Faure-Biguet, the military governor of Paris, who commanded the troops, formed them into two divisions. The first was made up of brigades of regular infantry, Zouaves and colonial troops; the second included the mounted forces, regiments of hussars, dragoons and cuirassiers, and batteries of light field pieces and ponderous siege guns, forming a vast expanse of moving color and glittering steel. The troops then defiled before the king who rose and saluted each French flag.

A dramatic climax to the review was a furious charge of the whole brigade of cavalry. It was a blood-stirring sight as the solid line of horsemen swept towards the king's tribune, the cavalrymen yelling and brandishing their sabres an dterminating with an abrupt halt in unbroken column immediately in front of the tribune.

The king rose and bowed his acknowledgement of the salutes of the commanders and addressed words of congratulation to President Loubet on the splendid discipline and appearance of the troops.

Later King Edward was driven to the Hotel De Ville, where he was welcomed as the guest of the municipality. The crowds everywhere were enthusiastic.

A MILLION EACH

Nephews and Nieces of Warren Smith to Receive It.

He Left an Estate Valued at $32,500,000.

Chicago, May 2.—A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says: According to the will of Warren B. Smith, the multimillionaire and traveler, which has just been filed at White Plains, an estate estimated at $32,500,000 is divided between his sister, nephews and nieces, cousins, charitable institutions, servants and old employes. The most remarkable thing about the document is the bequest of $1,000,000 to each of five nephews and nieces. Mr. Smith died in Tunis, Algiers, about a month ago and the body was brought to this country and buried in the Woodlawn cemetery. The entire estate consists of bonds, mortgages, stocks and shares of the Smith Carpet company. Eva S. Cochran, widow of William E. Cochran, who left her $12,000,000 is given only $100,000 by Mr. Smith, who was her brother. The residue of the estate, which is estimated at $10,000,000 to $14,000,000, goes to Alexander Smith Cochran, the pet nephew and a son of Mrs. Cochran. Five nephews and nieces, three of them sons and daughters of Mrs. Cochran, each are given $1,000,000 outright.

TOWN VERY UNSAFE

People of Frank Are to Be Taken to Safety.

St. Paul, May 2.—A special to the Dispatch from Frank, N. W. T., says: At an emergency meeting of the board of trade last night Premier Haultain, who had started east but returned as soon as he reached the other side of the slide, spoke. He met Mr. McHenry, chief engineer of the C. P. R., and that gentleman expressed the opinion that the remaining peak of the mountain was creeping slowly, and that he considered the town very unsafe. Immediately upon hearing this Premier Haultain wired back that he had important information to impart, and asked that a meeting be called at once. As soon as he arrived a large majority of the citizens met him, and he explained to them Engineer McHenry's view, and further stated that he made arrangements with the railroad to have trains here to convey the people to different points along the line, according to accommodation. Those who were unable to pay for means of subsistence would be cared for, and everything possible would be done to make the best of a very dangerous situation.

It was ultimately decided to have the police notify everybody and give those who wished a chance to go. This is being done and many will avail themselves of the opportunity. The police will patrol the outskirts of the town, if it is abandoned, and see that no depredations are committed, and will guard the avenues of access and egress. The C. P. R. is moving all its men engaged in construction work and its rolling stock to places of safety. Everything is being done to avert, if possible, another calamity.

The mountain will be examined by experts today.

VOLCANO ACTIVE

Santa Maria In Guatemala Breaks Out Again.

San Francisco, May 2.—The Santa Maria volvano in Guatemala, has broken out again. The news was brought to this city by the steamer San Juan, which left Champerico on the afternoon of April 17, the day the fresh eruption is said to have taken place. Couriers from the interior brought word that the volcano had broken out, that a storm of ashes was falling and that the inhabitants in the surrounding country were panic stricken. The air in the direction of the volcano was thick with ashes when the vessel sailed.

THIRTY THOUSAND MEN WERE IN LINE

TO CIRCLE GLOBE

In Forty Seconds Is Expectation of Cable Companies.

Will Be Attempted on the Fourth of July.

Mont Clair, N. J., May 3.—An official of the Postal Telegraph company, who is a resident of this place, says that on July 4, in connection with the opening of the new cable to the insular possessions of the United States, an effort which now gives promise of success will be made to circle the globe in forty seconds. The message will be sent from the main office of the company in New York and it is hoped will be received on the opposite side of the room within forty seconds after the operators send it on the other. This feat will immediately follow the exchange of messages between President Roosevelt and Governor Taft at Manila. The message will probably travel over only two lines. These will be the land and ocean wires of the Postal and Commercial Cable company, which may be considered one, and those of the Eastern Telegraph company.

The message will go from New York to the Pacific coast by the land lines of the Postal and thence to Manila by the Commercial cable lines. At Manila it will be taken up by the Eastern and hurried on to London, where it will be again turned into the lines of the Commercial company for transmission under the Atlantic. To make the time calculated on there will have to be instant communication between the various relays.

WIRELESS TO FANNING.

Honolulu, May 2.—The Pacific Cable board is reported to be conducting negotiations for a series of wireless telegraph experiments between here and the Fanning island cable station. Fanning island is the present southern terminus of the British Pacific cable, which will eventually be laid to Australia. It is about 1000 miles from Honolulu.

A Grand Civic Parade Occurs at St. Louis.

Was Reviewed By Visiting State Governors.

St. Louis, May 2.—A crash of aerial bombs at 10:30 o'clock notified the throngs of spectators who lined Lindell boulevard westward from Grand avenue to the World's fair grounds, a distance of three miles, that the civic parade, the first of the spectacles of the ceremonies of the final day had begun its march toward the reviewing stand, on which were seated the visiting governors.

In the glowing sunshine the throngs of spectators had been patiently waiting eager for the reverberation of the starting guns, and when it came booming through the air, the almost solid phalanx of people that for hours had been waiting for the parade, set up a shout that swept from one end to the other of the exposition grounds.

Some little delay was occasioned in the formation of the procession, but after the signal to march had been given it was evident that the wait was worth more than it cost, and when the pageant moved off it was conservatively estimated that fully 30,000 men were in line.

In St. Louis Saturday is observed as a semi-holiday by the majority of the business houses and the multitudes of employes, mingled with the throngs of the residential sections of the city were swelled by the masses of visitors, few of whom had left the city, and this vast assemblage stretching on both sides of Lindell boulevard formed an avenue through which the cavalcade advanced, led by a squadron of mounted police. Carriages containing the visiting governors and accompanied by their staffs, aggregating 188 mounted men, swent ahead of the procession and stopped at the reviewing stand, where the governors took their seats to await the passing of the parade.

The vehicles of the governors were followed by a line of forty-five carriages containing the World's fair commissioners from states and foreign countries. These distinguished guests also alighted at the reviewing stand.

At the head of the civic parade rode Col. Eugene J. Spencer, grand marshal; Chief of Staff Col. Edwin Balder, Adjt. Gen. Henry T. Mott and a company of twenty-three aides. The United States Marine band furnished strains of inspiring music, quickening the steps of the veterans' division, which immediately followed under the leadership of Gen. John W. Noble, marshal; John K. Gandolfo, chief of staff, and Joseph Folk, adjutant, and aides. Three carriages of Mexican war veterans led the army of old soldiers, the others in the following order:

Two carriages of naval veterans, a company of naval reserves, commanded by Ensign Gray, 130 United States veterans and 350 United States service men.

Six German veterans, gay with bright colors, carrying hundreds of waving banners and with uniforms, the colors of which included every shade that could lend beauty to the spectacle, closed the rank of the second division.

Ahead of the next detachment, which was formed by the officials of the municipal departments, came thirty-six mounted police. Three hundred officers in close set ranks followed, and then in carriages the mayor and other leading officials of the municipality. Harry B. Hawes acted as marshal of the division and eight extravagantly decorated floats, each one representing a different department of the city administration, received wild applause as they rolled past the reviewing stand.

The fourth division was made up of the various mercantile associations of St. Louis and hundreds of her most prominent and influential business men marched in the ranks. Every one of the commercial exchanges were strongly represented, 600 men being in line. Six gorgeous tally-hos contributed by members of the stock exchange were a distinctive feature.

The fifth division was made up of 1700 men and 200 cadets from the various educational institutions of St. Louis. Washington University, whose home is now the administration building of the exposition, was given the right of the line. When came rank after rank in seemingly endless procession, in all their gorgeous and various uniforms, the fraternal societies.

The sixth division under Eminent Sir W. H. Clancy was made up of the Masonic organization. The seventh, of which W. H. Somers was marshal, included the Maccabees, Knights of Pythias, members of the Royal league, the Traveling Men's Protective association and the Woodmen of the World, whose uniform drill team from Fort Scott, Kas., constantly performed intricate evolutions as they marched steadily forward without delaying the parade in any manner.

The eighth division under J. T. Hartman was to all appearances the strongest in point of numbers. It was formed by the Catholic Knights of America, forty branches, 3000 men participating. Various uniformed Catholic societies numbering 800 men, under Rev. W. T. Shea, marshal, formed the ninth division. The athletic clubs of the German turners were seen in the tenth division, of which Edward Pretorious was marshal. Fifteen hundred sinewy athletes marched shoulder to shoulder in a manner that would have done credit to any military organization. Next, in the eleventh division, came 500 men in the grey of Uncle Sam's postal service. The carriers being given the right of the line showed to great advantage and received much commendation for their appearance and manner of marching.

The twelfth division, of which N. L. Traverse was marshal was made up of 400 representatives of the Western Amateur Rowing association. In line with them were six lavishly decorated floats that received great applause as they passed along.

The next division was perhaps the most unique of any in the parade. It was formed by the men from Indian territory and Oklahoma. The 'Frisco system cowboy band, clad in characteristic costume, led the division and behind them came fifty cowboys, forty Indians and 200 additional representatives of the two territories. As they rode along the cowboys and Indians gave exhibitions of daring horsemanship, which rivalled anything seen in any circus. The delight of the spectators was extreme, and the passage of the division was a continuous ovation.

Sixteen hundred colored men marching in solid ranks composed the Fourteenth division and they were given an enthusiastic reception. The men who have made the fair as it stands, a glorious promise of what it is to be, came marching next. All departments were represented from President Francis and Director of Works Taylor, who came first in a White, to the handlers of shovels and pushers of wheelbarrows, who filled the ranks in the rear. First behind the general officers of the exposition came the designers and draughtsmen 250 strong and 200 engineers closed the division.

The construction forces of the exposition under Captain Mock as marshal formed the sixteenth division. One hundred contractors filling twenty-five carriages came riding at the head; then on foot, commanded by J. Stokes, the first section of 1000 contractors' employes, the second section under George Falconer had 1100 men of the same department and Newton Phillips led as many men as Falconer, when his section, which closed the division, came sweeping down the roadway.

The last division was the general officers of the local building trades council in carriages and a float on which a fair young woman dressed to represent the United States tossed handful after handful of good luck coins to the thousands along the road. It was a wise thought that placed her in the rear of the parade for the rush by the crowd to obtain the coins, that were designed for an advertisement, were so great that at times there was actual danger to the eager scramblers, who sought the souvenirs.

Former President Cleveland, who has been the guest of President Francis, returned to his home this afternoon, leaving at 9 o'clock on the Royal Blue limited over the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern road.

WEALTHY WOMAN WAS FOUND WORKING OUT AS A SERVANT

Mrs. Emma Wallace of Wilkesbarre Lost Her Memory and Went Away and When Found After Five Months' Search Remembered Nothing.

Newark, N. J., May 2.—Mrs. Emma Wallace, a wealthy resident of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who disappeared from her home soon after the death of her husband, about five months ago, has been found by her daughter, living as a servant in the home of a resident of this city.

Although Mrs. Wallace recognized her daughter, she remembered nothing of her home or her life before she came to Newark. She does not even know how she got to this city.

When Mrs. Wallace's husband died she became the sole owner of his estate, valued at about $100,000. His death so preyed on her mind that she became mentally unbalanced and wandered away from home. When she appeared in this city seeking employment she could not tell her own name or the names of any member of her family. All she knew was that she was in Newark and wished to get work to keep from starving. The family with which she was found took her in and found her as competent a servant as if she had been bred to that calling. She was willing and uncomplaining and apparently in perfect possession of her mental faculties, except memory.

After the disappearance of Mrs. Wallace from Wilkesbarre every effort was made to find her. After long search the police and all of her relatives, except her daughter, came to the conclusion she had met death by suicide, or in some other way, or otherwise would have been heard from again. But her daughter dit not despair. She followed every clue, no matter how little it might promise. It was a clue of the slenderest sort that led her to this city.

ROBBERY OF AGED EXPRESS AGENT SHROUDED IN MYSTERY

No Clue Has Yet Been Obtained to the Perpetrators of Robbery of $10,000 From Old John Peterson at Britt, Iowa.

Britt, Iowa, May 1.—Outside of the statement of a farmer's wife, living a few miles north of Britt, that she saw a man answering the description of the men whom Agent John Peterson, of the United Express company claims robbed him of a package containing $10,000, not a single clue has been obtained. Detectives of the express company and local police officials have been scouring the country since the finding of Peterson gagged in the express office, but so far have made no progress. Not a breath of suspicion has been aroused against Peterson, who is 70 years of age, and has the contract to carry the mails from the train as well as the xpress packages. His son, only 12 years old, found him gagged with a gunny sack over his head and unable to speak. The express office is in the heart of the town and business stores throng on all sides. To the right of the store is a bowling alley, and it is believed that the noise from this place deadened that made by the robbers when they held up Peterson and compelled him to open the safe containing the package. Peterson, in his description of the two men, decares that both were 50 years of age, and that one wore a gray overcoat with a blue striped suit. Not a train had entered the town from the time of the robbery until Peterson was discovered. The whole affair is shrouded in the deepst mystery.

TWO HEARTS THAT BEAT AS ONE

Paterson, N. J., May 2.—John Firman, 25 years old, living here, has two hearts beating in his own body. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood and constantly enjoys good health. In 1898 it was discovered that he had a double heart when he was examined for enlistment with the Second regiment, at Paterson. Since then Firman has been more or less interesting to physicians. An X-ray photograph shows the most peculiar heart formation the doctors of Paterson have ever seen or heard of.

TWO STABLE BOYS BURNED TO DEATH

Great Neck, L. I., May 2.—Two negro stable boys and thirty-two valuable horses were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the stables on W. Gould Brokaw's estate early today. The financial loss will amount to between $40,000 and $50,000.

The fire started about midnight and burned fiercely for more than two hours. The local fire department tried to save the property, but the effort was unsuccessful. Mr. Brokaw, who is a wealthy merchant and society man of New York, appeared at the fire soon after the engines arrived. He was anxious to have the two stable boys rescued, but the room where they were sleeping was in flames before the stream was turned on. The origin of the fire is unknown.

MET DEATH IN FOREST FIRE

Charred Body of Edward Hill Found Near Olena, Pa.

Coudersport, Pa., May 2.—The charred body of Edward Hill was found today on the road near Olena. He had evidently met death in the forest fire which swept the Kettle Creek territory yesterday. His horse was also burned to death. Great damage has been wrought by the forest fires in this vicinity. The town of Cross Forks is threatened with destruction. The saw and planing mill of the Lackawanna Lumber company has been destroyed, together with a number of cars belonging to the Buffalo & Susquehanna railroad and several buildings in the southern section of the town. The loss thus far is estimated at about $1,000,000.

ANOTHER ARIZONA DEAL.

Higgins Development Company Formed at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the organization of the Higgins Development company, in Houghton, yesterday the biggest deal in mining propeties since the flotation of the Calumet & Arizona stock two years ago was perfected. Chicago, Duluth, Arizona and copper country persons are interested in the ne wconcern, which was formed especially to take over what is known as the Higgins group of eleven claims in the Warren district in Arizona. The claims immediately adjoin those of the famous Copper Queen mine, the management of which for years has tried to secure control of the Higgins group. The property is said to have excellent prospects and when fully developed will be one of the largest producers in the district, say the promoters. The value of the property is said to be proven by the drifts of the Copper Queen, which run right up to the lines of the Higgins group. James R. Dee, a Houghton capitalist, is treasurer of the new company, the capitalization of which has not yet been made public.

FORESTRY EXPERIMENT

To Be Tried In the Upper Peninsula.

Negaunee, Mich., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cleveland Cliffs company have set aside thirty acres of ground, near the location known as the Baldwin Kilns, on which thousands of trees will be planted. It is the first experiment in the forestry line made in the uuper peninsula. The result will be watched with interest. Mr. Higgins, graduate of the forestry department of Cornell university, has been secured to take charge of the work, and 45,000 young white pine and spruce will be planted this season. President Mather thinks the scheme will be a success.

COMMITTEE SAILS.

Colon, Colombia, May 2.—The members of the sub-committee of the United States Panama canal commission sailed for New York yesterday. Maj. Black and the engineer corps remained behind to complete the preliminary work.

BANK ROBBED.

Sioux City, May 2.—The safe of the Merchants State bank, of Freeman, S. D., was raided by robbers last night. They secured about $3000 and escaped.

GARDNER SAYS AMES WAS TOO DRUNK TO RECEIVE MONEY

Witness Gives That as His Reason For Not Paying Over "Graft" Funds Until He Had Accumulated Six Hundred Dollars.

Minneapolis, May 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the trial of former Mayor A. A. Ames for bribery was resumed this morning Irwin A. Gardner, who swears he collected "graft" for the mayor from abandoned women, was recalled for redirect examination. He declared that he had given his evidence without promise of immunity or reward of any kind from the state. He admitted collecting from patients of Dr. Ames for medical services, but swort that the "graft" payments were entirely distinct from these transactions. Asked why he did not turn the money he collected over immediately but retained it until $600 had accumulated, he explained that the mayor was imbibing too freely and was in no condition to receive it.

Thomas R. Brown, who was the mayor's secretary, testified that he had seen Gardner pay the mayor a sum of money in bills. He described the circumstances, corroborating Gardner's evidence, but could not fix the date exactly. He also produced a list of "roomers" he had found in the mayor's desk while cleaning it out. This was after the mayor had left town. It was in the handwriting of Charles R. Hill, the mayor's captain of police, and presumably was the list of women who were paying for protection.

Christopher Norbeck, former police detective, now serving a sentence in the state prison at Stillwater for bribery, told the story of the graft and his connection with it. His evidence was largely corroborative of Gardner's.

THE DECEASED WIFE'S SISTER BILL

London, Mal 2.—The Hardy annual, the deceased wife's sister bill, reappeared in the house today and after well-worn arguments, passed its second reading by 104 to 94 votes. The measure is in charge of Sir Gilbert Parker, who in supprt thereof, presented a huge petition containing the signatures of 75,000 women of Birmingham and its suburbs. The bill has already passed its second reading, no fewer than sixteen times by large majorities, but its further progress is always hindered.

DUKHOBORS ON THE MARCH AGAIN

Winnipeg, Man., May 2.—A special from Saskatoon says that fifty half naked Dughobors are on the march for Saskatoon. The first detachment was reported at the Elbow village, twenty-two miles from home, last night, where the head man was trying to persuade them to go home. They say they are searching for "Jesus" and will not stop until they find him. The men have discarded their trousers and are marching in their boots and coats, shouting and singing. Inspector Parker has telegraphed Battleford for instructions, and has ordered Duck Lake constables to hold themselves in readiness.

SENT BULLETS INTO CONGREGATION

New York, May 2.—St. Stephens cathedral has just been the scene of a terrible crime, says a Vienna dispatch to the Herald. During mass, when the church was filled with people, a young man suddenly pushed his way to the altar, and, drawing a revolver, fired three shots among the worshippers. The first two bullets failed to do any damage, but the third hit Prof. Jacob Gurochek in the breast, and he sank to the floor in a dying condition. Some of the congregation then seized the man and after a severe struggle, wrested the weapon from his grasp. Meanwhile a panic ensued in the church and during the general ruch for the door several women were knocked down and injured. On being examined by the police, the man was identified as an electrician named Carl Friedrich Hagon. There is evidence that he is mentally deranged. After the shooting the church was reconsecrated.

HE WANTED NO VANDERBILT-RUTHERFURD SCANDAL IN HIS

Hartford, Conn., May 2.—With the bridal party approaching the chancel and the church filled with fashionable people, the Rev. Dr. James J. Goodwin, of Christ Episcopal church, refused to perform the ceremony and dismissed the guests because in reading the marriage license he found the bridegroom had been divorced ten years previously.

The wedding was to have been that of A. Lincoln Chase, manager of one of the largest department stores here, and Miss Gladys A. G. Geer, daughter of one of the oldest residents of Hartford, and prominent socially. Mr. Chase and Miss Geer had started down the center aisle, when, suddenly, at the rector's call, the party stopped within a few feet of the chancel rail. After a hurried consultation, Mr. Chase and Miss Geer, much embarrassed, turned and hurried out of the church.

Advancing to the altar Dr. Goodwin said: "Friends, the wedding has been postponed." This was all the explanation he made.

Later Dr. Goodwin said: "The laws of the Episcopal church forbid me to marry a divorced person. I did not know the circumstances until I read the license while I was in the church ready to perform the ceremony. I am very, very sorry to have caused the party any embarrassment, but I could not act otherwise."

When reference was made to the wedding of Mr. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Rutherfurd in London recently, Mr. Goodwin said he could not discuss that, but that he knew he was right in refusing to marry a divorced person.

Miss Geer and Mr. Chase, after leaving the church were driven to the home of the Rev. H. H. Kelsey and were married.

Albany, N. Y., May 2.—The Rt. Rev. William Crosswell Doane, D. D., Protestant Episcopal bishop of Albany, who is known throughout the United States as being strenuously opposed to the marriage of divorced persons, asserts that the church of England had nothing to do with the recent marriage of W. K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Rutherford, in London, beyond the fact that the ceremony was sanctioned by one of its chancellors, whom he regards in the same light as a civil official who issues licenses in this country. The bishop said: "It is a very grave scandal, but the church of England had nothing to do with it beyond the fact that Mr. Vanderbilt secured a clergyman of the church to marry him. He applied to the chancellor for the license and got it. The chancellor's position in England is about the same as that of civil official who issues licenses in this country. The bishop of London has nothing to do with it and therefore the church herself was no involved."

New York, May 2.—Bishop Frederick Burgess, of the Long Island Episcopal diocese, speaking of the marriage, said: "This could not possibly occur in this country, as our ecclesiastical laws of the Episcopal church would not for a moment permit it. I have no doubt whatever that the Rev. Mr. Hadden, who performed the ceremony, will be reprimanded. In this country it would result in the clergymen being suspended from his diocese and this would virtually be a complete suspension from the church, as he could not enter any other diocese.

"I am personally very much opposed to divorced people marrying in the Episcopal church, even though one may be innocent."

CHANGE IS MADE

J. M. Davis Has Been Appointed to Succeed D. M. Philbin.

The Latter Is Advanced to a Higher Position.

J. M. Davis, an eastern railroad man, has been appointed to succeed D. M. Philbin as superintendent of the eastern division of the Great Northern railroad.

Mr. Philbin was promoted from his former position to that of assistant general superintendent, in special charge of the eastern division of the road, three weeks ago, but at that time it was given out that the promotion was only in title.

This morning, however, the announcement of the appointment of Mr Davis was made and he will take the active superintendency of the division, while Mr. Philbin will have the direction of the whole of this system, which includes the mining branches and a mass of work that has been too great for one man to handle and retain his health and good nature.

Mr Davis' appointment is in effect now, and he is due to commence his new duties any time.

Mr Davis comes from the Erie railway, where he was a division superintendent under George Slade, a son-in-law of J. J. Hill, who is now with the Great Northern road and who came recently from the Erie road.

DEAFNESS CURED

90 Page Book Free Tells all About It.

Since the discovery of a Louisville man it is no longer necessary for any deaf person to carry a trumpet, a tube, or any such old-fashioned device, for it is now possible for any one to hear perfectly by a simple invention that fits in the ear and can not be detected. The honor belongs to Mr. George H. Wilson, of Louisville, who was himself deaf, and now hears as well as any one. He calls it Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drum, is built on the strictest scientific principles, containing no metal of any kind, and is entirely new in every respect. It is so small that no one can see it, but, nevertheless, it collects all sound waves and diverts them against the drum head causing them to hear perfectly. It will do this even when the natural ear drums are partially or entirely destroyed, perforated, scarred, relaxed, or thickened. It fits any ear from childhood to old age, and, aside from the fact that it does not show, it never causes the hearer irritation, and can be used with comfort day or night.

It will cure deafness in any person no matter how acquired, whether from catarrh, scarlet fever, typhoid or brain fever measles, whopping cough, gathering in the ear, shocks from artillery, or through accidents. It not only cures but stays the progress of deafness and all roaring and buzzing noises. It does this in a simple, sure and scientific way. The effect is immediate.

Let every person who needs this at once send to the company for its 150-page which you can have free. It describes and illustrates Wilson's Common Sense Ear Drums and contains many beautiful letters from numerous users in the United States, Canada, Mexico, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, India. These letters are from people in every station in life—clergymen, physicians, lawyers, merchants, society ladies, etc.—and tell the truth about the benefits to be derived from the use of this wonderful little device; you will find among them the names of people in your own town or state, and you are at liberty to write to any of them you wish and secure their opinion as to the merits of the only scientific ear drums for restoring the hearing to its normal condition.

Write today and it will not be long before you are again hearing. Address for the free book and convincing evidence. Wilson Ear Drum Co., 864 Todd building, Louisville, Ky., U. S. A.

BLAKELY GOES UP.

He Will Take J. B. Baird's Old Position.

Henry Blakely, formerly division freight agent of the Northern Pacific railroad in charge of the Montana and Idaho territory, is now the new assistant general freight agent, taking a vacancy caused through the promotion of J. B. Baird to general freight agent.

The appointment was announced by Mr. Baird yesterday and created some interest in Duluth, as it was believed here that Mr. Still, assistant general freight agent of the St. Paul and Duluth division, would receive a promotion, and his successor would come from this line.

A second appointment was also announced in making W. E. Ahlr, secretary of Second Vice President J. M. Hannaford, of the traffic department, the successor to Mr. Blakely.

SATURDAY CLOSING.

Railroad Offices to Take Saturday Half Holiday.

The freight departments in the city railroad offices will close Saturday afternoons, beginning today.

A petition was put in circulation by the freight men this week, and the following general agents signed it: T. E. Blanche, Northern Pacific; D. Thompson, Great Northern; M. J. Bryan, Wisconsin Central; George M. Smith, Omaha; C. S. Kennedy, Milwaukee.

The offices will display from now on a card stating that they will close at 1 o'clock p. m. on Saturdays.

The arrangement will probably remain in force between May 1 and Nov. 1.

Suburban Trains.

The summer schedule of Sunday trains on the Northern Pacific railroad between St. Paul and the suburban lakes, will go into effect tomorrow. New trains will leave St. Paul at 2:15, 5:05 and 6:35 for White Bear, and no passengers for that destination will be permitted on the train which leaves St. Paul for Duluth at 2:25 in the afternoon, that being a strictly through train from now on.

CANNOT STOP BARN MOVING

The District Court Refuses Injunction Against It.

Judge Cant, in special term of district court this morning, denied the motion of the plaintiff for a temporary injunction, in the case of Soderberg against Nickerson, and the restraining order granted a few days ago is vacated. The plaintiff sought to enjoin the defendant from moving his cow barn from one part of his lot to another and adjoining the property of the plaintiff. The allegations made in the petition for the injunctional order were that of malicious intent on the part of the defendant to injure the residence property of the plaintiff by placing the barn in proximity to his house for the purpose of retaliation, because the defendant was a case in district court last fall compelling the defendant to abate an objectionable fence.

A FACTORY BLOWN UP

Cleveland, May 2.—The Kohl factory at the corner of Case avenue and Orange street blew up shortly after noon today, resulting in the loss of several lives. A large number of physicians are reported injured. The explosion was terrific and the factory was completely demolished. Several nearby buildings are also destroyed and windows broken throughout the entire neighborhood.

Fire broke out in the debris immediately after the explosion and a general alarm was turned in. The flames were soon brought under control, however, and the firemen turned their attention to the rescue of the victims.

Later reports say that at least a dozen persons were killed and possibly many more, and from 50 to 75 injured.

There is said to have been fully 30 employes at work in the factory at the time of the explosion, nearly all of whom were girls. It is said no trace can be found of these employes.

W. G. Kohl, son of Silas Kohl, owner of the factory, was at work in the office when the explosion occurred. He was blown out into the street and badly injured.

An entire family residing in a house adjoining and directly north of the factory was blown to atoms.

There were three in the family occupying the house, all of whom are missing. Their names have not been learned.

Up to 2 p. m. about thirty people had been moved to hospitals, and a score of firemen and policemen were at work in the ruins searching for the dead and injured victims.

From 200 to 250 houses in the vicinity of the factory are badly shattered and wrecked, and the windows within a half mile radius of the building were blown out.

Thousands of people are on the scene of the disaster, and nearly every ambulance in the city is in service.

STRIKERS ARE UNDER ARREST

They Are Accused of Obstructing a Train.

Eight Messenger Boys Are Also In Trouble.

Five striking freight handlers are under arrest as a result of yesterday's Garfield avenue disturbance.

Seven others will be arrested as soon as the warrants can be served, and the twelve will be given a municipal court examination Monday.

A reserve force of police is kept constantly on duty to prevent another outbreak, and extra policemen are being sworn in to take care of the uptown beats while the regulars are kept in readiness to answer emergency calls along the docks.

Those participating in yesterday's disturbance are charged with obstructing a railway train, which is a grand jury offense, and if proven, makes a penalty of from three months to five years' imprisonment possible.

The five under arrest up to 2 o'clock this afternoon were: Frank Callahan, Murdock McDonald, Harry E. Pomeroy, Thomas Doran and Richard Wright. They were arraigned in the municipal court and later those that could not raise $250 bail were committed to the county jail.

Not all of those arrested were near the freight car containing the fifty non-union workmen that the strikers tried to upset, but the prosecuting officers claim that all persons in the crowd were guilty of aiding and abetting the outbreak.

The authorities and strikers kept a close watch on the Garfield avenue switch at noon today in order to prevent a recurrence of yesterday's trouble—the officers of the Freight handlers' union being apparently as anxious to discourage violence as the police.

The freight handling contractors, however, decided not to attempt to take the non-union men of No. 2 dock up to the boarding cars, and ran an engine and car down to the dock, carrying the dinner to the men as they worked.

The docks are strongly guarded by private police, and it is impossible for any person to get within 100 feet of any of the freight docks without having proper passports.

The union men say that they did not have any intention of committing violence when they assembled at the Garfield avenue switch yesterday and disconnected the carload of non-union men from the engine that was taking them to their dinners.

They say that they disconnected the car for the sole purpose of having a heart to heart talk with the non-union men and request them to quit work.

They blame the people in the car for starting the trouble, claiming that one of the Northern Pacific detectives fired a shot that started a general cry to upset the car.

The men under arrest and for whom warrants are out were not leaders of the strike or of the assault movement yesterday, and the authorities confirm this, saying that those arrested were only men that were recognized in the crowd, and if the entire mob of 300 had been recognized, warrants would have been issued for all.

The authorities are determined to prevent any further trouble. Mayor Hugo and Chief Troyer have talked the situation over very carefully, and while neither are in any way opposed to the strikers or their cause, they say that the situation mut be controlled and peace and good order must prevail.

They also decided not to permit any "extra" policemen to participate in any dock difficulty that may occur, preferring the regular men, who are well drilled in their duties for such emergency occasions and who will not lose their heads.

The police department is still in need of extra men for the uptown beats to take the places of the regulars that are going on the strike reserve force.

BOYS ARE ARRESTED.

Striking Messengers Accused of Disorderly Conduct.

Eight striking messenger boys were in custody in the assembly room at police headquarters this morning, charged with disorderly conduct.

Last evening they visited the Stone-Ordean-Wells wholesale house to induce a boy to quit carrying Western Union messages.

A number of clerks employed by the Stone-Ordean-Wells company saw the delegation, and fearing that there was trouble in store for the non-union boy, refused to let the strikers get to him.

The messengers considered this a declaration of war and did not hesitate, it is claimed, to go after the men despite the fact that they were fighting against odds in age and numbers.

Capt. Resche and Officers McDonald and Wilcox swept down on the disturbance and arrested the messengers, who were subsequently released on their own recognizance and appeared in the municipal court this morning.

Each entered a plea of not guilty and they were ordered in custody until they could each put up $5 bail for appearance in court next Friday afternoon. They were shy the money and were locked up temporarily in the assembly hall on the second floor of the police headquarters building.

Those mixed up in the affair were: John Johnson, age 16 years; Thomas Furrie, age 17 years; John Herton, age 14 years; Carl Berini, age 16 years; Willfield Gray, age 16 years; Earl Curtis, age 17 years, and Morris Kielly, age 15 years.

The boys say they will swear out warrants for all of the Stone-Ordean-Wells clerks that were in the scrimmage and have them arrested for assault and disorderly conduct.

Patrick H. Kielly, father of Morris Kielly, has made complaint against his son, charging him with incorrigibility and asking that he be committed to the care of the managers of the state industrial school.

Separate warrants were also issued against Thomas Furrie and Carl Berini, charging them with committing an assault on Herbert Forrest, who was employed yesterday in delivering Western Union messages. This assault occurred on Superior street during the afternoon.

The wholesale incarceration of the striking messengers has had a tendency to make the strike less noticeable on the street today. Girl messengers are delivering telegrams with comparative freedom, as are the men that started carrying telegrams yesterday afternoon.

This afternoon it was found impracticable to keep the messengers in the police assembly hall and the boys were taken up to the county jail and locked in the department for women in order that they may be isolated from other prisoners. If they are unable to secure the necessary bail money they will remain in custody until their trials next Friday.

Sheriff Butchart was at a loss for a time this morning to decide on proper quarters for the juvenile prisoners. The men's apartments in the jail are pretty well filled up and under the law the authorities are not supposed to put juveniles in quarters in proximity to the adult prisoners. He at last decided to restrict Lizzie Buckley, who is the only woman prisoner at the jail, by putting her in a small cell at one end of the woman's department and putting the striking messenger boys by themselves in the other end of the department. The jail deputies were anticipating an interesting time with so many youngsters in duress, for on previous occasions when there have been several juveniles confined at one time in the county jail they have made more trouble than twenty-five or fifty men.

WAITERS STILL OUT.

A split has occurred in the restaurant keepers' association and five of the eight restaurants closed yesterday by the strike of the cooks and waiters are again open and paying the scale of wages demanded.

The New England, Waldorf and Criterion restaurant proprietors are still standing pat and it looks like a fight to a finish between them and the union if a break does not occur this evening.

The New England and Criterion restaurants served light dairy lunches today and expect to have a full force of non-union waiters at work on Monday. It is announced that the Waldorf will open with an entire colored service on Monday, if the strike is not settled.

The signing of the union scale by the Crown, Grill, Boston, and Metropole proprietors was characterized as a surprise by the members of the association that have refused to sign it.

Yesterday afternoon the restaurant owners and representatives of the union held a long conference at which it was proposed to appoint an arbitration board to consist of interested parties with a neutral odd member to be chosen by the representatives of the union and of the owners.

There was a long debate of this question at a special meeting of the cooks and waiters' union in the Kalamazoo block last evening and it was finally decided to reject the arbitration proposition unless the proprietors would agree to a strictly interested board.

Now that a majority of the strike-affected restaurants have signed the scale, however, it is not likely that any kind of arbitration is possible for the remaining three.

The effects of the strike are very apparent in the hotel and boarding house business. Several thousand men and women without homes depend on the restaurants for their board and with them the strike threatened serious consequences as they are not of a class that can afford hotel life and it is impossible to get into boarding houses at present without waiting weeks sometimes for a vacancy.

The cooks and waiters have not intimated that they would call on the Federated Trades assembly for help and one of the members of the union remarked that their future course would be guided entirely by the next move of the restaurant men. It was admitted that a picket system might be established on the three restaurants still out.

LINEMEN ARE OUT.

Bell Company's Men Want an Eight-Hour Day.

Telephone linemen employed by the Bell company went on a strike this morning for an eight-hour day and a general recognition of the Electrical Workers' union by the Duluth Telephone company and the Douglas County Telephone company.

The men have been working nine hours a day with a minimum wage of $2.75.

They demand an eight-hour day with the same wage scale and an agreement that none but union electricians shall be employed.

The demand was presented to both the Duluth and Zenith Telephone companies several days ago and it is announced that the Zenith company in this city and the People's company in Superior have agreed to the new scale, though it has not yet been signed.

The Bell representatives declined to sign the new agreement and it is said urged arbitration, but the terms of the proposed arbitration did not suit the linemen, and at a meeting last evening it was decided to quit work this morning.

The decision was carried out and twelve men are out here and nearly that many in Superior. Both sides say the strike is more for a recognition of the union than the wage matter, and both sides seem determined to stand out to the end.

The Bell representatives intimate that they will secure non-union linemen within a few days and will be prepared to contest the situation to the end.

TO SELECT THE BRITISH SITE

At World's Fair Ground the Object of Watson's Trip.

London, May 2.—The Cunarder Ivernia, which sails from Liverpool for New York today, has among her passengers Col. C. L. Watson, secretary of the British commission to the St. Louis exposition. Col. Watson is taking a flying trip to America. He expects to leave New York for home May 23, after spending eight or ten days at St. Louis. The object of his visit is to look over the exposition grounds, select the site for the British building, see how much space can be allotted to Great Britain and to make other necessary arrangements. He takes with him the plan of the British building, designed from the historical orangery of Kenslington palace. This will be submitted for the approval of the exposition authorities. The colonel said that a visit of the prince of Wales to America had not even been discussed. As president of the British commission, the prince's work lay in the United Kingdom.

From other sources it was learned that the prince of Wales could only visit America upon the formal invitation of the president and the secretary of state. Such invitation has not been suggested on either side.

GETS BIG VERDICT

The Metropolitan Railroad Company Mulcted In Sum of $20,000.

New York, May 2.—Vincent Meesman, a 9-year-old boy, has recovered a verdict of $20,000 against the Metropolitan Street Railroad company in the supreme court, for the loss of his two feet. He sued for $50,000 and on a former trial got a verdict for $30,000—one of the largest verdicts on record. The company secured a retrial on appeal.

It is claimed that in crossing the street about a year ago at Fifty-ninth street and Tenth avenue, he was run down. His feet were so badly crushed that both had to be amputated above the ankles. The company claims the lad was crippled by reason of his own negligence.

Illinois Legislature Strikes Out Enacting Clause.

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—In the house today the bill to legalize puts and calls on the Chicago board of trade was called up for second reading. A motion was made when the bill was up a few days ago to strike out the enacting clause, and this morning was approved by a rising vote of 41 to 26. The following resolution relating to federal grain inspection was adopted:

Resolved, that we petition and request congress to enact a federal grain inspection law, and that the enforcement and operation of such a law be conducted under civil service regulations in a bureau in the department of agriculture.

THE CHASE CASE.

Ruling of Court Is Favorable to Father.

Lafayette, Ind., May 3.—Judge De Hart, hearing the Chase case today, decided to refuse to allow the attorneys to appear as attorneys for Moses Fower Chase under a contract made with the insane man. But this did not exclude him, he said, from appointing attorneys to assist the prosecuting attorney in defense of young Chase. Judge De Hart said he would appoint one firm of lawyers from Cincinnati and one firm from Indiana to help the prosecuting attorneys. He told the attorneys for Fred Chase, father of the young man, that they must show that Moses Fowler Chase is an inhabitant of Indiana, and that he is of unsound mind, and the other side may contravert that position, and the prosecuting attorney shall have assistance in so contraverting it. The ruling of the court is considered an important victory for Fred S. Chase. Lawyer Kittredge asked that an exception to the court's ruling be allowed, and this was granted.

SENSATIONAL AFFIDAVITS

Are Filed In Motion For Fourth Trial For Howard.

Frankfort, Ky., May 2.—The attorneys for James Howard today filed three sensational affidavits in support of their motion giving their reasons for asking for a fourth trial. The affidavits are made by W. L. Gradly, A. J. Wofford and H. F. Johnson and charge that prior to the trial they heard both Jurors Renshaw and Neal say that they were convinced that Howard was guilty and that if summoned and accepted as jurors they would vote to hang him.

The jurors in question, when examined for qualification as jurors, both stated that they had neither formed nor expressed an opinion. The prosecution will later make answer to the motion.

REPORTS DENIED

That Williams and Nixon Are to Be Removed.

Washington, May 2.—Secretary Shaw has returned from Iowa today, where he went to join the president on a short tour through the state. While no official statment on the subject is given out, it is stated on good authority that the published reports that Assistant United States Treasurer Williams, at Chicago, and William Penn Nixon, collector of that port, will be relieved from their duties, is untrue, and that they will retain their present offices. No selection has yet been made of a successor to former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ales.

ALL OVER THE WORLD THE PEOPLE KNOW AND USE PE-RU-NA FOR CATARRH

The Phenomenal Success of Dr. Hartman. A Doctor of National Reputation. Congressmen, Governors, Consuls And Other National Celebrities.

DR: HARTMAN SENDS HIS CONGRATULATIONS to that vast multitude of former patients scattered throughout the length and breadth of the United States and Canada. Thousands of these patients have visited him at his magnificent sanitarium at Columbus, Ohio. Thousands upon thousands have never seen the Doctor's face, but know him as their benefactor through the ministrations of his world famous remedy, Peruna.

A multitude so great that its exact number will never be known have been raised from beds of sickness or rescued from some chronic malady which kept them half sick and half well — have been rescued by Dr. Hartman' remedy, assisted by free advice and friendly counsel.

To all former patients, and to all those under treatment at present, Dr. Hartman sends hearty greeting, sincerely hoping that the good cheer of perfect health will be the lot of every one. He wishes you all the splendid health and bodily vigor which he himself has enjoyed throughout a long and useful life, and still continues to enjoy.

Mrs. Minnie Lee Collins, Grandniece of the Late President James B. Polk. This direct Descendent of the historic President Polk Says some interesting things concerning Peruna, the National Catarrh Remedy.

"For several years I experienced a severe attack of female trouble. The best physicians prescribed for me, but without avail. Two years ago I began to take peruna at the advice of a friend. I noticed a perceptible improvement at once. After taking several bottles I was cured.

"I hold Peruna in high esteem and am always ready to say a good word for it."—Minnie Lee Collins, 912 High Street, Nashville, Tenn.

This is the same old story told by a thousand women in a thousand different ways. Female trouble; doctors fail to cure; Peruna as a last resort, a happy relief from a servitude to aches, pains and a complication of physical anguish that can never be described.

Peruna is a wonder worker in female diseases, and yet the explanation of it is simple. Catarrh is the cause of these troubles. Peruna cures the catarrh. The cause being removed, the symptoms disappear.

Women cured by Peruna all tell the same story. Pains all gone. Dragging sensations gone. Quivers and throbbings and trembling and dizziness and nausea and painful periods — all gone. Now they have health.

Health is the adjustment of the physical body to its physical environment. The human body is continually attacked by a changeable climate. Today it is warm, tomorrow it is hot, next day it is cold, and the next wet, and so on. Each day brings some new vicissitudes of climate.

Te skin protects the outside of the body from these changes. Frequent bathing and vigorous exercise keep the skin able to protect us from without.

The mucous membranes protect the body from within. Every organ, every passage, every cavity is lined with mucous membranes. Mucous membrane lines the nose and facial cavities. Mucous membrane lines the throat and air pasages. Mucous membrane lines the lungs and air cells. Mucous membrane lines the liver, the bowels, the kidneys, the pelvic organs, the unitary pasages.

To keep these mucous membranes in working order, so that they will always be able to protect the body from within, Peruna is absolutely necessary. No other remedy can be substituted.

Peruna makes clean, strong mucous membranes. With an active and elastic skin to protect the body from without; with healthy, pink mucous membrane free from catarrh to protect the body from within, these two things always bring good health.

It is these two things that have secured for Dr. Hartman the phenomenal good health for which he has always been noted.

Reckless Exposure.

In perhaps no other particular are the masses of the people so recklessly neglectful of their own interests as in the matter of catching cold. Not only do the great majority fail to properly provide themselves with sufficiently warm clothing, but when a slight cough or hawking or running at the nose warns them a cold has been contracted, little or no attention is paid to it. There are, comparatively, so few people who regard a cold as of sufficient consequence to require prompt and efficient medical treatment that not only is the death rate of the Northern states increased one-half thereby, but our land is swarming with invalids and half-sick people as a direct consequence of neglected colds.

It would seem that the love of life and the delights of perfect health would be sufficient inducements to any one to carefully guard them without any warnings or argument from the medical profession. Who has not seen the victim of consupmtion struggling for life in the fatal grasp of its last stages? The unnatural brightness of their glassy, anxious eyes, the hectic flush of their shrunken cheeks, the dilated nostrils, and deep, sepulchral voice, the panting breath and fluttering heart, the frightfully emaciated form, the hopefulness of the patient and the hopefulness of the attendants—all make a pathetic picture which is far too common.

THE HARTMAN SANITARIUM, COLUMBUS, OHIO.
THE HOME OF PERUNA.

PHYSICIAN HEAL THYSELF.

A Doctor Who Takes His Own Remedy — The Secret of a Long Life and Vigorous Health.

Dr. Hartman, in speaking of his long and busy career, made use of the following language:—

"For a number of years my professional duties compelled me to be much on the road, traveling long distances by rail, night and day, exposed to all kinds of vicissitudes, sleeping and eating in different hotels continually, and through it all I have preserved myself from any derangement of the body resulting from catching cold.

"This could not have been done without Peruna. At the slightest evidence of a cold a few doses of Peruna invariably checked it. If I found myself hawking or frequently blowing my nose, instead of letting it go, as the average man would do, I always took Peruna for a few days, and at no time in my extensive travels have I been obliged to stop a day on account of my health.'

There are three roads which lead from health to consumption. Over one of these roads pass all of that great multitude of people who die every year of consumption. Each route begins with health and happiness and ends with disease and death.

First road:—A slight cold—neglected—settles in the head or throat—chronic catarrh—extends to the lungs—consumption—death.

Second Road:—A slight cold—neglected cough—settles in the lungs—cough gradually growing worse—consumption—death.

Third road:—A cold—neglected—settles in the throat—hoarseness—short breath—consumption—death.

Thousands have just started on one of these roads, all of whom could be easily cured by Peruna. Thousands more are half way to the fatal end of one of these roads who are still curable by a course of treatment with Peruna. Yet other thousands are near the end whose last days could be more bearable and hope of recovery more probable by commencing Peruna without delay.

READ THE LETTERS FROM THE FAMOUS MEN AND WOMEN WHO ARE NOW USING AND PRAISING PERUNA.

"I have used Peruna for both myself and my mother, and find it an invaluable remedy for colds, catarrh, hay fever and kindred diseases."

HON. ROBERT W. WILCOX, Delegate from Hawaii, writes:—

"I have used Peruna for dyspepsia, and I cheerfully give you this testimonial. Am satisfied if it is used properly it will be of great benefit to our people I can conscientiously recommend it to any one who is suffering with stomach or catarrhal troubles."

H. H. PPOWERS, Congressman from Vermont, Riggs House, Washington, D. C., writes:—

"I have used your Peruna for catarrh, and, after the use of one bottle, I can conscientiously recommend your remedy to any one who is suffering from catarrhal trouble. It is indeed, a good remedy and should be in every household."
H. H. POWERS.

CONGRESSMAN J. H. BANKHEAD, of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his indorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:—

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and a catarrh cure I know of nothing better."

HON. WILLIAM WATSON WASHBURN, President of the Louisiana Commercial Club and a very well known man of New Orleans, La., writes from No. 627 Canal street:—

"I am satisfied that there is not a finer medicine placed before the public today than Peruna. I have been troubled for nearly twelve years with kidney and liver trouble, and at times I have been a pretty sick man, unable to attend to my duties. I had about made up my mind that no medicine could help me, when one of your booklets was brought to my office, which I read in a leisure hour. I then decided to give Peruna a trial, and found that I had at last secured the right medicine for me. For two months I used it faithfully and felt so well! I was a young man once more. Although in the seventies, I feel better and more active than I did thirty years ago."

CONGRESSMAN D. E. WILBUR, care of J. A. Turnuciff, No. 29 K. street N. W., Washington, D. C., Congressman of the Twenty-first, district, New York writes:—

"Persuaded by a friend, I have tried your remedy, and I have almost fully recovered, after the use of a few bottles. I am fully convinced that Peruna is all you claim it to be, and I cheerfully recommend your medicine to all who are afflicted with catarrhal trouble."

"Charleseton, W. Va., March 9, 1898.
"The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:—

"Gentlemen—I can recommend your preparation, Peruna, as a tonic. Its reputation as a cure for catarrh is excellent, it having been used by a number of people known to me with the very best results." G. W. ATKINSON.

MRS. WILLIAM KELLY, Landgraf, W. Va., writes:—

"I wish to say that my daughter is entirely cured of catarrh, and I feel that I owe a word of praise and thanks to Dr. Hartman for his free and timely advice. It gives me pleasure to recommend it to sufferers with catarrh."
MRS. WILLIAM KELLY.

MR. W. EICHLER, No. 153 Degraw street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:—

"I am glad to report that my little girl has entirely recovered from catarrh of the nose and eyes. I am proud and thankful to say that, with your kind treatment and the Peruna, she is now well and happy, although the weather has been changeable this year."
W. EICHLER.

MRS. SCHAFFER, No. 436 Pope Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:—

"I wrote to you for advice for my daughter Alice, who is now four years old. She has been a puny, sickly, ailing child almost ever since she was born. I was always doctoring until we commenced to use Peruna. Thank God for your good advice and Peruna! She soon grew strong and well. Peruna is a wonderful tonic—the best medicine I ever used.

"I was also in a wretched condition when I wrote you. I had catarrh all through my whole body, but your valuable medicine soon set me all right. I would not have any other medicine. It cured my baby boy of a bad spell of cold and fever. I have given him Peruna off and on, ever since he was born, and I think that is why he is so well. We have not had a doctor since we began using Peruna." MRS. SCHAFFER.

"I have suffered for ten years with chronic catarrh. The slightest cold made me very sick. I used different remedies, and the doctor did as much as he could for me. For two years my condition was very bad. I could not speak aloud for three months. I cannot express how I suffered with my throat.

"Finally I heard of Dr. Hartman's book called "Health and Beauty." I read it and wrote to the Doctor, who answered my letter promptly, and I began taking treatment as soon as possible. I am now in perfect health, entirely free from catarrh. I cannot praise Peruna enough. Any one who has chronic catarrh should try Dr. Hartman. He will help any one. I feel grateful for what the Doctor has done for me, and would not do without Peruna. I think the Doctor very much for his kindness."

MR. W. A. ELLIOT, of Desha, Va., writes:—

"Some time ago I was afflicted with a running ear, and I could find no relief until I had consulted you for advice. After using your remedy I was entirely cured. I am in very good health and feel very grateful to you for your kind advice."

MRS. ATSY D. RODGERS, Avery, Mo., writes:—

"I suffered for two years with catarrh. Peruna has cured me. Last spring I was coughing so hard that it seemed as if it would kill me. I saw one of Dr. Hartman's advertisements and wrote to him. He advised me to take Peruna.

"I wish that all people who have lung trouble would try Dr. Hartman's medicine. I think it is the best medicine in the world."

MR. F. G. MORROW, Strathroy, Ont., writes:—

"I suffered for years with catarrh, and I tried Peruna, and it cured me within a few months, and I am very grateful and most pleased with the results I obtained from its use. Whenever I feel a cold coming on I take a few doses of Peruna, and it at once throws off all unfavorable conditions."

MISS ROSE DE LA SEN, Windsor avenue, Windsor, Ont., secretary of the French Women's Clubs of Ontario, Canada, writes:—

"I have been a sufferer from ovarian troubles for over four years, which caused me excruciating pains at times, and life looked very dreary to me. My family physician and other doctors prescribed for me, but failed dismally in relieving me, but I am pleased to state that, after years of suffering, I have been entirely cured by your woman's friend, Peruna."

MR. ALEXANDER McKENZIE, Montreal, Ont., bookkeeper for the Canadian Jewelry and Importing Company and Scribe for the I. O. O. F., Jeanne of Arc Court, No. 1650, writes:—

"As I have used Peruna with happy results, I am glad to indorse it. My system is at times an easy subject to catarrhal colds, especially if I am out in inclement weather or become suddenly chilled. When I get a cold I take Peruna, and it is only a question of a day or two until I am fully restored."
ALEXANDER McKENZIE.

BRIGADIER GENERAL D. T. KIRBY, Washington, D. C., writes:—

"I am much impressed with the curative qualities of Peruna, as many of my friends have used it with such good results, and can recommend it to all those who are afflicted with catarrh."
GENERAL D. T. KIRBY.

"From representations to me and my own experience I feel jusified in recommending your Peruna to any and all persons suffering with catarrh, nervousness or stomach troubles. I regard it as a great tonic and remedy for such afflictions, I, and others to whom I recommend it, are using it now with beneficial results."
W. J. PURMAN.

HON. A. H. COFFROTH, Ex-Congressman from Pennsylvania, writes from Somerset, Pa:—

"I am assured and satisfied that your Peruna is a great catarrh cure and, friends whom I know well have used it with great benefit. I feel that I can recommend it to those who suffer from that disorder."
A. H. COFFROTH.

HON. JUDSON W. LYONS, Register of the United States Treasury, in a letter from Washington, D. C., says:—

"I find Peruna to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Peruna."
JUDSON W. LYONS.

SENATOR M. C. BUTLER, U. S. Senator from South Carolina, writes from Washington, D. C., the following:—

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period, and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, and besides a great tonic."
M. C. BUTLER.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

SOMETHING ROTTEN

In the Postoffice Department Right In Washington.

Washington, May 2.—Postmaster-General Payne has addressed letters to former Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, Postmaster Merritt, of this city, and Comptroller Tracewell, of the treasury, calling attention to a published interview with S. W. Tulloch, for many years, up to three years ago, cashier of the Washington postoffice. The interview quotes Mr. Tulloch as saying that the whole tendency of the postoffice department is to convert the Washington city postoffice into a mere bureau of the department, disburse its funds, and appoint and promote its employes, that an investigation of the accounts of the Washington postoffice was begun by an expert of the comptroller's office, but was stopped and the expert removed, "presumably as a warning to others." Postoffice inspectors who were aware of the existing conditions, the interview says, were threatened with removal if they presumed too much, but Mr. Bristow stood by his men and demanded an investigation of the first assistant's office, which was refused. Mr. Payne has asked for a complete report from Postmaster Merritt, including a list of all charges made in the Washington office during his incumbency and upon whose order they were made.

The letter to Comptroller Tracewell says that the publication is a direct reflection on his office and asks if any truth exists in the charges. Mr. Bristow is directed especially to report on any connection of himself and of the postoffice inspectors with the charges. Mr. Smith is asked for information on the subject as a mattery of "courtesy."

Comptroller Tracewell said last night that it was in the spring of 1900 that he decided to look into the affairs of the Washington city postoffice. An expert from his office was put to work and the papers in the case were brought to his office. They were there perhaps two months. The investigation led to the conviction on his part, Mr. Tracewell said, that there had been many irregularities, he would not say frauds, in the expenses of the local postoffice. He called the attention of the postmaster to them and disallowed many items. Matters eventually were straightened out and on the promise from the postal officials that the improper disbursements would not be continued, he informed them, he said, that he should refrain from falling back on the disbursing officers.

"That is exactly what was done," he continued. "No political or personal pressure was brought to bear upon me. If such pressure had been brought it would have accomplished nothing. There were irregularities which I took steps to check as papers on file in my office will show."

"Was the expert who investigated the postoffice accounts made an example of?" Mr. Tracewell was asked.

"He was transferred from my office to the sixth auditor's office, which amounts to a reduction. That was brought for other reasons as well as his manner of investigating the postoffice accounts. He was very efficient and performed his work in a satisfactory manner, except that he was not sufficiently tactful in approaching people and making requests for papers."

First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, he added, had complained that the expert's manner was offensive. Complaints of the expert's offensive manner had also come from the attorney general's office.

City Postmaster Merritt, another one of the officials to whom Mr. Payne sent a letter of inquiry, was asked whether disbursements had been made in his office without a written record of the same being kept.

"No," he replied, "not during my incumvency."

He admitted there had been some instances where clerks and others had been borne on the rolls of the city postoffice and been detailed to work in the postoffice department.

THE WESTERN COAL TRADE

One of Most Active Demands For Anthracite Ever Known.

Chicago, May 2.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal trade for the current week, says:

May will make its advent this year with one of the most active demands in the anthracite coal trade ever experienced at this season, and with a large number of unfilled orders remaining on the books of the different selling agents at all important distributing points. Although the lake receipts of anthracite at Chicago are nearly 100 per cent in excess of normal and proportionately large at other Western and Northwestern lake ports, it is probable that more than double this tonnage could have been moved out to Western retail dealers the past month if it had been available. In the April trade the strike of the firemen and oilers on the great lakes proved more or less of a disturbing factor and delayed shipments to a very considerable extent. After this was ended there was considerable difficulty in getting coal from the anthracite collieries to Buffalo and other loading ports in Lake Erie, owing to a shortage of cars. These conditions have both interfered with getting as large a tonnage as was expected to Western points, and the direct consequence is that many retailers who placed their orders for April delivery have been unable to get coal or have received only from 40 to 50 per cent of the quantity they ordered.

The business will go over into May, and, with the large tonnage which will be booked for the present month, will continue the activity at least another thirty days and possibly longer. All the leading factors in the situation say that it will be a question of getting the coal the coming month to take care of all the business which is in sight at present. Dealers who have not placed orders for movement this month and who are desirous of securing anthracite should not neglect to do so the coming week, or they will find themselves in the same predicament as many in the trade who neglected to place orders until late in April, and who expected to secure deliveries that month, but were disappointed, owing to the immense volume of business.

In the Western bituminous trade interests continue to center largely in the contract situation. More substantial progress was made the latter half of April in closing up contracts than during the first half, this being especially true with reference to such Western coals as those mined in Illinois and Indiana. Some very good contracts have been closed up the past week, and generally it can be said that operators who have accepted this business have done so at the new scale of prices adopted April 1, which were an advance of from 30 to 40 cents over current prices a year ago.

In the lake trade it is reported that a fair movement is under way to Superior, Michigan and Huron ports, and that vessels are reasonably plentiful at leading Ohio and Pennsylvania ports, with rates fairly equitable. A large tonnage will be demanded at the head of the lakes and other Western and Northwestern ports and the matter of obtaining it is purely one of trasportation. At Pittsburg and leading West Virginia shipping points the opinion is quite prevalent that car supply and motive power will be inadequate to move the tonnage that it is expected will be moved during the current season. Up to the present time it is reported that the railroad facilities from mines to lake ports have been taxed to the utmost in handling this tonnage. As some coal has been coming all-rail to Western markets during the month of April, and as this will be considerably curtailed during the summer months and diverted to the lake ports, it is almost certain that much the same conditions as a year ago will be experienced. Vessel tonnage, to move the coal after it reaches lake ports, can be obtained, but the question is wholly one of transportation from the mines, and, if this problem can be met, the largest tonnage in the history of the great lakes trade will be moved during the next five months.

In the Chicago spot coal market there has been little change during the week. With the first of the month there was an advance of 10 cents a ton in anthracite coal at this and all other leading markets in the country. As this advance was anticipated, it will excite no particular attention, except among such dealers as failed to receive all the coal they ordered during April. It is only fair to say in connection with this matter, however, that neither the anthracite companies nor their selling agents are to blame. They have used their best endeavors to supply the trade with coal as promptly and at the lowest possible prices, but owing to conditions, over which they had no control, have been very badly handicapped. Then, too, the enormous demand which has occurred early in the season has made it impossible to fill all the orders, and some have had to go over for the month.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Buffalo Express: A former baseball player has been ordained as an evangelist in Chicago. If anyone can bat religion into Chicagoans, he should be able to.

Philadelphia North American: Several students at the theological school at Chicago have issued a long statement setting forth what parts of the Bible they do not believe. At the present rate it is only a question of time when the preacher who believes in the scriptures will be considered a heretic.

Baltimore American: William A. Sunday, the former baseball player, who has asked for evangelistic orders in the Presbyterian church, had been doing field work for some time. He has a catchy way of talking that gets people worked up to a wonderful pitch, and inclines them to make a short stop in their sinful career. They immediately quit batting round, repent their first baseness and attempt to steal home.

Philadelphia Press: Rev. Dr. Banks, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church in New York, says that intemperance is increasing among respectable women in that city "Members of the churches drink whisky cocktails in public on Sunday." That is plain talk which the clergyman says he can prove in court. He finds that the trouble arises in part "because the pulpit has ceased to preach the gospel that a drunkard will never enter the kingdom of heaven." The blame seems to be pretty general.

Indianapolis Journal: Members of the committee appointed by the Presbyterian general assembly to revise the creed of that church are now engaged in defending themselves against the charge made by some critical brethren that certain passages of the newly-formulated creed won't "parse." Dr. Van Dyke, who is on the revision committee, does not assert that the grammatical construction of the work is free from fault, but asserts that the sacred confession of faith is not flawless, and points out certain errors of grammar and syntax in that document. He draws attention to these not by way of criticism, but to show that no human work is entirely free from defects. Dr. Van Dyke would probably not make such an admission if he were acting as instructor of a class of young students of the English tongue, and it is hardly ingenious in him to do so in this case. However, the grammar is less important than revision in the matter under consideration. To revise, and revise thoroughly, is the thing.

BLOOD POISON!

TAKE WARNING

Is Your Mouth Sore?
Hair Falling Out?
Eyebrows Getting Thin?
Eruptions on Body?
Copper Colored Spots?
Rheumatism?
Swollen Joints?
Pains All Over?
Leprous Like Decay of Flesh and Bone?
Thoughts of Suicide?
Syphillis?

Acquired Blood Poison eats your life out. It is the king of all venereal diseases. If you neglect yourself you must pay the penalty of sickness, decay and death.

Consultation Free

On account of its frightful hideousness contagious blood poison is commonly called the king of venereal diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatism pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruption or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bone. If you have any of these or similar symptoms you are cordially invited to consult us immediately. If we find your fears are unfounded we will tell you so frankly and relieve your mind. But if your constitution is infected with virus we will tell you so frankly and tell you how to get rid of it. Our special treatment for contagious blood poison is practically the result of our life work, and is indorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom of blood poison disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissues, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

AMONG THE PLANTS

At this writing, Thursday night, it does seem as though one ought to be getting in a supply of coal rather than thinking of gardening, but it will soon be warm again, and everyone you meet will be exclaiming "what beautiful weather we are having," for we always forget easily in Duluth, and it is about the same each year. Many who have their gardens partly planted to seeds, or have pansy plants set out, are asking if this snow will do harm. Well, I have thousands of pansies planted in the open ground, and I never saw any harm come to them yet, and I run the same risk every year, and yours, if they are properly hardened by exposure to the air and by withholding water, will stand it, and you need not fear.

When it dries off and the ground is fit to work, the main crops of vegetables may go in, with the exception of beans, corn and cucumbers and nasturtiums. They must not be planted until May 25. Neither may tomato plants be set out. Better wait until the first week in June for them. In the flower garden poppies, mignonette and allysum may go in at once; also some more sweet peas for later picking, for I suppose your early ones were planted a week ago. Be thorough in all you do, and so lay a good foundation for a good crop, and sow liberally, for you may save a few cents now and regret it all summer.

Some not used to our climate have asked for geraniums and bedding stock to plant out already, but it is a month too soon yet for such things.

Now, a word about setting out plants, for some of you need it, for you are apt to plant too loosely. The plant must be squeezed down hard. If your hands are not strong enough, use your feet, for the dry air must not be allowed to penetrate the soil. I saw a lady setting out some plants one day, and she made the hole all right, and spread out the roots and fixed the leaves all around prettily. In fact, the plants got so many loving pats that I half envied them, but she missed the main thing, that was firming them. They would have liked it better had she put a foot on either side and sent them down toward China a couple of inches. This loose planting is often the cause of failure. The plants may not die, but they linger along and do not grow as they should, unless nature sends a heavy rain to firm them. Then as to watering: It is far better to pour a half a pint of water directly on the plant than to sprinkle it on with the common sprinkling can, for the holes are too small and you haven't the patience to wait until the water reaches the roots. So pour it on, or take a shingle nail and the hammer and enlarge the holes in the nose for the average sprinkler is made to save the water instead of letting it run. The garden hose is a poor thing in inexperienced hands for the newly planted garden, but you would be astonished how many well-to-do people there are who do not own a sprinkling can, or a two-quart one instead of a large one. It is a bad thing to give the whole bed a soaking after planting; don't do it.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

During a family quarrel at Glenwood, Wis., Richard Sachse fired three shots from a revolver at his father, the bullets entering the head and neck. The father is said to be dying at the family home. Both parties to the shooting were arrested.

The St. Lawrence river canals opened to navigation Friday. Twenty-four steamers and barges which had run the first two rapids were at the head of the Long Sault, awaiting the opening. On board were 600,000 bushels of grain for export and several thousand tons of coal for Montreal. The removal of canal tolls promises great activity on the St. Lawrence route this season.

A cablegram received at the state department at Washington, from United State Consul McWade, at Canton, reports that all the American engineers reported to have been attacked by anti-foreign Chinese about 140 miles from Canton, are safe. The gunboat Callao was sent from Canton to the point of the trouble.

The jury in the case of Joseph Trepani, of New York, charged with grand larceny, after being out about an hour, brought in a verdict of guilty. Trepani was charged with being the leader of the conspiracy to defraud a number of life insurance companies by foisting begus deaths upon the companies for persons who had been insured. He was remanded until Monday for sentence.

The case of the state of Iowa against Mrs. Ella McDaniel and A. M. Livix was given to the jury at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon and at 10:15 at night it returned a verdict of not guilty and the defendants were discharged. Mrs. McDaniel and Livix were accused of the murder of the former's husband Feb. 14 last, by cutting his throat.

Three sheet metal workers were killed and two others injured by the breaking of a scaffold at the Union station at Pittsburg Friday. The cause of the accident is not known.

William Hughes, 2 years, his sister, aged 2 years, and Harriett Gardner, 1 year old, were incinerated today in the home of the father of the first two named, at Lansdowne, a suburb of Baltimore. While the father was at work in a nearby field, Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Gardner locked the children in the Hughes home and went to a nearby stream to fish. The house caught fire from some unknown cause and the children were dead before assistance could reach them. They are colored.

PRESENT FOR ROOSEVELT.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 2.—The citizens of Cheyenne will present President Roosevelt on his visit to this city on May 3 with one of the finest rough riding outfits ever seen in the West. It will be composed of saddle, bridle, quirt, spurs and Navajo blanket, and will cost $300. Steer roping and rough riding will be a feature of the celebration in Cheyenne.

AGENT SHORT IN ACCOUNTS.

San Francisco, May 2.—W. R. Voce, for many years agent for the Union Pacific railroad, is missing from his office in this city and his whereabouts is unknown. A statement issued by General Passenger Agent Hitchcock says that Voce is short in his accounts, but the company is fully protected by a security bond.

BRITT WILL FIGHT GANS.

San Francisco, May 2.—James Britt, the pugilist, has yielded to the advice of friends and decided to wipe out the color line. He will now agree to a match with Joe Gans and endeavor to wrest from the colored fighter the light-weight championship of the world.

MESABA RANGE

Prof. Leith's Monograph One of Most Valuable of Publications.

Interesting Facts In Connection With the Range's History.

The monograph by Professor Charles Kenneth Leith, on the Mesaba iron range, just published by the government, is one of the most valuable publications of the sort ever put out, and it brings down to date most of the authentic information on the subject. Not the least valuable feature is its accompanying map of the Mesaba iron-bearing formation, which is the best yet published.

While largely technical, the monograph contains much information of general interest. For instance, the following extracts from the article under the sub-head "Geography and Topography," will be interesting:

"The Mesaba iron district lies in the part of Minnesota which is northwest of Lake Superior. In shape and trend it is similar to the other iron districts of the Lake Superior region. It extends from Grand Rapids, on the Mississippi river, east-northeast to Birch lake, a distance of approximately 100 miles, with a width varying from two to ten miles. Its area is about 400 square miles. Eastward from Birch lake to Gunflint lake and beyond are small patches of iron formation material, and these areas have often been included in the Mesaba district, particularly by the early explorers.

"The main topographical features of the district is a ridge or range parallel to the longer direction of the district, known as the 'Giants' or "Mesaba' range. 'Mesaba' is the Chippewa name for 'giant.' In the west end of the district the range merges insensibly into the level of the surrounding country, about 1400 feet above sea level or 800 feet above Lake Superior. Toward the east the elevation increases; from range 18 to range 12 elevations of 1800 to 1900 feet above sea level, or 400 to 500 feet above the surrounding country, are reached. For many miles both north and south of the range there is a comparatively low, flat area.

"While the general trend of the range is east-northeast, there are many gentle bends in the crest line, and in range 17 a spur, known locally as the 'Horn,' projects in a southwesterly direction for six miles. The range forms a drainage divide, the drainage of the district being apportioned among three of the great river systems of the country—the Mississippi, St. Lawrence and Nelson."

Discussing the history of the range, Professor Leith brings forth the following facts: In penetrating the wilderness north and west of the great lakes country, early explorers were compelled for the most part to stick closely to the waterways. Three of the canoe routes to the country northwest of Lake Superior cross the Mesaba range and its eastward continuance. The Mississippi river and its tributaries, the Prairie and Swan, touch the western portion of the district. Embarrass lake, tributary to the St. Louis river, crosses the Mesaba range near its east-central portion. Gunflint lake, one of a chain of lakes tributary to the Rainy river, and Nelson river, and thence to Hudson bay, lies far to the east on a continuation of the Mesaba range.

The first references to the Mesaba range concern the parts immediately adjacent to these canoe routes. Maj. Zebulon M. Pike in 1810, Lieut. James Allen and H. R. Schoolcraft in 1832, and J. N. Nicollet in 1841 describe Pokegama falls on the Mississippi river. In 1841 Nicollet published his map of the hydrographic basin of the upper Mississippi, on which the Mesaba range, called "Missabay Heights," was for the first time delineated. In 1852 J. G. Norwood reported iron-formation material at Gunflint lake. In 1866 Col. Charles Whittlesey reported on explorations made in Northern Minnesota during 1848, 1859 and 1864, mentioning Pokegama falls and making vague references to the granitic rocks of the range. "Mesaba range" was used in an indefinite way to cover what are now known as the Mesaba and Vermilion ranges. In 1866 Henry H. Eames, Minnesota's first state geologist, stated that the ranges appeared to be traversed by metal-bearing veins. This statement presumably refers to the Vermilion range, however. In a second report published in the same year Mr. Eames says that immense bodies of iron, both hematitic and magnetic, occur.

From this time on there were desultory explorations, mostly west of Birch lake, in ranges 12, 13 and 14. Professor A. H. Chester of Hamilton college was the first mining expert to look for iron ore on the Mesaba, and he condemned the eastern Mesaba after an examination in 1875.

The first real explorations, however, were by the Merritts—Leonidas, Alfred, L. J., C. C., T. B., A. R., J. E. and W. J. On Nov. 16, 1890, one of their test pit crews, in charge of Capt. J. A. Nichols, of Duluth, struck iron ore in the nw¼ of section 3-58-18, just north of what is now known as the Mountain Iron mine. This was followed in 1891 by the discovery of ore in the area now occupied by the Biwabik and Cincinnati mines. John McCaskill, an explorer, observed iron ore clinging to the roots of an upturned tree on the Biwabik property. This led to test-pitting, and work under W. J. Merritt led to the discovery of this mine in August, 1891. The Cincinnati was opened up in the same fall, and the Hale, Kanawha and Canton mines were shown up in the spring of 1892.

The discovery of ore near what are now known as the towns of Virginia, Eveleth, McKinley and Hibbing followed in rapid succession. The excitement following the first discovery of ore at Mountain Iron was greatly augmented by each succeeding find, and in 1891 and 1892 there was the inevitable rush of explorers.

Up to October, 1892, the Duluth & Iron range crossed the Mesaba at Mesaba station, and the old Duluth & Winnipeg reached the range at Grand Rapids. Most of the explorers went through Mesaba station. Reaching this place by rail, they were compelled to travel twelve to fifty miles to the west along nearly impassable "tote" roads. In October, 1892, two railroads were put in operation. The Missabe was built to connect Mountain Iron with the Duluth & Winnipeg at Stony Brook Junction, and later was extended to Duluth. Almost immediately after the connection with Mountain Iron a branch was sent out to Biwabik. About the same time the Iron Range sent out a branch from its main line to Biwabik. Very soon thereafter both railways got into Virginia. Hibbing was reached by the Missabe in 1893. Eveleth was reached by the Iron Range in 1894, and by the Missabe very soon after. The Mississippi & Northern about the same time sent a spur from Swan river to Hibbing.

The development of the range went on by leaps and bounds after the entrance of the railroads, as the following table of annual shipments from the Mesaba shows:

Year.	Gross tons.
1892	4,245
1893	613,620
1894	1,793,052

TO ALL CATARRH SUFFERERS

Hyomei Guaranteed to Cure By S. F. Boyce or Money Refunded.

The popularity and increase in the sales of Hyomei are unique in the annals of medicine. Such astonishing cures have been made by this remarkable remedy that the proprietors have authorized S. F. Boyce to sell every package of Hyomei under an absolute guarantee that it will cure catarrh. If it does not the purchaser can have his money refunded by S. F. Boyce.

Hyomei is no ordinary remedy. It is the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages, a balsamic air that destroys all catarrhal germs in the breathing organs, enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone, and makes permanent and complete cures of catarrh.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of a pocket inhaler that can be easily carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei sufficient for more than a month's treatment.

Breathe through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and your catarrh is cured. That's all.

It has been a week of strikes, involving Bell Telephone linemen, Western Union messenger boys, Clyde machinists and moulders, freight handlers, cooks and waiters.

The Bell Telephone linemen went out this morning owing to the refusal of the local office to recognize the union and give them an 8-hour working day, such as is given men engaged in similar work by other companies.

The striking Western Union boys have made application for a union charter and expect to be affiliated with the State Federation of Labor. They are in business for themselves, carry messages everywhere except to and from the Western Union office. These boys are striking for a nine-hour day and an increase in pay, demanding $18 a month for the first three months' service, instead of $15, now paid; $20 a month for the second three months' service, instead of $18, and $25 a month after six months' service, instead of $20.

The strike of the freight handlers came very near culminating in a mix-up at Garfield avenue yesterday, when a freight car containing fifty strike-breakers was detached from the engine that was taging them to No. 5 dock boarding cars for dinner. An effort was made to tip the car over but it was blocked by the police.

One of the leaders of the attack informed The Herald that there was not the slightest desire to injure any person and that all that was wanted was to get the non-union men out where they could have a good sensible talk with them.

The Omaha dock and Northern Pacific dock contractors have called on the police for protection several times, but the call seemed unnecessary, except in the Garfield avenue incident, when the police were promptly on the scene without a call.

Marine men say that the non-union loading is far from satisfactory, and every vessel loaded by the strike-breakers goes out short a cargo, while it takes almost twice as long to unload cargoes with the non-union men, who are not accustomed to the work.

The walters of eight Superior street restaurants struck for a raise in wages of $1 a week and the cooks in the same institutions went out for $2 a week more on Friday.

As a result many people are going hungry, the proprietors are seeking to arbitrate, and the union last night voted to stand pat for the increase in wages. The outcome of this strike is being watched with a great deal of public interest.

The strike at the Clyde Iron works has resulted in the starting of a new machine shop by three former employes of the Lake avenue concern. L. J. Wilner, W. J. McFadden and Victor Julian have rented the shop of the Duluth Dredge and Dock company and are doing quite a business, especially in marine work. Only three of the original Clyde strikers are now unemployed.

Fourteen new non-union moulders were taken into the Lake avenue plant this week, and with the strike-breaking machinists they are sleeping in the shop and boarding at the Bethel.

The local journeymen plumbers have secured a half-Saturday holiday for the coming season.

The bartenders of Duluth were organized Wednesday evening in Kalamazoo hall and will be affiliated with the Bartenders' National league.

J. W. Richardson, of the Carpenters' union, is one of the deputy city assessors appointed for the purpose of listing personal property.

The call for the twenty-first annual convention of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor was issued yesterday by Secretary William McEwen of this city. The convention will be held June 8 to 10, at Little Falls, and more than 300 unions, representing about 30,000 members of organized labor within the state, will be represented.

LABOR NOTES.

Cleveland has a brickmakers' strike.

Toronto painters won the 35 cents an hour demand.

Chinese may be imported into South Africa to aid in working the mines.

Hebrew printers in New York city have won their strike. Hereafter they will receive $15 per week for four hours' work each day.

The yearly gross earnings of the United States Steel corporation are approximately equal to the gross revenue by the United States government.

Representatives of labor unions in New York are teaching the advantages and benefits of organizations to the Italian immigrant as soon as they land on American soil.

A delegation from England to represent the union workmen of the continent may attend the International Papermarkers' convention, to be held in Erie, Pa., May 11.

Walker county, Ala., miners have received a general increase of 10 per cent for twelve months, dating from April 1, making the prices 55 cents a ton instead of 50 cents.

Seventy French firms manufacture motor cars and their combined output last year was 12,000 cars. The industry employed 130,000 workmen, earning on an average of $360 a year each.

Kansas City restaurant keepers are fighting the cooks' and waiters' unions. The unions want the restaurants unionized and demand $1 increase. May 1 the demand went into effect.

The Manhattan Federation union, representing 96,000 organized wage-workers, has voted to blacklist every legislator who votes against the child labor bills now pending in the New York legislature.

The International Brotherhood of Paperhangers has announced the next international convention of that union to be held at Erie, Pa., on May 11. A general plan for raising a $100,000 defense fund has been adopted by referendum vote.

An increase of wages will naturally result in Alabama when the new child labor law goes into effect. In one factory in Huntsville 300 children under 12 years will have to quit work. Other institutions throughout the state will be similarly affected.

The demand of the Carpenters' union of St. Louis for a wage increase of 10 cents an hour went into effect Wednesday, April 1. Six months' written notice was given to all regular contractors, and the advance was conceded without serious difficulty.

A central organization of structural iron manufacturers has been formed in New York to resist the demands of structural iron workers for an increase in wages May 1. Forty concerns, with a capitalization of $1,000,000, are represented. A strike of 800,000 will surely follow a refusal of the demands of the union.

The first victory of the Employers' Association of Chicago has just been recorded. In the strike of 1000 tanners the main issue was union recognition, and this was refused, in accordance with the plan of the association to give no union recognition. The men accepted a nine-hour day with no reduction in salary, and returned to work.

Commencing April 1 the 8000 employes of the Pullman Palace Car company started working nine hours per day in place of ten, with no reduction in wages. The new arrangement gives employment to at least 1000 more workmen. The shorter day was granted by the great corporation because of the strength of the organization of the employes.

The advanced wage scale of the New York coal drivers took effect May 1, calling for $2 a day or $12 a week for one-horse wagons, $2.25 or $13.50 for two-horse wagons, and $2.50 or $15 for three-horse trucks; ten hours to constitute a day's work; time and one-half for service before 6 a. m. and after 6 p. m., and double pay for Sundays and other holidays.

Work on the new building for the First Christian church of Muncie, Ind., has been suspended temporarily on account of a strike in the building trades. The services of independent carpenters were offered to complete the building, but Pastor J. F. Burnett and the trustees of the church are determined in their stand that none but union labor shall be employed upon it.

In view of the establishment of the department of commerce and labor, it may be interesting to note that the internal commerce of the United States last year has been estimated by the government statistician at $20,000,000,000. Fifty years ago it was only $2,000,000,000. The manufactures of the United States are nearly double those of Great Britain and Ireland, and about equal to those of France, Germany and Russia combined.

Some 2500 masons and their assistants who are on strike in Basle, Switzerland, made a demonstration and endeavored to prevent non-strikers from working. The police interfered, but were overwhelmed and stoned by the strikers, many of the policemen being injured. The government has ordered a battalion of troops to be mobilized in order to assist the police. Seven companies of soldiers are now patrolling the city.

Los Angeles is passing through a crisis in more than one branch of its labor industry. Not only have affairs been brought to a head in the building trades, but the job pressmen and feeders are on a strike that threatens to tie up the job printing shops in much the same manner as the building trades. Fortunately, however, the building industry has not been seriously affected by the threatened walkout of union men, for the reason that contractors employing non-union men have adjusted matters to the satisfaction of the council, the reports being to the effect that there are less than 250 men out, with prospects that fully one-half that number will return to work today.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and Return $50.00.

May 3 and May 12 to 18 the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to above points and return for $50, going and returning same route, or going one way and returning another for $64. Final return limit July 15. Stop-overs allowed

COMPROMISE IS EFFECTED

In Suit For Colorado Property of Max Kershaw.

Denver, May 2.—The News today says that Mrs. Georgia Pratt and her attorney, Judge Henry Kawalski, both of San Francisco, who have been in Denver for several days have concided negotiations by whuch a compromise has been effected in the suit for the Colorado portion of the millions of the late Max Howard Kershaw, who dealt extensively in mining properties, both in this state and in California. After Kershaw's death, a will was found in his old Philadelphia home which provided that his estate should go to his uncle, James Henry Kershaw, and brother, Carlton M. Kershaw, both of Philadelphia. Mrs. Pratt, who was also known as Rhea Gidding, according to the News, produced a will of late date in which she was made sole legatee of Kershaw's estate. Suits were begun and decided in her favor in the California courts. Other suits started in the courts of Colorado and Pennsylvania are now pending in the supreme court of those states. In the settlement of the Colorado litigation Mrs. Pratt is said to have deeded to Carlton M. Kershaw her claim under the will to the property valued at $300,000, the consideration named being $10, "and other valuable considerations."

CONSUL HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Was In Club Adjoining Bank Wrecked at Salonica.

Constantinople, May 2.—The acting German consul at Salonica had a narrow escape at the time of the dynamite outrage which destroyed the Ottoman bank there. He was at an adjoining club, which was wrecked by the explosion of the bombs. The consul extricated himself from the debris and was only slightly injured.

The German charge daffaires here has made vigorous representations to the porte on the subject, and is also holding the government responsible for the damage done to the German school at Salonica.

The consuls at Salonica report that fifty persons were killed or wounded on both sides, as a result of the bomb throwing, including three Germans and four Italians wounded and one Swiss killed.

Turkish official circles are inclined to advocate inflicting a sharp lession on Bulgaria which is considered to be responsible for the outrage, but they fear the powers would not permit it. There have been no disturbances at Salonica since April 20.

THE STAGE.

"Uncle Josh Spruceby," a "down east" production was put on at the Lyceum by a popular priced company last evening and will be repeated this evening. The play is something along the usual line of productions of that class with the trusting country girl who is deceived by the villian, the old maid aunt, the eccentric hired man and the quaint old farmer character, but there is a thrilling sawmill scene, almost too realistic for the nerves of the audience. In this scene the villian throws the heroine across a saw log and the carriage is started toward the rapid revolving circular saw. She is rescued by Uncle Josh just in time to escape an awful death. Joseph R. Kettler as Uncle Josh, Jeanette Carew as Jerusha Spruceby the old maid aunt, and Arthur Horelly as Hank Mount, right off the Bowery, were well up to their parts. The rest of the cast was disappointing. The entertainment was hardly up to the standard in the musical stunts that are attempted.

TO BUILD RAILROAD.

Milwaukee Capitalist to Operate In California.

San Francisco, May 2.—According to the Call, Thomas Barton Walker, a Milwaukee capitalist, proposed to construct a railroad 350 miles long, extending from Red Bluff to the northern border of the state. From his own and other sources, it is said that he has the assurance of a $3,000,000 capital to begin with and proposes to start operations in a few months. Walker owns about 340,000 acres of timber land in northern California and the primary object of the proposed railroad is to get his lumber to market. It is planned to build mills at intervals along the new line, at points now barren of population and to encourage settlements throughout the entire territory through which the road will extend.

TO OPEN FISHING SEASON.

St. Johns, N. F., May 2.—French and British warships are expected at Bay St. George, N. F., next week to supervise the annual opening of the fishing season. The coast folk at Bay St. George recently held a large public meeting at which they petitioned the colonial government to endeavor to secure them this season better treatment than they have hitherto enjoyed; in the past they declare, they have been harassed by the crews of the warships and subjected to serious ill treatment.

WISCONSIN INSPECTION BILL.

H. C. Stivers replies in the editorial columns of the Superior Leader to recent remarks by The Herald on the defeat of the grain inspection bill in the Wisconsin senate and the vicious provisions of that measure. Mr. Stivers claims that it was intended to offer amendments to the bill which would have removed the pernicious features which The Herald criticised as in restraint of trade and an unwarrantable interference with vested rights. He says that the amendments were offered by Senator Hudnall in the committee on state affairs, but were withdrawn in order to have the bill reported back to the senate. This may be correct, but, if true, why did not Senator Hudnall submit the amendments in the senate and move their adoption before the vote was taken on the bill itself, resulting in its indefinite postponement?

Mr. Stivers proceeds upon the theory that the elevator companies are an organized band of robbers or pirates, and that they are anxious to indulge in gross frauds. This was the spirit in which the bill was prepared, and in which it has been pushed before the Wisconsin legislature. The supporters of the bill talked about "fraud" and robbery of farmers in their addresses at Madison, and it is not strange that under such circumstances the elevator companies refused to agree to the original bill or the proposed amendments, emanating from those whose chief delight seems to be to accuse them of all kinds of wrong-doing. The Herald does not believe that the owners of the elevators are addicted to fraud to any greater extent than is Mr. Stivers, and it esteems him very highly. There may have been some frauds practiced by employes of the elevator companies years ago, but it cannot be truthfully charged that any fraud is practiced now or that the elevator companies themselves were ever parties to any acts of that character. They are composed of business men of high standing and known integrity, and this constant talk of fraud on the part of Mr. Stivers and others is a gross insult to these gentlemen.

It is contended by Mr. Stivers in his reply to The Herald that neither the "supervision" nor "marketing," as provided for in the bill, applies "to the management of the business except so far as necessary in carrying out the purposes of the section to prevent fraud." If Mr. Stivers will carefully read Section 40 of the bill he will see that he is mistaken. Section 40 makes it "the duty of the grain and warehouse commission to assume and exercise a constant supervision over the housing and marketing of the grain in the city of Superior, the handling, inspection, weighing and storing of the same, and the management of the public warehouses of said city." If this does not mean that the commission shall exercise a constant supervision over the management of the whole business, even to the extent of marketing the grain, what else does it mean? The language of the section is clear and unmistakable, and it constitutes an unreasonable restraint of trade. Furthermore it is an unwarranted attempt to interfere with interstate commerce, because the grain is interstate grain and the men in the grain trade are engaged in interstate commerce, and the power to regulate interstate commerce is vested in the United States only and no state can interfere with it or regulate it without violating the federal constitution.

It is noteworthy that throughout his article, Mr. Stivers failed to advance one sound argument why a second grain inspection system should be established at the head of the lakes.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTIONS.

The people of St. Louis are very anxious that both the Republican and Democratic national conventions shall meet in that city next year and some active work is being done during the dedication exercises at that city this week. It is said that there is decided opposition to the St. Louis proposition among influential Republicans, based upon the undesirability, as they view it, of holding a national convention in a city where an international exposition is in progress. There is no objection to St. Louis as a city, but some of the leading Republicans do not want the big political show in any way to be overshadowed by another show. Chicago is the choice of these Republicans who balk at the St. Louis plan. The peculiar thing about the whole affair is that Chicago does not care whether the convention meets there or not. Chicago is surfeited with national affairs.

The Republican national committee will meet next February and will decide the question, but although the date of decision is so far off it is not unusual that the question should be mooted now. It is thought quite likely that both national conventions will go to the same city next year. It is not known how the Democrats feel on the question of the location, as they have not discussed it, as far as can be learned. The indications, however, are that there will be a struggle between the far West and the Eastern factions. During next winter the Republican and Democratic congressional committees will be reorganized and put in readiness for work. It was generally understood when congress adjourned that the Republican congressional committee might have to be completely reorganized, on account of the unwillingness of Messrs. Babcock, Overstreet and Hull, the old wheel horses of the committee, to serve again.

The Democratic congressional committee is likely to get a shaking up, it is said, as Chairman Griggs is not anxious to go through another siege. The Democratic committee is doing something during this recess that has never been done before by a congressional committee—that is, it is keeping up a skeleton organization between elections. The committee has a lively letter press bureau, running about 2000 newspapers, which is served with good campaign material every week. The Republicans have not kept up their press bureau, the managers thinking that there is no necessity for the service in view of the roseate hue of politics, as looked at through Republican spectacles.

From all indications the coming campaign will be one of the warmest in the history of the country. It is a long way off yet, but there are premonitory symptoms which show the drift of affairs.

NOVEL GROUND FOR A STRIKE.

The increasing demands of labor form one of the most menacing features of the industrial outlook. Strikes are taking place all over the country, some for higher wages, others for shorter hours and others where the two questions of wages and hours are combined. The result is that there is a feeling of unrest and uncertainty that is a considerable menace to the prosperity of the country. Undoubtedly in many cases the demands made by the employes are just and should be readily granted by the employers. There are some cases, however, in which the demands appear to possess little or no merit, and these are the cases that cause most alarm. It is to the interest of organized labor that nothing be done that is calculated to break down the industrial prosperity or to make industry unprofitable, because the results of such a policy are certain to be disastrous to organized labor itself, much more disastrous, probably, than to any other class of people. Those who depend upon their daily wage must have steady work or they and their families will suffer. All will agree that they should be paid the full value of their labor, but when an attempt is made to secure more than that or to impose conditions upon employers that are irksome and burdensome, the result cannot fail to be disastrous to all concerned. The unwise counsels of labor leaders sometimes lead to these results, and there should be great care exercised everywhere at this time to avoid strikes that are not based upon strict justice.

A case in point has arisen in the Northwest, where a novel ground for a strike has been presented. A committee representing the Great Northern conductors and brakemen went to the general manager on March 10 with a request for 15 per cent increase in the pay of freight men and 12 per cent for passenger men, and the request was immediately granted. The manager even offered to make the increase in pay retroactive and begin on March 1. The same road had already voluntarily increased the pay of the conductors and brakemen on Feb. 1, 1902—the only increase of that character in this territory. The request for the so-called Chicago scale for employes in the yard service was also granted. Nevertheless heads of the railway employes' organizations are now asking the employes of the road to give the signatures of the two-thirds necessary to order a strike. The technical ground upon which the demand for a strike is based is the most novel in the history of railroading. The demand to which General Manager Ward would not accede is this: That the conductors and brakemen riding on a train hauled by more than one engine, called a double-header train, should receive double pay. For the nine months ending March 31, it is stated, only 3 per cent of the total train mileage of the Great Northern system was double-headed, in other words, had pushing and helping engines to assist on the grades. The proposition is that a conductor riding on a train hauled by two engines shall receive $7 per day, when a conductor riding on the same train or a train of the same number of cars over grades that require no helping engine receives $3.50 per day, which certainly seems inconsistently absurd. Such a demand is not made on any line east of Chicago, and the question naturally arises, if double-headers are a grievance west of Chicago, why are they not equally a grievance east of that city? In view of the fact that the road in question has granted more than the men's demands in the matter of wages, this appears to be a very trivial point on which to base a strike.

This is an instance of what was meant when referring to unwise and inconsiderate demands by labor leaders which are apt to lead to strikes and suffering on the part of innocent people—all for the insistence upon a trivial point that is really of little consequence to the employes themselves. The Herald would earnestly urge upon labor men everywhere to avoid strikes that are not based upon some vital principle or upon grievances that are of a serious character.

There is now under way a number of investigations into crooked deals in public life which lend considerable zest to public affairs in many localities. Smuggling in Porto Rico, courts-martial in Alaska, frauds in the postoffice department, boodling in Missouri, shady state loans in Indiana, and municipal disinfection in St. Louis, Minneapolis, Seattle and New York, furnish proof of public watchfulness in public affairs. Political grafting is becoming an unprofitable as well as a dangerous profession, and if it can be made still more dangerous it may be greatly decreased.

A New York judge holds that a saloon sandwich does not constitute a meal. People who are shut out of Duluth restaurants at present and compelled to seek the free lunch counter will agree with the distinguished jurist.

Why should not our relations with Germany be of the most friendly character? Our government has just purchased several hundred tons of frankfurters and sauerkraut for the edification of the army and navy.

The Ohio postmaster convicted of embezzlement, who wept copiously when sentence was passed upon him, should have thought of the consequences when he was burning government money.

What does Cartoonist Davenport think of Mark Hanna's defense of organized labor from Mr. Parry's attack?

WOMEN HERE AND ABROAD.

The majority of American women fail to recognize the rights they enjoy. They are as free as man and enjoy equal privileges with him, and still they are not satisfied, as the divorce courts amply testify. In many foreign countries women are as slaves to whom the freedom of the women of this country would seem a dream. In Russia it is particularly apparent. As a daughter the Russian woman is under the absolute sway of her parents. Her coming of age makes no alteration in her position. Until the day of her death, if she remains unmarried, the place she occupies in the family life is a place of dependence upon the will of her parents. When a woman marries, she changes the authority of parents for the no less unqualified authority of husband. She cannot leave him, even to visit a neighboring town without a "pass" from him. He names the time she is permitted to stay, and at the expiry of the term she is bound to return, or get it renewed. A husband may appear in a court of law as a witness against his wife, but a wife is not permitted to appear against her husband. A woman's evidence is regarded also as of less weight than that of a man. "When two witnesses do not agree," the code runs, "the testimony of an adult outweighs that of a child, and the testimony of a man that of a woman."

According to the tenets of the Russian church, marriage is a sacrament, and is theoretically indissoluble. There is no such thing as a civil marriage, and divorce, except in one case, is practically unobtainable by a woman. The exception is the deprivation of civil rights and banishment of the husband. If the wife choose she can follow her husband into exile; and Russian literature is full of pathetic stories of women, tenderly nurtured, braving the terrors of the long Siberian march. All children, however, born in exile are regarded as belonging to the lowest class of society. If, on the other hand, the wife seeks on the plea of her husband's banishment, divorce, the church in this case relaxes her discipline, and grants the plea. Although the statute recognizes adultery and desertion on the part of the husband as grounds for divorce, the law is beset with such difficulties that it is never resorted to except by the wealthy, who can always make tardy wheels revolve more swiftly.

Of course such conditions would not be tolerated for a moment in a free country like the United States, but at the same time American women should consider the situation of their sisters elsewhere before they attempt to be relgased from what they term the thraldom of life with an American husband.

SENDING APPLES TO EUROPE.

Thanks to the untiring efforts of the special agents of the department of agriculture, American apples are becoming a staple quantity in the English markets. The shipping of American apples to European ports has become an important industry, where a few years ago it was practically an unheard of thing. The department of agriculture in 1901 made the first shipments of New York apples to London, being the first time that Eastern fruit of this variety was ever sent to that market for commercial purposes. Previous to that year a limited quantity of California apples had been sold in England, but the amount was insignificant. The value of the experiment is indicated in the statement that up to date in the present season 2,535,000 barrels of apples have been shipped abroad. The great bulk of them go to London, Liverpool, Glasgow, Hamburg and Hull. England grows some apples, but not enough to supply the entire home demand throughout the year. Their apples are mostly of the perishable sort, what we call fall apples. They depend now largely upon shipments from the United States for their winter stock, and along about April 1, they begin to get fresh apples from Australia. By the first of June, the London market is well stocked with fruit from Australia, and there is no market there for the American product until September.

The effort of the department of agriculture in this connection is primarily to determine the best methods of packing and shipping, so as to insure the delivery of American fresh fruits in foreign markets in sound and wholesome condition. At the same time the special agents of the department are always working to find out what the purchasers desire and to stimulate the growers in this country to cater to the foreign trade. The department officials look upon the export trade in many of our fruits as a safety valve, which in years of surplus production will give an outlet and tend to equalize prices. The worst possible thing for the producer in this country is a full crop of fruit with a low price for the market. It usually happens that a full crop in a certain section nets to the growers actually less money than a scant crop of the same fruit.

Much depends on the packing of the fruit, and the department desires to impress that on all growers who desire to export their surplus, as in that lies success or failure. Habits of the people must be considered in the kind of apples shipped to different localities, and with a little advice from the agents who have made the matter a study, there is not much doubt of the success of the shippers of apples to Europe.

Rev. Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler is one of those clergymen who think that there is no harm in making jokes about the Bible. At a society dinner last year he propounded this conundrum: "Why was Noah the greatest financier of his time?" No one was able to answer, so he gave his fellow-diners a year to think it over. This year Dr. Cuyler was unable to attend the dinner, but he telegraphed this answer: "Noah was able to float a stock company at a time when all his contemporaries were forced into involuntary liquidation."

"Atlas Upholding the World," is a picture calculated to excite the wonder of the young, but when a modern man makes away with Atlas and his world weighing 2000 pounds, the giants of other days have reason to shake their cerements in mute amazement. The incident happened in Chicago. The thief left the building for another call.

An Indiana teacher was fired and fined for whipping a bad boy three times in fifteen minutes. He made the mistake of not making a good job of it at the first whipping; then another would have been unnecessary.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

While Frank Bolin, of Brainerd, was standing in the lobby of the St. Louis hotel this morning, he received a telegram from Highland, where he has a force of men at work, which said that one of the men working on the logging road being put through by Bolin & Wood, was killed last night.

"His name was John Holmgren," said Mr. Bolin, and" the accident was the result of a defective explosion, as I understand it, on the right of way.

"We are putting a logging road in, and have a crew working on the grade, of which Holmgren appeared to have been one. It was likely that charges of dynamite were put under two stumps at once and the fuses lighted.

"Then one of the explosions took place and the man thinking both had been discharged, ran up to the stumps and reached the deferred one about the time an explosion took place there, the result being his death.

"The remains will probably be shipped to Duluth today or tomorrow."

Captain John Pengilly, Mrs. Pengilly and their daughter, have arrived from Florida where they spent the winter, and Xenofon Adam, son and nephew all of the St. Louis hotel. They will leave for Tower this afternoon.

"My health is fully restored," said Mr. Pengilly, "and we had a delightful winter at Tarpon Springs. We got here from the land of orange blossoms and the land of spring flowers in time to see the snows in Duluth. But we're all glad to get back, just the same."

Captain Pengilly will find a whole lot of snow up at Tower when he gets there, for sleighing is good all the way from hereabouts and the weather is still rather chilly.

A traveling man who was up at Virginia night before last said that the hotel people up there left the bus out in the yard over night, and the guests who started to catch the morning train came near not getting left, because the bus froze to the ground, and the horses that were hitched to it couldn't move it.

Some scantling and crowbars were finally secured and the vehicle was moved, though it barely made the train.

Mr. Pengilly has been at his farm in Northfield for several days.

A delicate, though somewhat inelegant compliment in its wording has been received by the hotel column from an anonymous writer. It is dated Bemidji.

An abridged, though not epitomized, copy of the communication is given herewith.

After a few days, if the writer sends his name, we will publish that in the column, also, thereby overcoming the faults in the selection of "dandy people."

The date of the note is May "onct."

Here it is:

Bemidji, May 1st, '03.—Editor Evening Herald: Dear Sir: Because I love you so and because reading The Herald has become a fixed habit and because you cheerfully inflict day by day the most outrageous asshine twaddle under the heading of Hotel Gossip upon your almost innumerable friends, you cannot squirm very much if I take the liberty of suggesting the vigorous application of an elm club about three feet long on the top of the cranium of the literary monstrosity who writes up said "Gossip." I don't know who he or she may be. But O, my, don't he or she pick out dandy people to tell The Herald readers how the world wags and all about things they themselves know nothing about.

Yours, etc.

Whether the writer's intention was to follow the old prescription: "A woman, a dog and a walnut tree—the longer you beat em, the better they be," and use the elm club to better the work or whether the intention is murder, cannot be ascertained by a casual perusal of the manuscript. It may appear a more charitied in print, however.

Apropos of this protest, is a little story, which, if memory is not too jarred by the tirade, is told by "Uncle Peter" Bines in "The Spenders."

There was a minor who went into a faro game at Butte one day, and was starting in to buck the tiger, when a friend whispered to him that it was a brace game, and to keep out.

The miner reluctantly put his season's wealth in his jeans again, and went out.

About four hours later the informant was coming along by the place in which he had seen the miner, and perceived the latter coming out of the door with a dejected look.

"I want to borrow a quarter," said the miner.

"Why, you petrified mollusk, or lobster, as the case may be, did you go back there and lose all your money? Didn't I tell you that was a brace game and nobody could win in there. They simply took your money away from you and you knew it. You don't deserve any sympathy, because I told you what kind of a game it was," said the informer.

"Well, I went out and tried the rest, but they were all closed, and this was the only one running," said the miner simply. "And I had to sit in somewhere."

Hoping these few words find you well, I am.

Yours, etc.

William A. Lambert, who will do a bit of rapid fielding for the Duluth's Northern league team this summer, arrived in the city this morning and registered at the St. Louis hotel. SUSIE AND THE ARISTOCRAT

By H. T. Parsons.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Susie tripped out of the great store and drew a sigh of relief as she emerged from the stuffy atmosphere. Now, thank goodness, she was able to follow her own sweet will for a few hours. She would hurry home, get a hasty supper, and then go into the park and enjoy the green grass and waving trees which reminded her so much of the country home she had left to seek her fortune in the great city.

Bent upon saving every precious moment she darted across the street in order not to miss the first car. And, in her haste, she failed to observe a buggy dashing down the street, drawn by two handsome bays, tugging at their bits. They were upon her before she realized it and would have trampled her down had it not been for a strong arm which encircled her and swung her swiftly backward. It was a daring act and the stalwart young fellow who performed it flung himself almost beneath the feet of the affrighted steeds, which had been drawn fairly on their haunches by the driver, who had perceived the peril. The contact threw both rescuer and rescued violently to the pavement. He was up in a second and reached to raise her simultaneously with the athletic figure which had leaped from the buggy. Together they picked the girl up. Once on her feet she shook them off, exclaiming:

"Oh, thank you. I'm all right now. How careless I was—and oh, how I thank you!"

"It was a brave act," remarked the gentleman who had been driving, to the rescuer. "I did not see her until too late. The ponies were so infernally frisky I was busy holding them in and I did not stop in time."

"It was nothing," replied the other, brushing the dust from his clothing.

The two men looked straight at each other. They presented a decided contrast. One a typical American mechanic, well-built, rugged, clear eyed, with his head well up, despite his rough clothing garb, stained with evidences of his trade; the other a gentleman of birth wealth and leisure, well groomed, attired in the height of fashion, showing evidence of the gymnasium and the hunting field as well as of the club and the evening drawing room.

After a brief glance at each other both turned to the rescued girl, the one with admiration in his sturdy eyes, the other with graceful apologies for his team upon his lips. While he was voicing his regret at the accident something in the face of the girl attracted Chesterfield Chamberlain's further attention—which was not at all strange considering Susie's fresh complexion and big, black eyes. There was a suggestion of refined beauty in the girl's face and figure. A whimsical notion took possession of the young aristocrat.

"May I not repair the damage done by driving you home?" he asked. "My team is aching for exercise and we can beat the street cars with all their stops."

As the level gray eyes met the black ones the girl flushed a rosy hue and before she fairly knew what was happening she was bundled into the buggy and was being whirled along the street at the same break-neck speed which had nearly caused her undoing.

The young mechanic stood at the crossing gazing after the vehicle with a strange light in his eyes.

The swift ride to her lodgings was like a dream to Susie. Never had she ridden in so stylish a vehicle, never behind such horses. Indeed never had she ridden at all (except in street cars) since she came to the great city and before that only behind the over-worked plow horses.

And the gallant driver from another world seemed to her to be a veritable knight out of a romance. He had watched her out of the tail of his eye very closely as he chatted carelessly on and found it very interesting to see the color come and go. As for her she listened entranced to his easy familiarity with the persons and things of that great world of which she had dreamed and read, but never had some in contact. At the journey's end he asked her name and said he would take the liberty to call and see if any injuries had developed from the accident.

Never had Susie's heart beat so fast and never had such rosy dreams visited her as on that evening as she sat in her little room and thought over the strange escapade.

On the following day as she left her work at the store—by a strange coincidence—she met her rescuer of the precious day, the sturdy young mechanic. She smiled gratefully and he made so bold as to ask her if she felt any ill-effects from the accident. Upon receiving a negative answer he seemed highly pleased. By this time they were walking along toward the car and both were surprised to learn that it was his car, too.

The upshot of it was that he told her his name, Thomas Knapp, machinist, and asked to be permitted to call. This was granted, of course—what less could Susie do with the circumstances of the rescue so fresh in her memory? Besides Knapp was a clean, manly fellow with honest blue eyes. He availed himself of his privelege and soon got on excellent terms with black-eyed Susie.

In the meantime the young aristocrat who had taken her home in his buggy called to ask if she had recovered from the accident, and had lingered for half an hour, chatting with her and watching the wonderful play of color in her cheeks. Upon leaving he had asked if she would not like another spin behind the handsome team which had so nearly caused her death.

"Oh, that would be lovely," she exclaimed.

So it happened a few evenings later she enjoyed a long ride in the stylish turnout and her pretty little head was nearly turned with the joy of it all. Only once or twice she observed him looking at her in a way that brought the blood to her cheeks and gave her a touch of uneasiness.

Thomas Knapp was sober over the ride—so much so that she became a trifle angry and they had quite a tiff over it.

"There is never any good comes from the attentions of such as he to girls in our class," he said doggedly.

"He's a gentleman," she replied defiantly.

"Yes, that's just it," he replied, "and he wouldn't take you to ride in the daytime along the drives that his kind frequent."

This made her furious and she dismissed her blunt admirer with scant courtesy. But she thought of what he said a great deal and it rested like a great weight in her heart and conscience. So when he called again, she was all smiles to make up for her frowns and Tom was transported to the seventh heaven. And when some days later Chester Eddy sent a servant with a note saying he would call for her for another ride on the following evening, she sent back word that she could not go.

In the meantime Tom Knapp had been pressing his suit assiduously and she grew to like him better every day. He was a good mechanic and made ample wages.

She began to think now and then of a little white cottage in the suburbs with green blinds and lace curtains, and rest from that dreadful store.

Some days after her rebuff Mr. Eddy appeared and playfully demanded an explanation.

"Are you not shut up enough in that beastly store to enjoy a bit of airing occasionally?" he asked.

"I enjoyed my ride with you more than I can tell you," she replied gravely, "but I don't think I ought to go with you nor permit you to come here."

"Why not?" he demanded with an amused smile. "I am not generally regarded as a dangerous or objectionable person. Come, surely somebody has been stuffing your head with nonsense."

"It is not that I do not consider myself honored by your interest," she rejoined quietly, but we cannot meet as equals and any other relationship is dangerous and—and—degrading. You would not want your associates or—or—your family to see you with me."

His gray eyes looked into the black ones questioningly—then the line of vision changed to the window through which they glanced thoughtfully. He changed the subject abruptly and soon after departed and she saw him no more for many days.

In the meantime she evaded Tom's importunities to give him an answer to the all-important question he had propounded. The step into the other world had given her a glimpse of life which had upset her contentment with her own surroundings and associations. She could not bear to the herself forever to the life she had always known. Still she liked Tom immensely and knew he would ever be her willing slave.

In the midst of these cogitations Chester Eddy came to her one evening. Depositing his hat and gloves on the table he came straight across the room and took both her hands in his.

"Little girl," he said gently, and there was a new light in his eyes, "I have been thinking over what you said to me the last time I was here and I have come to convince you that you were wrong. I have come to ask you, not to ride with me for an evening, but to come with me for all time. I have thought over all you said about the difference in our social positions and was not sure at first but you were right. But the more I thought the more I became convinced that I could not live without you. Will you be my wife?"

"Oh, but your people," she exclaimed, drawing back.

"My people must take my wife or lose me," he replied. "My fortune is my own and I must marry from the dictates of my own heart and there is none other in the world for me but you."

With a cry like a freed bird she snuggled into his strong arms.

As for Thomas Knapp—but that is another story.

DR. MITCHELL

The World's Greatest Magnetic Healer --- He Has No Equal In Curing Chronic Cases of Long Standing.

After several years of phenomenal success in curing thousands of chronic cases that had been given up as incurable, Dr. Mitchell has such a strong magnetic power that he can heal every known disease. He can heal diseases that cannot be healed by medicine or any other method. This is not idle talk, but it is fully demonstrated by a large number of sick and suffering men and women that Dr. Mitchell has restored to health that had given up all hope of ever being well again. They are now living witnesses to the fact. Under his magnetic treatment the lame are made to walk, the blind to see, the deaf to hear and the dumb to speak.

Healer Mitchell cures Dyspepsia and all stomach ailments, inflammation, hardening and all diseases of the liver; Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and all diseases of the lungs; Obscesses, Tumors, Cancerous afflictions, Inflammatory Sciatic and Muscular Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Kidney and Bladder diseases and all chronic afflictions peculiar to women.

IF THERE IS A MAN in Duluth today who is suffering from private weakness of any nature whatever, your suffering can be dispelled as if by magic. Men, young or old, who have the least foundation left to build upon, let me say as man to man, as physician to patient, my method of treatment will cure you as sure as night follows day. The treatment I use must appeal to the common sense of everyone who will but give the matter a moment's thought. My remedy is universal and handed by nature to the man direct. I speak of this great force—the one element most important to life in man or beast—Magnetism.

Do not suffer a day longer when relief is now within your easy grasp. Consult Healer Mitchell and if you cannot be cured, he will be honest with you and tell you so. Office, 17 East Superior street. 'Phone 579.

THE STEINDEL CONCERT.

A Brilliant Program Is Given By Artists.

The Star lecture course of the First M. E. church closed last evening with the concert by the Bruno Steindel Concert company, and it was one of the finest numbers of the course. The audience was not as large as the character of the attraction deserved, but the very disagreeable weather that prevailed was a fair excuse for the vacant seats.

Among the 'cellists of the world, Bruno Steindel stands in the front rank. For years he has been the first cellist of that most exclusive and peerless of American musical organizations, the Thomas orchestra, of Chicago. It was eight years since he had been heard in Duluth, but those who had been fortunate enough to hear him on the previous occasion had not forgotten him, long as was the interval.

Of Mr. Steindel's playing there is naught to say but in laudation. The beauty of his tone is such that its strains linger in the ear indefinitely, its delicacy and its power are equally to be marveled at, and he has that mastery of technique which subjects the mechanical so perfectly to the artistic. He plays, too, with dignity, and an entire absence of exaggeration or straining after efforts. His program was a brilliant one. It opened with a Grieg sonata for piano and cello, in which Mrs. Steindel played the piano part with fine effect. O'caramemoria, by Servais was his principal number and it was most beautifully rendered. A group of three numbers was changed somewhat. Instead of the berceuse by Godard, he played a Spanish dance by Popper and for the "Schubert Serenade," he substituted the "Samson and Delilah" aria "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," the arrangement being by himself. The third number of the group was "Tarantelle," by Davidoff. For encores he played the ever beautiful Schumann "Traumerei," and an arrangement of Schubert's "Am Meer" by himself.

Miss Clara G. Trible, the vocalist, is a most pleasing soprano of the lyric style, her voice being especially fine in the high flute-like notes. Particularly conspicuous was her perfect enunciation. Rarely is a singer heard who has so abundantly this most admirable quality. She sang Chaminade's "Summer" and a group of four songs including the Irish Ruthven-Lang Irish love song, "Twas April," by Nevin, and the "Slave Song," by Teresa del Riego.

Madame Wunderle, the harpist, won favor no less marked than that extended to the others. She is a brilliant musician.

The concluding number was the Mascagni "Ave Marie," sung by Mrs. Trimble and with harp, 'cello and piano accompaniment.

The piano was a tone too high and this made the work of the artists doubly hard, but they acquitted themselves most creditably.

POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

CAN SAVE SOME.

Fair Amount of Salvage In Belle P. Cross.

Capt. Clow, of the Clow & Nicholson Transportation line, whose steam barge was wrecked in Gooseberry Point on the north shore this week, says that the statement that the barge's cargo was a total loss is erroneous. The cargo consisted of cedar ties and will be nearly all recovered. A tug with all necessary equipment to hoist the machinery of the barge will leave for Gooseberry Point tomorrow. It is expected that the machinery will be but little damaged.

Capt. Clow says that the cargo of cedar is responsible largely for the severe pounding which caused the Cross to break up, for with every sea the floating ties in the boat would lift her up and then she would drop back with great force on the rocks. One large strip of the port side above the bilge line lies on the beach. The compass, barometer, small boat and several other articles belonging to the boat were recovered. It is thought that the new hoisting machinery which was put in this past winter at a cost of $100 can be recovered.

The owners of the boat had contracts for her this season that would have earned them about $6000.

Surrenders Himself.

Nelson Perry, who recently stole $90 from a St. Croix avenue resort and made good his escape, returned to Duluth yesterday and surrendered himself.

He said he had been visiting in Bay City, Mich., since leaving here and that he was tired of dodging the authorities.

His examination on a charge of grand larceny will occur in the municipal court on Tuesday unless the grand jury takes the case up direct.

MANAGERS CHANGE

John T. Condon Becomes the Manager of the Metropolitan.

He Takes Place of W. H. Reaney, Who Has Resigned.

John T. Condon, for a number of years manager of the Temple Opera house in this city, today assumed the management of the Metropolitan theater. W. H. Reaney, who has been acting as manager of the place since it opened, has resigned.

The control of the theater will remain with the Metropolitan Theater company, which owns it, but Mr. Condon has been retained to handle the house in place of Mr. Reaney, owing to the latter's resignation.

Mr. Condon is well known in Duluth. He managed the Temple Opera house when it was Duluth's most popular playhouse, and with success. When the opera house burned he moved away, and he has lately been in St. Paul. He is one of the oldest theater managers in the Northwest.

Mr. Reaney has not yet announced his plans for the future.

The Metropolitan has been doing good business all winter, and is still holding large crowds daily.

LUNCH ROOM FOR WOMEN

The Young Women's Christian Association Place Is Opened.

Every girl in Duluth has two reasons for being glad that she is a girl. They are that she has not to use a collar button every time she dresses, and that she can eat her lunch at the lunch room of the Young Women's Christian association. Of course there are about a million other reasons that she is glad she is a girl, but these are just two special reasons.

The lunch room of the association opened this noon, and the opening, which in the end came rather unexpectedly, was successful in every respect. The lunch is served on the cafeteria plan—each one waits on herself. The guest enters the dining room, gets a tray, then goes to the end of the room and gets her lunch from the steam tables where it is served by three attendants. Passing further along, her tray is inspected for its money value and she is given her check. She eats the lunch, returns the dishes and passing out pays for her lunch, which in many cases costs half of the regular restaurant price. The menu for today at noon was: Bread, 1 cent; butter, 1 cent; pickles, 1 cent; olives, 1 cent; tea, coffee or milk, 3 cents; pork roast and apple sauce, 7 cents; mashed potatoes, 3 cents; soup, 4 cents; pie, 4 cents; pudding, 4 cents; cherry sauce, 4 cents. The food was daintily prepared and the enthusiasm of some forty girls who ate their lunch there this noon was great. The rooms are not as yet fully finished or furnished, but the furniture in the hall has been partly provided. The room is finished in golden oak and the chairs and tables in the hall are in the same wood. The reception room will be in weathered oak. Next week the rooms are expected to be in full running order.

ISLANDS WITHDRAWN.

Those In Great Lakes Taken From Settlement.

Instructions have been received at the local land office from the commissioner of the general land office at Washington, to withdraw all unsurveyed islands in the waters connecting the great lakes from settlement. No filings will be allowed on such islands in future until it has been decided by the department of justice whether such islands shall go with the grants of riparian tracts.

"There are no such lands in the Duluth district," said Register Cullen, "and so the order does not affect us. It is of special interest, however, for it is evidently the intention of the government to make use of these islands. They are chiefly islands in the Sault Ste. Marie river which were missed by the surveyors and have been allowed to lie unused for many years. The settlement of the land in the vicinity of the Soo has given them a considerable value, and the government has come to see their usefulness as sites for government works. The letter states that it is likely that large sums of money will be spent by the government in improving these islands and erecting various government structures on them.

ACTOR SPENDS NIGHT IN JAIL

Melbourne MacDonell Arrested on the Charge of Fraud.

Toledo, O., May 2.—Actor Melbourne MacDowell and his manager, Francis Courtney, spent last night in jail in default of $1500 bail each on a charge of fraud preferred by Thomas Hart, former manager of MacDowell. Hart recently brought suit against the two prisoners to recover several hundred dollars alleged to be due as royalties on Sardou dramas, which MacDowell and Miss Florence Stone have been presenting with the Empire Theater Stock company here. The arrest was made because the plaintiff declared defendants were about to leave the city to avoid the suit. Hurtig & Seamon, owners of the Empire theater, and Miss Stone are made party defendants.

CHILLS AND FEVER.

MALARIAL FOISONING CAUSED BY BAD DRAINAGE.

A Common Experience in Many Localities and a Remedy Which Everyone May Try.

"Six years ago I was very ill with malaria," says Mrs. M. D. Anderson, of Auburn, Placer county, Cal., "but I was enabled to drive all traces of it from my system by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The fever was caused by the insufficient sewerage system existing in the town at that time, and it took such a hold on me that I was confined to my bed for about four months. For more than a year I suffered with alternate chills and fever. Doctors did not help me, and I had given up in despair when, on seeing Dr. Williams' Pink Pills mentioned in a newspaper, I began taking them. A few doses helped me and five boxes cured me entirely.

"I must also add that at the time I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I suffered from an enlargement of goitre on the neck which choked me when lying on my back, and which, when I reached up, would almost smother me. After taking these pills for a short while I found to my astonishment that it had disappeared. That was five years ago, and since then there has been no sign of its returning."

Malarial poisoning, the usual aftereffect of malaria, is a persistent trouble and can be eradicated from the system only by enriching and building up the blood. There is no better blood cleanser and blood maker than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and Mrs. Anderson is only one out of thousands who have used this remedy with as good results.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box or six boxes for two dollars and a half, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y. They are never sold in bulk, by the dozen or hundred. None of the genuine pills leave the factory except in boxes bearing the well-known trade mark.

DEDICATION ENDS

Speeches By the Governors of Missouri and New York.

St. Louis, May 2.—This was the last day of the dedication exercises of the exposition, and in many respects it was more successful than those which preceded it. The beautiful weather of yesterday was continued and the dense crowd that jammed the turnstiles all through the early hours, that filled the streets in solid ranks to watch the gerat civic parade, compared favorably in point of numbers with the multitude of the opening day. Today was "state day" and aside from the dedication of the various state buildings, which took place in the afternoon, it was surrendered to a magnificent representation of the arts of peace. The pomp and circumstances of the military pageant were absent, but the great outpouring of men of brain and brawn, who marched today was no less impressive.

GOV. DOCKERY'S WELCOME.

After the parade had been reviewed by the governor, the party of distinguished guests repaired to the liberal arts hall, where the last day's dedication services were held. After the invocation by Dr. William R. Harper, president of the Chicago university, there was an introductory speech by Hon. William Lindsay, of the national commission, followed by a selection by the chorus and large orchestra. Then an address of welcome was delivered by Governor Dockery, of Missouri, who said:

GOVERNOR B. B. ODELL, of New York.

The pleasing duty devolves upon me of extending a cordial greeting in behalf of the people of Missouri to you as the chief magistrates and representatives of sister states who come with kindly messages and substantial evidence of the nation's interest in our stupendous undertaking. The work already completed and yet to be done could only be accomplished by a people known and respected as the incarnation of intelligent, ennobling enterprise.

The occasion which brings us together is the precursor of the most marvelous exhibition the world has ever seen. The wealth, the ingenuity, the forethought and the ability of all nations will contribute to this magnificent result. The masterful statesmanship of Thomas Jefferson builded better than even he could know when he purchased from the Emperor Napoleon this vast domain—the connecting link between the fair country skirting the Atlantic coast, which had only been recently emancipated from despotic rule—and the rich possessions on our west, extending to the Pacific ocean.

The Mississippi river marks the eastern limit of this priceless acquisition. Sweeping away to the West, the South and the north its area of fourteen states and territories embraces great cities, beautiful towns and villages, farms and gardens, mighty waterways, vast railway systems, and a wealth of gold, silver and other resources which a wise Providence provided for his people. Can the mind of man conceive a more resplendent territory? And when it is remembered that the Louisiana Purchase states are only a part of a still more glorious whole, is it any wonder that the American people are proud of their country and true to their government?

The chief magistrate of the republic has only just bade us goodbye. His coming made apparent the full significance of our name—the United States. The people, with one accord, met to do him honor, and loyalty, good will and fervent godspeeds have marked his course across the country, and will continue to do so until he has returned to the capital city, the focus of our national grandeur.

The spirit of the century in which we live is exemplified in our advancement. The best of all nations have contributed to make this country a splendid example of a republican form of government. When the immense territory of the Louisiana Purchase came into the possession of the American people, Napoleon was fully cognizant of the power he was bestowing upon this republic. His prophecy that the acquisition would enable this nation to become a mighty world power has already been fulfilled. Unlimited resources, sustained by an enterprising and indomitable people, have as yet but fairly started this country along broader fields of renown and in quest of still greater achievements. Her cities are the centers and citadels of industry, and her commerce is world-wide in its extent. Her farm lands are the richest and most productive; her mineral resources exhaustless, and her people the most progressive and intelligent.

Nature, with her regal prodigality, has lavished gifts on this fair land, and its people are especially endowed with those qualifications which cannot fail to produce the greatest excellence in everything.

But to return to the coming exposition. Everywhere during this pageant of entertainment have we seen evidence of the progress of this enterprise, so mighty in its conception as to be astounding. Sites have been assigned to each state and foreign country, and the result already accomplished is spread out before you in a grand panorama. There is no longer any question about anything but the magnitude of the success of the undertaking. This has been made possible only by the intelligent co-operation of all the people, and to you, as the representatives of sister states, I extend most grateful acknowledgment.

The selection of our metropolitan city as the proper place in which to hold this exposition seems peculiarly fitting. Its very name breathes the spirit of its French ancestry, to whom we are so greatly indebted, and its geographical situation is pre-eminently satisfactory. It is located at about the median point in the length of the Father of Waters, the upper half of this mighty stream bearing its burden of freight and passengers to the city's gates, seemingly in proud acknowledgment of its greatness; while the lower all of this commanding waterway sweeps onward to the sea, carrying upon its bosom the products of the great valley of the Mississippi.

To guard our shores, to make impregnable our southern border against assault, and to enlarge the scope of our commerce and of liberty, was the controlling thought of Thomas Jefferson and his compatriots when the "Purchase Territory" was added to the American union. Fifteen millions of dollars represented the purchase price, and by a happy co-incidence, which may not have been altogether accidental, fifteen millions of dollars represented the basic sum by which this exposition first became possible—five millions contributed by the city of St. Louis; five millions raised by popular subscription, and five millions given by the national government. Missouri has since appropriated a million dollars that her resources may be fittingly exploited, while your states have in turn liberally set apart amounts which will lend to the magnificence of their products to the scene.

Today closes the celebration incident to the dedicatory exercises of the exposition, and in the hour of greeting we are reminded that soon we must part for a time. The panoply of war in the exhibition of our regular and citizen soldiery has joined with the pomp and pageantry of civil life. Their commingling is further proof of the pride of the people in all the institutions of our country. Civilian and soldier have given the weight of their influence to make more impressive the scenes attendant on this display, and will be equally enthusiastic when the gates of the great exhibition are formally opened. Months will pass before that event, but in the meantime an army of the employed will perfect the scheme which, in its full fruition, will herald abroad the triumph of this wonderful exposition.

In conclusion permit me to say the welcome of every true Missourian is yours, and in parting a cordial adieu is wafted with the hope expressed for a safe return to your homes and to your people.

REPLY BY GOVERNOR ODELL.

The reply on behalf of the governors was made by Governor Benjamin B. Odell, of New York. He said:

The past, with all its achievements, with all of its successes, is no less but an incentive and guide for the future progress of our country. America still beckons to the oppressed of all lands and holds out the gifts of freedom, and we at this time and upon this occasion, should renew our adherence to those policies which have made us great as a nation. The future is before us, and the patriotism and self-sacrifice of those who made the country's history, so glorious, should be an inspiration to us all for higher ideals of citizenship. Through the golden gates of commerce pours an unceasing stream of immigration which must be amalgamated with amalgamated ideas and American principles.

The battles of the past have been for freedom and liberty, and the struggle of the future will be for their preservation, not, however, by force of arms, but through the peaceful methods which come through the education of our people. The declaration which brought our republic into existence has insured and guaranteed that liberty of conscience and that freedom of action which does not interfere with the prerogatives or privileges of a man's neighbors.

Capital and labor are the two great elements upon which the prosperity and happiness of our people rest, and when, therefore, aggregations of the one are met by combinations of the other, it should be the aim of all to prevent the clashing of these great interests. The products of toil are worthless unless there be some means by which they can be substituted or transferred for that which labor requires. The concrete form in which these transactions are conducted is the money power or the capital of the land. Without work all of these fertile fields, these teeming towns, would have been impossible, and without a desire to benefit and elevate humanity, its onward progress would have been useless. To work, to labor, is man's bounden duty, and in the performance of the tasks which have been placed upon him he should be encouraged, and his greatest incentive should be the knowledge that he may transmit to his children and his children's children a higher civilization and greater advantages than he himself possessed. Trade conditions which would permit to the toiler but a bare sustenance, the bare means of a livelihood would be a hindrance to human progress, a hindrance not to be removed by all of the maxims of the philosopher or the theories of the doctrinaire. Promise without fulfillment is barren, but when you can place before the mechanic the assured fact that the performance of his duty means success in life, and that his non-performance means failure; when you can show him that this law is immutable, you have made of him a useful citizen and have instilled into his mind a firm belief that the freedom and liberty of which we boast is not an inchoate substance to be dreamed of and not enjoyed. But this desired result cannot be secured if combinations of capital, which produce the necessaries of life cheaper and better, are assailed as—the enemies of mankind.

There is always a mean between those who seek only a fair recompense and return for that which they produce, and those who seek undue advantages for the few at the expense of the many. The laws which have been enacted, if properly executed, are sufficient in their force and effort to encourage the one and to punish the other, but in our condemnation let us not forget that with the expansion that has come to our country, an expansion of our business relations is also necessary. This growth has brought us into intimate contact with the markets of the world, and in the struggle that is always before us, the competition of trade, if we are to hold our own among the world's producers we should encourage and not hinder those who by their energy, their capital and their labor have banded together for the purpose of meeting these new conditions—problems which our individual efforts alone cannot solve, but which require the concentrated force and genius of both capital and labor. Incentive for good citizenship would indeed be lacking if these were taken from us the opportunities for development, the opportunities for the young man to follow in the footsteps of those who have written their names in the history of our country as the great captains of industry. Success will always follow perseverance and genius. Every heresy, every doctrine which would teach the young man of this country differently, is an insult to the intelligence of our people, and is in the direction of building up a dangerous element in American society which in time would threaten not only the peace and prosperity we enjoy but our very institutions themselves. When you have placed before the young man all of his possibilities, you have made it impossible to make of our republic a plutocracy controlled by the few at the expense of the many. The individual should count for as much as the aggregation of individuals, because an injury to the one will lead to the destruction of the many. The question of adjusting and harmonizing the relations of capital and labor is the problem before us today and is one which will become more urgent in the future. Its solution must be along those lines of constitutional right which every citizen has been guaranteed. Every man is entitled in the prosecution of his work to the broadest possible liberty of action and the protection of law, of that law which is the outgrowth of necessity and which seeks to encourage and not to oppress. Such recognition can always be secured if there is a determination upon the part of those charged with the responsibility of government to have it. And who is not? Every man possessed of a ballot is responsible and has the power, not only to formulate but to criticise and to punish as well. If this right be properly exercised, an honest and efficient administration of our affairs can always be secured.

The greatest solvent for political heresies, for doctrines which are antagonistic to popular government, is education. To the educated mind there comes a conception of duty which is not possible to the ignorant.

Another splendid selection was sung by the chorus, the benediction was pronounced by Rabbi Leon Harrison, and as the usual salute of 100 guns was fired, the governor and members of the national commission proceeded to the sites of the state buildings, the cornerstone of each being laid by the governor of that state.

FOR BLOOD AND NERVES

Greatest of All Spring Remedies,

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Today your friends and neighbors are using woman's friend, Paine's Celery Compound, and are getting rid of their burdens and troubles. If you are observant you will note that your woman friends are putting on flesh, they are blessed with renewed vigor, elastic step, bright eyes and clear complexion, all of which are true indications of a new and better health. Why suffer when you can secure the same blessings? Why deny yourself the happiness of true womanly life when Paine's Celery Compound is able to make you as healthy and attractive as other women are? Mrs. Gladys Riblett, Peoria, Ill., says:

"For more than twelve years I have been a most miserable sufferer from female weaknesses, and our family physician seemed to do me no good. I had great trouble with my lungs, and last year was advised to seek a change of climate or else prepare for death, as I was rapidly contracting consumption. I weighed but 83 pounds when six months ago I began the use of Paine's Celery Compound. Now I can sew all day, do a hard washing and all my housework, sleep as sweetly as a babe, and rise in the morning rested and refreshed. Six bottles of Paine's Celery Compound was all I needed to completely cure me, and instead of dying, as predicted, I now weigh 145 pounds, my lungs are all right, and I feel assured of my health and comfort in the future."

ELECTION LAWS

Some Changes of More or Less Importance Are Made.

One That Will Delay the Collection of Election Returns.

In the session laws of the 1903 legislature, just published, wherein one may see the results of the long sitting of the Minnesota lawmakers, there are very few changes in election laws.

The primary election law, for which grave fears were expressed prior to the session, came out unscathed. There was no attempt whatever to repeal it, and all movements to amend it materially were beaten very decisively.

It must not be imagined that simply because nobody introduced a bill to repeal the primary election law, there was no sentiment in the legislature in favor of its repeal. There was plenty of such sentiment, but it dared not brave public opinion enough to spring such a move. In fact, it was repeatedly stated that if the members spoke their own minds and voted without regard to their view of public opinion in the matter, not only would such a bill have been introduced, but it would have passed. Whether or not this is true is doubtful, of course, because the primary election system has made such a favorable impression on the people generally that it is not to be supposed that a majority of the legislative members were opposed to it. Besides, many of them owed their nominations to it, and they could hardly be ungrateful enough to wish to slaughter it.

A few election laws were passed, but all of them are of minor importance. The most significant law is that which prohibits those who vote at the primary election from signing the petitions of independent candidates. This provides that no person may sign the petition of more than one candidate, and that nobody "who has voted at any primary election shall be eligible to sign any nominating certificates of any candidate for nomination for the same election for which said primary election was held."

This is a well-intended provision, but it will probably be difficult to enforce it, because hardly anybody will be sufficiently interested to look up all the names on a petition to see if the owners participated in the primary election.

Another change that will be appreciated by some officers is that no candidate for an office that carries no emoluments need pay any fee for getting his name on the general election ballot. A bill making the same provision as to primary election was pending, but it did not get through.

Still another change will probably result in retarding the receipt of election returns, by providing that they may be mailed to the county auditor instead of being brought to him at once. This does not apply in cities over 30,000 inhabitants or in precincts within fifteen miles of the county auditor's office. In all other precincts, however, the auditor is to mail or express election supplies to the polling places instead of having the election officers come in after them, and the election returns are to be sent by registered mail, within twenty-four hours, to the county auditor.

A law applying the provisions of the general election law regarding the closing of saloons on election day to primary election day, and one providing that constitutional amendments shall be printed upon separate ballots, complete the changes in the election laws made by the late legislature.

FIRE ESCAPES ARE REQUIRED

New Law Directed at Hotels and Lodging Houses.

After Sept. 1, 1903, all hotels and lodging houses in this state will have to be equipped with proper means of enabling guests to escape in case of fire, or their proprietors will get into numerous sorts of trouble.

This is the effect of one of the laws passed by the legislature this winter, which becomes effective on the above date. It provides that all lodging houses or other places where sleeping accommodations are furnished to the public must have on each floor more than one means of egress leading direct to the ground, and these ways of exit must be kept free and clear of any obstruction and in good repair and ready for immediate use at all times.

If the hotels do not have fire escapes, each outside room on floors above the ground floor must be provided with rope fire escapes, which must consist of hempen rope of not less than three-eighths of an inch in diameter, of sufficient length to reach the ground, and of sufficient strength to sustain a weight of at least 500 pounds. This latter provision does not apply to hotels that have metal fire escapes on at least two sides of the house.

Failure to comply with these requirements means trouble. The proprietor who fails may be punished by a fine of $25 to $100, and if he does not pay it he can be imprisoned for thirty to ninety days. Not only that, but he cannot have a lien for his charges upon the property of any guest, and he can not recover in a suit for board or lodging in court.

This applies only to cities, villages, townships or other municipalities of over 10,000 inhabitants.

SHORTENS YEAR

School Board Decides on Nine and a Half Months.

Director Washburn Comments Sarcastically on School Exhibits.

A compromise making the school year nine and one-half months, with ten months pay for the teachers, was the settlement of the much agitated question of the length of the school year by the board of education last evening.

A motion to reconsider the resolution of the last meeting making the school year ten months was immediately seconded and Dr. Codding rose to suggest a compromise of thirty-eight weeks of school, with teachers' pay for forty weeks.

Director Washburn suggested that the matter be laid on the table for a time so that the members of the board might be better prepared to discuss the subject. President Milne said that the teachers were very much wrought up over the question, and he thought it would be better to settle the matter at once and put them at ease.

Dr. Codding amended the motion of last meeting making the school year nine and one-half months, with ten months' pay for the teachers who remained in the service during the entire year.

The board considered this a very satisfactory settlement of the question, as the general sentiment of the people who have children in the schools is for nine months' school, while the teachers desire ten months of service. This arrangement slightly lengthens the year and satisfies the teachers in the matter of salary.

A report of a special investigating committee was read by Director Le Tourneau, commending the systems in use in the clerk's office and other departments, and suggesting that the offices of chief engineer and superintendent of construction and repairs be merged into one.

Dr. Codding objected to this. He said that as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee he had found that the two offices were absolutely necessary. Mr. Washburn talked for the committee's report, and it was finally adopted with one dissenting vote.

A. H. Brocklehurst, stenographer to the board and secretary of the superintendent, tendered his resignation, to take effect on May 15. He is about to enter business. The resignation was accepted, with a resolution of thanks for his long and excellent services.

It was decided as a measure of economy to try to find a person who could act as secretary to the superintendent, stenographer to the board and assistant to the clerk and so remove the necessity of hiring two people in the office for work which one might do. Mr. Brocklehurst was given a two-weeks' vacation, to begin immediately, and as his resignation takes effect on the 15th he will no longer serve the board.

The matter of limiting the graduating dresses of high school seniors was taken up. Director Washburn said that he did not think that it was the sense of the board that no innocent adornment be allowed and the measure was simply to regulate unusually lavish and unnecessary display.

A motion passed to the effect that the principal of the high school or superintendent should attend to securing flowers for the graduating girls and potted plants for the stage, and all other necessary decorations, and that the board would pay the bills when they were sent in.

It was also directed that the clerk should see to the purchasing of sufficient high school diplomas for the graduating class, which will leave the school sixty-nine strong this year. The diplomas cost in the neighborhood of $1 apiece, and ribbons to tie them up with cause an annual expense of about $50 to the board.

In his report, Superintendent Denfeld spoke of his visit to St. Paul, where he attended the Minnesota Educational association meeting and met the Minnesota commissioners to the St. Louis exposition to talk over plans for state educational exhibits there. He asked the board to appropriate $150 to prepare the exhibit. This did not meet the approval of Director Washburn, who thought "that the exhibition side was the least important of school work, and did not believe that all of the energies of the school should be bent toward the exhibition of baskets, paper wads, etc., at St. Louis."

On his motion a committee, consisting of Superintendent Denfeld, Dr. Codding and Director Le Tourneau, was delegated to look into the matter and report at the next meeting of the board.

All of the present engineers and janitors were reappointed on recommendation of the board, and several had their salaries raised and one was reduced.

A motion to open the school at Oatka in the Hamilton cottage was also agreed to. A lot adjoining the Lincoln school was sold to the janitor of the building.

A resolution commending Charles Seymour's lectures was passed. Resignations of the following teachers were accepted: Louise B. Hopkins, Cora B. Cooper, Bertha Binehorn, Jessie M. Thompson.

The board refused to pay any more on its contract for the Zenith telephone than it now does.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

President of the College of Mines Exposes a Fraud.

Houghton.—President Fred W. McNair of the Michigan College of Mines sounds a note of warning in a public letter in which he says his attention has been called to a collection of letters from various persons regarding a property in the Bisbee district in Arizona. A statement on the cover announces that with the letters are given "extracts from the report of J. W. Carroll, formerly of the Michigan College of Mines, and a recognized authority on copper mines." The report is a unique piece of geological literature and is signed "J. M. Carroll." President McNair asserts that no person named J. W. or J. M. Carroll ever was a student or employed in any position in the Michigan College of Mines, and he is forced to the conclusion that someone is trying to make unscrupulous use of the reputation of the college to foist a worthless property upon unwary investors.

To enable it to handle the business for the Quincy Mining company the plant of the Houghton County Electric Light and Power company will be greatly enlarged, increasing the boiler capacity about 50 per cent. The Quincy mine was the first in the Lake Superior district to install electric motors for underground tramming, and the experiment has been so successful that ten new motors will be installed just as soon as the necessary power can be furnished by the Houghton company.

Bessemer—Vincento Belgo was bound over to circuit court in $5000 bond. Peter Taro, proprietor of the saloon in Fink where the fight took place, was also bound over. Both are charged with a part in the murder of Anton Colosselo last month.

South Lake Linden.—A movement has been started here and at Tamarack City to secure the incorporation of the places as a village. An election will probably be held in June and a charter applied for.

Escanaba.—Fire early in the week destroyed 150,000 cedar posts and poles piled in the yards of A. P. Hopkins & Co., two miles northwest of Escanaba. The loss is estimated at $15,000, with insurance of $3,000. The greater part of the property destroyed was owned by Erickson & Bissell of Escanaba. The fire is believed to have caught from bush fires that were raging in the vicinity.

Munising.—Flinn & McGann of Munising have closed an other contract with the Chicago Lumbering company for peeling bark and lumbering hemlock and cedar. Their contract calls for peeling 5000 cords of bark, lumbering about 6,500,000 feet of hemlock and cutting a large quantity of cedar. Two new camps are now being built ten and twelve miles south of Shingleton and preparations being made for a busy season. The Munising firm will employ about 100 men.

BOUGHT SCHWAB'S HOME.

Pittsburg, May 2.—D. M. Clemson, of the Carnegie Steel company, has purchased "Highmount," the Pittsburg home of C. M. Schwab, president of the United States Steel corporation. The purchase price was $258,000. Mr. Schwab paid for the property, about four years ago $250,000, and had spent a considerable sum in improving it.

AMONG THE CLUBS.

The Woman's Council held its regular meeting Monday morning at the library. The meeting was an important one. The council feels that great good was accomplished by the bringing of Mrs. Conde Hamlin to the city to lecture. Two clubs of the city, the Saturday club and the Ladies' Literature class, voted the council $5 to aid it in the work during the summer.

The Commercial club has offered prizes amounting to $160 for the best kept lawns. A prize of $20 will be offered in each ward of the city. The club asked the council to take charge of the matter, deciding who would be eligible to the contest and the distribution of the prizes, etc. The council decided to take this responsibility, providing that a committee composed of a woman from the council and one representative from the Commercial club would represent each ward. The eight women who will represent the council are as follows: Miss Mary B. Statham, Mrs. F. W. Paine, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, Mrs. H. F. Paddack, Mrs. H. S. Ely, Mrs. Walter Hubbard, Mrs. A. W. Bradley and Mrs. J. A. Keyes.

The last meeting of the Unity club was held Monday evening. Wilson G. Crosby was the speaker of the evening and his subject was "Maurice Maeterlinck" and the discussion of the philosophy and work of the writer was interesting and instructive. An informal discussion followed Mr. Crosby's paper.

The meeting last Saturday closed the season of the Saturday club. The reports of the officers for this year showed the club in splendid condition and the officers for the ensuing year were elected. The officers for next year are: Mrs. F. H. Barnard, president; Mrs. Robert Smith, first vice president; Mrs. Rebecca Boyington, second vice president; Mrs. W. S. Horr, recording secretary; Mrs. Julia M. Barnes, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. A. Keyes, treasurer, and Mrs. L. E. Paddack, Mrs. H. S. Ely and Mrs. Wardwell Ames, board of directors.

At the last meeting of the Ladies' Literature class the officers for the ensuing year were elected. President, Miss Anderson; vice president, Mrs. W. B. Dunlop and secretary, Mrs. E. W. Bohannan. The class will study a course of Dante next year.

AT WEST DULUTH

It is now likely that the condition of the revolving fund will yet delay the paving of Central avenue until next year even though a sufficient number of names have been secured to the petition to authorize the paving.

It is provided by the city charter that no contracts shall be let for street paving, sewer building or other public works other than permanent improvement unless there is a sufficient amount of money in the revolving fund to cover the expenditure. The revolving fund is now almost entirely set aside for the paving of East Superior street and other improvements which are being carried out this spring. Until the assessment has been levied for this and the revolving fund freed from these liabilities no further contracts can be let.

West Duluth citizens are exceedingly anxious that the paving of Central avenue should be accomplished this year, and should this condition of affairs cause it to be laid over until next year, it will be a great disappointment to them.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS.

Augusta Peterson Shooting as Mystifying as Ever.

L. F. Hill, a neighbor of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Peterson, parents of Miss Augusta Peterson, who lies at the Red Cross hospital the victim of an unknown assailant, was in West Duluth today.

"Miss Peterson was to have been married a year or two ago to another man," he said, "but so far as the people in our neighborhood know, no one but her present fiance has been going with her lately. We are equally at a loss to know of a cause for the shooting or the identity of the assailant."

Nothing new has developed in the case during the past twenty-four hours. Miss Peterson continues to slowly improve and it is expected she will soon be out of danger.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Services In the Churches of West Duluth.

At the Oneota M. E. church, corner of Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, Rev. E. K. Copper, the pastor, will conduct services at 11 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m. Sunday school will meet at 10 a. m. The theme of the morning sermon will be "The World's Great Orator," and the subject of the evening sermon "The Soft March." The special music will be as follows:

At the Westminster Presbyterian church the pastor, Rev. W. J. Lowrie, will preach on "Forgiveness and Forgiving." The Lord's supper will be celebrated and new members received into the church. Christian Endeavor will meet at 7 o'clock.

Rev. J. C. Hartley will preach tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock on "Prevailing Prayer," and in the evening at 7:30 o'clock on "The Day of Salvation." Sunday school will meet at 12 o'clock and Epworth league at 6:45 p. m.

Services will be held in the Norwegian Lutheran church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. O. M. Savig and Rev. N. B. Thvedt, of Duluth. Sunday school will meet at 9 a. m.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The West Duluth Republican club will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening.

Miss Margaret Wright left this morning for Hibbing for a short visit with her sister, Ms. Peter O'Donnell.

The body of Walter Forbes Oatem, the infant son of Rev. and Mrs. C. K. Oaten, of Mora, Minn., was brought to West Duluth for burial today. Rev. and Mrs. Oaten are guests of Rev. J. C. Hartley while in West Duluth.

Nelson Ness will leave next week for Chicago.

Rev. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district of the Methodist church, left his morning for a two-weeks' trip on his circuit.

Mrs. A. Lofgren is moving to Ada, Minn., and will make her home there in future.

Thomas Clarke, of Fifty-seventh avenue, is in Hibbing on a short business trip.

The Alger and Smith and St. Louis mills were closed down last evening, the lumber pilers refusing to work in the storm. They reopened this morning.

Otto Ecklund has assumed management of the Phillips hotel. He has taken a three-years' lease and will make extensive alterations and improvements int he property.

Justice of the Peace Robert Stone dismissed the case against Carl J. Petruschke yesterday. He was charged with trespass on the property of the West Duluth planing mill.

Rev. Charles Stedzle, of St. Louis, will speak this evening in the Westminster Presbyterian church on "The Church and the Workingman." No admission will be charged. Mr. Stedzle has made a study of social problems and has earned a reputation as a lecturer on the questions which confront the workingman.

Miss Mabel Allen, of Houghton, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. H. C. Hanson, of Fifty-eighth avenue.

August Johnson, the man who was brought to West Duluth yesterday by the police, died this morning at the Red Cross hospital. He was found on the road between West Duluth and Bay View Heights in an unconscious condition. His body was taken to the undertaking rooms of M. J. Filiatrault, where it awaits burial.

The West Duluth Commercial club met last evening in the club rooms. Much routine business was transacted but nothing new of importance came before the meeting. The members are anxiously awaiting the decision of the supreme court in regard to the Northern Pacific railway service to West Duluth and the West End.

The Duluth Safety Car Stake company has received an order from the Alger-Smith Lumber company for a sample set of stakes. The company has now secured patents on five different kinds of stakes and has succeeded in reducing the cost of the materially. Seevral of the logging roads in Northern Michigan are now fitted with the stakes, and should the sample order of Alger and Smith prove satisfactory, it is likely they will be generally used in Northern Minnesota.

Watch for our great bankrupt sale of general merchandise, which will open Tuesday morning, May 5th, at 311 North Fifty-fifth avenue west, West Duluth.

ADVANCE IN GRAIN

Wheat Started Out Higher and Ruled Firm But Slow.

Flax Trading Was Quiet and Inclined to Be Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 2.—The wheat market was firm and higher today, due to higher cables and reports of damage by frosts, but business was slow. There was a fairly good export demand yesterday, but foreigners and Eastern buyers did not seem disposed today to close any trades on the advanced prices here.

The Liverpool market closed ¼ to ⅝d higher; Berlin ⅝c higher and Buda Pesth ⅛c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 250,000 bus., last year 323,000 bus. Shipments 426,000 bus., last year 494,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 357,098 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 151 cars, and at Chicago 27, a total of 181 cars, against 280 last week and 281 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool markets closed ¼d higher to unchanged. July corn in Chicago closed ⅛c higher and July oats ⅝-⅝c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 226,000 bus., last year 234,000 bus. Shipments 165,000 bus., last year 160,000 bus. Clearances were 208,180 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was very slow. May opened 8c up at 77⅝c, sold at 77⅝c at 9:45 and at 77⅝c at 11:50, and closed at 77⅞c, an advance of ⅜c. July opened ⅜c up at 77c, sold at 77⅜c at 10:20, at 77½c at 12:20 and closed unchanged at 77⅜c. In Chicago May gained ⅜c and July ⅛c. In Minneapolis the advance in May was ⅜-⅝c and in July ⅛c.

Flax was slow and inclined to be higher. May closed 1c up at $1.13⅝, July closed unchanged at $1.13⅜ but sold ⅛c higher than that. Receipts at Duluth were 29 cars and at Minneapolis, 10 cars.

Rye advanced 1c, retaining its loss of yesterday.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard 80; No. 1 northern 78; No. 2 northern, 76½; May No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 1 northern, 77⅝c; July 77⅝c; Sept., 77½; on track $1.11½; May $1.13½; July, $1.13⅜; Sept., $1.11½; October $1.11½; November $1.13. Oats on track 32½c; to arrive 28c; May 32½c; Rye on track 50c; to arrive, 50c; May 50c; barley 35-45c.

Cars inspected: Wheat 20; last year 50; oats 6; rye 1; flax 29.

Receipts: Wheat 3552, oats 1017; flax 7151.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Was Firm on Higher Liverpool Cables.

Chicago, May 2.—Wheat opened firm on higher cables and reports of damage by frosts, July being a shade to ¼@⅝c higher at 70c to 70¾c. There was a good demand for May and July from commission houses and local shorts, the latter covering freely on the current month. Outside markets were also strong and helped to advance prices here. After selling at 72¾c, July steadied around 73¼c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 191 cars, which with local receipts of 67 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 181 cars, against 280 cars last week and 281 cars a year ago.

Firmness prevailed throughout the session, foreign crop damage reports and predictions of frost tonight, tending to sustain prices. July closed ⅛c up at 73¾@74c.

Strong cables, smaller receipts than expected together with a good cash demand caused a firm tone in corn during the early part of the day. Shorts were active buyers, the demand from that source holding prices firm. July being steady at 45¾c after opening unchanged to a shade higher, at 45¾@⅝c to 45¾c. Local receipts were 190 cars, five of contract grade.

The market continued firm the entire day, July closing ⅛c up at 45¾@⅞c.

Oats opened steady with little feature to trading and prices showed little change during the first hour. July was a shade higher at the start, opening at 31⅞c. A fair cash demand with smaller receipts were strengthening influences. Local receipts 111 cars.

Provisions were dull and neglected at the opening prices easier, July pork being 2½c lower at $16.87½. July lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $9.20 to $9.22½, and ribs off 5c at $9.35. The only feature to trading was selling of lard, which resulted in a small decline in that product.

Close: Wheat—May, 78¾c; July, 73¾@¼c; September, 70⅞c. Corn—May, 44⅝c; July, 45¼@⅝c; September, 44¾c. Oats—May, 29¾c; July, 29½c; September, 29½@⅝c. Pork—May, $18.25; July, $17.07½; September, $16.70. Lard—May, $9.15; July, $9.25; September, $9.30. Ribs—May, $9.35@9.47½; July, $9.45; September, $9.57½@9.60. Rye—May, 50½c; July, 50½c. Flax—Cash N. W., $1.11; S. W., $1.09; May, $1.09; July, $1.11. Timothy—May, $3.35. Clover, May, $12.50. Barley—Cash, 42@51. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 76@76c; 2 red, 636@76c; 2 hard, winter, 76@75c; 3 hard winter, 70@78c; 1 northern spring, 79@80; 2 northern spring, 78@80c; 3 spring, 72@76c. Corn—2, 44½@45c; 3 ,44@45c. Oats—2, 31c; 3, 29½@30½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was very quiet and firm. While the news was on the whole strong, there was enough profit-taking to prevent any material advance. The Pacific coast is renewing its complaints of unfavorable conditions there and are predicting a crop no bigger than last year. Nothing definite in the way of effect of recent frost on winter wheat is yet known. The situation seems to us to have gained something in strength during the week and we are inclined to look for better prices the coming week. Estimated cars 45.

Corn—Market here was very quiet and steady. There was nothing in the speculative trade worthy of comment and the cash position seems about unchanged. The indications are, we think, that the local stocks of No. 2 corn will likely decrease in the near future. The deliveries of May stuff went into the hands of scattered holders. Buyers in the country report some increase in offerings but they are not large. Estimated cars 225.

Oats—Market was firm. Further rains throughout the West and indications of rain in the state during the next twenty-four hours was the cause. No change in the cash situation. There may have been a slight improvement but the demand on the whole is not urgent. Estimated cars 155.

McPherson, Kan.—Wheat jointed, damage, light.

Larned, Kan.—Hard freeze; damage may be 25 per cent.

Newton, Kan.—No wheat jointed, only gardens and fruits damaged.

Kansas City—No damage to speak of. Omaha—We consider the damage immaterial from our advices.

San Francisco wires: We have already had serious damage and a few hot days will reduce the crop 50 per cent. A party tells me the crop will not be larger than last year's with favorable weather from now on. Reliable reports from Australia say the prospects are bad. Our market is very strong at 127, exporters taking all offerings.

Chicago: A Paris letter of April 29 to an exporting house reads: "Cold weather and sharp night frosts are causing anxiety for the crops. We forecast our crop will be a poor one and see a large importing year for the coming crop. The last crop was largely over-estimated as the quantity and the bad condition has also reduced the exported outpour. France will probably have to import from 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bus wheat in the next three months to meet requirements until harvest.

An Antwerp letter of April 21 reads: "Wheat is firm, the principal support of the market being buying orders for French account with stocks scanty everywhere. We see besides no reason for a decline even in the face of such magnificent prospects as America has. The position is very safe, but the fine American outlook keeps in check buying beyond necessary wants."

Chicago: Snow says that the yellowing of the lower wheat blades now being reported is the result of two much rain and cold weather, and absence of sunshine. It is a matter that a week of good weather will entirely remedy. Hundreds of his local correspondents are this month reporting this discoloration, but only a very few are lowering their figure of condition on account of it.

NO MORE WINE

To Be Used at Knight Templar Banquets.

San Francisco, May 3.—The grand commandery of the Knights Templar of California has decided by a unanimous vote that hereafter no wine shall be served at Templar banquets. The innovation has been introduced, is is claimed, so that the order on this coast might fall in line with a general movement of the same kind in the East, and because the use of wine in the lodge rooms for all official functions is contrary to the principles of Masonry. It is said that the grand lodge of Masons, at its annual meeting next October, will take the same decisive action and order that all banquets given under the auspices of any Masonic lodge of the state be strictly temperate.

PRICES OF STOCKS

Weakened on Large Loan Expansion In Bank Statement.

General Level Below Friday and Closing Was Lifeless.

New York, May 2.—The few stocks in which orders were executed at the opening of the market today showed no changes from last night's prices and there was no prominent stock in which the change exceeded ½. Erie second preferred rose ¾ and Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg jumped 4⅜. Westinghouse Electric dropped 3. The ticker came to a standstill within a few minutes.

Local stocks showed some renewal of yesterday's strength. Metropolitan Street Railway and Third Avenue rose 1½ and Metropolitan Securities 1⅜. The high-priced coalers moved widely, Delaware & Hudson rising 1¾ and Lackawanna 2¾, while New Jersey Central was bid 3 points without a sale. Railroad stocks were neglected, but the Mexican group ruled high in sympathy with silver. Kansas & Texas preferred and Smelting preferred advanced a point and Linseed preferred declined 4.

An advance of 1⅜ in National Railroad of Mexico was based on the renewed strength of the silver market. Profit-taking affected the market before the appearance of the bank statement and prices weakened further on the large loan expansion shown. Delaware & Hudson lost its gain and Metropolitan Street Railway reacted a point. The general level was carried below last night. Minneapolis & St. Louis lost ¾ and Chicago Terminal preferred and Kansas City Southern preferred 1⅜. Westinghouse Electric recovered to 2 points over the last price. The closing was steady, but lifeless.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Harriman to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was of the same hesitating dull kind as that of the past few days, but the undertone continues strong and there is a scarcity of stocks. As the weeks pass and all the pessimistic forecasts of conditions throughout the country fades away, there leaves but little to cause present holders of stocks to liquidate at the prevailing range of prices.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Nothing to say: The market is not active enough to keep itself warm. Reports of railway earnings are encouraging and the position of the banks seems to be improving. There is a complete lack of interest among traders and public. Neither good nor bad news has much effect. We hope the dullness may soon give way to an advancing market and that before the market declines below Tuesday's levels. I believe we will see a higher market next week.

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was dull and narrow today. It was strong in tone before the bank statement which proved a disappointment, reacted slightly on the increase in loans, but turned strong again before the close. The increase in loans was thought to be due to Erie bonds payment. The gain in cash was satisfactory, but the increase in reserve was small. There was no important news. Good buying in Pennsylvania, Metropolitan and Frisco shares. Metropolitan ran up sharply on expectation of a favorable decision in the libel suit. The day's net changes were chiefly fractional.

W. H. Laidley & Co.: The stock market opened at yesterday's close and remained dull and inactive throughout the session. Trading was again on the smallest scale for months past. The bank statement was not nearly as good as expected, but prices remained firm after its appearance and last figures are about the same as yesterday. There is very little to venture an opinion on. Doubtless there is still some short interest in the market and stocks have been absorbed by good people, on the other hand crop reports are coming in quite freely and some of the big operators are away, but we look for higher prices later in the month.

Montreal to Coe Commission Co.: Some of the influential directors of the Canadian Pacific are in favor of putting the stock on a 6 per cent dividend basis this fall. The matter will probably hinge on local mileage which the company may be forced to built in order to protect its territory from aggressors of Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern. Any such additional mileage would probably involve the issue of new securities in addition to the requirements for financing the purchase of the company's trans-Atlantic liners and might raise the question whether a high dividend would be advisable.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was again dull and transactions light. The bank statement which was not as good as expected caused some little selling, but it did not amount to much and the close was steady and dull. We do not look for much activity in the market for some time to come. The public takes very little interest in it and traders find it hard to do anything with the narrow fluctuations. With cheap money it looks as if the good stocks were a purchase on the break.

E. X. Norton & Co. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market showed no special features this morning and there was absolutely no commission house business. Metropolitan showed some strength on belief that the charges brought against the company would be dismissed at wait for the bank statement, which was expected to be good. Altogether it was the dullest market we have had yet.

Coe Commission Co.: With very few exceptions, the market opened at about last night's closing figures. After a fractional rally due to the covering of shorts the market lapsed into the extreme dullness which has been characteristic so long. The appearance of the bank statement which was contrued to be rather more unfavorable than was expected the market sold off fractionally lower than last night's close. The market shows rather a hesitating tone owing to the continued rumors of damage to the winter wheat crop and also the unfavorable weather forecast for general farm work. As soon as these conditions are eliminated we look for a gradual hardening tendency all along the line. The shrewdest speculators in Wall street are gradually accumulating heavy lines of good stocks such as the Pacifics, the Coalers, the Steel stocks, Wabash preferred and Amalgamated Copper. We believe that conservative purchases of these stocks will result in very handsome profit to the patient holder.

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was the same tame affair as on preceding days with but little disposition shown even among traders to do anything. Market continued to rule in the same spiritless manner as yesterday with the exception of Metropolitan which showed some activity and advanced on buying by interests of the company. The market is waiting for some lead on the part of the large operators.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Market comment this morning is generally optimistic. The crop scare causes some hesitation and has much to do with the prevailing apathy, but the fact that the winter wheat prospect can be greatly impaired, and still result in a bumper yield makes crop damage this year less of a factor than in former seasons. Shrewd speculators are willing to buy the Granger stocks on soft spots and take what they believe to be the remote chance of a poor harvest. The preliminary estimates of the week's cash changes give confidence as to the money outlook. It is also noted as significant, though it is something which as yet attracted little attention that bank circulation is increasing at the rate of nearly $100,000,000 a year, the increase last month having been over $8,000,000. Apropos of this and in view of the fact that $58,000,000 in 3 and 4 per cent bonds have been turned into the treasury for refunding it is interesting to note the belief of conservative bankers that the latter operations will result in an increase of probably $50,000,000 in bank circulation before the year is out. Officials of the Erie say that this system has before it a year of heavy freight traffic and that with the first preferred stock booked for an increased dividend and the second preferred for retirement next August. Erie common is bound to become a very active feature of speculation. It is rumored that Rock Island common will also go on the dividend list in August if the crop outlook at that time is favorable.

Howard Lapsley to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bank statement was not as good as expected, but the effect on the market was very slight. A few stocks bought in anticipation of a different result found a ready market when they were thrown over. We expect to see a higher market next week with more activity. This is easy to predict after the absolute stagnation that has prevailed during this week.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is again dull and practically unchanged. The bank statement is hardly up to expectations inasmuch as it shows large increase in loans. With easier money rates, however, this might have been expected. Wall street sentiment is not unanimous, but the prevailing feeling is bullish, probably the wish is the father of the thought. There is no pressure from long stocks, and on the other hand there is no demand except the efforts of professionals to advance the price. A bull market does not seem to us likely.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: During the early trading the market was stronger, there being some buying in anticipation of an improvement in the bank statement. It was very good, showing a gain of about 5,000,000 in cash, but as the increase in reserve was very small prices ran off somewhat during last half hour. Coppers were without feature.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 2.—The cotton market opened steady with prices 1 to 3 points lower. The weakness was the result of adverse cables and better crop reports. Late business increased the decline to 2 to 4 points on the old crop positions and 1 to 2 points on the new crop with covering steady, the market to a partial reaction later in the day. Futures closed quiet and steady. May, 10.55; June, 9.98; July, 9.98; August, 9.65; September, 8.92; October, 8.65; November, December and January, 8.51. Spot closed dull; middling uplands, 10.75; middling gulf, 11.00. Sales, none.

DYNAMOS ARE OLD.

Hawaiian Trip of Wisconsin May Be Delayed.

Seattle, May 3.—The departure of the battleship Wisconsin, which was to have started from this port today for Hawaii, has been postponed pending an examination of the vessel's dynamos by a board of survey.

The dynamos have been in use a long time and it is feared they are not in the best of condition. If they are condemned it will be necessary for her to remain here until new ones are secured from the East.

NORTHERN HOMESTAKE MINING COMPANY

Is so named because in formation, character and quantity of ore it is like the great Homestake Mine of the Black Hills. The three greatest gold mines of the world are: The Alaska Treadwell, the Homestake, and Mount Morgan, of South Africa. The Northern Homestake is on the Treadwell lode and almost adjoining one of the Treadwell mines, and is similar to the three gold mines mentioned and may become as big and profitable a mine as any of them. Buying stock at present prices is simply an opportunity. How many regret neglected opportunities!

ASHORE IN A FOG

Steamer Albright Runs on Beach South of Duluth Canal.

Tugs Pulled Her Off Soft Bottom In an Hour's Time.

The steamer J. J. Albright missed the ship canal in making for the Duluth harbor this morning and went hard aground in the shallow water off Minnesota Point, nearly half a mile south of the canal and about 1000 feet from the point. It took two of the strongest tugs an hour to release her, after which she went to her deck unharmed.

The fog, which was very thick this morning, and which closed down over the lake intermittently, was very dense at that time, and that accounts for the vessel's failure to make the canal. The fog whistle was blowing but the crew evidently did not hear it in time.

The Albright was found for Duluth with a cargo of coal, and she went aground about 10 o'clock this morning. The tugs Schenck and Zenith, of the Union Towing & Wrecking company, went at once to her assistance, and after working for an hour pulled her away and towed her into port at 11 o'clock. The bottom is soft where the vessel went on, and she suffered no injury beyond the loss of an hour's time. She was out a foot or two forward, and the tugs had to swing her stern from side to side to work her off.

SUMMER MARKET WILL BE ACTIVE

That Is the Expectation of Realty Dealers at the Present Time—Advance In Rents Is General Throughout the City.

The summer outlook in the local realty market is considered very satisfactory. While the conditions of the market during the past week indicate that inquiry is more pronounced than actual sales, the tendency is conceded to be in the direction of a lively summer trade. Several things have developed during the past week to act as a damper on the market; the fact that it has been "moving week," also that the weather has been such that people could not go out to look at property. Realty brokers declare that the fact that the workingmen are very busy just now is another thing which makes the sales of unimproved lots in some parts of the city a little slow. During the last year there has been a strong movement by the workingmen toward buying lots and erecting their own homes, being forced into this by the increasing rents. Some of the dealers are predicting that inquiry and transactions of this class will be more lively this fall than last.

In spite of the claims that the advance in rents would not be general, it is known that advanced rentals went into effect in every part of the city. While this was not true of every rental property, the advance was common enough to have the term general properly applied to it. Rental advances have been made on both business and residence properties, and the raise has been all the way from 5 to 15 per cent, and in certain cases has been almost 50 per cent. Probably the stiffest advance noted was for a certain corner Bowery property which last year leased for $350 per month, but this year was leased for $692.50 per month. Other Bowery property has advanced in nearly the same proportion in the matter of rentals, the raise being from $25 to $100 per month.

Flat rentals have advanced in all but a few cases, and the same might be said of medium-priced and cheaper dwellings. The exceptions have been mainly in the case where concessions have been made on account of long residence of the occupant.

Rental agents claim that the impression given out that there is more than the usual amount of moving about taking place this spring is wrong. They say that fewer changes are being noted among their tenants than ever before, even though rentals have advanced. It is claimed that the occupants will pay an advanced rental of a few dollars per month rather than take chances of trying to get another house where they might have to pay rent as high in proportion. The cost of moving is said to more than offset the increased rent, in many cases, and the people occupying the property last year have decided to remain where they are.

There will be a larger proportion of people this year who will desire to rent their homes uptown for the summer season, which they will spend on the point or at nearby camping places. In previous years such people have given up their residence, stored their goods and took chances on getting a house or flat again in the fall. This year there will be very few such chances taken. Everything in the rental line is being snapped up as fast as the properties become vacant. As is usually the case at this time of the year, there are instances where several families are being held back from making a change of residence by one family that has not yet located a home for the coming year.

The largest transfer recorded the past week was that of some farm land from the Boston and Duluth Farm Land company to the Cedar Rapids Minnesota Land company. The property involved in the sale comprises large tracts in 51-20, 52-20 and 51-21. Timber rights are withheld by the sellers. The consideration was $26,606.59. The Boston and Duluth Farm Land company has bought of the Northwestern Improvement company for $18,803.29, farming lands in the same locality as that sold also in 52-21, subject to the removal of the timber on it.

Two sales of lots 1, 2 and 3, block 57, Endion division, were recorded during the past few days. Sarah Mosher bought the lots from Barbara Hibbing and then sold them to Elsie H. Cole for $7700.

It is rumored that sales have been made to two parties during the past few days of 400 feet of Second street property, beyond Twenty-first avenue east. The report of the sale cannot be confirmed as the owner is a nonresident of the city.

* * *

Reports from the range towns show that realty transfers in most places are quite active this spring. More building is going on in the range towns than ever before at this season of the year.

The Home Hospital association, association, which was formed last winter, has purchased a site for the new hospital to be built this year. The property purchased is described as lots 120, 122 and 124, block 15, Duluth proper, Third division. The purchase price was $6500.

Anthony Murphy, of St. Paul, has sold to Nels Rasmusson, of Valley City, N. D., a tract of land in the northeast quarter of section 3-49-15 for $12,000.

Rev. Robert Forbes has bought three lots on Park Point for $1000. The Methodist alliance will this summer erect a $2500 frame church building on the property. The plans will be drawn by Palmer, Hall & Hunt. It is understood that Dr. Forbes has projected the building of a mission church on the point, beside the new church structure mentioned.

W. C. Kilgore has made a sale to Josephine Daugherty, for $3600, lot 10, block 61, Portland division.

The Howard Investment company has bought three lots in block 19, Glen Avon, from T. W. Ripley for $2500.

The property described as the east half of lot 182, block 98, Duluth proper, Second division, has been sold by Sadie A. Parker to J. W. Howe and others, the consideration being $2326.

George A. Wieland bought lot 7, block 95, Portland division, from George V. Fifer for $2000 and sold it to J. B. Cade for $2600.

Richardson & Day have sold this week a house and lot on Second street, near Twelfth avenue west, a lot in Norton's addition and some property in West Duluth, Sixth division. The firm reports a good inquiry.

Underhill & Cooley have sold some West Duluth lots this week and report a very good demand for property in that part of the city.

R. B. Knox & Co. reports a busy week with sales, including a home in West Duluth, another on the hill and several Park Point lots.

Young & Nystrom are getting out plans for a seven-room summer home on Park Point for Archie McDougall, also plans for an eight-room brick residence for John G. Carlson on the corner of Eleventh avenue east and Sixth street. Mr. Nystrom has plans out for an eight-room dwelling for himself at Fifteenth avenue east and Third street. Work on the foundations will begin next week.

Hill & Bray are getting out the plans for a handsome new club house for the Country club, to be erected on the golf grounds. The building will be of typical country design. The firm has plans underway for three houses at Hibbing and one at Eveleth, also for a handsome brick residence for out-of-town parties. George Freeman has the contract for plastering the Crosby house, plans for which were made by the firm. The contract for the Reed flats has been awarded to John Hillard. The flats will be erected on Jefferson street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenues east.

The following building permits were issued from the inspector's office this week:

G. E. Hoffman: dwelling, Third street	$ 8,000

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 2nd, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of Henry F. Shea, deceased:

On reeciving the filing the petition of Mary A. Shea, of the county of St. Louis, representing, among other things, that Henry F. Shea, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 24th day of February, A. D., 1903, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to the said Mary A. Shea granted:

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Monday, the 25th day of May, A. D., 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the Probate office, in the Court House in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at the city of Duluth in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 2nd day of May, A. D. 1903.

By the court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
(Seal.) Judge of Probate.

A STRONG COURSE

Star Lecture Engagements For Next Year Are Important.

Watterson, Littlefield, Curtis, Mabie and Susanne Adams Signed.

The announcement is made that the Star lecture course of the First Methodist church for next year will contain some brilliant lecturers and concert companies.

The policy of the management will be changed somewhat. Instead of twelve entertainments as there have been of late years there will be but eight. The price of tickets will remain the same, however, and more expensive attractions will be obtained. The contracts already made show this announcement to be true and that the course will be one of rare interest.

Henri Watterson, the famous Kentucky editor and lecturer, will deliver his lecture on New York society and the 400.

William E. Curtis, the well known correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, will lecture on "The Turk." He has just published a work on this subject.

Hamilton W. Mabie will deliver the illegary lecture which he was to have delivered in the course just closed but was prevented by illness from so doing.

As a musical attraction the Susanne Adams concert company has been booked. Susanne Adams is one of the famous singers of the Grau Opera company of the Metropolitan opera house in New York, and famous on both sides of the Atlantic. It took an enormous guaranty to get her.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton college will lecture here if he lectures anywhere next year, but no contract has been signed as yet. The other attractions are yet to be filled.

BUY HALF BLOCK IN EAST END

Eaton Bros. Get East Second Street Property and Will Build.

J. A. Wharton, with Little & Nolte, says that the month of April was a very good one, especially in the sale of moderate priced homes and good building lots in the East End. He reports the following sales: Three lots on Superior street, in the East End, for $7500; one lot in East End, for improvement, to local party, for $2250; a double corner, with the dwellings located thereon, in a central location, to a local party as an investment, for $8500; several lots in West Duluth to a local party, for $1900; two lots on Fourth street, in central location, to local parties, who will improve them, for $3000; 219 East Sixth street to O. E. Rubnke, for $1200; 5406 Dunlda street, Lester Park, to J. W. McDonald, of the Marshall-Wells traveling force, for $1750; a house and lot in Glen Avon, to Michael Carroll, for $600; 232 South Twenty-seventh avenue west, to Martin Attne, for $1000; 3808 London road, to A. P. Gross, for $1500; a couple of dwellings on East Seventh street, for $1800, and the sale of an entire half block on the upper side of Second street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues east, to William A. and Guy A. Eaton, for $10,000.

The Eaton borthers looked the city over from one end to the other and finally made the selection above noted. The young men are among the progressive and successful pine and iron land dealers of the city. W. A. Eaton has plans under consideration for a handsome residence on the Twenty-third avenue end of the block that will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000, and Guy A. Eaton will erect a home on the west end of the block that will be an ornament to that part of the city.

SOME MEN RETURNING

Strike of Metal Workers Remains Practically the Same.

St. Paul, May 2.—[Special to The Herald]—The strike of the sheet metal workers is practically without change today. The men held a short meeting at 1030 o'clock at Federation hall, and about eighty-five responded to roll call. The other members of the union have returned to work at establishments whose managers or owners have signed the agreement submitted by the union. The firms that have signed are Adam Doeker company, John Stuhlman, Prendergast Bros., Western Display company and P. C. Justus. Promises have been received from a number of the other small firms. No action is being taken by the proprietors of the large establishments. They propose to let the matter rest for a few days, and rather hope the difficulty will work itself out without further trouble.

San Francisco, May 2.—About 300 laborers have quit work to enforce a demand for an increase of pay and shorter hours. The strike involves three of the largest contracting firms in this city and is due to the refusal of the contractors to concede the wages and hours agreed on at a conference between committees representing the builders and contractors association on one side and the building trades council and the laborers' protective union on the other.

Fourteen white laborers employed at the Fulton Iron Works have been discharged because they objected to the employment of two colored laborers.

Elmira, N. Y., May 2.—Five hundred workmen affiliated with the building trades council are on strike for recognition of their unions by employers, increase in wages, and an eight-hour working day. Those on strike include nearly all the carpenters, masons, bricklayers, plasterers, painters, paper hangers, decorators and sheet metal workers in the city. The contractors will make an effort to secure men to complete contracts on hand.

DISEASE NOT CONTAGIOUS

Says Dr. Bailey of Ishpeming, Who Gives His Reasons.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Having my attention called to the many wonderful (?) discoveries of the past few months concerning many so-called contagious diseases and their causes, etc., I feel this morning like writing a few lines on this important subject for the benefit of your readers.

It is generally supposed that disease in and of itself is contagious; this is not only the supposition but belief and authoritive (?) teaching of both the medical profession and the laity. Now if this be true—if disease is contagious, I would like to ask those who think and believe so a few important questions.

Why don't everybody (without any exceptions) that comes in contact with a diseased person contract the same disease? Why don't all the inmates of the same building (in which the diseased person is) contract the same disease? Why don't the wife, who watches over and ministers to her sick and diseased husband, and the husband, who watches over and ministers to his sick and diseased wife—why don't they contract the same diseases? Why don't parents, watching and ministering to their sick and diseased children, contract the same disease? Why don't the physician who gives treatments, etc., to his or her patient contract the same disease? Why don't the professional trained nurse, who attends to a patient (whether in a private home or an hospital) contract the same disease as the patient is afflicted with? Why don't the undertaker, who comes in personal contact with the body of the one who died of some terrible disease, contract the same? Why don't the old "says out" the corpse, why don't he contract the same disease? Why don't the priest or minister, who ministers to the diseased person during his sickness, and possibly at his last moments, why don't he contract the same disease?

Why don't disease (whatever its nature) if contagious, as claimed, come to all alike regardless of race, nationality or color? Why is it that so many appear to be exempt from contracting a terrible disease if the disease is contagious? Why do not all organic matter alike contract these diseases if they are contagious?

Again, if disease is in and of itself contagious, who did the first person that was diseased contract it from?

Again, if disease is contagious, so that a healthy person, by coming in contact with a sick person, contracts the same, why may not health also be contagious, so that a sick person, by coming in contact with a well, healthy person, contract health?

Why should disease and sickness be any more contagious than health?

What proof have we that it is contagious, and that health is not?

Whatever the answer to the above questions may be, I for one say most emphatically that disease is not contagious. Although it is (as before stated) generally considered that contagion is the causeof disease, such cannot possibly be the primary cause of any disease whatever, since it is clear to be see that for some one person must have had disease at first, without contagion, before he could possibly communicate it to another. The first case of sickness or disease that ever occurred could not possibly, under any circumstances, have been one of contagion. Neither are bacteria (germs) the cause of disease, for they cannot possibly be the cause of any form of disease since these creatures never attack a healthy body or any part of it. They feed only on dead matter, not on living; on matter already undergoing decomposition and falling under the laws of an inferior plane of being. Matter in the truest sense is not the cause of anything. Germs being material substance cannot possibly be the cause of disease. The primary cause of disease lies not in the material realm of being. We must look for the real cause of disease in the mind.

That the mind causes disease is an undeniable, indisputable fact. Scientific investigators have proved that thought is dynamic, that it is both force and motion. They have also proved that excessive indulgence in various lines of thought results in the changing of thec hemical properties of the different bodily secretions, weakening and interfering with the functional duties of the different organs. Thoughts of disease leading to fear of disease promote the possibility of contracting that which we would most avoid.

The perplexing problem of disease finds its only solution in the relation that exists between the mind and the body. It is wrong thinking leading to wrong modes of living causes bodily sickness and disease, for all disease is mental or psychical—before it becomes physical.

A mind perfectly controlled and directed continually upon truth will positively produce a normal body and maintain it in a state of equilibrium, which is health. It is fear that is contagious, not disease itself. It is fear that spreads epidemics. Now, in conclusion, we ask: Since it is plain to be seen that many are immune, who are the immunes? And why are they immune? We answer: The fearless are immune, while those who are continually fearful are sure to become sick and afflicted.

Trusting all who may read this will no longer hold to the medical superstition that disease is contagious, but banish such notions from their minds and by hygienic, sanitary modes of living, the results of right thinking, retain their good health. Respectfully yours for the truth,

N. J. B. BAILEY, Ps. D.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

Rev. Ferdinand Walser, Arrested on Suspicion of Murder.

Bloodhounds Traced Him To Two Rooms He Occupied.

Loraln, Ohio, May 2.—Rev. Ferdinand Walser, the Toledo priest, was arrested shortly before noon today charged with the murder of Miss Agatha Reichlin. Walser was a guest at the Reichlin home on Thursday night when the crime was committed. He has been taken to the county jail at Elyria. The city is in a turmoil of excitement. The entire police force was ordered on duty early today to prevent possible violence to the priest.

Rev. Ferdinand Walser celebrated his silver jubilee at St. Joseph's college, Rennssalear, Ind., March 15. He is 51 years old. On Sunday following he was tendered a great reception at Sacred Heart church. Father Walser has been assistant pastor of Sacred Heart church in Toledo for about six months.

He came to Lorain on Wednesday last as a guest at the home of Rev. Charles Reichlin, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church in this city. The latter was called to Kelly's island to officiate at a funeral last Wednesday. At his home he left his sister and housekeeper, Agatha, and a younger brother, Casimir, to entertain the visiting priest.

"During the night, according to the story of Rev. Walser, he heard screams from the room occupied by the girl, and declared that he gained the hallway just in time to see a man disappearing through an open window.

When Casimir Reichlin reached his sister's room she was dead, her head having been pounded to a pulp with a rock or some blunt instrument.

Bloodhounds were brought from Fort Wayne, Ind., early today and given the scent of the murderer.

The dogs circled around the house several times and finally went to the room occupied by Rev. Wasler on the night of the murder.

They again took the trail and led the officers directly to St. Joseph's hospital, where Rev. Walser slept last night. He was found at the hospital and placed under arrest, the officers claiming there were many suspicious circumstances against him in addition to the bloodhounds following his trail.

Rev. Walser showed no excitement when placed under arrest and declared that he was innocent.

The murdered woman was handsome and had many friends and admirers in this city.

Elyria, O., May 2.—Rev. Ferdinand Walser has been locked up in the county jail here. He offered bail in any sum that might be desired, but this the officials refused to consider.

He declared that he was very tired, and was calmly sleeping within half an hour after being placed in a cell.

Before being locked up, the priest repeatedly declared his innocence.

"Oh, my God!" he cried, "what a position to be in. I came to Lorain to have a quiet visit and this had to happen. I am as innocent as a baby. I have nothing to offer in defense. They will have to prove me guilty."

As yet the priest has not secured legal advice.

TWO SUFFOCATED

By Deadly Fumes of a Blast Furnace.

Sharon, Pa., May 2.—While attempting to close the explosion doors of the Sharon blast furnace today, two men were suffocated by the deadly fumes. Their names are:

FRANK WILLIAMS, aged 22, of Whitehall, N. Y.

The men were at the top of the stack and were not discovered for several hours.

KILLED BY NEGROES.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 2.—William Long, a prominent planter living at Adams Landing, on the Mississippi river, six miles west of Redwood, attracted to a burning house on his plantation last night, was set upon by Negroes and killed. Posses from Redwood, Oak Ridge and Adams county are scouring the country for the Negroes suspected of the crime. A wholesale lynching is probable if they are caught.

Biwabik Shipping.

The Biwabik mine started shipping yesterday.

This mine has formerly shipped its output by way of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, loading at the Oneota docks. This year the ore will be shipped over the Duluth & Iron Range road to Two Harbors.

The output of the mine is expected to be over 1,000,000 tons this year. Almost all of this amount has already been contracted for.

APPOINTMENTS.

Washington, May 2.—Warren F. Thummel, of New York, was today appointed a member of the board of geleral appraisers at New York. Mr. Thummel is a son-in-law of Representative Hepburn, of Iowa. Secretary Cortelyou announced today the following appointments in the bureau of corporations, department of commerce and labor: H. Dana Durand, of Michigan, special examiner. His work will be along statistical and economic lines. Jeremiah W. Mitchell, of Maine, special attorney.

RELIANCE OUT FOR TRIAL.

New Rochelle, May 2.—The Reliance went out for a trial spin today in weather conditions that gave her the best opportunity yet offered to test her sailing abilities in a choppy sea.

CAST BY PAUL REVERE.

Troy, N. Y., May 2.—The bell which was cast by Paul Revere has been received in this city to be recast. The bell weighed 1300 pounds and hung in the Congregational church at Leominster, Mass., until a short time ago, when the building was destroyed by fire. It has been in continuous use from the time it was first cast. It was so damaged by the fire that its inscription is illegible. Its exact age is not known.

GOOD TIME AT TOPEKA

Topeka, May 2.—The president was up and stirring about his car at the Union Pacific depot this morning fifteen minutes before the time scheduled for the departure of the train. He appeared at the rear platform, and after chatting with Senator Long a few minutes, was presented to the small crowd gathered to see him off. Congressman Curtis made the introduction. The president said:

"I will not attempt to make a speech to you, but simply wish you good morning and tell you that I have had a good time in Topeka. I want to say to you that part of this time has been a very lively one and that last evening in driving from the governor's residence to the Auditorium, I rode about the livellest galt of the trip, and I don't think I ever saw such fast-running policemen as you have here in Topeka, and I want to now shake hands with one of the sprinters."

He then reached over the railing and gave a hearty shake to the hand of a big colored policeman who was within distance. The officer smiled "all over his face" and showed his white teeth in true Roosevelt ian style.

After chatting with a friend or two on the platform the president withdrew into the car, the train pulling out promptly at 8 o'clock for Sharon Springs. A drizzling rain, which proved of short duration, set in just as the president saw the last of North Topeka.

Manhattan, Kas., May 2.—The special train bearing President Roosevelt arrived here at 10 o'clock. Although the weather was threatening a large crowd was at the depot. All business houses were closed. The battalion of the agricultural college, consisting of 400 students and the college band were on hand. The president spoke for about 45 minutes.

A brief stop was made this morning at Wamego where large crowd, including many school children, greeted the president. He spoke a few words to them.

Word has been received from Secretary Loeb that he is improving and expects to join the president on Monday in New Mexico.

Junction City, Kas., May 2.—About 12,000 people greeted the president during the brief stop here. Four troops of the Fourth United States cavalry, commanded by Major Coffin, from Fort Riley, and the Nineteenth and Twentieth batteries of field artillery, commanded by Col. Carr, were drawn up in line at the station, the battery firing a presidential salute on the arrival of the train. The president and Secretary Root each made short talks. The party remained here 15 minutes.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chicago, May 2.—Charles Marvin Hardy, for many years a prominent lawyer in Chicago, is dead of heart disease. Mr. Hardy was born at Binghamton, N. Y., sixtynine years ago. He leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters.

Cleveland, May 2.—James Lavan, a well-known citizen and employe of the Bradstreet Mercantile agency for thirty-six years, is dead, aged 60 years.

New York, May 2.—James Swan, member of the cotton brokerage house of Hinman & Swan, of this city, and president of Atlanta (Ga.) National bank, is dead at the Buckingham hotel, here. The body will be taken to Atlanta for interment.

Saginaw, Mich., May 2.—Capt. Michael Madden, well known to vesselmen all over the great lakes, died here yesterday, after an illness from lung trouble lasting two years. Capt. Madden sailed for years and of late had become an owner.

WOULD STOP FIGHT

Louisville, May 2.—Shortly after noon today a delegation of citizens appeared before Police Justice Fleid and made affidavit that they had reason to believe that a prize fight is to take place at the Auditorium tonight between Kid Broad and Benny Yanger.

Peace warrants were asked for Broad and Yanger, Tim Hurst, the referee, and R. C. Gray, manager of the Southern Athletic club, returnable at 3 o'clock. The case will be heard at 6 o'clock.

EMPEROR AT ROME.

Rome, May 2.—Emperor William, on his arrival here today, was welcomed at the railroad station by King Victor Emanuel, the duke of Genoa and other notable persons.

Emperor William is a great favorite with the Romans of all classes, owing to the fact of the house of Hohenzollern, regarding Italian national susceptibilities, and therefore remarkably large and good-natured crowds gathered along the route to be followed by the emperor. Germans and Italians fraternized for the occasion and "hoch, hoch," for the German emperor was heard in the streets instead o the "hurrah, hurrah," which had so recently been shouted for the British king.

WANT BETTER MOORINGS.

Honk Kong, May 2.—In connection with the American and Japanese engineers' incident and the generally disturbed condition in the interior, the commander of the United States monitor Monterey, stationed at Canton, and the American consul at that port, are urging that more ample moorings be supplied in the river in order to provide for emergencies.

WILL TAKE A MONTH.

Washington, May. 2.—Postmaster General Payne said today that it would require at least a month to bring the investigation affairs of the postoffice department to a close. He said that in order to insure completeness of the work he was not pressing Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who is directing the work.

SHOOT WON BY HARVARD.

Philadelphia, May 2.—The intercollegiate shoot between Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania and Yale here today was won by Harvard with a total of 200 out of a possible 250; Princeton, second, with 197; Pennsylvania third, 173; Yale, 172.

APPLICATION DISMISSED.

New York, May 2.—The application of William N. Amory for a writ for H. H. Vreeland, president of the Metropolitan street railway, to show cause why hes hould ont be prosecuted for criminal libel, was dismissed today by Magistrate Barlow. The alleged libel was contained in a statement made by Vreeland in answer to a Morris charge against the management of the railroad company.

Doctors Attention!

THE DANGER LINE

By Jeannette H. Walworth.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"You deserve the worst that can befall, Drusilla Blake, but it was never decreed that parents should suffer for the folly of their children. Your insane obstinacy passes belief."

"I am very sorry, mother."

"Oh, Lord, what good does that do? A pleasant prospect ahead of me. To be housed with a superior sort of crank with the Mississippi river slopping over the front door step. It never has come any higher than that and I presume there is a limit even to its powers for evil."

To which the girl replied nothing. It was inevitable that she and her mother should share their watery isolation with each other alone. All of their neighbors had "refrigced" over in the hills or gone to the city to be out of harm's possible way. Since that explosive sound had startled her from her hard-won sense of security the girl's brain had been working very actively. She must exert every nerve to reducing the disaster to a minimum. Already the larger portion of the live stock had been sent back to the Mason hills. But there were the cows and her poultry to be housed in the gin rooms. There was fuel to be stored, and general preparations made for a siege of uncertain duration. Four short weeks ago escape had been possible. She had put the chance away from her, acting on a conviction of duty from which nothing on earth could make her swerve. She was not given to looking backward, but with the frightful roar of that crevasse making itself heard in the stillness of the soft spring morning, she almost wished the chance might be given her once more.

"That conscience of yours is always getting in the way of your own comfort. I will be glad if it does no worse this time," her mother snapped querulously.

Yes, it was certainly her conscience that had made her say "no" instead of "yes" when Arthur Dennison had asked her to marry him "without any feminine frippery" and let him place her and her mother in a place of safety before returning to his arduous duties as engineer in charge of the levees along the whole front of one district.

Every fiber of her being had thrilled with the glad affirmation she would not let person who. She would not let him burden himself so heavily because of a generous impulse of pity. "He does not know, poor mother," the girl argued with herself conscientiously. "After the danger is over and we secure she would make life unbearable for him and he shall not come to hate her nor me either. I will choose with her alone. Poor thing, she is my burden. No one shall share her with me."

Which was the cruel reason why she had looked up into the face dearest of all the world to her and said with that pendacity which only your truly good woman is mistress of: "I have known Mr. Dennison but a little while, mother, and I have never thought of you in—in this light. It would be a great injustice to you to settle so vital a matter under the impulse of self-preservation."

Unprotesting he had given his hand in farewell. There was no time for prolonged alliance. Lives and property were in his hand for preservation. He had smiled gravely down into her sweet, troubled eyes as he said:

"I had hoped for a different answer, dear, but should you see cause to recall your decision send for me. I shall be found—well—anywhere near the danger line. I am sorry I cannot be more explicit."

And conscience—up to that danger-fraught moment had sustained her. She had done right. She reiterated the words fiercely to herself. She would do it all over again. Yes, she would.

But all that had happened weeks ago. And Dennison was—she knew not where. What she did know was, that, within a few miles of them the "safest levee in the state" had just given way without a moment's warning and that she was alone with her crippled mother in the old plantation house so far away from neighbors or help. Alone, but for the corps of incapables who had remained on the place when the hands had been enrolled to fight the common enemy under Dennison's generalship. Her hardest task would be managing her mother. She assumed her gayest air of confidence.

"The water never has come up into the house, mother. Perhaps we shan't lose anything but the violets and the spring vegetables."

"What has been is no rule for the Mississippi river. You have heard a dozen people say it is going higher this year than ever."

The girl's darkening eyes turned towards the outer world where spirea and wistaria were making a white and purple tangle against the trellised veranda. Birds sang in the magnolia trees and a turquoise sky brooded peacefully above:

"There is no real danger, mother. Only inconvenience and deprivation. Perhaps—"

"When we might have been comfortably settled in the hills by this time with a capable man to look after us," her mother shrilled acerbously.

The first use she made of her crutches on the second morning took her to her upstairs bedroom window. She watched for Drusilla. The girl came, white and trembling.

"Drusilla, Drusilla, the water has never before passed the big spirea at the front gate, and now only its topmost branches are waving over the yellow flood."

"It is terrible, mother, but pray be calm. The house is high and as firm on its underpinning as a rock."

"Rock, rock. You are the only rock in sight; flint-hearted creature that you are. Where is Michael?"

"I have sent him away with the turkeys." She would not say that Michael had a note to Arthur Dennison in his pocket. If he should not find the engineer her mother's wrath would be too much for mortal nerves to stand.

"Sent him away with the only boat we could have escaped in! So like you, Drusilla."

"He will come back, mother."

"And where is Marla?"

"Kneeling on the dining-room table praying."

"On the dining-room table? Do you mean—"

"That the water is an inch deep down stairs, mother. Ria will bring your breakfast unless you—"

"Breakfast; what does a drowning woman want with breakfast? I tell you, girl, we are all going to be drowned like rats in a hole."

Drusilla said that she must see to removing the provisions from the storeroom, glad to get any excuse to get away from the wailing voice and streaming eyes that tore her heart with futile pains.

She was glad when darkness veiled the outer world from her mother's terror-stricken eyes. Glad when the querulous voice was stilled by sleep which, with no sense of criminality, she had insured by a mild narcotic dropped in her evening cup of tea.

She must have some time to herself to plan the morrow's campaign. Should Michael fail to find Dennison, what then? Leaning on a broken reed, indeed! She had written simply: "The danger line has reached us. Can you come or send help?" Michael could not possibly get back before 10 o'clock. And when he came?

She sat alone on the veranda upstairs. The white radiance of a full moon was shed on an unfamiliar scene. Steadily upward, still upward, the waters from the crevasse had crept until but a foot or two of space remained between the waters and the floor of the upper veranda. Should it rise during the night as it had during the day there was still the attic left to retreat to.

She leaned forward with a low cry of relief. She heard oars. The moon sailed under a heavy bank of clouds and left her only the sense of hearing. It was Michael. She knew the old man's jerky, feeble way of using his oars. Of course he had not found anybody. He was coming home to tell her so. She leaned forward in the darkness and sent a piteous, sobbing cry towards the sound.

"Michael?"

"Here, missy."

Was Michael laughing at her? It sounded marvelously like it. She felt a slight vibratory shock. The boat had come in contact with one of the long pillars supporting the veranda roof. The moon sailed out from under the bank of clouds. A man's hat was on the level of the gallery floor. A man's hands reached upward to clasp the hand-rail. The lean of an athlete—and Arthur Dennison stood by her side on the moon-lighted veranda. With a sob she flung herself towards him. With a glad laugh he clasped her close and then with a soothing touch he passed his hand over the tumbled mass of shining hair that lay against his shoulder in a perfect ecstacy of relief.

She lifted her wet eyes to ask tremulously:

"What would I have done, oh, my beloved; what would I have done if Michael had not found you?"

"Michael? And she really thinks that I waited to be told when she had reached the danger line? I knew it before you did, my own, and I was on my way to you with a great, clumsy barge as soon as the levee gave way, but Michael's boat was the swifter, and although his lop-sided rowing could scarcely be called fetching me on the wings of love, I came as directly as I could."

With his arm about her he turned and looked out upon the watery world about them.

"It is good to know that you summoned me, dear, when you had gotten to the end of your own resourceful devices. You are in serious peril."

"Were," she corrected, nestling trustfully close to his side. "As for the danger line—"

"I reached it," he interrupted, laughingly, "with my first look into your deep, true eyes."

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, May 2, 1903.
In the matter of the estate of Augusta Crocker, deceased:
Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of Augusta Crocker, late of Milwaukee, State of Wisconsin, deceased, and the probate thereof in the county court of Milwaukee county, State of Wisconsin, have been delivered to this court;
And whereas, John T. Crocker has filed therewith his petition, representing among other things that said Augusta Crocker, lately died in the County of Milwaukee, Wis., testate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in said County of St. Louis, and that said petitioner is the executor named in said will, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to said John T. Crocker, issued thereon;
It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court at the probate office in said county, on Monday, the first day of June, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;
And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth in said county.
Dated at Duluth, Minn., this second day of May, A. D. 1903.
By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

THE METROPOLIS OF THE MINNESOTA IRON RANGES

Hibbing Located In the Midst of the Greatest Iron Ore Deposit Known In the World.

Twenty-Eight Working Mines Within a Radius of Six Miles From the Thriving Town.

Hibbing, Minn., May 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Located in the midst of the greatest iron deposit known in the world, Hibbing today bears the proud title of "Metropolis of the Minnesota Iron Ranges," and she bears it deservedly.

The title has passed, from time to time, from one range city to another, but at present Hibbing's possession of it is unchallenged, and it is not likely to be assailed for some time to come.

It might be better to say that Hibbing is located "on" this iron deposit than to say it is situated "in" it, because the village itself is located over a great bed of ore that will one day be developed, when the town will have to move to a new location.

Few people not directly connected with the iron industry have more than a faint idea of what a tremendous thing is the iron deposit of the Hibbing district.

Within an area two miles long and a mile and a half wide, including the town of Hibbing, there is practically a continuous body of iron ore 50 to 300 feet thick. Fully 75 per cent of this area is underlaid with ore.

Within a radius of six miles from Hibbing there are twenty-eight working mines. In the entire Hibbing district, from Nashwauk to Buhl, there are thirty-two working mines, and a dozen more are getting ready to work. In this radius more than 300,000,000 tons of ore have been "proven up."

The Hibbing district includes four villages—Hibbing, Chisholm, Buhl and Nashwauk. In these four communities, and in the mining locations scattered between, there is a population of 12,000 souls, nearly three times as many as there were three years ago.

The labor pay rolls of the iron mines in this district carry between 4000 and 5000 well-paid men.

and the monthly pay rolls of the mining operations alone amount to well over $700,000 a month.

Hibbing itself has perhaps 7500 people, and it lives, moves and has its being in Iron Ore.

Iron ore is the keynote of it all. When you get on the train to go there you hear it talked without end. "Taconite," "slate," "formation," "southeast of the northwest," "58-20" and similar technical phrases float out from the hum of conversation that rises above the noise of the train. In every car there are men with maps and plats, which they are examining alone or in company with others, and the burden of their conversation is iron ore.

Going into Hibbing, just before the train pulls into the station, the visitor is informed that the train is then running over 300 feet of iron ore.

In Hibbing about the first thing the visitor hears, after entering into conversation with a resident, is that the town is built over an immense deposit of high-grade ore, and that one day it will have to move off so the ore can be mined. At the north end of the town is the Sellers mine, and at the southeast side is the Susquehanna, which is just being opened up. It is practically proven that one continuous body of ore connects these two mines, running through and under the eastern half of the village.

"That much we are sure of," said a mining man who was asked about the deposit under the town. "We are not sure that the part of the town west of this bed is underlaid with ore, but from the way ore is shown up all around, it would be funny if it was not."

"What is to become of the town when the owners of the mineral rights want to get at the ore?" All Hibbing lots were sold with the mineral rights reserved, by the way.

"Oh, there is a new townsite, or rather an addition, surveyed right near," was the reply.

"Is there any assurance that the town will find a permanent abiding place in the new location?"

"That has been thoroughly surveyed, and while it is underlaid with ore, it is of low grade and not in large deposits, so it is not likely that the town will be disturbed there."

But the available deposits are so tremendous that the ore under the town will not be needed for some time, and the inhabitants are not worrying about this matter.

That is not the end of the iron ore associations. Drinking water supply is a live question with range towns, and a natural inquiry from the visitor is along this line.

"We have splendid drinking water," is the answer. "It comes from a bed of iron ore, and it is as clear and cool as Duluth water, almost."

It is all iron ore. The town is built over it, the railroads run over it, the drinking water comes from it. When the wind blows the visitor gets his eyes, nose and ears full of it. The roads are built of it, and when he goes out walking he gets his shoes and trousers covered with a red layer of it. There is almost enough iron ore on his footwear when he gets back to town to pay for the shine he needs so much, and he looks guiltily at every iron man he sees for fear he is going to be upbraided for carrying off so much iron ore.

The talk of the hotel lobby at night is about iron ore. The visitor sits under a shower of technical remarks about iron ore, and the voices that float to his ear over the bannisters as he goes upstairs to bed are still talking about it.

And no wonder. Nobody that has not been to Hibbing and made some inquiries about it realizes what an immense thing it is. One may hear and read about the Mahoning mine, but he cannot realize what a stupendous thing it is until he sees it, and then he does not more than half realize it. So with the whole Hibbing iron deposit.

The Hibbing district runs from Nashwauk to Buhl, a distance of about twenty-four miles, and the belt does not average more than two miles in width, so far as is known at present. In that belt there is the wealth of an empire. The greater part of the working mines are immediately about Hibbing, and nobody can make a trip into the outskirts of the village without running into a working iron mine or two, but there are important mines at Nashwauk, at Buhl, at Chisholm and scattered through the intervening territory.

Besides, explorations are still in progress, and it is estimated by well-informed iron men that there are 125 diamond drills boring away in this twenty-four-mile strip. They are busily engaged in widening the iron belt, and in filling in vacancies between known iron deposits. Mining men say that the deposits are already pretty well defined. In a measure this is true, but mining men have a lot of state secrets, and among them are many relating to the new deposits that are being shown up by the diamond drills.

The extent of exploratory work over the iron ranges is shown by the number of drills that are working and the difficulty of securing them. One concern that does a good deal of exploring has as many drills working as it desires to carry, and will take no more work unless the owner of the property to be explored wants to buy a drill, in which case this firm will handle it. There are over 200 drills working on the Mesaba range.

Another item that shows how much work is being done is the price of black diamonds, used in drilling through rock. A diamond drill man, who has been in the business for many years, said the other evening that twenty-five years ago diamonds were worth $7 a carat, and now they bring $37.50 a carat. The increase is due to the enlarged demands for them.

Hibbing's position as the capital of the iron ranges is well founded, and in one particular she is enjoying an advantage over other range towns. Most of the mines thereabouts are leased, while the other towns have more fee mines. Now lessees of iron mines for bound by the terms of their contracts to put out certain amounts of ore each year, which they have to pay for whether they mine them or not. So the natural tendency is to work them in preference to the fee mins, and when mines are to be closed down temporarily it is always the fee mines that are closed down, while the leased mines are continued in operation.

In 1900 there were nine mines that shipped from the Hibbing district, and they put out 1,618,699 tons, while the Minnesota ranges shipped 11,267,057 tons. In that year, therefore, the Hibbing mines shipped about one-seventh of the Minnesota total.

Last year twenty-four Hibbing mines shipped 5,325,497 tons, while the Minnesota output was 15,427,103, so the jump in two years was from one-seventh to nearly one-third.

This year there are already thirty-two mines working in this district, and there will be several more by the end of the season. Meanwhile exploratory work is progressing. There will be more new mines later, and the boundaries of mines now working will be greatly enlarged.

The mines that are working, or that will be working before the end of the season, in the Hibbing district, are as follows: Hawkins, Crosby, La Rue, Stevenson, Cyprus, Leetonia, Mahoning, Burt, Utica, Hull, Elizabeth, Agnew, Susquehanna, Burt, Sellers, Day, Laura, Winnifred, Albany, Longyear, Morrow, Pillsbury, Glen, Leonard, Clark, Pearce, Chisholm, St. Clair, Shenango, Jordan, Croxton, Grant, Sharon and Morris.

Stripping is in progress on the Leonard, La Rue, Crosby and Morris (new mines,) and on the Burt, Leetonia, Stephenson, Croxton, Sharon, Albany, Hawkins and Morrow.

Shafts are being sunk on the Susquehanna, Elizabeth and Albany.

Explorations are being pushed all over the entire Hibbing district, and on almost every idle forty the little wooden frame work that indicates the presence of a diamond drill can be seen.

Of course the great show piece of the Hibbing district, the place where a large part of this immense ore deposit is laid bare for public inspection, is the Mahoning mine.

As stated before one must see the Mahoning mine to realize what it is, and then one can realize it but faintly. Roughly, its a hole more than forty acres in area and sixty feet deep in the deepest portions.

What has become of the millions of tons of material that once occupied the place now marked by that great hole? Shipped away to the Eastern furnaces to be turned into steel.

For this wonderful iron mine is simply a solid mass of iron ore, with a thin crust of earth over it. What little earth there was in the mass that has been removed makes no showing whatever, for it was in a very small portion to the iron ore that has been taken out. The hole is only sixty feet deep at most, and a natural inquiry is whether the bottom of the ore deposit has been reached. Nowhere near it. The ore body here is getween 200 and 300 feet deep and it is probably all just like that which the operations have left in sight—solid ore.

There are different grades of ore in the mine, of course, some of it being high grade and some of it not grading so well. But plenty of it is of the best sort. All that is necessary is to take a steam shovel and scrape off the earth, and then take the same steam shovel and load the rest of the mass into cars, when the railroad and steamship companies do the rest.

This makes very comfortable mining, especially when there is so much of the ore that nobody can see the end of it. The Mahoning property consists not only of the forty represented by a very valuable hole in the ground, but it also includes eight forties in a row running east and west, and there is reason to believe that the same deposit continues into much of the other property. As a matter of fact, several of the other near-by mines are working in practically the same deposit, and if they were all thrown into one there might be one great mine many acres in area.

While the Mahoning is a thing full of wonder and amazement, it is really only a small portion of the great iron bed in, under and around Hibbing. Mines are so close together that it is impossible for the stranger to tell where one ends and another begins. Walking on the main street, northward, within a few hundreds of feet from the town, there are three shafthouses, so close together that it seems they must be all on one mine. But they are three different mines, the Day, Burt and Sellers. Walking west along the railroad tracks, within a short distance is the Penobscot, which has shipped over 700,000 tons of iron ore in its time, but which has now been abandoned, temporarily at least. The Penobscot is located in a valley, and that valley accumulates so much water that it is exceedingly expensive to keep the mine dry enough to work. Hence the pumps have been withdrawn and the mine has been left to its own resources. Some day perhaps a scheme to get the water out of the mine and keep it out will be devised, at an expense not too great, and then the mine will be worked again, for it contains plenty of ore.

A little further along the track runs between the Agnew, on the left, and the Utica, on the right, both underground mines. Just now these mines are proud in the possession of big stock piles, and the mines are working to add to the piles while the railroad men are working to lessen them.

Farther southwest is a little lake, Carson lake, that is interesting because its waters cover an iron deposit which the mining men will be getting after one of these days. That will be the end of the lake, probably, because it is proposed to drain its waters away in order to permit mining operations.

Northward from the Utica and Agnew mines is the big open pit of the Mahoning, and in the territory intervening between these three mines and the village is a most depressing landscape from the standpoint of beauty, but a most interesting one from the practical standpoint of the miner, because it is supposed to be underlaid with more deposits of iron ore. Several drills are working over this area, adding a touch of life to an otherwise desolate landscape. Innumerable rocks and innumerable stumps are the only other features of a barren plain bounded by the Mahoning and Utica on one end, the railroad tracks on one side and the county road on the other, and at the other end by the village.

But Hibbing has not yet reached the stage where she has had time to think about beauty. It is all work now, and everything is just plain business. Who has time to think of beautifying the village, when diamond drills and pumps and steam shovels and hoisters and men to run them are working just as hard as ever they can to develop this tremendous iron deposit? Who cares for stumps and stones and desolate landscapes when they cover mineral deposits worth millions of dollars which must be taken out and sent away to the furnaces?

Besides, the fact that these deposits run under the village adds to residence there a sense of instability, and there is no use in thinking about looks in a temporary location. By and by, when the town is settled permanently, and when the work is well under way, there will be plenty of time to consider appearances.

What are these 125 diamond drills doing? Along the line of the ore belt from Nashwauk to Buhl they are being used to define the extent of known ore bodies and to locate new ones. Success is attending their work along both of these lines.

The result of these explorations are, in general, known only to the diamond drill operators and to the individuals and corporations that employ them. From time to time information of this sort is given out by the parties interested in making the explorations, and it is known that the limits of the ore belt are being widened every day.

The United States Steel corporation is exploring between the Rust mine and the townsite of Hibbing, the Mahoning people are drilling south of the Mahoning open pit, Cole & McDonald are working south of the Agnew, and John P. Morrow is drilling southwest of the Agnew. Between Chisholm and Buhl the Cascade Iron company and the Gates Iron company are finding ore. Near Buhl, next to the Croxton mine, T. W. Wahl and others, of this city, have a drill 100 feet in ore, most of it Does it not follow, perhaps, that when the rest of the iron belt has been as thoroughly explored similar showings will be made elsewhere? Not necessarily, of course, because it is not to be imagined that the iron bodies are continuous throughout the formation. But it seems to me that there is at least enough in the idea to show that by no means all of the iron bodies have yet been shown up, and that discoveries will continue for a long time."

The formation of upper Huronian rocks in which the iron is found does not stop at Nashwauk, the western extreme of the district considered in this dispatch, of course. It runs on into Itasca county, and its western end is not yet located. C. K. Leith, in his monogram on the Mesaba range, just published by the government, says that the western end of the range is undefined. Though the ore there is well covered by glacial drift and is mixed with particles of silica, the ore can be easily used by washing, and Professor Leith says that explorations are warranted well west of Grand Rapids.

It may easily be imagined that as the capital of this empire of iron, Hibbing is a lively burg. It is indeed a busy place. Its houses are full, and more are being built. Its principal hotel is constantly turning away guests, and hardly a night passes that late comers are not disappointed in their quest of lodging. The minor hotels and lodging houses have all they can handle. The merchants are busy and prosperous, and day and night the streets hum with traffic.

Hibbing is in many ways a typical mining town, and while some of the sensational features of Western mining camps are missing, the abundance of saloons, the whirr of the slot machine and the crowds on the streets of an evening mark a sharp distinction between this town and a peaceful, quiet, agricultural village of the same size.

Hibbing has not yet had its big fire, as some of the other range towns have, so most of the buildings are of frame construction. The habit of mining towns is to build up hurriedly in wood, burn down, and then rebuild in brick. Perhaps Hibbing will not have its fire, and in that case the rebuilding on the new site, which must come sooner or later, will probably be of a more substantial nature.

In the meantime all are doing very nicely in their present quarters, and the air of industry and business that pervades everything is very comfortably suggestive of the large amounts of money that hinge on the operations there. Hibbing is a good town, and it will be a good town for many years. Its growth has been rapid, as the population estimates show. In 1900 the government census gave the entire township of Stuntz, including Hibbing, 3564 inhabitants, while Hibbing alone has nearly 7500 people today.

This growth will continue for some time, as there is plenty of development for the western Mesaba range ahead. Hibbing will continue to be the base of supplies for most of it, though Grand Rapids is making some effort to connect with the portion of the range that extends into Itasca county.

For it will be a long time before even that tremendous ore body in the immediate vicinity of Hibbing is exhausted. Here are the deepest ore bodies of the entire Mesaba range. For instance, the Elizabeth mine has 400 feet of ore, and that is overlaid by 215 feet of surface. With deposits from 200 to 400 feet thick, a speedy exhaustion of the supply is hardly to be looked for.

FOR THE SWEET GIRL GRADUATE

Commencement Gowns of Exquisite Materials and Fine Laces—Pure White and Maiden Simplicity Still Requisite.

New York, May 2.—With the rosebuds of June, the girl graduate will make her last address to school comrades and wear her last school frock, which, the best tastes have always agreed, must be a pure white and express maiden simplicity in make. But since many exquisite materials and fine laces are now allowed school girls, the new commencement frocks are often stunning affairs.

At Vassar, Bryn Mawr, Smith college, and other prominent schools, it is the custom on the last day of the term for troops of girls to walk about the grounds carrying enormous daisy chains. They are almost as big in size as the Atlantic cable, and they are reported to be almost as heavy. Nevertheless, the daisy chain has provided manufacturers with some charming effects seen in embroidered linens and swisses offered for commencement use.

Much of the new graduating jewelry is also in daisy form, the white enameled flower appearing in brooches, belt knuckles and medallions for hoop bracelets. Even the daisy ring is seen, and this, since it is on the "pinky" order, is worn on the little finger. I may be only a slang term, but every girl knows that a "pinky" encircles the smallest digit of the left hand. For the rest, the graduating maid may wear an enameled locket swung from a thin gold neck chain. But no more jewelry than this is approved, and it is everywhere conceded that all the details of the commencement get-up must be white as well as the frock—shoes, gloves, sash and hair bow. Something of the first communion purity is the thing expected, though a touch of yellowish lace will not dim the graduating halo.

A group of charming commencement frocks shown by a leading outfitter reveals the increasing perfection of ready-made garments. They also give excellent suggestions for home manufacture, for if shop clothes are cheaper than those made to order, they cannot always be afforded.

All the diaphanous materials seen this long while are displayed by the majority of these frocks, but few of the blouse bodices, many of which fasten little-girl fashion at the back, reveal stocks. The necks are cut out in shallow squares, ovals or points, with lace and embroideries edging them in many ways. The sleeves of the smartest gowns also suggest an evening prettiness, for a number are only elbow length, and from this point they hang in floating flounces, with the drop longest at the back.

Nothing is prettier on a round, young arm than such a sleeve, and it gives all the opportunity desired for either a bracelet or the patch of black court plaster that the girlish coquette loves to display on her white wrist.

A single deep skirt flounce, pointed at the front, was the characteristic feature with several of these pretty frocks, and many of them were made with yokes, tucked, puffed and lace-inserted.

A gown with the skirt flounce headed by the single row of narrow Paraguay lace—a new and highly effective web, by the way—was mode of sheer French organdy. The blouse waist fastened under the left arm, and the lace-inserted yoke had the neck cut out in the predominating square. The sleeves, which fell in a single deep ruffle at the bottom, had the snug upper portions of the prevailing models.

The second of the pretty frocks was of the time-honored Swiss, ornamented chiefly with the time-honored frill which is narrower than the flounce, though long preceding it in the period of fashion. Frills, put around the body on a blousing foundation of the same material, formed almost all of the waist. The short sleeves were nearly completely of frills, and six of them, showing three tucks above the narrow hem, as did all the others, decked the bottom of the skirt. The upper part was inserted with Valenciennes lace, crossing at the front in a complicated pointing.

A point d'esprit frock, with white satin bands, had three skirt flounces of perhaps six inches in width. The odd little yoke of the bodice was plentifully striped with the satin, which was put on in narrow biases, and the flounces of the sleeves were unusually deep. A shaped belt of folded satin girdled the waist, but with the two preceding ones wide sashes of white Louisine had been provided.

As to this detail, a made sash of the Louisine shown for gowns is considered smarter than one in ribbon form. Louisine ribbons are apt to get stringy with one or two wearings, but the tucks and hemming of the made sash insure the fragile texture against this.

So much is a tone of yellow liked for lace and embroideries that even Swiss embroideries are now coming with a golden tinge. The white materials provided for these also show figures, stripes, and dots with a yellow tint, and if such a dress is made by capable fingers, it is a radiant thing.

This mellow toning marked one of the outfitter's most charming Swiss gowns, and though pure white is more popular for commencement service, the delicate coloring was far from a drawback for such an occasion. Indeed, several fine frocks displayed by private makers for graduating use go to extremes with the yellow lace fad.

One exquisitely beautiful toilette of white silk muslin was trimmed with lace so deeply colored as to seem almost saffron. The wide lace was extremely heavy in quality, though this was made up by its sparse use—a band in the skirt, one around the bodice at the bust point and one at the top of each sleeve, being employed.

In the matter of quality, the thinnest textures are the first choice for this maiden finery. Swiss, mousseline, net, point d'esprit, organdie and even chiffon are everywhere conspicuous, and for these dainty textiles, plain and dotted footing, narrow satin ribbons and fine tucking are some of the simpler trimmings.

Heavy embroidered linen gowns will also be worn, as we have caught the linen fever too badly for fashion to ignore it on commencement day. The gala touch will be given these gowns by white satin belts and stole collars in many dressy shapes, as well as rich lace insertions.

The thinner gowns, even those of a highly elaborate nature, are built upon foundations of Swiss, which, the fashion people explain, is more girlish than silk. For the linen frocks, all of which are unlined, unless the texture is a very diaphanous weave, the usual white lawn underwear is advised, though this may be crowded with as much lace and ribbon as the wearer likes.

All the points of fashion, except the train, mark the costumes shown for commencement wear. Skirts escape the floor or touch it, sleeves are elaborately picturesque, and the hips are made slight by many devices in narrow down-running tucks and pleats. If the graduating girl is too much like a lead pencil in figure, a puffed hip yoke or deep encircling tucks may build her out at this point. But the tendency is to have the costume below the waist look as much like an inverted V as possible, which means, if the fad increases, that we will come to lacing again after a while. Meantime, the waist is left at a comfortable limit, but the sloping girdle is intended to decrease the effect of its size.

As it is the fad on commencement day for the pupils of country colleges to walk about the grounds with only brilliant parasols to give them a touch of color, the graduating coiffure is now carefully arranged.

Pretty and youthful styles displayed by prominent coiffeurs show the hair twisted in a heavy bunch at the nape of the neck. The locks are divided evenly at the back and each section loosely rolled. They are then brought together looped, and the ends wrapped around the coil, which may be decked at one side or both with a ribbon bow or a knot of simple flowers.

Other low and drooping effects are made by definitely braiding the hair, which is afterwards wound in a rounder coil, with a white bow straight across the top. The front of the coiffure is in a feathery, loose pompadour, or the hair may be parted at one side or in the middle, with a mist of love locks at the temples.

Pretty details for the graduating girl are the reticules of coarsely knitted white silk, with gold trimmings, which the jewelers show. Some for ordinary use are fashioned in the popular coarse linens. The object of them is to hold the handkerchief, purse, smelling bottle and other feminine trifles.

Some little fans, which likewise may be slipped into them—and where would the graduating girl be without her fan?—are scarcely five inches long. These are made of white and tinted gauzes, shaped and painted to simulate roses, orchids and butterflies. The prettiest of these fans for graduating use are, of course, the white ones.

Pipings are the order of the day and of such silks. There are blue silks piped with green, blacks and white checks piped with white, and pongees piped with plaids or bright reds. Nearly every woman planned her shirt waist silk to travel in, and then found it rather too much embellished for that purpose. With those who do not have to think of expense this will simply mean another unlined silk more fitting of its name—a genuinely plain shirt waist and plaited skirt. There have been some dark wash silks shown among a lot at only 39 cents a yard in a certain shop Either of two plain blues would be particularly suitable for gowns for this purpose. A plain dark blue, with white collars and cuffs, would make any woman an attractive companion.

The shirt waist gown has grown so prevalent it is no wonder that dressmakers have raised their prices for making them. Their excuse is that even if unlined they are covered with work, and that box or knife-plaited skirts are enough to turn any one's hair gray in the making.

The best models of such gowns are extremely full and loose looking. Plaits are of unusual width and run lengthwise; reaching out over the tops of the sleeves, thus giving great breadth to the waists. They also correspond with those in the skirts. The well made shirt waist dress is always simple looking. It is made walking length, and should suit its name, never stepping over the bounds into fineness.

A pretty pongee has a wide knife plaits piped with bright scarlet. The piece down the front of the waist, and cuffs, were strips of embroidery done on the pongee, in old-fashioned cross-stitch, the familiar one used in old samples or mottoes. Bright red, a touch of green and old blue were the colors used in this conventionally designed border. At the stock was a soft tie with ends of embroidery. The gown was simple looking, but entirely reserved from the commonplace.

There is no part of woman's dress in which there is a greater chance for individuality and originality than in the shirt waist dress, for it is limited in a way. To have a successful gown that is not overdone and still is different from any one else's, is a somewhat difficult matter. After all, though, such a dress is like a shirt waist, the test of it lies with the wearer. So much depends on the way it is put on.

The summer girl is inclining much toward the 1830 period, in manner of dress. The most ordinary tub-gown shows some suggestion of a paneled front, or drooped shoulder, while when decked in all her regalia, of trailing all-over lace robe, long Empire coat, picture hat, lace mitts and fancy slippers, the type could give her grandmother cards and spades on material charms and how to use them.

Gowns which are not yoked clear down on to the arm simulate such a dropped shoulder, by bands of insertion reaching across the sleeve. That girl may rejoice who inherits pretty sloping shoulders which were her foremother's pride; nothing more exaggerates square shoulders than this manner of trimming heralded by fashion. Skirts are inclining to looseness around the hips; three-piece skirts, and various methods of embellishing even plain models, suggest panlers, and that much-to-be-dreaded overskirt so much derided in the past. It is to be hoped fashion will get her head and have mercy for her victims before she reaches hoops.

Full and quaintly fashioned sleeves, old-fashioned chains with tiny fans, and dainty silk stockings, beautifully embroidered, are some of the small accessories which go to complete this modern-old toilet.

Fashion took a funny notion and went to tan color this spring. She evidently knew what she was about, for the result has been very delightful. Naturally the rage for all sorts and kinds of tan gowns lead to a corresponding popularity for russet-colored hats. There is nothing prettier han a Tuscan hat and pink roses. It makes almost as poetic a summer girl as the long-inspired "simple white and blue ribbons." Hats of this color are seen in tailor-made shops, with touches of red for morning wear. With a linen gown and the inevitable tan cloth, the summer girl is a real symphony in this pastel shade.

The linen or pongee parasol will be much in favor this summer. Those who are fortunate enough to have old and very high sticks to be re-covered may be economical and fashionable.

Long, loose coats of pongee carry out the prevailing monochrome. There is a certain joy about these in that they go with anything.

Linen shoes will be the thing. Everybody knows there was never anything to equal a canvas shoe for real comfort in hot weather. It is strange that shoppers complain it is a little difficult to find a well-shaped canvas low cut. Most of the shoes now incline toward a broad commonsense cut. That is very good for an ordinary outing shoe, but not attractive when done in white canvas. Several seasons back there was a beautiful high-heeled canvas low-cut pur-

A Hospital Case

There was a hurry call for the ambulance of the City Hospital. In the course of a few moments a very sick woman was brought in on a stretcher—she was pale as death and evidently suffering keen agony. There was a hasty examination and consultation, and in less than a quarter of an hour the poor creature was on the operating table to undergo an operation for ovaritis.

The above is an accurate account of an incident which occured in New York recently; the young woman in question had warnings enough of her dangerous condition in the terrible pains and burning sensation low down in her left side. She had no one to advise her, and she suffered torture until it was too late for anything to save her life.

Women should remember that if they do not care to tell a doctor their troubles, they should be willing to tell them to a woman, who stands ever ready to advise and help them. Again we state that Mrs. Pinkham's advice is freely and confidentially given to every one who asks for it. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The following letters prove beyond question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the power to cure, and does cure thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries, womb, and all other derangements of the female organism.

MRS. OTTOSON SAVED FROM A SURGICAL OPERATION.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot thank you enough for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. If it had not been for your medicine, I think I would have died.

"I will tell you how I suffered. I could hardly walk, was unable to sleep or eat. Menstruation was irregular. At last I had to stay in my bed, and flowed so badly that they sent for a doctor, who said I had inflammation of the ovaries, and must go through an operation, as no medicine could help me, but I could not do that.

"I received a little book of yours, and after reading it I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am now a well woman. I shall praise your medicine as long as I live, and also recommend the same to any one suffering as I was."—MRS. MINNIE OTTOSON, Otho, Iowa. (June 9, 1901.)

—Stick to the medicine that you know is Best. Write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice.

Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that these thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the great Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills. Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. INFLAMMATION OF THE OVARIES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for the restored health and happiness Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought into my life.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure I could not survive the ordeal, and so I told him that I would not undergo it. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of your Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, and was in excellent health, and am now.

"You surely deserve great success, and you have my very best wishes."—MISS ALICE BAILEY, 50 North Boulevard Atlanta, Ga., Treasurer St. Francis Benevolent Association.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Stratton Estate Ready to Lease Several Holdings.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 2.—For several years prior to his death the late W. C. Stratton was consantly acquiring new holdings of the best properties in the Cripple Creek district. As he was planning development work on a large scale through several centrally located shafts, work on these properties was suspended after their purchase by him until such time as he was ready to put his gigantic schemes into operation. For a long period, therefore, a large section of the Cripple Creek district has been comparatively idle, and since his death the estate has not been in position to handle the properties actively until now. The executors now announce that they are ready to lease these holdings, and it is stated that already more than 1000 applications for leases from experienced mining men have been received. The rush for leases has exceeded all anticipations and has brought back many of the best known miners who formerly operated in the camp. The reopening of this territory and the prosecution of active work will add to the increasing activity in the Cripple Creek district, and will give employment to several thousand more miners than at present.

The first clean-up at the new Gillett cyandide works was completed late last week. About 500 tons have been run through in fourteen days, and the clean-up consisted of thirty-five pounds of zinc shavings and sixty-five pounds of slimes, the value of which is estimated at $1800.

Steady shipments are being sent out from the Empire State. Very little definite information can be obtained from those in charge of the property, but it is understood that the mine in the lower levels shows wider and richer ore than was ever before mined in this section of Bull Hill. The west slope of Bull Bill, prolific in large pockets and economic values, is again attracting attention from a find made by the Gold Templ company, on the Gold Sovereign claim. A six-foot vein, at a depth of 600 feet, is yielding an average of $25 in gold per ton.

YOUNG WOMAN IS MURDERED

Sister of Lorain, O., Priest Is Brutally Killed.

Lorain, Ohio, May 1.—Intense excitement prevails here as a result of the brutal murder last night of Miss Agatha Reichten, a handsome and popular young woman, by an unknown man. Miss Reichten lived with her brother, Rev. Father Reichten, of St. Joseph's Catholic church, who was absent from the city when the crime was committed. A younger brother of the girl and Rev. Wallace were, however, guests at the priest's home. Late last night they heard Miss Reichten scream. They believed she was sick and they rushed to the room.

In the hallway they met a man. He ordered the two men away and then rushed to the window and jumped out. Miss Reichten was dead. Her head was battered to a pulp, and a heavy stone stained with blood and with hair, clinging to it was found, showing how the crime had been committed. No motive for the crime is known. Hounds have been put on the trail and efforts are being made to catch the murderer.

RESIGNATION NOT ASKED.

The Postoffice Department Stands By Gen. Machen.

Washington, May 1.—Postmaster General Payne said today that the resignation of General Superintendent Machen of the free delivery system had not been asked for by either Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, who is conducting the investigation of the department, nor by First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne. He said that Mr. Machen should not be removed unless such action should be requested by the fourth assistant or positive evidence of the commission of some unlawful or improper act should be presented. Mr. Payne said that no facts having been presented, there was nothing before him in the form of any proof; that there is nothing except assertions, and therefore removal or suspension is not now under contemplation.

KING EDWARD AT PARIS.

Paris, May 1.—King Edward arrived here at 3 p. m. today. He was greeted at the station by President Loubet. A military band played "God Save the King" and the troops on duty presented arms. He wore the uniform of a British field marshal. The king drove through the avenues, the Bois De Boulogne and the Champs Elysee to the British embassy and was everywhere accorded enthusiastic greetings. After a brief rest at the embassy he proceeded to the Elysee palace where he was received by President Loubet.

Miss Newman's 1000 ACRE farm in the Heart of the Adirondacks

Remote from the activities of the city in which she once bore a conspicuous part, on a farm of one thousand acres, shut in by wooded mountains, lives Miss Anna Newman, artist, musician, philanthropist and farmer. No other farm land in the state has so high an elevation as Miss Newman's, and on it she has raised the only wheat and hard corn ever grown in that locality. For twenty-six years this isolation has lasted. Before that Miss Newman lived in Philadelphia, where she sketched and painted and composed waltzes over which her friends raved. She had money and social position, and because of this, together with her artistic temperament, a brilliant career was opened to her.

She was a member of Dr. Phillips Brooks' church—knew the great man personally. The musical director of the church gave her instruction in music, and she was an apt and appreciative student. Dr. Henry Van Dyke is her cousin, and she has other distinguished relatives. Whatever prompted the brilliant young woman to leave her home in Philadelphia, to say farewell to her friends and to neglect the opportunities which were hers is a mystery.

Romance and mystery envelop this woman as the country folk tell her life. Doubtless there is a basis for some of the incidents, but much may be set down to their effort to account for a woman of wealth and culture voluntarily making her permanent home in a region rich in material for the artist but desolate for the farmer.

Incidents of her coming to the Adirondacks are related by old stage drivers, who delight in discussing the eccentricities of a woman whose good deeds are manifold, whose farming, although on so immense scale, has not absorbed as much of her thought and strength as the affairs of a little white church near a cross road in the outskirts of the town.

She was a passenger upon the stage which arrived in North Elba from Elizabethtown one afternoon. Several tourists were seated on the veranda of the quaint inn, which stands there even now, a lonely reminder of the days of travel and recreation in the hotels, sprung into prominence.

When the six horses came to a stop and a woman shook the folds from her skirts preparatory to alighting, a stage driver, young and gallant, arose from his seat upon the verandh and went to her assistance.

"Go away," she is reported to have said. "I'll accept nothing from the hands of a man."

The remark may have been made in fun, but as the woman was Miss Newman, and she elected to make her home in the vicinity, the story got abroad that she was a man hater, and even to-day she is called so by the people of Lake Placid and North Elba, who seem to find an excuse for this in the theory that at some time she suffered a disappointment in love.

Miss Newman has always been independent in action. Old Mountain Phelps, the famous guide of the Keene Valley and Mount Marcy country, who was one of the first to welcome her to the Adirondacks, had some interesting experiences as chief guide of her party on a trip over Mount Marcy and some neighboring peaks.

In those days Mount Marcy was regarded as a difficult task for a man of considerable physical endurance, and Mountain Phelps was inclined to question whether these women could make the journey. At the first difficult place Phelps was at the side of Miss Newman to assist her, but she said that if she couldn't climb that mountain alone she wouldn't go.

Phelps was angered and tramped up the mountain trail for several hours without giving further attention to the women until finally he heard a squeal behind him and turned to see Miss Newman sitting in a pool of mud and water, where she had fallen.

Without waiting to ask her if he might be permitted he grasped her by the shoulders and lifted her to a better footing on the trail. She didn't object.

Miss Newman says that she entered the Adirondack Mountains with the object of making sketches a little more than twenty-six years ago. After extended travel she decided upon the location of her farm. It is on a plateau, surrounded by the highest peaks of the mountains. On the northeast is Scott's Cobble, on the east Pitchoff and Cascade, while on the southeast, south and southwest are the ranges comprising Big Slide, the Gothics, Haystack, Marcy, Mount Colden and Mount McIntyre. Immediately south of the farm is Mount Jo, while just back of it is Mount Nye. The meadows have an elevation of about seventeen hundred feet above sea level, while one of the foothills of Mount Nye, where Miss Newman has grown wheat and hard corn, has an elevation of more than twenty-one hundred feet above sea level, a prominence which would be called a mountain were it not in the midst of peaks like Marcy and McIntyre, which have elevations of 5,344 and 5,112 feet, respectively.

Miss Newman owns 1,000 acres there in the basin of the mountains, valued at about $75,000. When she came into possession stumps approached to the sides of the roadway, but through her efforts over 200 acres have been cleared.

Her experience with wheat and hard corn was expensive. The fertilizer had to be drawn to the top of the mountain on stoneboats by oxen, and the wheat when harvested was brought down the mountain the same way. It cost when made into flour about $15 per barrel, but Miss Newman had demonstrated that "can't" was not in her vocabulary. The raising of hard corn is an experiment often attempted in the Adirondacks, but it was never successful until Miss Newman grew it and had it ground into corn meal.

For years Miss Newman worked like a man on her farm. She cared for her own horses, did her own driving, assisted the men in harvesting the crops and was active in the various duties of the farm until she fell and broke her hip about two years ago. She is a busy woman to-day in the management of the affairs of her estate, but she does not engage in the manual labor which characterized her earlier years in North Elba.

Some of the men employed by Miss Newman have found her to be "notional." She has always been fond of fine horses and would tolerate none that was not of good breed and in excellent condition.

One fine dappled gray having been stricken with the stringhalt, she instantly ordered it to be taken to the forest and killed.

On another occasion one of her fine horses which had been kept in the barn for some time manifested a playful desire to jump and canter when it was again led into the open air.

Miss Newman pronounced him "vicious" and directed that the animal be killed, saying that it was a harmful thing to have around. Only a few days before this she had been offered several hundred dollars for the horse, but had refused to part with him. One of the farm hands protested that the animal was only playful and not vicious, but she would not listen even to his offers to purchase him.

The man led the horse away, a gunshot was heard soon after in the direction of the forest, and it was supposed that the horse had been killed.

Not long after the horse appeared in Keene Valley in the possession of the man who had offered so much money for him. It was more than a year before Miss Newman learned of the deception that had been practiced upon her, and then she brought suit against the farm hand.

Miss Newman demands unswerving loyalty from those who serve her, whether in the house or in the fields. There is something feudal-like in the protecting care she extends over those in her employ and the faithfulness that she expects in return. She has set the example of industry and looks to her employes to follow it.

It is her custom, now that she is not able to enter the fields with the men and assist in the harvesting, to sit at the window of her home and watch the work of the men, perhaps a mile away, through powerful field glasses.

Miss Newman asserts that her cows are milked four times a day, twice by her employes and twice by strangers, she having been aroused in the night by disturbances in the pastures and found upon investigation a robber in the yard milking her cows by the light of a lantern.

Equal to, if not greater than, her interest in her farm is her interest in the little white church by the crossroads in the outskirts of the little village of Newman, which was named after her. The church is more than a mile from her home, but is separated from her lands only by the public highways. The church has been dedicated to the people who live nearby.

Here Miss Newman regularly each Sunday afternoon at three o'clock conducts a Sunday school and has been keeping up the custom for many years; some of the children who now attend her Sunday school are the children of boys and girls whom she used to teach.

Miss Newman has been a close student of the social conditions which surround the youths and young women of North Elba. She is unutterably opposed to dances in the mountains and has found, much to her sorrow, that some of the young men who have been students in her Sunday school fell into bad ways at a club house in Lake Placid.

Miss Newman said that she had received offers of money if she would write some waltzes, as she did when she was less deeply engrossed with the affairs of her farm.

"I am too busy to do it," she said.

When it was suggested that some one might find pleasure and entertainment in it, she replied:—

"I am opposed to dancing, not as they dance in the city, but as they dance here. I used to write music and play at parties at home, but since I came here my ideas have changed. These dances lead to everything that is bad."

For some time she had as a companion a minister's daughter, and at nearly all times she has a servant in the house in the person of some member of her Sunday school.

She is hospitable and charitable in her manner toward strangers if they approach her in a respectful manner. She has many friends among the summer visitors at Lake Placid, who ride over to visit her. The people of the surrounding country have chosen that remarkable plot of ground where she has raised the wheat for the scene of their basket picnics. She welcomes them and makes them as happy as she can, and they enjoy their outings greatly up there on a grassy hillside which commands a surpassing view of the glorious mountains of the Adirondacks.

Miss Newman's features were once beautiful, but they, with her hands, show the impress of years of toil and of rough contact with laborious tasks.

Miss Newman is a student. Her house contains many books and magazines. Her friends send her special publications upon the important topics of the day. For some time she has been devoting her attention at spare moments to the study of liquid air and wireless telegraphy.

She is familiar with the geology of the region and has climbed the highest peaks of the Adirondacks and penetrated to the depths of the canyons. The only rocks in the Adirondacks bearing traces of volcanic origin she located in the vicinity of Keene.

May Day Guests Labored.

Being of a practical turn of mind, a young matron who had to move on May 1 made her hospitality bear fruit along the lines of utility. Her entertainments frequently were of an unusual character, so there was no surprise among her friends when they received invitations to a May party at her own address.

The hour for the affair was noted as somewhat unusual—"from five P. M. until you can't stand any more"—but this only whetted curiosity. The request in the corner that the guests should wear their oldest clothes and bring, in one case, sandwiches; in another, olives, and in still another, cheese, revived memories of surprise parties of childhood days and strengthened the desire to attend.

Upon arriving at the new residence the guests were somewhat disconcerted to discover everything in a chaotic condition. The hostess, however, beamed upon them from the motley array of chairs, pictures and draperies with such a charming smile that they realized that, despite appearances, they were expected.

If any had a few lingering doubts on this subject they were dispersed when, after removing their hats and wraps, they were given a slip on which were instructions as to the part they were to take in the picnic. To the girls were given the lighter tasks of arranging books, china and bureau fittings. The men put down rugs, hung pictures and put up beds. Hired helpers did the unpacking and carrying away of crates and excelsior. Though she declares herself to be no matchmaker, she takes credit to herself for the two engagements that were the outcome of this domestic association. No one complained of fatigue, but the hostess called a halt at nine.

Preoccupied.

She was a teacher of vocal music. Her mind was occupied, to the utter exclusion of the external world, with profound thoughts on the subject of nasal tone.

En route to the post office she had, in lieu of her fare, proffered the street car conductor her hand to shake. To the clerk at the post office she said:—

"How much are stamps?"

"One cent or two cent?" inquired the clerk, laconically.

"Two cent. How much are they?"

A Graceful Walk May Be Cultivated.

In some respects a woman should walk just as a man does, with the same steadiness of motion, freedom and certainty of step, but at the same time, by lightness of movement, suggesting her more delicate organization of living.

With all the increase of athletic sports among them, fewer women than men approach toward the ideal of a perfect walk. Occasionally we see a woman who has gained such a walk unconsciously by long practice out of doors, by dancing and such exercise. Occasionally we may see one who has it, like rare beauty, as a gift.

"Look at that girl," said a gentleman passing with a friend through a street where many children played. "Did you ever see such natural grace before? I have noticed her often as I come this way, and it is a pleasure to me to watch her."

The girl passed by, walking smoothly, quietly. She was perhaps fifteen years of age. To her face you would not give a second glance; her hair was short and not beautiful, but in her wide, low heeled shoes she skimmed over the stones of the sidewalk as a sea gull tops the sea.

The girl was beautiful, though her face was plain; every line of her was natural, unconscious grace. It was the perfect harmony, the whole body expressed in that rare walk that made people in the street turn to look at her. A carriage and a walk like that may sometimes be gifts of nature, but they are likewise to be acquired by cultivation.

Several mistakes are frequently made by people who attempt to teach others just these things. The first is the oft-repeated direction, "Throw your shoulders back." Now merely throwing the shoulders back accomplishes nothing except as it may give the chest a little more freedom at the expense of the spine, causing an unnecessary and sometimes dangerous amount of friction there and inducing the "sway back" carriage, which is as bad for the back as the stooped forward position is for the chest.

Another mistake that is made like this, sometimes even in gymnasiums, is that of calling too much attention to the feet. To think just how each step should be taken, where and how the feet should be put each time it comes down, makes one altogether too conscious of the feet; they become leaders instead of servants, carriers of the body as they should be.

First—Hold the crown of the head well up.

Second—Carry the chest forward.

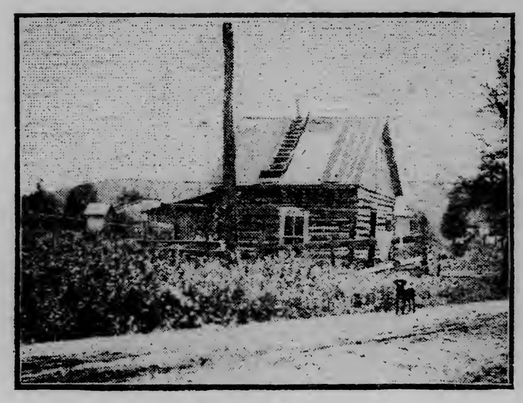
Third—Let the weight fall on the balls of the feet.

Happily, what looks good from nature's standpoint is good. The walk that looks best is the best from every other point of view.

Laying aside all clothing that unduly binds, including tight collars, tight corsets, tight gaiters and tight and high heeled shoes, any woman is ready to learn how to follow out the principles laid down so as to acquire a natural walk—one that in consequence will be easy, graceful and dignified, at the same time light and free, so that she can walk further without fatigue and endure more than she could in any other fashion.

Lifting and carrying the crown of the head very high straightens the spine and lifts every organ and every part of the body to its normal place. Part by part the body is free and no section of it oppresses another; the head is lifted from the neck, the neck from the chest, the chest from the hips and abdominal section, and so are they from the knees, and hence the ankles have no undue strain upon them, but they carry only a due and fair amount of the weight of the body. In this way one starts to walk with the least amount of friction of the parts and an actively elastic condition is superinduced at the beginning.

When the whole body is thus in the best condition for walking, the chest naturally takes the leadership. The chest is the higher part which directs the lower, the legs especially. The centre of the chest should be kept strong and reposeful, so that watching that part only the body appears to glide forward with a scarcely perceptible motion. The hips play, as one walks, slightly from side to side in that subtle fashion observed sometimes in the carriage of a great actress, and at once a powerful instrument of expression as well as an exceeding grace.



A Neighbor's House.

Where there is a lack of repose in the chest one sees the gait such as seamen have rolling from side to side, or, aiming to correct that, the opposite fault may be acquired, that of holding the hips so stiffly that the whole body appears painfully rigid and constrained.

As one steps forward the weight should fall upon the balls of the feet, first one and then the other. This gives elasticity to the movement. The exercise of walking ought to lay up for a woman stores of health and beauty; but when she comes down hard on her heels with each step she takes, only nervous evils follow, because of the jar to internal organs and to the spine, that chain of bones which carries in it the delicate spinal cord on which the comfort, power and harmony of the body almost entirely depend.

Breathe deeply of the fresh air as you go along, drink it in, hold it in, and let it out slowly. The more air there is in the lungs the more elastic will be the carriage, and the finer the complexion, the rosier the cheeks, and more bright do the eyes become.

The Last Straw.

Amanda Johnson had for years, in consideration of a fair sum, done the washing of Mrs. O. L. E. Detch, of Chelsea square, with pride, promptness and precision. 'Manda had no superior as a laundress, and, as events disclosed, no inferior as a mathematician.

Miners in the coal regions struck for higher wages. Coal became scarce. Instantly metropolitan dealers added ten cents on the bushel to the price of the commodity. 'Manda, with remarkable mathematical perspicuity, at once doubled her charge for a week's washing. Mrs. Detch declined to increase the old fee by more than one-half. Thereupon, with painful politeness on both sides, mistress and laundress severed forever their business relations.

Mrs. Detch was terribly cut up. To at once engage another laundress was, asleep or awake, the sole purpose of her existence, but she knew not in her excitement where to seek her. The laundries ruined her bits of feminine finery, and nobody could give tablecloths that glossy smoothness which 'Manda, with the taste of an artist, had never failed to give them.

In this extremity Mrs. Detch did an unaccountable thing. She begged her laundryman, of all men in the world, to recommend a washerwoman—a washerwoman not connected with his establishment! And his recommendation, which he magnanimously proffered, threw her into a fit of uncontrollable despondency.

He recommended Amanda Johnson!

Transplanting Teeth.

The last and most ingenious resort of the dental surgeon is "implantation"—that is, the setting of new teeth into the jaw. For this purpose real teeth are employed, and not artificial ones. Cocaine having been first applied for producing local anaesthesia, a hole is drilled in the jawbone and into this socket a good tooth, newly drawn from somebody's jaw, is set.

If the patient is young and vigorous the osseous structure soon closes around it, and by the time the gum is healed the tooth is ready for use. It should last from three to ten years. In the case of an elderly or feeble person it may be fastened in place by silver wire passing around the jawbone.

The root of a freshly extracted tooth is covered with a delicate membrane called the "periœmentum," the vitality of which materially assists the combining of the tissues. Unless the grinder is directly transferred the vitality of this membrane must be artificially preserved. One way of doing it is to graft the tooth temporarily into the comb of a cock, that part of the fowl being well fed with blood, as may be seen from its redness. When wanted for use it is cut out. Ordinarily the patient is obliged to wait for a while until the dentist has a suitable tooth freshly extracted, unless he chooses to hire somebody to sacrifice one.

DOINGS IN SOCIETY

One delightful affair that society had this week was the musicale-dance of the Mozart club, under the direction of Mrs. D. H. Day, Thursday evening at the Spalding for the Children's home. The club is composed of the younger pupils of Mrs. Day, and the musicale in which they took part the early part of the evening was a most delightful one, and was thoroughly enjoyed by the many friends present. A fine program was given and the wee performers brought great credit to themselves and their teacher. A large number of tickets have not as yet been heard from, and in order to help with the winding up of the affair remittances should be sent in at once to Mrs. Day.

The program was as follows:

Elaine waltz, (eight hands) .....Holst
First piano—Grace Farmer, Alvda Flaten; second piano—John McGreevy, Charlie Bradley.
March .....Hartl
Edith Fitzsimmons.
Waltz .....Giese
Melville Silvey.
Fragrant Violet .....Spindler
Mary Erick.
Sprites of the Dance .....Bohm
May Jeffery.
On the Meadow .....Lichner
Marjorie Merrow.
LaCenerentola .....Hunten
Vera Twist.
Andante et Air de Ballet .....Daube
Emily Columbia Smith.
Polonaise .....Muller
Marie d'Autremont.
(a) Dance of the Elves .....Grieg
(b) Hungarian Battle Song .....Reinhold
Ruth Maginnis.
Polonaise .....Seifert
Marjorie May Harrison.
Rondoletta .....Hunten
Natalie Smith.
Introduction et Polonaise (violin) .....Allen
Barbara Pecor.
Rondo .....Kuhlau
Gladys Tyler.
Valse Impromptu, (eight hands) .....Ratl
First piano—Florence Howard; Catherine Hunter; second piano—Julia Morrow, Natalie Smith.

The stage at the end of the room was prettily decorated with palms, and after the musicale Flaten's orchestra played and the dance followed. The affair was the one thing that enlivened an otherwise perfectly dull week. Among those present were:

Messrs and Mesdames:

Clubs and Musical.

Friday of last week a meeting of the Fourth district federation was held at St. Paul and Mrs. E. M. La Penotiere, president of the State Federation, addressed the meeting. Among other things Mrs. La Penotiere spoke of the woman in the labor field, and suggested that the club women of Minnesota use their influence to persuade manufacturers to employ young women in the place of women, in order to compell the women to the home life and domestic work, where she belongs. Mrs. La Penotiere went as far as to suggest that a boycotting measure be used to bring about this state of affairs.

These remarks have caused a deal of discussion throughout the state. Mrs. La Penotiere's suggestion would involve 8000 club women of the state if carried out.

The opinion of many of the club women of the city is that Mrs. La Penotiere has been misquoted, for in numerous other questions with which she has had to deal she has shown a keenness of perception which they do not think was shown in the statement as reported. Mrs. J. L. Washburn said:

"In the statement there is, of course, a germ of truth, and the conditions as they exist today are really an evil. The ideal condition of a community is the condition where the women are supported by the men and so are left to become the home-makers. A lecturer here a few years ago, speaking on the 'New Man,' said that so much of the woman's home work is now done at the manufactory that women were almost compelled to enter what was regarded as the field of men. Now in the restaurants the food is cooked by men, served by men, women's gowns are often made by men, and women's hats are trimmed by men. She also pointed out that the work that women had done for years in the home was now done at the factory. The weaving and cheese and butter making are no longer work of the home. That this condition is deplorable we, of course, all admit, but to take from the women now the opportunity to make their living would be unjust."

Another of the women whose opinion always carries weight, but who prefers not to have her name given, said: "The suggestion, of course, is leaning toward the ideal condition of mankind, but to take the course suggested at this time would be barbarous. It is a question of growth, not of agitation. That man should support woman is the condition toward which we should strive, but to say now that such must be the case would be as consistent as to say that we must all, at a certain date, be angels. A man friend said to me the other day that none of the women of his family had ever worked. This might have sounded arrogant, but it was not meant. He had simply been raised where the men of the families were the provider in all cases, which is the condition to be striven for, but one might take the case of eight children, and all of them girls. What is to be done then? I firmly believe in the idea est forth, that men should care for women, but if it were necessary I would go out to work tomorrow, and would not want to be compelled to go back to the home life when there was none to go to."

The coming of Madame Schumann Heink, the famous contralto, who will be at the Lyceum May 13, is awaited with eagerness by all music lovers.

People who have heard Madame Schumann-Heink in recitals or in one of her famous operatic roles will be surprised when they hear her again here. To those who have been unable to hear her previous to this concert she will prove a revelation. It will not be in the voice alone, though it is broad, full of splendid musical quality and of a wholesome, hearty, appealing ring. It is not the vocalism, which is of astonishing perfection and elocutionary finish, for altogether the expression, lyric and dramatic which in its genuine power speaks directly to the heart. Not even all these together. For there is added a personal quality, a mellow German emotional element; a vivid, soulful appropriation of poesy and score, that furnish the inspiration and bring the voice and technic and expression to full value. And one does not feel the artist apart from her rendition. She stands personally and artistically, in every song she sings, and she created a character, or a picture, or an emotion with each number on the program. In the broad sweep of adoration, in the tender notes of love, in the accents of innocence, or the touch of humor, or in the simple exuberance of songfulness, she appeals to the hearer, heart to heart; she seizes upon him with intense vitality and easy naturalness, and she holds him close with the grace and force of her superb art and by the royal right of genius.

Wednesday evening the last of the chamber concerts of the Beethoven club were given at the Unitarian church. The weather was most disagreeable, but the enthusiasm of the friends of the club was not daunted, and a large audience listened to the excellent program.

The first number was one that was heard with joy by the musicians present. It was the first trio of Brahms, and the different contracted movements of the exceedingly difficult piece were played in an artistic and intelligent manner by the club. The last number, also one of Brahms', was also enthusiastically received. The Orpheus quartet, which assisted the club, appeared in two numbers that were beautifully sung.

The club, which is composed of Fred G. Bradbury, violin; Mrs. Marie Geist Erd, 'cello, and Gerard Tonning, piano, has given three concerts during the season, and its work is much appreciated by the people of Duluth, who will be glad to know that the club will continue next year.

Business University Happenings.

Monday, May 4th, is the date fixed for the beginning of the spring term. A large number have already arranged to begin on that date. Everything seems to indicate the largest summer school the college has ever enjoyed.

During the past week the following students have accepted the following positions:

Marie Ostenson, stenographer for Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham.

C. E. Rossman, bookkeeper for the Duluth Corrugating and Roofing Co.

Martha Westman, stenographer for Attorney A. B. Douglas.

G. Ellingsen, bookkeeper for A. Booth & Co.

A. Lessard, bookkeeper for the Metropolitan Mining Co., Vancouver, B. C.; Harry DeChambeau, stenographer and boookkeeper for J. D. Zien & Co.

Among those who expect to enroll on Monday for a full course are:

Miss Mahue, Grand Marais, Minn.
Miss Madigan, Windsor, Ont.
C. S. Desmond, Grand Forks, N. D.

A Short Story.

Elizabeth Phipps Train is without doubt one of the cleverest writers of the day. Her story in the May issue of "10 Story Book," entitled "An Easter Specter," is along new and startling lines. It is a ghost story, but by no means a conventional one.

BRILLIANT RALLY

Ladies of the Maccabees Achieved a Conspicuous Success.

Great Number Initiated and High Officers Are Present.

The gala night of the Ladies of the Maccabees, which was held last evening in the Armory, was a grand success. The crowd taxed the capacity of the building, hundreds being compelled to stand throughout the program.

Eighteen hives were represented at the gathering. Delegations were present from various cities in this state and from other states.

Among the distinguished guests of the order were Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, supreme commander of the L. O. T. M.; Dr. Susan F. Rose, chief medical examiner, and State Commander Annie M. Welch.

One hundred and ninety-three new members were received into the association yesterday, over 100 of whom were present last evening and went through the ceremony of initiation.

One of the bright features of the evening was the drill performed by a company of the young lady members of the order. There were forty ladies in the chorus, all of whom were dressed in white adorned with a black and red scarf. The drill was complicated and several very pretty figures were introduced. During the course of the drill the new members were received and the oath administered to them by Mrs. Hollister.

Rev. E. K. Copper, of Oneota M. E. church, offered a brief prayer. Dr. Forbes, who was to have been present, was unavoidably absent.

Mayor Hugo rose to the occasion in his address of welcome, and sprung a new story on the amazed audience. He heartily welcomed the visiting Maccabees to the city and gave special greeting to the distinguished guests.

Dr. Rose, State Commander Welch and Wisconsin State Commander Emma R. Greene were introduced by the chairman and made a few brief remarks.

Supreme Commander Lillian M. Hollister took the audience by storm. She has had an exceedingly wide experience in organization work of various kinds, having formerly been priminent in W. C. T. U. and church work. She has also been prominent as a lecturer, has had considerable experience in newspaper work, and has spent two years in the study of law. Her charming personality attracted the audience from the moment she rose to speak, and she was listened to with eager interest.

Her remarks were confined chiefly to a description of the work being performed by the Ladies of the Maccabees.

"Membership in a fraternal organization," she said, "brings with it a sense of security. In addition to our insurance we have an emergency fund with which to care for the members during their lifetime.

"We have built the foundations of our organization. We are now engaged in erecting the superstructure. The foundations are firm and strong and widely laid. The superstructure must be in accordance. Our body is the largest woman's organization in the woldr. During the past year we held fifth place in the amount of business written by our insurance branch, having paid out during the past ten years $2,500,000 into the homes of our members.

"Fraternal organizations are great home protectors, and it is the duty of every woman to belong to one such body. It is not unwomanly so to do. It is the highest duty of woman to care for her family, and how can she better do it than by becoming a member of a fraternal society?

"'Then hail to each fraternal band,
Whate'er its name or race,
Whose mission is the outstretched hand
To brighten sorrow's face.'"

George J. Mallory, chairman of the meeting, responded briefly to Mrs. Hollister's remarks.

"Some men," he said, "object to women belonging to fraternal organizations. Such men are not abreast of the times. These associations are doing more for the uplifting of humanity than any other institution outside of the church itself."

During the course of the evening solos were rendered by Miss Margrette Cutter and Miss G. Osterburger.

The program concluded with the singing of "America" by the audience.

The floor was then cleared for dancing, which was kept up until a late hour. Refreshments were served in the gallery.

The hall was prettily decorated with flags and bunting, the platform being surrounded with palms.

Mrs. Hollister, Dr. Rose and Deputy State Commander Mary Goran were guests at the Spalding while in the city. They left this afternoon for Superior. From there Mrs. Hollister and Dr. Rose will go to Milwaukee, Chicago and South Bend, Ind.

Mrs. Hollister and Dr. Rose both declared themselves highly pleased with Duluth as a city and the prosperous condition of the local branch of the organization.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—Mayor Edward McDonald, who revoked the license of the Combination theater last week on the ground that it was a disorderly institution, has declined to withdraw from the position he assumed. The revocation followed the police court hearing of an employe of the place on the charge of striking and beating one of the women engaged on the stage. With the declaration that woman beating would not be tolerated in Deadwood, the mayor directed the chief of police to close the house. The same evening the theater opened for business as usual, the next night the proprietor was served with a notice of the revocation of his license, which had the desired effect. Since the closing of the place the mayor has caused a young girl found there to be returned to her home in Chicago. It is asserted that several young girls have been enticed to the place from the East.

Sioux Falls—By a clever ruse L. W. Ballard and Miss Mattie Eichmeier outwitted their friends, who had intended giving them a reception in keeping with the usual custom when young couples enter the matrimonial state. It was announced they would be wedded at high noon. Learning of the plans of their friends they had the marriage ceremony performed at 5 o'clock in the morning, instead of at noon. They took an early train and were many miles on their way to Chicago for a wedding trip before their friends learned they had been outwitted.

Beresford—Rasmus Peterson, an old settler, died at St. Joseph's hospital in Sioux City from an operation for hernia. He located here in 1880, three years before the town of Beresford was laid out, and the best residence part of the city is built on a part of his original homestead. He was born in Denmark in 1826 and came to this country in 1870.

Tyndall—George B. Trumbo has sold the Grand Central hotel to Landlord Maucer, of Flandreau. Possession will be given June 1. The new proprietor will make some extensive changes and put it in first-class shape.

Mitchell—At the present term of circuit court it was expected to try Fred L. Stevens again on the charge of having accepted money on deposit in his Plankhigton bank when he knew it was insolvent. In November, 1901, Stevens was tried in this county on a change of venue from Aurora county, and was found guilty. He carried the case to the supreme court and asked for a new trial. In the meantime Judge Smith sentenced him to serve four years and one-half in the penitentiary. Pending the decesion of the court he was out on bail. A month or two ago the supreme court handed down the decision and he was granted a new trial. Preston & Hannett, of this city, who are conducting the case for Aurora county, asked Judge Smith to continue the case until the November term on account of the sickness of the state's most important witness, who was a chief clerk in Stevens' bank at the time of its failure.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—For the second time the state supreme court has decided against Fargo in the Gagnier case. Gagnier is a printer. He was riding his wheel on the sidewalk one night and as a result of a defect in the walk he was thrown and his shoulder dislocated. Efforts to recover damages were resisted because the sidewalks were not the proper place for "bike" riders. Th jury gave the plaintiff $200. The city appealed and a new trial was ordered. The next jury raised the judgment $100 and the city again appealed. The supreme court has just affirmed the last decision.

Bathgate—Hillis Manning & Co. have started operations on their $10,000 brick block. They intend getting the building ready for occupancy as soon as possible. When they move it is expected Samuel Watt will take possession of the Swain store with a big stock of general merchandise.

Minot—Judge Palda, Governor White's appointee to the bench of the district court of the new Eighth district, opened his first term of court in Ward county this week. The calendar is a long one, there being thirty-eight civil and sixteen criminal cases. Three blind-piggers have pleaded guilty and been sentenced. Two sentational sase not entered on the calendar ar to be tried behind closed doors, one being a sodomy and the other a slander case.

Fire destroyed the home and contents of Manager Fish, of the Rogers Lumber company. Loss on house $800 and on furnitre and personaul effects about $1400.

Souris—The Mouse River Valley bank, with a capital of $10,000, opened its doors for business this week. This makes three banks for Souris, which is certainly a fine showing for a town less than two years old.

Wheatland—The remains of Harry Salvage were buried Tuesday in the local cemetery.

If they're Burrows shoes they're proper

The new Spring Oxfords and Low Shoes are all in and ready for your seeing. The new shapes—those styles which have been accepted by the elite of New York—are all here.

Among the new effects is the Laird, Schober & Co.'s "Iris" last, which fits the natural foot admirably. This shape is much worn by swell dressers, because of its exclusiveness and individuality.

There are many other new shoe fashions, all distinctive — all up to the "Burrows standard" of excellence and fashion correctness.

A new consignment of children's Oxfords and shoes are in, and also a new line of children's Russia calf, patent calf, and black calf footwear.

Those who are preparing for May weddings will find us thoroughly ready to supply the correct footwear for the trousseaux.

EVENTS OF THE DAY IN THE MIMIC WORLD.

COMING WEEK AT DULUTH THEATERS

"Finnegan's Ball," Tim Murphy and Al. Wilson At Lyceum — "The Lady of Lyons" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Metropolitan.

Al H. Wilson, the popular German comedian and golden voiced singer, who is touring under the management of Messrs. Charles H. Yale and Sidney R. Ellis in "A Prince of Tatters," comes to the Lyceum theater next Thursday and Friday.

"A Prince of Tatters" is a tale of old New York, from the prolific pen of Sidney R. Ellis. Mr. Wilson has proved most emphatically his claim to a prominent place in the front ranks of the leading singing comedians of the present time. His voice is described as a rich sympathetic baritone of exceptional sweetness and purity of tone, while his acting is claimed to be magnetic and full of delightful qualit comedy, for which he excells.

A complete scene production is carried to add to an almost perfect presentation, while a supporting company of more than ordinary strength add to the general excellence. Mr. Wilson's songs for the present season include "The Mermaid and Buccaneer," "Whispering Breeze," "Winding of the Yarn," "Memory," "When Your Ship Comes Home" and "The Echo" (a yodel). The electrical and mechanical effects that are used are said to be something new to the stage and a pleasing novelty which add to a most creditable performance.

THE FERRIS COMEDIANS.

"Lady of Lyons" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Next Week.

The Ferris comedians will produce for the last time tonight at the Metropolitan the sensational comedy drama, "For Home and Honor." This will also be the last night of the indoor circus.

In the week of May 4 Mr. Ferris will present his company in two well-known plays, and for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and Wednesday matinee will present, by numerous requests from patrons, the beautiful costume play, "The Lady of Lyons." This play is too well-known to need comment. The production of this play several months ago scored one of the finest successes made by the company. The costuming will be very fine and the scenic and electrical effects will be excellent.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday night and Saturday matinee a correct dramatic version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be put on. This old and celebrated play has been presented here many times, but not the real "Uncle Tom's Cabin," as the road companies are making a farce and a specialty show out of it instead of presenting it as it should be. In the Ferris comedians' production of it it is claimed that Harriet Beecher Stowe's famous novel will be presented as it should be. All the special scenery necessary for its complete production will be here.

There will also be a complete change of vaudeville between the acts.

"FINNEGAN'S BALL."

"Finnegan's Ball" will once more regale the patrons of the Lyceum theater, appearing here Monday evening. This jolly farce comedy bids fair to deserve the "forever" term which now attaches to the "Devil's Auction," Lewis Morrison's "Faust" and a few others. It seems to please quite as much as in the days of Murray and Mack.

The cast will include Gallager and Barrett, the Tossing Austins, the Clark Sisters, all of whom have proven their peculiar abilities the past season, several of last season's favorites and an augmented chorus of pretty and shapely girls. From the rise of the curtain to its final fall there will not be a dull moment, it is promised.

TIM MURPHY.

Tim Murphy will be seen at the Lyceum Tuesday in his successful comedy, "The Carpetbagger," in which he gives his ever delightful characterization of the carpetbag governor of Mississippi, who was first hated and then marveled at, and then loved by all who learned to know him. It is a role which employs all this genial comedian's finest talents and the other characters in the amusing and absorbing story are such as employ a particularly strong company of artists.

Dorothy Sherrod is with Mr. Murphy and will lend her beauty and her talent to one of the leading roles. Mr. Murphy's company has this season been particularly commented upon for the beauty and talent of the ladies and for the superb dresses they are wearing. All the scenery, furniture and properties for "The Carpetbagger" are carried by the company.

"THE DARKEST HOUR."

The new comedy drama, "The Darkest Hour," by Lincoln J. Carter, will be seen at the Lyceum Saturday matinee and night. It comes here from a phenomenally successful run in Chicago, where it recently received its initial production. The company, which will produce the piece in this city, will be the same in personnel and elaborate equipment as in the original company. The scenic and electrical effects are said to be the finest ever carried by any theatrical company. Among those who assume principal roles in "The Darkest Hour" is Charles A. (Karl) Gardner, the eminent German comedian; Carrie Le Moyne and others equally well-known.

AL H. WILSON,

THE SUMMER OPERA

Will Open June 8, Presenting "The Black Hussar.

The Northwestern Opera company of forty singers will inaugurate the opera season at the Lyceum Monday night, June 8, with a magnificent production of "The Black Hussar." In selecting this opera for the opening bill the full strength of the organization is shown. The cast selected for this production includes: Miss Eleanor Jenkins as Mirma, who has won fame both in America and Europe as a soprano of great merit; Miss Bertha Hayden as Rosetta, who made a big hit in musical circles; Miss Sylevester Cornish with a rich contralto voice, who will make a great deal out of the comedy role of Barbara; also Miss Louida Hilliard, one of the Savage beauties, who charmed Duluthians as Baltimore with the "Prince of Pilsen" company.

The male element of the organization must not be overlooked for more local favorites, Stanley Welch as Hagenbeck,, Charles H. Drew, as Pikkow and Tom Martin as the French officer and Mifflin the actor, will make a comedy trio hard to beat. George Lyding will sing the title role and Forest Huss will play Waldwee. These, with George B. Jackson, Harriett Packard and others, will make a cast hard to equal.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Patti's Enormous Guarantee For Her Coming Tour.

New York, May 2.—The prospects for the forthcoming tour of Adelina Patti read like a tale from the Arabian Nights. Not so very many years ago Robert Grau, who is to manage the Patti tour, drifted into a southwestern town with an opera company, one opera and 32 cents. He played there a week and left with $1200 in his pocketbook, and since then his career has seen many ups and downs. One of Patti's absolute demands before fulfilling her contract with him is that she shall receive a lump sum of $50,000 in advance as her share of the receipts. She is to be paid $5000 for each concert, and an additional 50 per cent of all the money taken in over and above $7500. As matters now stand contracts have been signed for 37 cities, each guaranteeing Mr. Grau the sum of $10,500. This means that in each one of the places Patti's profit will be $2500 and his own $4000. In addition to this the contracts with the Steinway people for the exclusive use of their piano, the program privilege and the sale of photographs will net a sum sufficient to pay all expenses except the diva's share, and yet not more than six weeks ago Grau was exceedingly anxious to have some Broadway manager take the bigger part of his contract off his hands.

When the police interfered with the Actor's Home benefit on Sunday night by rigidly editing the program the chances for a good evening's entertainment were very slim indeed. The performance, however, was rescued from the commonplace by Miss Lalilli Helena. Her singing captured the house and she was forced to appear again and again in response to the demands of her audience. Miss Helena goes abroad early in June to make her first appearance in London. Her husband, N. A. Jennings, who abandoned his work in order to devote himself to her interest, will accompany her as manager.

Owing to the great success of Grace George in "Pretty Peggy," the run of that comedy at the Herald Square has been extended to May 23. The other Peggy, "When Peggy Comes to Town," also a play of Miss Matthews, in which Miss Cecil Spooner was to have appeared at the Herald Square, will go to Daly's instead early in May.

• • •

Poor Rose Julian! Patrons of the old Casino Roof Garden will well remember the handsome features and superb physique of the woman who, as Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons, became known the country over as his staunchest supporter. Ten years ago Miss Julian and her brother were one of the most popular teams in the whole world of vaudeville. Later, after her marriage to Fitzsimmons, Miss Julian turned actress, and usually appeared in her husband's plays. She leaves several children.

During his present trip to Europe Manager Henry W. Savage will hear a number of American singers who have been studying in Paris and Berlin, with a view to selecting several new members of his Castle Square Grand Opera company for next season. He expects to have two new prima donnas, one new tenor and one new baritone under contract before his return with the American rights for Puccini's latest grand opera, "Mme. Butterfly."

Everything is in readiness for "The Runaways," the next big Casino show, which will have its initial showing on Broadway on Monday, May 4. The company of 160 will make its first bow in the play at the Academy of Music, in Baltimore, on Monday, and after a week there will come direct to the Casino for an indefinite stay.

• • •

An amusing mistake occurred at the Madison Square theater on the night of the initial performance of George H. Broadhurst's "A Fool and His Money." One of the characters in the play is a maid—Miss Daisy Green. Now, it so happened that one of the original "Florodora" sextet girls is a Miss Daisy Green, who has many friends in Broadway, especially among the racing set, now gathered at the Aqueduct. The impression went rapidly along Broadway that Miss Daisy Green had followed the example of other well-known show girls and had gone in for straight comedy. The result was that many floral offerings were sent to the Madison Square theater Tuesday night dedicated to "Miss Daisy Green." The amazement of Miss Daisy Green, of the Broadhurst play, at receiving huge bunches of American Beauties, baskets of azaleas, countless violets and numerous orchids may be imagined when it is stated that she plays the role of a colored maid, and that while her popularity is wide in Saratoga, of course, she is comparatively unknown in musical comedy and racing circles. But this did not deter Miss Green from receiving the floral tributes with a truly thankful spirit.

Miss Annie Irish sailed for England on the Ivernia today and will return early in May to begin rehearsals for the part of Iras in "Ben-Hur," which will be revived at the New York theater in September. J. E. Dodson will play the role of Simonides. After the New York theater run of "Ben-Hur" as a special dramatic production will be made, in which they will appear as joint stars.

Miss Marie Cahill, the star of "Nancy Brown," at the Bijou, New York, aids fair to rival George Broadhurst and other writers of humor. The other night, after the first act, she gathered all the comedians of her company around her and told them that she had a "new one" for them. "Now here," she said, "here it is: A man stood in the waiting room of the Grand Central Station. He was smoking a big cigar. The guard went to him and said: 'You shouldn't smoke.' 'That's what my physician says.' 'But you shall not smoke; I will not permit it.' 'Exactly what my wife says.' And he smoked on." The professional funmakers all agreed that it was both new and good enough to be interpolated in "Nancy Brown."

"Well, you are a fine lot of comedians. That joke was published in Harper's New Monthly Magazine in 1857. You can fool all the people some of the time, and I can fool you people all the time from an old periodical," remarked Miss Cahill.

Speaking of tears, Tom Seabrooke, in the wings of the Casino the other night, told how a scene was spoiled for him. "It happened in Buffalo one night when I was playing in 'The Grand Vizier,'" related the comedian. "Just before the curtain was rung up I was handed a telegram. Opening it I read my mother had died. I need not say how I felt. But the people out in front had paid their money, and I was expected to go on and try to be funny, no matter how hard the ordeal. I managed to control myself until I began singing a song, the refrain of which was:

"'If mamma could see me now she would not say a word.'

"The words stuck in my throat, and struggle though I did I broke down completely and was obliged to quit the stage."

When the Casino company, playing "A Chinese Honeymoon" goes to Chicago for its summer run there will be two new faces among the many principles. Miss Estelle Wentworth will replace Miss Amelia Stone in the role of Princess Soo Soo, and Benjamin Howard will be the Captain Tom Hatherton in place of Van Rensselaer Wheeler. Miss Stone and Mr. Wheeler will remain with the Messrs. Shubert indefinitely, creating new roles in the series of musical comedies which the Shuberts are to produce from time to time at the Casino.

The hit made by Onie Read's "The Starbucks" was emphatic, more perhaps because of its western greatness and freshness than anything else. Coming at this time of the year, it was a delightful change from the other new productions, and New York took it into its heart at once. All through the play the dialogue is crisp and sparkling with humor and human nature, and altogether it is a most wholesome production. One of the best stories in it is told by Lez Spencer, a typical shiftless mountaineer, who is always borrowing. It is: "Thar's an old feller up in our neighborhood that's got more than a hundred hounds. They call him hound-pore. This old feller goes down to the store twice a week and gives a hound tor a plut of licker. On day he brought down the biggest dog you ever seed, and when the storekeeper gives him the licker he looked at the dog and says: 'What, don't I get no change?' And the storekeeper gives him back a rat terrier and a bull pup."

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske has decided to keep "Dolce" in her repertoire hereafter. It is a one-act play by John Luther Long, and was presented by Mrs. Fiske at a matinee in Boston this week with marked success. Her intention is to produce it at the Manhattan theater next fall in conjunction with Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler."

According to Miss Annie Russell, the hardest worked woman in the world is an actress. Miss Russell does not intend to abandon her profession on this account, but she wishes it distinctly understood that, being a successful actress is not all it seems to be from the other side of the footlights. Said she the other day: "The average girl who works in a shop has a much better time all the year round than I do. You must remember that I have absolutely no recreation from the time the season opens until the season ends. It is a routine of sleep, get ready for the theater and then act, and the same old story day after day except Sunday. Decorum makes it necessary for me to stay in the house on that day. And so, if you look at it from my point of view you must agree that I am really the one to be pitied. I haven't been at the opera for four years, and I do love so much. The average woman who works may go to parties and theaters and meet new people on new ground. She may go to the theater to be amused and need not go if she doesn't want to. Then the monotony of her work may be broken by the many holidays. I have no holidays, for on them I work harder than ever. Altogether, I think the other girl has much the best of it." It would be hard, one is led to think, to find the shop girl who would not willingly change places with Miss Russell even at the risk of losing her opportunities for enjoying grand opera.

John Drew, who began the season of the Empire theater with his new success, "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," played Miss Matthews, in which Miss Cecil Spooner was to have appeared at the same place. Mr. Drew will have opened and closed the season of that house, as at the end of his engagement the doors will be shut in order to permit the remodeling and refurnishing which is to be accomplished before the next season is inaugurated.

The selection of Ethel Levey as a star will bring that young singer more prominently before the public than she has been since the Four Cohans have been touring with their big musical productions. Miss Levey's new piece is to be called "The Belle of Frisco," and will be written by her husband, George M. Cohan, of the Four Cohans. The report that the latter will go with Miss Levey has been denied.

• • •

"The Gibson Girl" is the title of the new musical comedy that is to run this summer at the Knickerbocker theater in New York. Blanche Ring, who sprang to the prominence in Gotham last summer with her song, "The Belle of Avenue A," will be the star of the production.

Charles Evans' return to the stage last week was a welcome addition to the dying's season's record. Mr. Evans, with his partner, Charles Hooper, is appearing at their Princess theater in a hilarious farce, entitled "There and Back."

• • •

Jacob Adler, the Hebrew character actor, who is a great favorite at the Thalia theater, where plays are given in Yiddish, has been engaged by Managers Weber, Rush and Brennan for a spring tour in "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Adler's Shylock is said to be a novel interpretation of the role. He will be supported by an English-speaking company, and will appear in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati for brief engagements.

After quite a scramble among rival players and managers Miss Kathryn Osterman has secured the dramatic rights to "Miss Petticoats," and will appear next season as the star of this work, which is now being completed by George T. Richardson, the well known dramatic critic of Boston. Miss Osterman will make a handsome production of the piece and head a strong organization of players, as the company will comprise about thirty-five people. Her husband, Junius Jack Rosenthal, will manage the tour.

Yvette Guilbert, the famous French music hall artiste, is reported to be dangerously ill in Berlin, where she had been singing of late. It is said that her sickness has compelled Mlle. Guilbert to cancel her London engagements, entailing a loss of nearly $2,000, which had been guaranteed her for her stay in the halls of the British metropolis.

Weber & Fields have selected the time-honored name, The Globe, for their new Boston theater, which, by the way, is to be the home of the independent attractions visiting Boston.

• • •

Orrin Johnson, who retires from Annie Russell's company at the end of the season to become a star next year, has decided upon a dramatization of Hallie Erminie Rives' "Hearts Courageous" as the vehicle with which to make his stellar debut. Miss Rive and Franklyn Fyles will make the dramatization. The selection of Mr. Johnson to play the role of Louis Armand is peculiarly fitting, as Miss Rive says that he inspired her to mold that character into her story, as she had long been an admirer of his acting. Miss Rives will likely appear as Mr. Johnson's principal support, appearing in the role of Annie Thilotson. A. L. Levering will manage the new organization. Mr. Johnson has long been identified with the best of the Frohman companies, and apparently has earned his way into stardom's realm.

No, gentle reader, Tolstoi never copyrights any of his works, but he really ought to be sent to Siberia for life for not putting some sort of a legal check on "Ressurection," since every Cheap John stock company and repertoire troop in the land has attached itself to this common property.

Again Mrs. Osborn's little playhouse is closed. Edith Ellis Baker, who is some punkinhe in Brooklyn, ventured across the bridge into this newest Jonah, and after one week of strenuous life there that would have made President Roosevelt standing on his head in the snow look as tame as a pet kitten, Mrs. Baker has given up the task and gone back to Brooklyn to recover and recoup.

Ward and Vokes are to fill in the summer by presenting "The Head Waiters" in Boston's new Majestic theater at popular prices. The regular season will open there in September with Lulu Glaser, in "Dolly Varden," as the star attraction, which has been booked for an indefinite run. Although Miss Glaser has been seen in nearly every large city in this piece her illness on two occasions caused the cancellation of her Boston time, so that the piece is still a novelty as far as the Hub is concerned.

Liebler & Co. announced last week that Miss Viola Allen will likely discard "The Eternal City" after this season and appear next year in a Shakespearean revival. E. J. Morgan, as David Rossi, will likely be continued as the star of the Hall Caine play.

While here last week George Bowles pleaded guilty to the charge of having written a melodrama. It is called "The Secret Marriage," and is said to be as full of sensations as the genial author is of smiles. Mr. Bowles, by the way, starts in this week on his new position of spending money as the principal entertainer for the Barnum and Bailey circus. George says he does not know much about ring shows or the sawdust game, but as he will have two automobiles and a bunch of coin every day to use in entertaining the guests of the circus management, he thinks he will worry through the summer with as little kicking as possible under the circumstances.

"Miss Bob White" is to be revived again this summer for a run in Philadelphia. Frances Milton will play the principal feminine role made popular here by Marguerita Sylva.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Ellen Terry will come to America in November.

Edward Stevens has signed a two-year contract with David Belasco, and will next season be starred in "The Truthtellers."

Ethel Levey will star shortly in a musical play entitled "The Belle of 'Frisco," written for her by her husband, George M. Cohan.

Marie George and George Fuller Golden were the Easter stars on the London Palace bill. Both were successful to a remarkable degree.

"Little Nell," a new version, by Oswald Brand, of Dickens' novel, "The Old Curiosity Shop," was produced at the Grand theater, London, Feb. 23.

"The Crisis" will be played exclusively by Isabel Irving next season. James K. Hackett will give up the role of Stephen Brice and appear in a historical play by Victor Mapes.

It is announced that "John Henry," the new farce by George V. Hobart and Edward E. Rose, will receive its first production at one of the Nixon & Zimmerman houses in Philadelphia on May 11.

Liebler & Co. announce that Viola Allen will next season be seen in a Shakespeare play, "The Eternal City." Miss Allen's present vehicle will be played by virtually the present company, supporting a new star.

"Defending Her Honor," a four-act melodrama by Arda Lacroix, dealing with modern life and conditions in Manhattan, was presented at Hoboken, N. J., The action of the piece centers around the effort of Nellie Gray, a village belle, in defending the honor of her mother, "the victim of a villainous greed fom money," as the program graphically characterizes it.

Richard Ganthony sued the London Daily Express for libel; the libel having consisted in the statement that previous to its successful production "A Message From Mars" was rewritten by George Hawtrey. The course taken by the case would seem to suggest that the actual defendants were eGorge Hawtrey and his brother Charles, who produced the play. A distinguished cast gave evidence on one side or the other, and though ample evidence was called to show that Mr. Hawtrey had actually made many changes in the dialogue and other parts of the piece, it was held by many expert witnesses, chief of whom was Brandon Thomas, that such changse did not give Mr. Hawtrey the right to claim co-authorship in the play. The jury in the ness has compelled Mlle. Guilbert to cancel her London engagements, entalling a loss of nearly $2,000, which had been guaranteed her for her stay in the halls of the British metropolis.

Weber & Fields have selected the time-honored name, The Globe, for their new Boston theater, which, by the way, is to be the home of the independent attractions visiting Boston.

Orrin Johnson, who retires from Annie Russell's company at the end of the season to become a star next year, has decided upon a dramatization of Hallie Erminie Rives' "Hearts Courageous" as the vehicle with which to make his stellar debut. Miss Rive and Franklyn Fyles will make the dramatization. The selection of Mr. Johnson to play the role of Louis Armand is peculiarly fitting, as Miss Rive says that he inspired her to mold that character into her story, as she had long been an admirer of his acting. Miss Rives will likely appear as Mr. Johnson's principal support, appearing in the role of Annie Thilotson. A. L. Levering will manage the new organization. Mr. Johnson has long been identified with the best of the Frohman companies, and apparently has earned his way into stardom's realm.

HINKLEY'S BONE LINIMENT FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE

For Neuralgia
For Headache
For Pain in the Side.

Bathe the affected parts freely with the Liniment, at the same time take a small teaspoonful in sugar and hot water. In severe cases of Neuralgia apply flannel cloths wrung out in hot water.

A bottle of Hinkley's Bone Liniment is a regular medicine chest in itself, because it contains a cure for every pain. It penetrates to the very bone when applied externally, and when taken internally it suffuses the whole system with vigorous warmth and healing. It is the grandest medicine in the world. Sold everywhere, 25c, 50c, and $1.00 per bottle.

RAILROADS' ASSESSMENTS.

Lansing, Mich., May 1.—The supreme court has knocked out the action of the state board of assessors in fixing the average rate of taxation of the state in assessing railroad property. The court holds that the state assessor had no authority to increase the value of property on the theory that local assessors had failed to assess at its full cash value as provided by law. The board is ordered to determine the average rate from the assessments of the local assessors. This will increase by about $600,000 the aggregate taxes levied against railroad companies.

CONSUL FINED.

Solongen, Rhenish Prussia, May 1.—United States Consul Landger was fined thirty marks today by the judge of a local court for disorderly conduct in the court room, where he was present as a witness. Mr. Landger protested that he was a United States official and could not be lined in that manner, and the judge sentenced him to three days' imprisonment for continued disorderly behavior. The consul left the court room without being arrested.

Western North Carolina In the Spring.

Western North Carolina is attractive at any season of the year, but certainly during the spring months, when the trees are budding and the flowers blossoming; what could be more inviting than a trip to this beautiful mountain country.

The months of April and May in the Land of the Sky and Sapphire country, including Asheville and Hot Springs, N. C., are very enjoyable. The climate at this season is delightful, the scenery most beautiful, and the opportunities for the enjoyment of sport, including golf, cannot be surpassed.

The hotels in this region afford the very best accommodations. If you wish to know something of this delightful region, communicate with your nearest ticket agent, or address G. B. Allen, A. G. P. NORTHERN BALL LEAGUE SEASON

Will Open In About Two Weeks Hence —The Duluth Team To Begin Practicing Monday and Tuesday.

The pennant is a timid bird
Of ways reserved and coy.
If it would perch here just once
We'd shriek with keenest joy.

The Northern league season will open in just a little more than two weeks.

Local enthusiasm is warming up to the proper temperature and the indications are that the man at the gate will suffer considerable pain during the season from blistered fingers counting receipts.

There seems to be no end of determination on the part of the local club officers to secure an aggregation of pennant pacemakers from the start, though the late hour in securing the Northern league franchise and the loss of Pitchers Wilson and Mueller have proved a serious handicap.

Active practice will begin on Monday or Tuesday if the weather permits and from that time on the men will be kept busy getting team work down to a fine art and developing themselves individually.

Fred Foster, Harvard's strong man, has just made a remarkable record under Dr. Sargent's new strength test, his figures being 100,000 foot pounds more than the old record. His grand total was 352,231 foot pounds. Foster is undoubtedly the strongest man in the college world.

James E. Sullivan's contention is that a player should be taught how to sprint in the early season work, and this would undoubtedly help a lot, but even after the player has the speed he is not assured of successful in stealing bases. The latter depends to a large extent on quickness of thought and coolness and daring in execution. Some of the fastest men in baseball today are poor base stealers, but this is only true in exceptional cases, and as a rule, where a man has the speed he also has a good percentage in the stolen-base column. Everything being equal, a man with the speed has the advantage, and Sullivan's idea of training the men to sprint would add much to their natural speed.

Given the speed, the runner is thrown pretty much on his own resources for the rest. An older player may teach him the rudiments of the art, but if he has not the head to work out the problem by himself, he will never shine in this line. To a certain extent a good base stealer must be born and not made, although consistent study will make a poor base stealer at least an average one. To become a brilliant one, however, the player must have the natural gift. If the start for a steal were made like it is for a 50-yard dash the problem would be easy. This is impossible from the very fact that one of the qualifications of a good base stealer is to keep the pitcher and catcher guessing. His position on the base line is such that he can return the quickest to the point from which he is starting or make a dash for the other base. This is not a good position for extreme speed in starting in either direction. A quick break from a side position is what a base runner must make, and if he has the speed, this will help in beating out a throw.

A careful study of pitchers and catchers will do more than anything else to help a baseman in stealing. Every pitcher and catcher has his own peculiarities, and a close study of these will frequently show a weak point. The preliminary motion of some of the pitchers is such that they can not change the direction of a ball after a certain point without committing a balk, and if a start is made to steal at this particular point, much time is saved. Some pitchers can be worried and badgered by taking a lead off a base and making them throw to that point, and this increases the chance for a steal on a break by the latter. Others will not throw to the bags unless forced to do so, and a longer lead can be taken with safety, but more care must, as a rule, be taken with the latter, as they are usually more correct in figuring to catch the runner.

Is college football as dangerous as its opponents contend?

Edwin G. Dexter of the university of Illinois asserts that it is not. He bases this verdict on statistics carefully secured from sixty colleges and universities of the country.

In an article published in the current number of the Educational Review he contends that football does not furnish as many injuries and fatalities as baseball and other sports. As the result of figures from sixty institutions, furnished by college presidents or other officials of the faculty, it is known that of the total male student enrollment for the ten years of 210,334, 22,766 students played football, contributing to the formation of 1374 teams. Of the 22,766 players, or 10.8 per cent of the entire enrollment, 616 suffered injuries, or 2.9 per cent of the total number of players.

On these same figures the following conclusions are drawn:

The chances of permanent injuries average about one in 858.

The deaths have been three to 22,766, involving 1374 teams. In these cases the players were physically unfit.

One player in thirty-five is sufficiently injured in each season to necessitate loss of time from college duties.

On these figures the number of college football players who are permanently injured or die from the effects of the game is so small as to be practically a negligible quantity.

The opinions of college presidents or other faculty officials, weighed in terms of the number of students enrolled, are about 17 to 1 in favor of football.

To this Professor Dexter adds, though for the sake of drawing accurate comparisons, the returns from an accident insurance claims paid during the last five years, the results showing:

Nearly every country on the globe now has a representative in pugilism. Ireland is, of course, foremost in the list, yet for the first time in many years there is only one son of Erin holding down a championship. Since the defeat of Terry McGovern, George Gardner is the lonely representative of Ireland on the top in the fighting game. George is a native of County Clare, and is, therefore, a true-born Irishman. In fact, Gardner and Joe Walcott are the only present day champions who were not born in America. Jim Jeffries, Tommy Ryan, Joe Gans, Young Corbett and Harry Forbes are all Americans.

Joe Wolcott came from the Barbadoes island, West India. Jeffries, Young Corbett and Harry Forbes are what you might call the Western champions. Joe Gans and Tommy Ryan are the only champions born in the East. Ryan first saw the light of day at Redwood, N. Y., while Gans was born and raised in the city of Baltimore.

Four of the ex-champions are natives of New York or Pennsylvania. Kid Carter was born in Brooklyn, so was Matty Mathews. Terry McGovern and Danny Dougherty are natives of Pennsylvania. McGovern was born at Johnstown and Dougherty in Philadelphia. Frank Erne is a native of Switzerland, and Bob Fitzsimmons was born in England.

California makes the best showing in what might be termed the coming champions. Its trio of little men—Britt, Hanlon and Nell—stand out formidable in the list of aspirants for championship honors. Marvin Hart, who has a chance to win the lightweight championship, is a native of Louisville. Jack O'Brien and Jack Munroe were born in Philadelphia.

Kid McCoy's decisive defeat at the hands of Jack Root probably marks the passing of that once great fighter. If at least removes him from the list of the champions, and it is doubtful whether he will again essay to fight his way up.

McCoy lost to a good man at Detroit. It was never shown more plainly in a prize ring that, with two men equally matched, the one who has followed the lines of right living will come out winner. McCoy was the skilled boxer and great general with the backing of a frame weakened by dissipation. Root was the boxer and general with a perfect physique. McCoy's condition was what many people feared it might be, and the result was what many expected under the circumstances.

McCoy's appearance in the ring and the way he received the punishment administered indicated that he has probably lived beyond that stage where he can train into perfect condition.

It is nearly three years since McCoy made an earnest attempt to get into shape. During that time he has done little to keep his body strong and much to weaken it. It was, therefore, no surprise when his stomach showed the effects of his way of living.

The first blows that Root landed on the body sent the once famous McCoy sprawling on the floor. In the course of the fight he took the count seven times. When he was not doing that he fell into long clinches that made the battle anything but a satisfactory one.

Root's future in the ring will be watched with interest. He should first of all get a fight with Gardner, and wipe out the defeat that the Boston man scored against him if he can. Root is strong and can make more money in the ring than he has yet made. He is already well fixed, having saved, it is said, about $12,000.

The receipts at Detroit were over $7000. Of this the club gave the fighters 50 per cent. Root got away with the long end of the purse, and is some richer than before the fight. He takes as good care of his money as he does of his body. If he continues at the same gait he will have made fighting a most profitable occupation.

IN FINE TRIM FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

Capt. Cummings' Men Expect to Acquit Themselves Creditably Against Duluth League Team—Declamatory Contest of Lower Class Next Friday.

When Cummings and the high school baseball team line up against the Northern league aggregation at the driving park next Saturday, one of the best games in which the students have ever played will be seen.

Great interest is felt by the school boys in the event, and they are making every effort to arouse a like enthusiasm in others. The leaguers' first practice will be held on Tuesday, and they will put in a hard week of practice before the scholastic slab handlers go up against them.

This year's high school team is generally conceded to be the best the school has put out for a long time. All of the places left vacant by graduation and by some of the players leaving their studies to go to work have been filled with as good or better men than were available last year.

Cummings is pitching a better game than he ever did, and the rooters are confident that if Van Praagh has a twirler who can fan out more men than he does he will have a good one.

The high school men have been playing together for some weeks now, and will be in better form for good team work than the league men, though they have been interrupted by the bad weather during the last week.

The game will be played solely for the benefit of the High School Athletic association, through the kindness of Manager Van Praagh of the Duluth team, who has donated the services of his professionals for the game.

Students have been canvassing the town with tickets for the game, in an effort to make enough money to raise their association fund, where it has been since last year's football season, and all appearances at present point to a big gathering when the umpire calls "play ball" on the first regular game of the season.

All of the high school supporters will be out in force, and as it is the first opportunity which the regular Duluth fans will have to see their representatives in the league play the game, a crowd of outsiders will be at the game.

Manager Van Praagh's new grounds will not be ready in time for this event, but the old grounds at the driving park where all of Duluth's baseball has been played for the last several years will be worked over, and if the weather is fair they will be in good condition.

A game with the Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior was on the schedule for today, but because of the cold weather and the bad condition which the grounds in Superior are in, Capt. Cummings decided that it would be better not to have his men play the game, particularly as the snow this week kept them off the diamond almost entirely.

A game will probably be played with the Superior school as soon as a convenient date for both teams occurs, or possibly a week day game next week.

DECLAMATORY CONTEST.

Lower Class Students to Compete Friday Evening.

A great number of students of the lower classes have been preparing for the declamatory contest which is to be given in the Assembly hall Friday evening. They have been working hard under the direction of Instructor Thomas and some good work will be done before the best declaimers of the high school are selected.

Owing to other work which is pressing, the seniors have only a few entered, though they will have a much larger number in the oratorical contest which will be held on May 29, a couple of weeks before the close of school for the summer vacation.

Friday's contest will consist of the reading of selected standard pieces by the students; the contest on the 29th will be the reading of original work, in which subject matter as well as delivery will count.

All of the students are very busy in their various special lines at present. The seniors are preparing for graduation, the athletes for their spring season, the literary and oratorical geniuses for their contests, and lucky is the pupil who is not mixed up in three or four different kinds of endeavor at the same time.

More difficulty has been found in getting the young men out in numbers large enough to make up the Athletic association entertainment by which it is hoped to raise money for the association on May 15. There are only two weeks left for the completion of the intricate evolution by which it was hoped to make the entertainment interesting, and if more response to the pleas of those who have the matter in charge is not received soon, it may be necessary to give up the project.

The Athletic association badly needs the money which such an entertainment woul surely bring in, and it is of little credit to the high school students that they are not willing to get out and work hard for two or three weeks to help out on the debt which must soon be paid off.

STRAINED RELATIONS.

Boys and Girls of Senior Class at Outs.

A peculiar state of affairs exists at present in the high school senior class. Girls who had good reason to suspect, so it is said, that they would not be invited to the senior class hop which has always been given in the spring by the graduating class, killed that function by voting it down.

Young men who wanted something doing decided to give a stag party and have a good time of their own. The anti-senior ball girls do not like this display of independence; the girls who knew that they would be invited to the dance are indignant at the girls who voted against the measure, and both combine in scoring the young men.

The masculine element has prepared a beautiful subscription list among its own members, and they say they are going to have the greatest time ever in the form of a banquet at the Spalding hotel. Covers will be laid for about thirty. There will be toasts, song and happiness.

Girls regret their action and are green with envy.

"Now, I don't care, the boys won't spend 25 cents—not even a quarter—cheerfully for anything which the girls can enjoy too, but they just pour out their money on their old stag party," they say.

"Oh, well, all they care for is their stomachs. How can you blame them—they are going to E-A-T. Why, they are glad to eat anything!" said Miss Sarcasm.

"Except biscuits and fudge which the girls make," cut in the bairn with the dreamy eyes as he walked up clinking a nickel and two pennies together in his pocket. "The trouble with you girls is that you are jealous—you have completely surrendered to the verdant demon—the girl with the green eyes is a frequent occurrence around here now. Why don't you give a party of your own? A-a-a. Say, Bill, that wouldn't be a stag party, would it? What would it be?"

"Oh, call it 'hen,'"

"It would be a fierce proposition, anyway; but we're going to have a swell affair, aren't we, William?"

"On that seven cents, I suppose," remarked the sweet girl, etc.

"Break away; here comes 'prof,'" and war was averted.

The Literary Society.

The Literary society held its first meeting for some time in the Assembly hall yesterday afternoon. The program was a very good one and much enjoyed by the audience. Mr. Custance sang, Mary Richards gave a reading, Harry McMartin rendered a piano solo and Fred Buck read.

The Seymour Lectures.

Charles W. Seymour finished his course of lectures which he has been giving here for the last month with an excellent talk on the "Passing of the Spaniard," which was given on Thursday evening.

The four lectures which were given in the morning for the benefit of high school students only were very interesting as well as unusually instructive. Mr. Seymour has made some warm admirers among the high school students here, and if he ever comes this way on his travels again he will receive a rousing welcome.

The President a Slave to Catarrh.—D. T. Sample, president of Sample's Installment company, Wash., Pa., writes: "For years I was afflicted with chronic catarrh. It gave almost instant relief and has proved the one good thing in my case. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.—21.

AN EDITOR'S EXPERIENCE

In the Treatment of Humors With Magical Effect by Cuticura

"A tumor came on my neck and in a day or two it was as large as half an orange. I was very much alarmed for fear it was malignant. My friends tried to persuade me to consult my physician; but dreading that he would insist on using the knife, I would not consent to go. Instead, I got Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Ointment. I took the former according to directions, and spread a thick layer of the Ointment on the swelling. On renewing it I would bathe my neck in very warm water and Cuticura Soap. In a few days the Cuticura Ointment had drawn the swelling to a head when it broke. Every morning it was opened with a large sterilized needle, squeezed and bathed, and fresh Ointment put on. Pus and blood, and a yellow, cheesy, tumorous matter came out. In about three or four weeks' time this treatment completely eliminated the tumour. The soreness that had extended down into my chest was all gone, and my neck now seems to be perfectly well.

About five or six years ago my sister had a similar experience, used the Cuticura Remedies with magical effect. I am willing you should use my testimonial, with the further privilege of revealing my name and address to such persons as may wish to substantiate the above statements by personal letter to me." Chicago, Nov. 12, 1902.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF St. Louis.—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 18th, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of William B. Dixon, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Lana N. J. Laine, formerly Lana N. J. Dixon, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to her granted to sell all the real estate of said estate. And it appearing, by said petition, that it is for the best interest of the estate of said William B. Dixon, deceased, and of all persons interested therein that all of the real estate of said estate be sold;

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday, the 11th day of May, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the court house in the City of Duluth in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Lana N. J. Laine to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as may appear to the court to be for the best interests of the estate of the decedent and of all persons interested therein.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper, printed and published at Duluth in said county.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Fable of the Misdirected Sympathy and the Come-Back of the Proud Steam-Fitter.

(Copyright, 1902, by R. H. Russell.)

One Day a lowely Steam-Fitter, who received only 50 cents an Hour for filling his Pipe, was sent to do a Job of Repairing in the Palatial Residence of a Syndicate Mogul.

While he was hammering merrily at his Task, trying to fill out an 8-hour Day, the Lady of the House came and watched him. Her Heart was touched with great Pity for any Man who still had his Appendix and whose Picture had never appeared in the Sunday Papers. So she had the Butler bring some Charlotte Russe for the humble Toiler. After which he borrowed one of her gold-tip Cigarettes and gave her a few Minutes of his Time, in spite of the Fact that she did not belong to the Union.

"This is a Swell Joint you've got here, Lady," said the Steam-Fitter. "The only Thing that makes me Sore is to think that all of this Hot Dog you're throwin' on comes out of the Pockets of poor, hard-workin' Guys, such as me."

"You wrong us," said the Great Lady, in a Tone of Gentle Sadness. "My husband never Gum-dens the poor Laborer. All that he has he made by shifting the Cut on the small Stockholders. We are much interested in the Working Classes and wish to establish a free Lecture Course, so that the Poor may learn all about Anthropology. Very often I go and sing Solos at Mission Entertainments, but in spite of this my poor Husband is pictured as a hungry Octopus who has taken a death-grip on the Consumer."

CHARLOTTE RUSSE FOR THE TOILER.

"I'd hate to be a Corporation Director," said the Steam-Fitter. "The Mug that controls a Million Bucks ain't got a Friend on Earth except the People who happen to be with him at the time. All the Congressmen throw Bricks at him and the Editorial Writers toast him to a Crisp. The Rainbow Weeklies put him in Cartoons as having four Chins and a Waist Measurement of 52, whereas all the Money-Getters I ever spotted were as thin as Rails and looked as if they had to live on Tea and Toast. But the Workingman! He's the Boy that gets all the Violets. When they put me into a cartoon they make me out to be a handsome Charley with my Sleeves rolled up and a set of Muscles that would make Jeffries ashamed of himself. I always wear a dinky Paper Cap and a full growth of Presbyterian Whiskers. Every time I see a Picture of the American Workingman in these Colors, I'm glad that I'm not a low-down Capitalist. I may not handle as much Coin as some of the Shell-Workers that hang out in Wall Street, but any time that I feel discouraged, all I have to do is dig up my 30 Cents and go to a Variety Show and then I find out that I am the only true-hearted and honest American, except the gallant Volunteer. The very best Friend that Union Labor has in this Country is the Vaudyville Artist who works 25 Minutes a Day for $175 a Week."

"Still, with your restricted Income, you cannot seek the elevating Influences of our Kind of Society," said the Lady of the House. "That must grind you a good deal, especially if you have Children growing up. I can imagine that it would be hard lines to know that your Offspring have no Social Careers awaiting them."

"Me and my Wife lay awake Nightts and cry about it," said the Steam-Fitter. "We thought for a while we might save up and buy Jimmy an Auto, but when we looked in the Catalogue we found that the price was $4000. So we decided if we wanted to practice Homicide it would be cheaper to get him on the Police Force. Being too poor to send him to a University, we let him take Lessons at a Boxing Academy, and now, when anyone starts Rough House, he is almost as handy as a regular Student. He can smoke Egyptian Cigarettes and blow the smoke through his Nose and he gives me the Laugh when I call him down, and so I feel that we have accomplished by Home Training what might have been expected from a College Course. As for Vivian, our bright-eyed little Daughter, she is the zippiest Higa-Flyer that speeds the Boulevard. When it comes to French Heels and the long Straight Front and all kinds of Blouse hanging in front of her, she can make the average Society Bud look like a bum Imitation. She has one of these wig-wag walks—the kind that makes People jump off the sidewalk. Of course, she is only the Daughter of an obscure Steam-Fitter, but let me give you a Pointer. You can't tell by lookin' at one of these Fairies nowadays what kind of Clothes her Father wears. When it comes to Lugs, I can't see that the heiress has any Bulge on the simple Working Girl. As for butting into the Social Swim, she has a Scheme all framed up, by which she expects to become acquainted with all of the gold-plated Johnnies who infest the Municipality. She is going on the Stage to be a Show Girl. She says that the Debutante seldom has more than one on her staff, while the Show Girl can take her Pick of a large Bunch. So you see that in these Days of Public Schools and cheap Reading Matter and custom-made Imitations, even the most Humble can occasionally make a Bluff at being the Real Thing. So long as my Children hoot at my Suggestions and tell me every Day where to get off or how to back over the Dump, Papa will not be altogether discouraged in regard to their Social Careers. In fact, the only thing that worries me is the Fear that I won't be able to keep up with them."

"I am glad to find you so Philosophical," said the Millionairess. "After reading several Books written by College Professors who disguised themselves as Laborers and went and lived among the down-trodden Masses, I have supposed that a Steam-Fitter was a rather gloomy Proposition."

"Why should I be gloomy? The formal Dinner Party is the Champion Gloom-Factory, and I never have to go near one of them. I don't have to wear my Intellect to a Frazzle keeping up with the Popular Novels. When a Foreign Musician or a Lady with a new System of Culturitis bobs up on the Horizon, I don't have to go chasing around, letting on that I am interested. You never see me at one of these punk Amateur Performances, applauding the Bank Accounts. Nobody expects me to make any calls and I never drink Tea except when I want it. The Scandal Sheets never show up my Family History, and as far as I can learn my Wife never hired a Detective to watch me. It is true that sometimes I find nothing on the Menu except Corned Beef and what goes with it, but I tear into it with an Appetite that would be worth $8,000,000 to Rockefeller at this Minute. And now, Lady, according to the rules of the Union, I must knock off for today, as it is 5 o'clock."

"Your story has interested me," said the Lady of the House. "I should like to visit your Family and write a Paper on the Home Life of the Toilers."

"I'm sorry we can't have you," was the Reply. "You Society Ducks don't care who you invite, but I'm an officer in the Union and I'll queer myself if I begin to associate with the disreputable Rich! You'll have to put up with your own Kind."

AN AWFUL CRIME

Was the Conviction of Howard, Says Taylor.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—Former Governor W. S. Taylor of Kentucky, commenting on the conviction of James Howard for the murder of Governor Goebel, said: "Knowing absolutely that every word of Cecil's and Youtsey's testimony, on which conviction was had, was perjury, so far as it in any way connected me with Mr. Howard; that it was manufactured by those that represented the prosecution in order to carry out a political plot, naturally I look on Howard's conviction as an awful crime. He was tried by a jury of political enemies and his trial, therefore, was devoid of even the elements of chance."

Mr. Taylor refused to discuss the case further or to talk about the charges made against him, or the possibility of a demand being made on Governor Durbin for his return to Kentucky.

Strikes You Anytime!

Never Know When a stitch, a twitch, or crick in the back will strike you. The aches and paines of a bad back strike you at anytime. Kidneys will go wrong, and when the kidneys fail the back generally fails, too. Backache comes to the busy man, to the mechanic, the laborer, to women, old and young; to all who have sick kidneys, and kidneys are no respecter of persons, time or place, they will get sick when you overtax them

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Continual use of this greatest of kidney specifics, rights all resultant conditions of deranged kidneys and bladder, such as impure blood, rheumatic pains, headaches, sleeplessness, nervous troubles, inflammatory conditions of the kidneys and bladder. Dangerous neglect of any kidney sickness leads to a score or more of serious bodily ills, that once they have a hold on the system, 'tis one long drawn out struggle to get rid of them—to get well. One remedy will do this, and it is easy for you to prove its merits.

DULUTH TESTIMONY:

MICHIGAN ST.

C. Hackman, of 2222 Michigan street, brakeman on the Northern Pacific railroad, says: "I was troubled for years with a heavy, dull aching through the small of my back and an unnatural and irregular condition of the kidney secretions. My work is particularly trying on the back, and being frequently exposed to rough weather and doing a good deal of climbing about the cars, kept my complaint aggravated. I felt all run down, and I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, and procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and used them. In a remarkably short time I was thoroughly relieved of the trouble. My wife was suffering from the effects of la grippe, and had a great deal of suffering from her back. She used Doan's Kidney Pills, and the result was instant relief."

SUPERIOR ST.

Mrs. M. McGillivray, of 1223 Superior street, says: "I was troubled with my kidneys a good deal for a year or two, and had heavy, dull pains through my loins. My back tired easily, especially if I reclined or sat long in one position. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were unnatural, and I was troubled with persistent headaches. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box from W. A. Abbett's drug store, and began to use the preparation. I received wonderful benefit from the treatment, and since using Doan's Kidney Pills I have felt splendid."

SIXTH ST.

Mr. L. Schneider, of 224 Sixth street west, employed at the Fifth avenue grocery, says: "I had a dull, persistent aching in my loins, and if I stooped or lifted anything heavy, it became sharp and piercing. Although often very tired at night, I could not rest well, as I soon became lame and sore from lying in one position. The secretions from the kidneys were irregular and unnatural. I tried different remedies, but they did not do me much good. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and commenced the treatment. I began to get better right away, and after using one box felt splendid."

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Warm Weather Stimulates the Distribution of Seasonable Goods.

New York, May 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: At the leading cities high temperature has stimulated the distribution of seasonable merchandise at retail, but dry goods jobbers and commission houses report only a fair trade. Leading manufacturing lines are active, except for some hesitancy at textile mills. In iron and steel, footwear, furniture, harness and clothing there is little idle machinery. Structural work is vigorously prosecuted and supplies of building material are not allowed to accumulate. A special canvass of the white pine situation by correspondents of this paper shows low stocks and high prices, although the season's cut was large. Mercantile payments are fairly prompt, yet there is less disposition to anticipate payments for a cash discount as frequently occurred last year. Railway earnings for April were 13.2 per cent larger than last year, and 27.6 per cent in excess of 1901.

Deliveries of coke on old contracts are now so large that re-selling frequently occurs, and is so far as the fuel question is concerned, there appears no prospect of interruption, while it is difficult to maintain quotations of Connellsville coke. An unusually heavy ore tonnage has been arranged to lower lake ports, preparations indicating that no diminution in iron and steel activity is anticipatd.

Disparity continues between current prices and quotations on deliveries during the closing months of the year, sales of Bessemer pig iron for late shipment being recorded at $19 Valley furnace. Billets remain the prominent feature, domestic stocks failing to meet demands, and efforts to secure imports have met with success. German sellers accepting large contracts. In addition to urgent railway demands for heavy steel there is a steady inquiry for structural shapes, to be used in erection of new buildings, etc. Tin plate and wire mills enjoy seasonable activity.

Hardware lines are well employed, and aside from pending labor controversies, the condition of the iron and steel industry as a whole is most satisfactory.

Textile mills have not yet felt any stimulus from better than normal conditions, although improvement in retail trade will ultimately accelerate jobbing sales, which in turn will increase purchase from the manufacturers. Owing to the inadequate supply of orders, idle machinery is no longer exceptional at woolen mills, yet Western holders of raw wool refuse to make any concessions, and the future course of prices is becoming uncertain.

Exceptionally favorable conditions exist in footwear industry.

Failures are 203 against 186 last week, and in Canada 13 against 15 last week, 16 the preceding week and 17 last year.

GOVERNING PRINCIPLES

In Decisions Concerning Spanish Claims of American Citizens.

Washington, May 2.—The Spanish claims commission yesterday filed a statement of the principles which will govern its decisions on claims of American citzens against Spain which have been assumed by the United States. The statement includes certain propositions which were made first in November, 1902, and five new propositions.

1.—The United States will pay only those claims which Spain was bound to pay before the United States assumed their payment.

2.—There was no recognition of Cuban belligerency which barred the claims of our citizens.

3.—The general rule is that where an armed insurrection has gone beyond control, the parent government is not responsible to neutral foreigners for damages done by the insurgents.

4.—Notice is judicially taken that the Cuban insurrection went beyond control. If, however, in any case it is proved that by due diligence Spain might have prevented the damages she will be held liable for such damages.

5.—Spain was entitled to use all legitimate war measures to suppress the insurrection, but for damages done by illegitimate war measures to neutral foreigners she was liable.

6.—The commission is bound to impose the modern humane limitations upon the use of reconcentration as a war measure.

7.—The parent state is bound to give to the property of neutral foreigners such reasonable protection as the circumstances will permit. It must abstain from unnecessary and wanton destruction. It must, for removed inhabitants, provide food and shelter, guard them from sickness and death and from cruelty and hardship, and it must not discriminate against any class of neutral foreigners.

8.—Foreigners, as well as subjects, must submit to the casualties of war and their property is liable to be taken or destroyed by the armies of either belligerents; but if in any case Spain has failed to fulfill her obligations in connection with reconcentration orders, she will be held liable for the damages done.

9.—The treaty of 1795 and the Cushing protocol of 1877 were in force during the insurrection.

10.—Article 7 of that treaty against embargoes and detentions applies to real estate and other property on land.

11.—But nothing in the treaty will be so applied as to render Spain liable for damages done to property in the track of war or by military movements not unnecessary and wantonly conducted.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

Little Annie And The Wolf.

BY MINNA C. SMITH.

When her father went up into the high mountains of the Medicine Bow to the timber claim in September Annie went along in the spring wagon that carried the tents and provisions. Valor, the big shepherd dog, trotted behind the wagon. Sue and Dora rode on horseback. The girls came to cook for their father and for the fun of camping out. Mr. Anderson went to chop down pines and mark others to be felled by the men when they came up later with the teams to haul the wood down to the ranch at the Little Laramie. Annie was a papa's girl and knew when his ax said "Run" as well as if it had spoken.

It was nearly dark when they camped at last in a clearing at the timber claim and the air was chill in 10,000 feet of mountain altitude. The campfire that her father built was a comfort. Annie stood about feeding the flame with crackling twigs until her sisters, who were cooking supper at the fire, begged her go away.

Annie ran to her father. Followed by Valor, the big shepherd dog, she hurried down to the brook, where her father was watering the horses.

"There's my girl," he said. But he was busy and did not observe her as she pursued her way down the brook toward a thicket of aspens a quarter of a mile below camp.

Annie heard Valor's footsteps behind her, and looking round saw the big shepherd dog hurrying after her. "I can't go anywhere alone," she muttered. Her pioneer instinct was affronted. She hurried on toward the forest, then paused suddenly, for out of a thicket ahead came the sound of a wild voice. It was not a coyote. Annie had often run from coyotes when the dogs got after them at Little Laramie.

"Come along, Val! Let's go see what it is!" she said.

But Valor knew better. He stood still and barked. Annie picked up a stick of wood and hurled it toward the thicket. Then she jumped madly toward the nearest tree and began climbing up its trunk, hand over hand.

For out of the thicket had come a wolf! Annie saw it in the moonlight and heard its dreadful voice. Terror knotted her throat, tears stood in her eyes as she climbed. By the time she was safe astride of a high pine bough the wolf and the shepherd dog were in the thick of a dreadful fight.

It was a mother wolf, and she had cubs in the thicket and had come out to defend her home. Annie knew she was a wolf by a picture in her school reader, and she screamed with fear while that strong, sharp nosed brown wolf fought and bit and tore at dear old Val, who fought well, too, but with signs of a losing battle.

"Papa! Pa-pa-a-a-a!" wailed little Annie at the top of her lungs. "Papa-a-a-a!"

But no one heard. The fight under the pine tree grew fiercer. Annie could see bloody wounds on poor old Valor. She felt sure the dear dog would be killed, and she would have to stay up there in the pine tree all night. Perhaps the wolf could climb trees like a bear! Once a bear had come up a tree after her father. But he was a big man and had a bowie knife and killed the bear. Ah, she had a knife herself! Annie stopped screaming and took out her little pocket knife and opened it.

"Anyhow, I can jab at the wolf's eyes with the big blade when he comes up the tree!" she sobbed. Then once more she called—

"Papa! Pa-pa-a-a-a!"

This time it was not in vain. She had been missed at camp, and her father was coming, his rifle on his shoulder, hoping to get a shot at game after finding his little daughter. At sounds of her cry he ran forward, shouting her name, then he stopped, astonished as he came through the thicket upon the fight, and heard his child's voice from the pine tree above—

"Make him stop, papa! Make him stop hurting Val! The wolf began it!"

Mr. Anderson had already picked up several stones and was hurling them at the wolf to separate him from the dog, so that he could fire. In all his hunting he had never before heard of a wolf coming out of cover to attack a shepherd dog.

"Val wasn't doing a thing!" wailed the voice above him. "Yah-ah-ah!"

"Hush up, Annie—you, up there!" Mr. Anderson called sternly. In that moment he was all hunter. The child was safe; that was enough. It was his business now to free his dog and finish that wolf. The animal was tearing wildly at the dog, and the stones Mr. Anderson threw only maddened her more.

Then Annie, controlling herself, drew her strong little body out on the bough, leaned over and, taking aim, twirled her pocket knife by the big blade over and downward at the head of the wolf. Not all her training in mumblety-peg could have made sure of what happened. It was this:

The knife struck, point downward, in the wolf's head! With a yelp of pain the wolf bounded away from the dog, the knife erect on its big blade, handle upward.

Then Mr. Anderson fired. The wolf fell dead.

Annie slid down when she saw her father lean his gun against a tree and go and bend over the animal's body. She came beside him and said in a trembling little voice:

"I guess mamma 'll like that wolf's skin for a mat when you tan his hide."

"I'll tan your hide, young lady, next time you run away," replied her father, handing her what was left of her knife. The big blade was broken off close to the handle. Annie did not know that that blade, pulled from the wolf's head, was in her father's pocket, nor that her father's heart was full of pride and tenderness, but so mighty was her need of her father's love and comfort that she slid her little hand into his warm palm. He smiled, stooped, took her up in his arms, kissed her, rubbed her cheeks for a second, then put her down and turned to the wolf. He dragged the body over to a group of cottonwoods by the brook, broke off a bough and put it across between the trunks and slung the wolf up on it. Then he went into the thicket, Annie's hand in his, and they found the wolf's cubs.

"I guess I will pack you, daughtie," he said, taking her up in his arms again.

He carried Annie back to the tents, Valor following, and left her telling the story to her sisters, who were petting and anointing the dog, while he went back to get the wolf's skin and the cubs. He took them over to High Landing next day to send to Laramie, but the big, beautiful skin was taken home with them in the spring wagon when they went ten days later. It made a handsome rug. Mrs. Anderson put it in the parlor in front of Dora's piano, and whenever company came and admired it, Mr. Anderson would always say:

Here is a riddle which all should guess without any trouble.

Why The Chickens Say "Peep."

In the long ago all the little chickens that walked about through the green grass or on the brown earth were as silent as silent could be. They depended upon their mothers to look after them and find them food, and, instead of looking where they were going, walked about with their little yellow beaks pointing upward toward the bright, beautiful sun, which warmed the air and made the insects and grain grow to be their food. As the chickens had learned, after falling many times, to step very high when moving about, they got along very well and did not stumble nearly as often as might have been expected. But one day something happened which caused a great change in their habits.

A certain little chicken, on a bright summer's day, was walking through a patch of grass, and, as usual, instead of keeping his eyes on the ground, was looking up into the air, holding his beak so high, indeed, that any one who did not know him would have said that he was a very haughty little chicken.

Now, as chance would have it, a lovely little fairy, a great favorite at the court of the Fairy King, had chosen that particular stretch of grass as a convenient place in which to snatch some beauty sleep (though if you could have seen her I am sure you would agree that she did not need it in the least), for the Fairy King was to give a great ball that night, and she wished to look her very best.

And what should the chicken do, mincing along with beak in air, as though the ground on which he trod did not concern him in the least, but step directly on the slumbering fairy! With a shriek of alarm and dismay she fluttered upward into the air, but alas! only to fall back to earth; for the down had been rubbed almost entirely from one of her wings by the chicken's foot, and, as you all know, it is only the down upon their wings which enables fairies to fly at all. And even if she were able to get there, how could she appear at the King's ball with a damaged wing?

In her despair she began to weep, and the chicken, looking down at last, realized what had happened. He was sorry enough for the distress which his carelessness had caused, for the fairy's sobs and mournful words told him at how unfortunate a time the accident had occurred, and he at once began racking his brains to think of some way of repairing the mischief. At last, to his great joy, a bright thought came to him.

"If you will go to the Flower Doctor," said he, "I am sure that with a little honey and with the down which some of the butterflies will undoubtedly lend you from their wings he will be able to make you look as well as ever."

The fairy, finding the suggestion a good one, and knowing that there was no time to be lost if she meant to be ready in time for the ball, at once hastened to the Flower Doctor; and so well did he perform his task that her wings looked, if possible, more beautiful than ever, and that night at the King's ball she was acknowledged by all to be the handsomest lady present.

As for the chicken, in order that such an accident (which another time might not be so easy to remedy) might not occur again, the fairies decreed that all chickens should ever after, while walking around, say "Peep, peep!" in order to remind them to look where they were going; and so well have they learned the lesson that when they come out of their shells the very first thing that they say is "Peep, peep!"

Thought Reading Feat.

It takes two persons, boys or girls, to perform this feat, which is very simple, but nevertheless mystifying to everyone who has not seen it.

One of the performers leaves the room, and the door is closed so that he cannot hear what goes on. Then the company names some object that the absent player is to tell when he returns.

When the object has been agreed upon the absent one is recalled and the first performer says:

"While you were out of the room I told the boys and girls here that if they would name some object, no matter what, you would guess it the first trial on your return. Did you hear the object named? No, of course you didn't, for the door was closed and the name was spoken in so low a tone that you could not have heard. Now, let me ask you—Was it a book?" "No." "Was it a vase?" "No." "Was it a chandelier?" "No." "Was it a chair?" "No." "Was it a flower?" "Yes."

Now, how did the player know that it was a "flower?" Simply because the understanding between the two performers is that the first performer, in asking those questions, names some four-legged object just before he names the one that the company has agreed upon. When, therefore, he asked "Was it a chair?" his confederate knew that he would name the real object next, because a chair has four legs.

Collecting Butterflies.

The materials used in capturing, drying and mounting them are very few, and an ingenious boy can make most all of them.

The first thing to make is a cyanide jar. At the druggist's buy an ounce of cyanide of potassium. Also get a small quantity of plaster of paris. Procure a large candy jar with a wide mouth and put the cyanide into it. The utmost care must be taken with the cyanide, as it is very poisonous. Pour into the jar enough water to cover the cyanide. Then put enough plaster of paris into it to harden the cyanide and the water into a white substance. Always keep the jar covered when not in use. Be sure to wash your hands after handling the cyanide. If these directions are carefully followed the jar will last a season.

To make a net, procure a light pole, at least five feet in length. Get a piece of telephone wire five feet long and bend it into the form of a hoop. Fasten the ends to the pole with staples. Then make a net out of mosquito netting at least 18 inches deep and sew it to the hoop.

In capturing a butterfly wait until it alights on a flower and throw the net over it. The butterfly will fly to the top of the net. Put your hand into the net and give the butterfly a slight pinch in the thorax. Take it out of the net and put it into the jar. Be sure to replace the cover after the butterfly is in the jar.

Another way is to uncover the jar and put it up under the net so that the butterfly is right over the jar. A sharp stroke of the hand is enough to cause the butterfly to drop into the jar. This last way applies only to the smaller butterflies that have very fragile wings, and cannot be handled without injuring them.

After they have been in the jar for about half an hour, take them out to set them. To make a setting board get a soft pine board and plane it until it is very smooth. Stick a pin through the thorax of a butterfly and pin it to the setting board with the upper side down. Spread its wings so that the fore wing is at a right angle with the body. Pin two strips of cardboard over the wings, being careful that the pins do not go through the wings. A better way is to lay two thick pieces of glass over them. Leave the butterflies on the setting board for a few days or a week.

There are many ways of mounting butterflies. If your collection is to be mounted upon pins, the following is one of the best and cheapest ways. Go to a cigar store and get several empty boxes. Make a light wooden frame that will fit into one of them. Over this frame stretch a piece of wet paper. Glue the paper on the frame and let it dry until tight. Then glue it to the box about two-thirds from the top. Before doing this, fasten a camphor ball in the box at one of the corners. Special pins for mounting butterflies may be procured at any supply store. They are long and slender, and are made of steel. Stick a pin through the thorax of the butterfly that you wish to mount about an inch from the top. Push it through the paper to the bottom of the box.

The best way of preserving dead butterflies is to keep them in light tablets, made of plaster of paris, with a groove in the center for the body and a glass for the top. They may be bought of dealers in butterflies, etc.

A favorite way of capturing moths is known as sugaring. Use a mixture of beer and cheap brown sugar, or molasses and water, into which are added a few tablespoonfuls of Jamaica rum. Apply it to the trunks of trees along a path in the forest at nightfall. At dusk many species of moths will appear, being attracted by the sweet scent of the mixture. Some beetles will also come out. The collector should always have a separate jar to put these and other insects into, for the horny antennae and legs of the beetles injure the delicate wings of the butterflies. Never sugar in the deep woods, as they do not contain so many moths. Moist and cloudy nights are more productive than dry, bright nights. It is better to go back to the place where you sugared in the morning, because butterflies are also attracted by it.

There are many other baits that are used to attract insects. Butterflies are attracted by the sap on maple trees. In passing through the woods do not fail to beat the bushes along the roadside.

It is very interesting work to capture and make a collection of butterflies, but it is still more interesting to classify them. It would be very presumptuous for me to try to classify butterflies in this short article, but a few hints may be desirable. Butterflies and moths belong to the order of insects called lepidoptera.

There are five families of butterflies. They are:

1. The brush-footed butterflies.
2. The metal marks.
3. The hair streaks, blues and coppers.
4. The swallowtails, sulphurs and whites.
5. The skippers.

Every butterfly has a scientific name. The name of an individual is John Smith. John is his individual name, Smith his family name. In the butterflies the family name is called a genus and the individual name a species. The name of the common mourning cloak in Vanessa antiopa, the genus first and the species afterward. The generic name always begins with a capital letter and the specific name with a small letter. Often the name of the man who named the butterfly is written after its name. Vanessa antiopa is sometimes written Vanessa antiopa Linnaeus. More commonly, however, the generic name is abbreviated and also the name of the man who named the butterfly. Then Vanessa antiopa would be written V. antiopa Linn.

In some species there are several varieties of only one species. Specimens of Papilio turnus vary greatly. The commonest form is yellow, but there is a black form in the female, found in Florida and the Southern states. This black form is called P. turnus glaucus Linn.

DEFEAT OF THE LEADER

Six yachts with spread sails were a-racing,
Each striving its laurels to defend;
The Theresa, Atlanta, Camellia,
Inez, the Leader, the Friend.

The Leader was clearly the favorite,
Her captain felt sure of the race;
And he laughed at the Friend and Theresa,
And declared they would take the last place.

But his rivals sailed closer and closer,
Till their sails began slowly to blend;
Then the Friend and Theresa forged forward,
And

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives, or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant, aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Many of the ills from which women suffer are of a transient nature and do not come from any organic trouble and it is pleasant to know that they yield so promptly to the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is needed it is best to consult the family physician and to avoid the old-time cathartics and loudly advertised nostrums of the present day. When one needs only to remove the strain, the torpor, the congestion, or similar ills, which attend upon a constipated condition of the system, use the true and gentle remedy—Syrup of Figs—and enjoy freedom from the depression, the aches and pains, colds and headaches, which are due to inactivity of the bowels.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs can hope to get its beneficial effects and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

New Things Strange and Curious

JAPANESE LOST GODS OF SILENCE.

The hue and cry raised by Prof. Maxwell Somerville, of the University of Pennsylvania, for two heathen idols lost in transit somewhere between here and Japan has resulted in the finding of the huge packing case in which the gods were shipped to America, and the idols have now been delivered and are placed in position at the gates of the Buddhist Temple of the university museum.

Professor Somerville purchased the idols in Japan last May. For three hundred years they had maintained their threatening attitude in front of the Koyasan Temple, in the village of Kishu. Professor Somerville bought them and had them shipped to this country, but in some way they went astray.

The Zuijin, or guardians of the temple, are statues of menacing, grotesque monsters of enormous muscle, whose poses depict the silence compelling expression with which the Buddhists endow them. They are presumed to be constantly proclaiming: "This is a place of prayer. Leave levity behind."

The right hand of one of the figures and the left hand of the other are raised threateningly. The hands that are lowered are turned palms outward in the most natural gesture to compel silence. From the waists flow garments lacquered to imitate cloth.

LANGUAGE FREAKS.

There are two words in the whole range of the English language containing all the vowels in their regular order. They are abstentious and facetious. The following words each have them in irregular order:—

Authoritative, disadvantageous, encouraging, efficacious, instantaneous, importunate, mendacious, nefarious, precarious, pertinacious, sacrilegious, simultaneous, tenacious, unintentional, unobjectionable, unequivocal, undiscoverable and vexatious. A search through the dictionary might bring several others to light.

It is usually said that there are but seven nine-lettered monosyllable words in English, viz.:—Scratched, stretched, scrunched, scranched, screeched, squelched and staunched.

Here are some of the shortest sentences into which the alphabet can be compressed:—"J. Gray, pack with my box five dozen quips," 30 letters. "Quack, glad zephyr, waft my javelin box." 31 letters. "Phiz, styx, wrong buck flame, quib," 26 letters. "J, quartz, pyx, who fling muck beds," 26 letters. "Fritz! quick! land! hew gypsum box," 26 letters. "Dumpty quiz! whirl back frogs next," 27 letters. "Export my fund. Quiz black whigs," 26 letters. "Get nymph, quiz and brow, fix luck," 29 letters. In more sober English the last one would be, "Marry, be cheerful, watch your business."

These sentences would make excellent writing copies, for they secure attention to every letter, and proper exercise for learners of the typewriter, as they take in all the keys, and thus familiarize one readily with all combinations. By changing from capital to lower case the value of the exercises is increased.

The "lead" of black lead pencils is now made from coke. It is ground and mixed with iron ore and chemicals and subjected to pressure under great heat.

A QUEER HOLLOW TREE.

A unique tree on Long Island is about sixty feet high and about two feet in diameter at the base. It is nearly straight, being only slightly bent near the bottom. A hollow in it is about one and one-half feet wide at the bottom, and runs up to the height of about twenty feet, where it is only about one-half a foot wide. Seventeen or eighteen feet up, on the opposite side, there is a small aperture just large enough for a man to stick his fist through and to make it possible for a person standing within the hollow to see the sky.

The ends of the bark around the hollow are very tough, and there is a white substance which covers the tree on the inside. Many persons would suppose this tree was dead. In the summer it is just as much alive as any of the trees, though it is not so thickly covered with leaves. It has very few limbs, and they are thin and very crooked. None of them are below the hollow. Many of the old residents of the vicinity say that a bolt of lightning caused the cavity.

PLANTS DIGEST FOOD.

You may smile at the idea of plants digesting their food? but they do, and wise men have discovered that every part of our elaborate and complex digestive system is duplicated in every detail in the stomachs of our vegetables cousins. No less distinguished authorities than Professor Marshall Ward and Pentland Smith have discovered a vigorous starch-digesting or diastatic process in the grains of the familiar maize and the tubers of the lowly potato. In both cases so soon as the bud or shoot begins to develop it secretes a ferment that attacks the starch of the mass and changes it into sugar for absorption by its cells.

Not only can this wretched cereal do with ease what our salivary glands and pancreas strain themselves red in the face over, but it also performs another feat that our elaborate human digestive apparatus is utterly incapable of, that of dissolving or "peptonizing" cellulose or woody fibre.

The starch needed by the shoot for conversion is enclosed in cells with firm walls of cellulose, and these must be eaten through before it can be acted upon by the diastatic ferment. Accordingly another ferment is secreated that dissolves cellulose, as our pepsin does proteids.

Of the helplessness of our own ferment in the presence of cellulose we have all had personal and painful demonstration in the extraordinary vagaries indulged in by the festive encumber and the frugal raw turnip when introduced into our unsuspecting and defenseless interior.

In fact, the peptonizing power of the vegtable ferment is so much greater than that of the animal that, as we see daily, the papayotin of the pinapple, the pawpaw and other fruits are becoming rivals of the porcine product.

Certain other plants display even more strikingly human characteristics in that they have actually become meat eaters and meat digesters. It has long been known that a large family of flowering plants, of which the sundew and Venus flytrap are familiar examples, secreted upon the surface of their leaves a thick, sticky juice, which in the former simply entangles insects, and the latter attracts and holds them till they can be actually seized by the halves of the leaf closing upon them trap fashion.

Whether these were utilized in the nutrition of the plant was, however, an open question until quite recently, when a series of analyses of this viscid secretion was made, and it was found to contain both a peptic ferment and an acid, which together rapidly dissolved all the soft tissues of the insects, leaving only the wings and hard cuticular casing of the body and limbs.

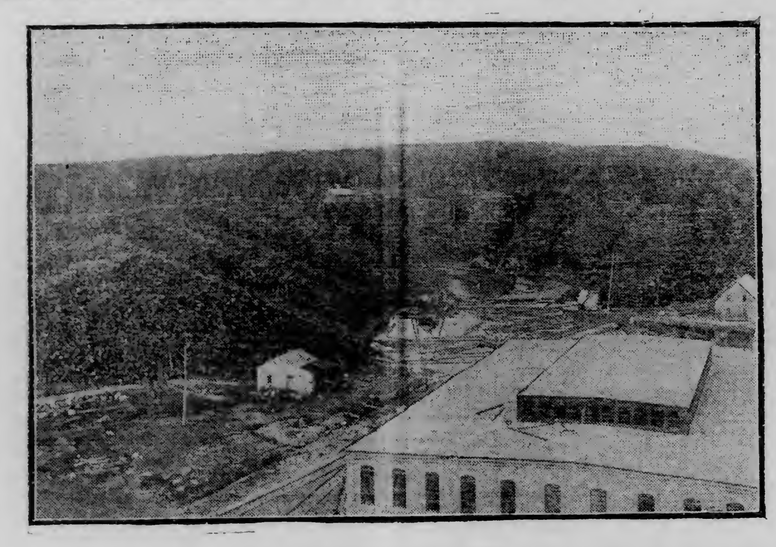
And what makes the resemblance to our own gastric processes most striking is that neither the acid nor the ferment is present in any quantity in the resting condition of the leaf, but both are poured out as soon as nitrogenous matter is placed upon the surface.

BIGGEST LOG PILE IN THE WORLD.

What is said to be the biggest log pile in the world is the mountain of spruce at Millinocket, Me., waiting to be ground into news paper, the most of which is already contracted for by big New York dailies.

This pile of logs contains 21,000,000 feet of spruce logs of all sizes and lengths. It was cut on the west branch of the Penobscot River, floated down to Millinocket, pulled out and piled by 100 men and half a dozen donkey engines, and now looms up several hundred feet. It is worth $250,000.

This pile comprises about a four months' supply for the plant, said to be the largest mill of the kind in the world. Every day paper enough is turned out to load the special freight train which goes through to New York without change.



Nurses Go On Strike

In Athens there was a curious sight recently. Fifty young women, wearing the picturesque costume of nurses, marched in procession through the principal streets and finally went to the government palace, where they asked for an audience with the mayor. They were the nurses employed in the foundling hospital, and they had gone on strike because they had not received any salary since the beginning of November. When the mayor received them they told him they had sent a formal petition to the manager of the hospital, but that he had paid no attention to it. The mayor, in reply, assured them that if they would return to work their salary would be paid without further delay. They took his advice, and that evening they received the money due to them. The incident made a great sensation in Athens, and an immense crowd followed the nurses during their march through the city.

A new calling device is being introduced in hotels where guests require to be awakened at special times to catch more or less early trains. A clock is set up in the office and is so constructed that it can be made to give a calling ring in any room at any time; it can be set to the required times, and it will do its duty faithfully, without oversleeping itself, as porters and others sometimes do.

Underground City.

In Turkestan, on the right bank of the Amou Daria, is a chain of rock hills near the Bokharan town of Karki, and a number of large caves, which, upon examination sometime ago, were found to lead to an underground city, built apparently long before the Christian era. According to effigies, inscriptions and designs upon the gold and silver money unearthed from among the ruins, the existence of the town dates back to some two centuries before the birth of Christ.

The underground Bokharan city is about two versts long, and is composed of an enormous labyrinth of corridors, streets and squares, surrounded by houses and other buildings two or three stories high. The edifices contain all kinds of domestic utensils, pots, urns, vases and so forth.

In some of the streets falls of earth and rock have obstructed the passages, but generally the visitor can walk about freely without so much as lowering his head. The high degree of civilization attained by the inhabitants of the city is shown by the fact that they built in several stories, by the symmetry of the streets and squares and by the beauty of the baked clay and metal utensils and of the ornaments and coins which have been found.

It is supposed that long centuries ago this city, so carefully concealed in the bowels of the earth, provided an entire population with a refuge from the incursions of nomadic savages and robbers.

Beautiful African Turtle.

One of the most beautiful turtles in the world is found in Africa, and a few fine specimens were recently captured there and taken to Europe. That they will thrive in a strange country is by no means certain, though a few naturalists, who have spent some months in German East Africa and who have carefully studied these turtles, are confident that they will quickly become acclimatized.

The beauty of these torpid and rather ungainly animals is in the shell, which covers and protects almost the entire body. Unlike that of the ordinary turtle, which is singularly lacking in richness and variety of color, this shell attracts the eye at once by the beautiful gold and brown stripes which run down it and by the little clusters of crimson which are found here and there.

A novel device is being tried for automatically stopping a train. A double dial is attached to one of the driving wheels; this registers the number of miles. Another part of the dial is fitted with a series of stops, arranged to coincide exactly with the distance of each station from the preceding one. As the train runs into the station zone the "stop" acts on a throttle valve and pulls up the train within the specified limits. The inventor adds that it will be useful in case of carelessness on the part of the driver or if he should be asleep.

BEAUTIFUL POMPEIIAN TABLET.

Some workmen, while recently excavating at Pompeii, suddenly came across a beautiful tablet, which, when examined, was found to contain a graphic representation of the ceremony which was customary whenever a sacrifice was made to Aphrodite.

A few days after it was found the tablet was photographed, and from this photograph the accompanying picture was taken. In the picture the place of honor is occupied by the goddess Aphrodite, and standing before her as suppliants for her favor are those who have come to offer her sacrifice.

By artists and archeologists the tablet is regarded as a work of the greatest interest; indeed, it is asserted that it is one of the most valuable relics which have yet been found at Pompeii, one reason being because it throws much light on the manner in which a sacrifice was made to a deity in ancient times.

NOTABLE ITALIAN BRIDGE.

In the accompanying picture is shown a bridge which has been erected in the South of Italy and which has attracted a good deal of attention. It spans a narrow valley at a great height from the ground and, viewed from below, is apparently very light and fragile. As a matter of fact it is very strong and competent foreign bridge builders who have examined it say that it will serve its purpose admirably for many years.

Even those who know nothing about the construction of such works can see from the accompanying picture that this is not an ordinary bridge and experts will have little difficulty in discovering why it is, in a sense, unique.

Making Rubies.

A Frenchman, M. Verneuil, has succeeded in manufacturing artificial rubies by a new process of fusing aluminum. He read a paper describing his experiments at a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences, in Paris. The largest rubies he made weighed more than fifteen carats, but when the process is finished these stones split in two, forming half spheres, which he says may be worked by lapidaries and cut like natural stones.

Experts to whom he submitted the product of his laboratory pronounced them to be of the same hardness and as capable of fine polish as the real gems. The only fly in the ointment—a fortunate one, perhaps, for the inexpert purchaser of pigeon bloods—lies in the drawback of internal discolorations, or bubbles of air, particularly in the larger stones so produced. The inventor, however, thinks that with time and further experimentation this difficulty will be obviated.

In New York the makers of artificial rubies use the "chippings" from the real stones for the purpose, grinding the bits into fine powder, then fusing them by chemical processes into a kind of red paste, which, when hardened and treated, present so exact a counterpart of the real gems that even experts have been deceived. They are able to make a very clear, translucent ruby in this manner, which may be purchased for about $50, while a real pigeon blood of the same size would sell for upward of $600.

These make believes are more expensive and also much truer to nature than the ordinary paste jewels which are manufactured out of a kind of composition having not even the faint claim of a ruby chip to make them seem "the real thing." The paste ruby can be bought for a few dollars per carat.

Cloisonne Ware.

In Kyoto, Japan, is the home and factory—or rather workshops, for he employs only hand labor—of Namikawa, the maker of the finest cloisonne ware in the world. Each one of his precious vases is worth more than its weight in gold. They are so tiny, some of them, that one wonders how human hands could have fashioned the exquisite work upon them. The largest one in his collection will be no more than fifteen inches high, but it is worth a thousand dollars, while the smallest will bring $25.

Large factories in Japan are almost unknown, the greatest masterpieces of this delicate ware being made in some humble little home, where one individual toils on ceaselessly and lovingly, week after week, month after month and often for years, on a single piece; first making the copper vase, conceiving and tracing the design, then wiring it carefully like fine etching upon the copper background with silver or gold wire; filling in the tiny interstices, often no larger than a pin prick, with enamel in the colors of nature; firing, enameling again, and still again, for many long weeks; then polishing for days at a time, till the beautiful and beloved thing stands complete, a master's work of art.

After the last firing the vase is rough and uneven and must be ground with pumice stone and water for perhaps a month to reduce the surface to the desired lens-like polish.

In Namikawa's shop each artist is permitted to come and go as he will and work when he pleases, for the master is keenly alive to the fact that a man can do more and better work if allowed to labor only when the inspiration and creating mood is upon him. He heeds a famous Japanese proverb which runs:—"What one loves best one can do best."

SHIP OF SILVER.

For many years it has been the custom in Bremen to give a splendid banquet in honor of the distinguished seamen and officials of that city, and on such occasions the beautiful work of art shown in the accompanying picture serves to decorate the center of the table.

It is constructed of massive silver and represents a ship. The work of a skilled artificer, it is said by those who have carefully examined it to be faultless in every respect. Only on banquet days is it seen by the public, and, though several years have elapsed since it was first placed on exhibition, the admiration of the citizens has not lessened in the slightest degree.

KING LEAVES PARIS; EMPEROR IS AT ROME

Movements of the European Monarchs on Their Tours.

Edward Starts For Cherbourg Amid Booming of Cannon.

Paris, May 4.—King Edward left the Envalids railroad station on his way to Cherbourg before noon today amid the booming of 100 cannons and the acclamations of an enormous crowd of people. The ceremonies at his departure were on the same elaborate and spectacular scale as on his arrival here. President Loubet, in a state coach, called at the British embassy and drove with the king through the avenues on both sides of which troops and large crowds were massed. The king wore the uniform of a British admiral. In a carriage following that of the king and the president were Premier Combes and Foregn Minister Declasse, the latter wearing, for the first time, the grand cross of the Victorian order, bestowed upon him yesterday by King Edward. There was a continuous roar of vive le rol along the route, through the Avenue De Marigny, over the Pont Alexandre, to the Esplanade des Invalides. The station was sumptuously decorated with crimson and gold hangings and the British and French colors. The band of the Republican guard played "God Save the King" at the moment of the British sovereign's departure. The final adieus were extremely cordial, the king and president holding a long and intimate farewell conversation. Then the king saluted the officers, bowed and smiled to the cheering crowd, entered the train and departed for Cherbourg, where a French squadron is awaiting to render him farewell honors.

Rome, May 4.—Owing to the recent heavy rains the military review in Emperor William's honor today did not take place on the regular parade ground, but was held at Centocelle, on a large plain five miles from this city. The troops numbered about 25,000 men. Emperor William recalled the fact that on the same field he had reviewed 50,000 men with the late King Humbert.

Notwithstanding the distance of Centocelle from Rome, it was estimated that 100,000 persons gathered to witness the magnificent spectacle. The two sovereigns, the two German princes, Crown Prince Frederick William and Prince Eitel, and four Italian princes and their suites and 300 officers in brilliant uniforms, their accoutrements sparkling in the sun, formed a picture brilliant in the extreme.

Queen Helena witnessed the review from a state carriage. She and the other members of the royal and imperial parties were heartily cheered.

The emperor showed great interest in the bearing of the troops and highly commended the famous Italian regiments.

CASE OF INFANTICIDE.

Female Child Found Strangled at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—With its face purple and discolored, the result of strangulation, the body of a fully born female infant was discovered beside the Great Western tracks below the South Robert street bridge early this morning. Coroner Miller says that it is a plain case of murder and will make a most thorough investigation. The police have been notified. The body was found at 8.30 this morning by three boys. About the neck of the infant was a linen napkin, tightly knotted.

Death was due to strangulation, caused by the knotting of the cloth about the infant's neck.

THE COUNTY BOARD.

Not Much to Come Before the May Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held tomorrow afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock. The various committees will meet in the morning to prepare their reports. So far as known today, there were few if any matters of special importance to come before the commissioners, aside from the regular routine business. There is likely to be some action taken relative to school district matters and the date will probably be set for other hearings. The committee on county roads is also expected to have a report relative to a petition for new roads on the ranges.

TO FIGHT INJUNCTION.

Butte, Mont., May 4.—At a meeting of the Silver Bow Trades and Labor assembly last night, it was decided to employ counsel and fight the injunction proceedings brought in the federal court by the Western Union Telegraph company to prevent the Butte unions from boycotting the telegraph company because of a strike of the messenger boys.

ASSASSINS ARE LYNCHED.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 4.—Bob Bryant and Will Morris, the assassins of W. H. Legg, were hanged to the Yazoo bridge at Haynes Bluff just before daylight yesterday. Bryant had made a confession to officers who arrested him implicating Morris, whom he accused of firing the fatal shot. At a point near the Legg place two hundred armed farmers stopped the officers and took the two negroes into a nearby thicket. Robbery was the motive for the murder.

STRIKE OF ITALIANS IN NEW YORK BECOMES MORE SERIOUS

A Large Number of Policemen Necessary to Protect the Men Who Are Working on Water Mains In Place of the Strikers.

New York, May 4.—The strike of Italian rock drillers and diggers took a more serious turn in the Bronx today, and fifty policemen were sent to keep order along the excavation for water mains where men are working in the strikers' places. A rumor was circulated among the 1200 men at work that 3000 strikers would march out and try to induce them to quit. The police were picketed along the excavation wall. The Italians, however, marched by and shouted harshly at the men in their places. Agent Landau, of the Italian labor union, said there were 15,000 men on strike in the city, and that all work in the Bronx section would be stopped.

A big box of explosives which was in a shanty for the excavation work in the Bronx was ordered buried by the police, and two guards were stationed near to watch it. Encouraged by the action of the Central Federated union in endorsing their demands, the laborers employed on the subway are on strike today, and the tie-up was as complete as on Saturday.

Omaha, May 4.—One hundred bakers struck today demanding recognition of their union and an advance in wages. The employers of teamsters will not attempt to start their wagons until Wednesday, having postponed action until after the city election. Several of the small restaurants are running today with women and colored waiters, although none of the larger concerns have attempted to open their places.

ANDREW CARNEGIE'S OFFER TO ENGINEERS MAY BE WITHDRAWN

Lack of Harmony Among the Various Associations May Result In the Loss of Magnificent Building Offered By Steel King.

New York, May 4.—Lack of harmony among the associations of engineers in this county may nullify an offer of Andrew Carnegie to give $1,000,000 or more with which to establish a national center for engineering interests in this city. Rivalry exists among the various bodies of the engineering profession, and a high official in one of the bodies said it is doubtful if all can live in peace under one roof. Not until very recently was it known to three or four men to whom Mr. Carnegie had communicated that he intended to found an institution which would be unique both in this country and in Europe. He intended that his gift should be used to erect a magnificent building as a monument of the gratitude to a profession with which his business success has been closely identified.

The building was to cost not less than $1,000,000, exclusive of the cost of a site. It would contain a perfectly appointed club, to take the place of the Engineers' club now located on Fifth avenue. An auditorium with a seating capacity of 2000 persons, separate quarters for the four engineering bodies which would constitute the union, and libraries which would be unsurpassed in the engineering field. Mr. Carnegie has put his proposal in writing, and as the matter now stands it needs only the harmonious action of the councils of the associations concerned, a meeting of which will be held Thursday to utilize the gift.

IT IS BELIEVED THAT FATHER WALSER WILL BE RELEASED

Detectives Express the Opinion That It Will Be Impossible to Fasten the Murder of Miss Reichlin at Lorain, Upon Him.

Lorain, O., May 4.—The funeral of Miss Agatha Reichlin, murdered here Friday morning at the parsonage of St. Joseph's Catholic church was largely attended today the church being packed to the doors. The services began with the chanting of the mass, "Offices of the dead," conducted by Father Reichlin, assisted by fourteen visiting priests, among them being Father Casimir Reichlin, of Cleveland, an uncle of the deceased.

At the conclusion of the service the remains were taken to the Catholic cemetery at Elyria for interment.

Today the detectives have been endeavoring to verify reports to the effect that two men were seen on the night of the murder carrying a ladder near the roof of the parsonage.

They have also investigated a report that the house of J. W. Spencer, on Dexter street, three blocks from the Reichlin house, was visited by robbers on the night of the murder, who were frightened away after they had raised a window.

A report has also reached the police that burglars tried to enter the house of C. P. Bartz, two blocks from the parsonage, on the night of the murder. Detective Kilbride of Cleveland, who is here working on the case, today expresses the belief that it will be impossible to prove that Father Walser committed the crime. It is generally believed today that unless additional evidence against Rev. Walser is obtained that he will be released when his preliminary hearing takes place.

CLEAN LINEN IS GROWING SCARCER

Chicago, May 4.—Serious as is the shortage in clean linen in Chicago, this week promises to bring a far worse condition of affairs unless the laundry workers' strike is ended. Rather than continue doing business with a crippled force, every large steam laundry in the city will close down today. The proprietors have decided that even the suburban firms must lock out their workers, and last night they sent a committee to Evanston to request the firms there to join in the fight. The hotels and restaurants of the downtown district are already using paper napkins. Most of the smaller hotels and some of the larger ones have notified guests of their inability to attend to "bundle work." The hand laundries of the city are overrun with pleas, but should they run night and day, they cannot relieve the situation. The Chinese laundrymen are working overtime and enjoying the situation.

NOT A SUCCESS AS A FIRE EATER

Summit, N. Y., May 4.—John McNamara, an apprentice boy employed by a local plumber, recently attended a theatrical performance, where he saw a professional fire-eater blow flame from his mouth. John thought the trick was the finest he ever saw. He announced later that he would give a performance, and a number of his boy friends came around to see the show. He filled his mouth with gasoline, and holding a lighted match a short distance from him, blew. In a few moments his lung pressure gave out. The physician who is attending him says if he recovers he probably will be disfigured for life.

FOOTBALL MAY BE REVOLUTIONIZED

New York, May 4.—American college football bids fair to be revolutionized next fall if the intercollegiate football rules committee carries into effect a regulation which it now has under consideration. This rule provides for nothing less than that the ball has to pass through the hands of only two men before being regarded as in play. At present it is necessary for it to go through the hands of three men. By the proposed rule the center can snap the ball to any man on the team who may then rush with it. It will be possible therefore for the quarterback to carry the ball, an important innovation, and because of the fact that any man may take the pigskin with the quarterback's previous assistance all sorts of puzzling combinations will be feasible. Indeed, in the opinion of experts, football under these conditions would be almost an entirely new game for the first season at least and would resolve itself largely into a question "who's got the ball?" With this regulation in effect the present evils of mass play which have aroused such opposition would, it is believed largely be done away with and a more open and less dangerous style of play come into effect.

LOOKS FOR WEALTH

Young Simonds Believes His Father Had Much Property.

He Starts an Investigation to Recover the Fortune.

New York, May 4.—Certain that his father, Edward M. Simonds, the New York broker, who was mysteriously murdered in Chicago, was very wealthy, his son, Alan T. Simonds, has started an investigation to get at the details of the dead man's business affairs to recover his fortune and to obtain through his business relations a clue that may lead to vengeance on his father's slayer.

That Simonds met his death while fulfilling a secret mission of importance to financiers in New York and Chicago, is now the belief of his friends. They say that he had almost completed a big deal when he was killed.

Beyond that point, however, no progress has been made towards solving the mystery. For some reasons Simonds for years kept from his family all information that now might furnish clues. Where his offices were, who his businesss associates were and other details are unknown.

When he left home he merely told his wife he was going to Chicago on a business matter of great importance. Ten days afterward he wrote his wife saying he had been successful, was in good health and would return home in about ten days. This letter was received by Mrs. Simonds one hour after a telegram announcing that he had been killed.

Simonds' son says: "I am willing to tell all I know, but it is of little value in the case. We came from Chicago five years ago and father engaged in the banking and brokerage business here with an office downtown. He told us nothing and we asked no questions. That he was successful I have no doubt, but today I know absolutely nothing about his assets."

FINAL TEST OF WYOMING

Harbor Defense Monitor Will Make Forty-Eight Hour Run.

San Francisco, May 4.—In accordance with the naval rule requiring a final trial within six months after completion before a vessel shall be accepted from the builders, the new harbor defense monitor Wyoming will go to sea tomorrow for a forty-eight-hours' run. Capt. Colman is in command, but the trial will be under the direction of a trial board, consisting of Capt. W. C. Whiting, Lieutenant Commanders Stafford and Lopez, Lieut. Branch and Naval Constructor Tawresey. Full speed under natural draft will be maintained by the vessel for the full forty-eight hours, and a special run of from two to four hours is also to be made. It is thought the Wyoming will meet all requirements and be formally received by the government from the Union Iron works, though the full six months will not expire until June 8.

WILL CHECK MANY STRIKES

Executive Board of Labor Federation to Act as Mediator.

Chicago, May 4.—Advocates of industrial peace have won a victory in the Chicago Federation of Labor that will be a check on mushroom strikes, and it is believed will prevent a repetition of the labor controversies that have marked the last two months. Two weeks ago the federation refused to adopt a peace compact, preventing all unions less than a year old from starting a strike, but now it has decided to make its executive board a mediator in all disputes, and ordered all affiliated locals to submit their troubles to this board for adjustment. This course will insure peace negotiations before a strike is called, and will bring to an end such walk-outs as those at the Deering Harvester plant and in the laundries of the city. It also will probably head off trouble at the McCormick Harvester works, at the numerous restaurants and at the freight houses.

SHOT IN THE BACK.

Kentucky Attorney Assassinated By Unknown Party.

Jackson, Ky., May 4.—J. B. Marckum, an attorney of this place, was shot in the head while standing in the main hall of the court house near the door. He had always been friendly to the Cockrill family and their friends, and often stated that efforts were being made to have him killed. Marckum was shot from behind by some one located in the hall further back.

The assassin is unknown. Great excitement prevails and the town is in an uproar.

FIRE AT ELLSWORTH, WIS.

St. Paul, May 4.—A special to the Dispatch from Ellsworth, Wis., says: Morrow & Rolsom's livery barn was destroyed by lightning last evening. Loss, $1600; insurance, $500. The horses and rigs were saved. A larger and better structure will be built immediately.

PRESIDENT'S DAY IN STATE OF COLORADO

ROOSEVELT IS SCORED FOR ATTITUDE TOWARD WOMEN

Mrs. Woolsey Writes That President Has Never Mentioned Women or Attributed Anything Good to Them In Any of His Speeches.

New York, May 4.—As if to call official attention to her abandonment of America as her native land, says the American's London correspondent, Mrs. Kate Trimble Woolsey, of New York, has sent a letter to President Roosevelt in which she denounces America's attitude toward women.

In her letter Mrs. Woolsey calls his attention to the fact that the president has never mentioned women or attributed anything good to them in any of his speeches on the tours he has been making through the country, and she asks him to point out to her anything that women-kind has gained by forsaking a monarchial government for the American republic.

She also asks why he, the disciple of the strenuous life, has never taken up the cudgels for woman and given her her proper place in public affairs of the nation.

"Presidents," says she, "have had a grand opportunity to uplift women, but there is nothing in any of their public utterances that recognizes even the presence of women as a factor in American political life."

Mrs. Woolsey suggests to the president that he look about his own domestic circle and say how far the women folks there share his official life and what part they play beyond mere ornamentation.

"It is masculine, all masculine," declares Mrs. Woolsey, "and a place of honor for woman is not anywhere found in the fabric of the American nation."

FALLING LIMESTONE ECHOES IN DESERTED TOWN OF FRANK

Police Are Keeping a Strict Guard Over the Unfortunate Settlement and No One Is Allowed to Enter Unless He Has Property There.

Blairmore, N. W. T., May 4.—The loud reports caused by the limestone crumbling and falling down the mountain, which kept up the greater part of Sunday, echoed dolefully through the empty town of Frank. There were almost no signs of life in the place, as the police maintained a rigid guard and permitted no one to enter the town except persons having property to move or look after.

Another party ascended the mountain yesterday to observe the progress of disintegration going on in the danger zone. It was found that the break, or crevas, from which future trouble is looked for has evidenced greatly since the observations of the day before. Receipt of this information has created fears of a second slide. The Canadian Pacific takes so serious a view of the situation that Superintendent Taylor has stopped the work of reconstruction and withdrawn his entire force for the time being.

As soon as all personal property is removed it is proposed to experiment with powder and try to blow down all loose rock as well as any that shows any indication of being dangerous. The attempt to put the mountain in a safe condition will be made by the government.

BIG FINANCIERS ARE TO BUY THE CHOCTAW COAL LANDS

Frick, Gates and Others Propose to Secure 440,000 Acres Which Is to Be Sold at Public Auction For Benefit of Indians.

South McAlester, I. T., May 4.—Big financiers of the East, headed by H. C. Frick, of Pittsburg, and John W. Gates, of Chicago, are forming a party to get coal lands in the Cheotaw nation. There are 440,000 acres in the Choctaw nation which will be sold at public auction and the proceeds divided among the Choctaws in accordance with an act of congress. The price agreed upon by the Frick-Gates syndicate is $25 per acre. It is not the intention of the syndicate to disturb the present mining companies, either large or small, or the coal leases. All that the Eastern financiers want is the undeveloped coal lands. They will let the companies now mining coal buy the land covered by their leases, but no more. It is said some of the independent mine concerns are not able to buy the land which they have now leased and the syndicate will buy it for them and allow them to operate it on a royalty of 8 cents a ton, as they are now paying the Indians. Some of the men in the syndicate will purchase the land for development, while others will hold it for speculative purposes. Frick is to get the land along the Fort Smith & Western railroad, which he owns. Gates wants a tract of land in the eastern part of the Choctaw nation, which carries some coal specially suited for coking purposes. George Gould is to get large tract in the vicinity of South McAlester.

A PITIFUL INCIDENT OF THE FATAL ACCIDENT AT DETROIT

Polish Father Was Leading His Entire Family Up the Track When Whizzing Train Struck Them—One Killed and All Rest Are In Hospital.

Detroit, May 4.—All but three of the Polish excursionists injured last night when the Grand Trunk Pan-American flyer from Chicago plowed through a crowd of Polish excursionists who were boarding their train at the corner of Dequinder and Canfield streets for the return trip to Toledo, are reported today as doing well at the various hospitals. The body of a 9-year-old boy was early today identified as Stanley Orszholske, 1226 Campbell avenue, Toledo. There are still at the morgue unidentified the bodies of a young woman, a man and a boy about 14 years old.

One of the most pitiful incidents of the catastrophe was the fate of the Orszholske family of Toledo; four members of which are in the Red Cross hospital, while the fifth, little Stanley, lies dead in Maney's morgue. Peter Orszholske, his wife and two children occupy the same room in the hospital.

"I don't know how it happened," Orszholske said in halting English, today. "They told me to go up to the front car to get seats for my family. I started with them and that is all I know. I had my little girl in my arms, and my wife had the baby in her arms and little Stanley by the hand. And they tell me he is dead," moaned the father.

SANKEY WILL NEVER SEE AGAIN

New York, May 4.—Very little hope is held out by his physicians that Ira D. Sankey, the singing evangelist who was associated for many years with the late Dwight L. Moody, will ever recover his sight. Some weeks ago an operation was performed on Mr. Sankey's eyes and afterward he improved in health. For a time it was thought that he would recover his sight. It is probable, however, that he will never see again. The improvement in his general health did not extend to his vision. He is still under treatment in order to prevent a return of the painful eye malady, which might endanger his general health. Mr. Sankey refused to be seen and his son Allan will not answer inquiries about his condition.

FORMER ST. PAUL MAN IS KILLED

Butte, Mont., May 4.—A mysterious shooting in which George J. Benz, lately of St. Paul, is the victim, and in which two women who names are withheld by the police, are involved, occurred yesterday in a lodging house in the city. Three shots were fired, two of them entering the ceiling while in the man's heart is a wound caused by the third. There is an air of mystery about the case. Benz was about 30 years of age, apparently, and was a nephew of George Benz, of the liquor firm of George Benz & Co., of St. Paul.

A Regular Fourth of July For the People.

Elaborate Reception By the City of Denver.

Magnificent Badge and Embossed Program Presented Guest.

Denver, May 4.—This is president's day in Colorado and at every stopping place on President Roosevelt's itinerary it has been observed in Fourth of July fashion. The nation's chief executive was the guest of the city of Denver for two and one-half hours and the people, regardless of political affiliations, gretted him with a warmth and heartiness of welcome not exceeded on his transcontinental tour. The city's ordinary population of 175,000, with thousands of visitors from other parts of the state, was massed along the streets and avenues of the line of march, at the state capitol grounds and in the city park, and every man, woman and child in the city who had an opportunity of getting a good look at the distinguished guest during his drive over a route about six miles in length, which was the principal feature of the program for the day. The mayor had proclaimed a holiday, schools and business houses were closed and beautiful decorations were displayed on the capitol and many business buildings and residences in the streets traversed by the procession. The president made but one speech in this city and that was delivered in the open air on the capitol grounds, where no less than 25,000 people were assembled. The sun shone brightly during the president's visit and no incident or accident occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion for Mr. Roosevelt.

The presidential train crossed the state line from Kansas early this morning and at Hugo Governor James H. Peabody, returning from St. Louis, joined the president and welcomed him to the Centennial state. The governor remained with the president during the entire day and will accompany him as far as the southern state line tonight. A military escort was in waiting at the Union depot to receive President Roosevelt on his arrival in this city at 10:30 a. m. Mayor R. R. Wright, and the members of the reception committee, appointed by him, greeted the presidential party when they alighted from the train, accompanied by Governor Peabody and staff. The mayor presented the president with a morocco bound engrossed program of his tour through the city and a magnificent gold badge, bearing the state crest and an appropriate inscription. Similar badges, wrought in silver, were presented to the other members of the party. As the president, with his escort, passed through the sally port, a troop of city cavalry, drawn up in line, presented arms and Satroni's band played "The President's March." When the procession of carriages started up Seventeenth street the troops again saluted, the band playing "Hail Columbia." Gen. Irving Hale was grand marshal of the parade. In the first carriage with President Roosevelt were his secretary, Governor Peabody and Mayor Wright. Among the escort in the twentycarriages following were United States Senator Henry M. Teller and Thomas M. Patterson, Congressmen John F. Shafroth and H. M. Hogg, ex-Governor Charles S. Thomas and David H. Moffatt. The United States army was represented by Gen. Baldwin and the official staff of the department of the Colorado. The military escort consisted of a troop of the Fourteenth United States cavalry from Fort Logan, Troops B and C, First squadron cavalry, National Guard of Colorado, and the mounted signal corps, National Guard of Colorado, with the George W. Cook drum corps.

At the capitol the following organizations were drawn up to receive the presidential party and escort. Chaffee Light infantry, N. G. C., First Regiment infantry, N. G. C., high school cadets, Grand Army of the Republic and Confederate veterans, service men of the Spanish-American war, army of the Philippines, Sons and Daughters of the American revolution and Sons and Daughters of the revolution.

While the president was passing through the lines all armed bodies saluted and the unarmed organizations uncovered, Siegel's First Regiment band playing "The President's March," with trumpets alone, followed by "Columbia." President Roosevelt was escorted through the main corridor of the capitol, which was beautifully decorated, and after spending a few minutes in the executive chamber, passed under an arch of silk national colors, ferns and carnations to a stand erected on the west front of the capitol, while the band played "Hail to the Chief" and "The Star Spangled Banner." A vast multitude crowded the spacious capitol grounds and the adjacent streets and sent up cheer after cheer as the president came into view. President Roosevelt was introduced by Governor Peabody and he spoke for fifteen minutes, his remarks being frequently interrupted by applause.

The president briefly explained the irrigation law and then spoke at length on good citizenship.

To the tune of "Dixie," the president's party withdrew from the speakers' stand and re-entering the carriages drove to City park. The route lay through the capitol hill residence section, and during the entire drive the president was busily engaged in acknowledging the kindly greetings given him. After entering the park the car-

Nothing Like "Regents"

If you could only hear what we hear daily from wearers about the goodness and wear of the celebrated "BURROWS REGENT $3.50 SHOE," you'd have a pair on your feet before the setting of tomorrow's sun. One wearer says, "I never had such a comfortable shoe," another, "My Regents wore two years," another, "They're the only shoe with a perfect tread," another, "They're the best wearing and best fitting shoe I ever had on my feet." And so it goes daily by dozens—by scores—all testifying to the extra goodness of the famous "BURROWS REGENT $3.50 SHOE" for both MEN and WOMEN. Why not do yourself the justice of trying at least one pair?

GIRLS, BOYS AND MEN

Western Union Claims to Have Full Delivery Established.

Arrested Strikers Have Been Released—Hearing Next Friday.

Young girls, old men and a number of boys are delivering Western Union messages throughout the city today.

Manager Humes, of the telegraph company, says that the service has been established and the strike of the messenger boys inaugurated one week ago is not giving the Western Union the slightest inconvenience.

The striking messengers say the strike is far from being broken, however, and despite the apparent success of the telegraph service today, are confident that they will win out in the end.

The eight strikers arrested for participating in a fight with Stone-Ordean-Wells employes Friday evening have been released from the county jail. H. C. Withrow, the probation officer, has put up bail for their appearance in the municipal court next Friday.

It is also said there will be no charges preferred by the boys against the wholesale grocery clerks with whom they were fighting in their efforts to get a non-union messenger in the Stone-Ordean-Wells service to quit his job.

Indications are that the cases against the strikers will not be pushed to any great extent, though those subpoenaed in the case will have to testify as to the charges of disorderly conduct that have been preferred.

The resumption of the Western Union service brought about by employing girls, men and non-union boys has not stopped the cooperative messenger service of the strikers, and they are still doing business with headquarters in the Manhattan block.

The girl messenger service does not seem to meet with general approval among patrons of the company, many of whom say that it would not be right to send the girls to places where the messenger boys are frequently called.

Manager Humes calls attention to the fact that the girls are not sent on any calls to places where there could be the slightest objection to sending them, and intimates that so far as possible the full-grown men will be sent on such errands in preference to even sending boys.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

Burlington Fireman Loses Life In a Collision.

Creston, Iowa, May 1.—The west-bound fast mail on the Burlington railroad crashed into a switch engine in the yards here early today, killing Walter Noble, fireman on the latter. Noble was pinned against the boiler head and roasted to death. No one else was hurt. A misplaced switch was the cause.

INSPECTING PROPOSED ROAD.

Des Moines, May 1.—President Stickney, of the Great Western railroad, left for St Paul today after having spent several days in inspecting the proposed route of the Des Moines Southern railway with a view to purchasing that property. The road will pass through Polk, Cass, Adair and Pottawattomie counties.

GLAD TO HAVE AN INSPECTOR

General Manager Warren Falls In With Alderman Barnes' Ideas.

Alderman L. A. Barnes proposes a municipal inspector of street car service, and indicates that he may soon introduce an ordinance creating such an office, paying a salary of $75 a month.

"The city inspects sidewalks, paving, sewers and many other public conveniences," said Mr. Barnes this morning, "and there is no reason why street cars should not also be inspected by a city officer. His business would be to ride each day on a number of cars on each line and observe the conditions with regard to number of passengers carried, the heating of the car, the congestion of traffic, and make tabulated reports each day. Such information would be invaluable to the city attorney in his dealings with the street railway. The only thing that would deter me from bringing up such a motion would be the expense to the city. The tax rate is already very high, and it is the feeling that expenses should be cut down rather than increased."

He says that if there is any fault with the service it is to the benefit of the company to be informed of it, and regards a municipal inspector as a step in the right direction.

Mr. Warren, in speaking about the present service, says the Duluth-Superior Traction company has increased its car service 20 per cent since the middle of April and that the increased schedule is just now beginning to work satisfactorily, having been handicapped at first for lack of experienced men. The new men are now being instructed in their work and the officers are of the opinion that the schedule will be satisfactory to the traveling public within a very short time.

The East End and Lakeside service, which has been interfered with on account of the street and track improvements between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues east, is being improved and the street railway officers expect to have as good a service as possible in the torn up district within a few days.

RICHARDS AND PINCHOT

Have Left Washington to Visit Cass Lake.

Washington, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. A. Richards, commissioner of the land office, accompanied by Gifford Pinchot, forester of the agricultural department, left Washington this morning for Cass Lake. Commissioner Richards and Forester Pinchot go to Chippewa country on a tour of general investigation of the situation there as preparatory to the opening of certain lands to settlement in that Indian reservation.

SECTION MEN STRIKE.

Wisconsin Central Employes Want More Pay.

St. Paul, May 4.—A New Richmond, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Section men on the Wisconsin Central struck this morning. They were paid $1.25 per day until recently, when the company voluntarily advanced their pay 15 cents. Today they refused to go to work unless paid $1.50, the same pay as men on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha get.

Section bosses getting $45 per month demanded $50, which was refused, and they quit. Section bosses on the Omaha were recently advanced $2.50 to $47.50.

FUNERAL OF SHEPARD.

Remains of Former Governor Brought From Mexico.

Washington, May 4.—The remains of the Hon. Alex. P. Shepard, one time governor of the District of Columbia, arrived in Washington this morning. The body was brought from Batopilas, Mex., where Governor Shepard died some time ago. A large military and civic escort accompanied the remains from the station to the New York avenue Presbyterian church where the body lay in state until 4 o'clock when the funeral services occurred. The casket had as a special guard of honor, twelve members of the old National rifles of 1861.

THEY HOLD OUT

All Restaurants But Two Sign New Waiters' Scale.

Waldorf and New England Propose to Fight It Out.

Only two of the original eight restaurants affected by the strike of the cooks and waiters have refused to sign the scale.

These two are the Waldorf, owned by J. J. Haley & Co., and the New England, owned by J. W. Miller. Both these restaurants are open today and are doing a fairly big business.

Mr. Haley has installed colored waiters in the Waldorf, and he says they are giving the best of satisfaction. Mr. Miller, in the New England, has not yet secured a full number of waiters, but says he is able to take care of the business fairly well, and expects a full non-union force working soon.

The Criterion restaurant was the latest to sign the scale demanded by the union.

The union has established pickets to notify prospective patrons that the New England and Waldorf are on the unfair list.

SEEKING HIS LOST NIECE

He Wishes to Reclaim Her From Wayward Career.

Coshocton, Ohio, May 4.—J. W. Miller, a millionaire mining engineer of Seattle, Wash., arrived here after a journey of many thousands of miles in search of his niece, Edna Miller, who, seven years ago, ran away from home in Texas with an admirer, was deserted in Cincinnati and has since disappeared. Miller's story sounds like a romance, but he authenticates it, and is himself vouchsafed for by the grand lodge of Masons of the state of Washington.

The girl left an excellent home when but 16, having become infatuated with a man who took her as far as the Queen City and abandoned her. Her father, after spending his savings seeking her, died, her mother also dying soon after. The uncle is alone in the world with his wife, and they are anxious to find the girl, save her from the old life and take her to their home and make her their own child and heir. Six months ago Miller started forth and visited Texas, New Orleans and Cincinnati.

At the latter place he found she had gone to Chicago, where he followed, only to find that she had gone East, and had been in Coshocton. The girl was here last summer and was known as Ruth Armer, and was noted for her beauty. She was a petite, vivacious and striking brunette. She left here some months ago for Toledo, where it is supposed she still abides. In his efforts to secure tangible information, Miller gave one woman $100 to tell all she knew of the girl. She directed him to Toledo, for which place he left.

OLD PARTNER OF JAY GOULD

Held That Nothing Should Really Cause Moment's Unhappiness.

Washington, N. J., May 4.—Josiah E. Lynn, Jay Gould's former partner, formerly one of the richest men in the country, but who died in a county almshouse here, was a philosopher and never grumbled at his misfortune. A few days before his death, he delivered himself of this bit of good-humored philosophy:

"After all, there is nothing in this world that can happen to us which really ought to cause us a moment's unhappiness. I have been a wealthy man in my days—a wealthy man with plenty of friends and a wife whom I loved devotedly. They have all passed away—wife, friends and fortune. Could I have foreseen such an end when I was an ambitious young man, or even so recently as twenty years ago, I should have gone mad, I suppose. But instead of that I find myself not discontented, not unhappy—certainly very much happier than many so-called fortunate people.

"Right living and a well-stored mind are the essential factors to happiness. I always made it a rule of my life to try to read at least ten minutes every day from some good book, the Bible or Shakespeare, or some of the good old authors. I read one time the saying of some great man. I don't remember who the man was, but I never forgot the remark. This man said he had never suffered a grief, a sorrow or a loss that one hour's reading from a good book did not make it easier to bear. Nobody ever said anything truer than that, and it's a pity that more people couldn't be persuaded to profit by the advice. One of the surest foundations to happiness is the cultivation for a taste of the best literature.

"I do not think it is possible for the real lover of books to ever be hopelessly miserable. The greatest regret I have now—in fact, my only regret—is that I am no longer able to read a word for something like fifteen years, and I miss my books as I do my old friends. Sometimes a caller drops in and reads to me, but it doesn't give me the same satisfaction that reading myself did. But then, I suppose, I ought to be thankful that I have ears to hear, if not eyes to see.

"Those three old books and that old coat and hat hanging there in the corner are all I have left me in the world, but still, as I said before, I don't want to complain. I have a comfortable bed to sleep in and plenty to eat, and kind attendants and my memories, and, best of all, an infinite hope for a life beyond the grave. Why should I be unhappy?

GIRL FOUND MUSTY RECORDS

That Saved Her Old Father From Being Prosecuted.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 4.—Casper Callister, mayor of one of the suburbs of Cleveland, was saved from prosecution by his little daughter, Getchen, a comely lass of 14, who came from the Forest City to get a copy of her father's naturalization papers, which were issued in 1868. Callister immigrated from Germany and settled in this city with relatives, several of whom are still living here. He was 17 years of age when he arrived here and papers of naturalization were given him in due time.

Many years ago Callister moved to Cleveland and took a prominent part in all political matters in every campaign. The borough in which he resides was formed and he was chosen its chief executive. Not long since he visited his old home in Germany and was unfortunate enough to lose his papers. However, that really made no difference in his voting and he continued to take an interest in politics. In the last election his opponent for the mayoralty was a young lawyer. The lawyer heard that Callister had not been made a legal resident, nor had he his papers. He charged him with having voted all these years illegally and threatened prosecution. This was after Callister had beaten him at the polls, and the old gentleman was worried over the loss of his papers.

Callister sent his daughter to Wheeling to search for a copy of the documents. She told her story almost tearfully to the attaches of the circuit clerk's office and begged them to find the papers. They looked all day in musty old records, and finally located the required information, and made a copy of the original documents. The girl was almost overcome with joy. She was so well pleased that she wanted to pay everybody in the office extra money for the time spent.

riages passed between long rows of school children, who waved flags and loudly cheered. A beautiful bouquet was handed to the president by Miss Kathleen Carroll, the 11-year-old daughter of John F. Carroll, the well-known newspaper editor. In the park the 400-pound silver bell, soon to be presented to the cruiser Denver, was shown to President Roosevelt, who examined it closely and admired it greatly. A miniature of the bell, cast from the same metal from which it was made, was given to the president. The big bell had been conveyed in the procession on an elaborately decorated hose wagon, and its clear, resonant tones had announced the approach of President Roosevelt along the route, the heavy clapper being swung with a silken cord of red, white and blue, by Miss Roberta Wright, daughter of the mayor, who was sponsor for the city for the cruiser when launched. On the return drive from the park to the depot the scenes of enthusiasm witnessed in going out were repeated. The president's train left for Colorado Springs over the Denver & Rio Grande road at 1 p. m. as scheduled.

PLANS ARE LARGE

Street Railway Company Actively at Work on Heavy Improvements.

Many Miles of New Rails Are to Be Laid Soon.

The Duluth--Superior Traction company is engaged in making large improvements in its tracks throughout the city, and the betterments that are outlined for the coming summer will cost more than $250,000. It is possible that not all of them can be completed this summer, but the company is going ahead with a large force of men and will proceed as rapidly as possible.

The most important change is that in the East Superior street line, from Third avenue to Twenty-third avenue east, which is to be relaid throughout with 80-pound rails. From Eighth to Sixteenth avenuesis being laid now. The work of welding the big rails together started this morning. When the Superior street work is entirely completed it will connect at Third avenue east, where the brick paving ends and where the 80-pound rails laid while the paving of last year was in progress cease.

The Second and Fourth street lines, from Superior street to Twenty-third avenue east on the East Fourth street line and to Fifth avenue west on the West Fourth street line will all be relaid. Part of it will receive 80-pound rails, and all of the rails under 60 pounds will be taken up and replaced with 60-pound rails. There are considerable stretches of these lines already laid with 60-pound rails. East Fourth street is now lined with ties that are to be put in, though the work has not yet been started. It will be within a very short time.

The only important new line that will be built will be the West Third street extension, from Fortieth avenue west to Sixtieth avenue west, giving West Duluth a second line. Overhead work has been started on this line and the work will be pushed rapidly.

There will be no new track laid on the old West Duluth line, but about $8000 tor $9000 will be spent in repairs. All the joints will be replaced with a new special rail joint.

On Michigan street, from Fourteenth avenue west to Garefild avenue, the tracks are being relaid with eighty-pound rails, which will be welded.

Both the Garfield avenue and Lake avenue lines are to be taken up and relaid. The rails in use there now are sixty-pound rails and they will be left as they are, but will be welded together.

The Duluth Heights line will be given a new outfit of ties, and the old rails will be relaid.

Last year most of the work was done in Superior, and the lines over there are new in good shape. This year Duluth is getting almost all of the improvements, which will employ a large number of men and will leave the system on this side of the new very greatly improved.

NO SCARCITY OF LABORERS

More of Them Than Jobs Just at Present Time.

Scarcity of orders at the local employment offices today has caused a dullness in the labor market, although there are scores of men in the city looking for employment. Contract work is beginning to open up well all over the Northwest, however, and it is not anticipated that the demand for labor will remain as slack as at present. The new work on the Soo road extension northward from Glenwood will open some time the next week, when several carloads of teams and equipment will go forward from this point. The subcontract work is being let by Richards & Lundeen from Minneapolis.

Contractors in the Northwest are said to be keeping out of construction work west of the Dakotas this season, for the reason that they have about all the work they can attend to in Minnesota. Wisconsin and the Dakotas. Several of the large operators have work under way or under contract that will tax them to get all the labor they need this summer without sending men too far West. It is reported that new work is soon to be opened out in Idaho, on which free fare will be paid to get men out to the job, but no definite details as to such arrangements have been received yet by the local employment agencies.

COURT OPENS NEXT WEEK

Federal Term With Judge Lochren Presiding, Beginning Tuesday.

Judge Lochren will open the spring term of the United States district court one week from tomorrow.

The grand jury will sit on the same day. Among the cases which are to come before the jury are those of a number of liquor dealers charged with selling liquor to Indians, the case against W. D. Ellsworth, the defaulting postmaster of Eveleth, and a large number of land cases.

The list of petit jurors was received by Capt. T. H. Prosnell, clerk of the court, yesterday. The following are the names contained in the list, among which appears the name of one Duluth man John Williams.

Washington, May 4.—The United States supreme court, in an opinion by Justice Brewer today, delivered an opinion in the case of United States Marshal James of Kentucky vs. Henry Bowman, in volving the validity of section 5.507 of the revised statutes respecting the bribery of persons protected by the fifteen amendment. The opinion affirmed the decision of the United States district court for the Western district of Kentucky, declaring the statute unconstitutional. Bowman was indicted for bribing Negro voters in connection with the election of 1906. When arrested he sued out a writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that the statute was in contravention of the federal constitution. The district court thereupon discharged Bowman, and the government brought the case to the supreme court, which affirmed the opinion.

Washington, May 4.—The diplomatic party which attended the Louisiana Purchase exposition exercises, returned to Washington today with expressions of approval of the manner in which they were entertained.

PRETTY CHEEKS.

A Food That Makes Girls Sweet to Look Upon.

The right food for young ladies is of the greatest importance to their looks, to say nothing of the health. Thin, sallow girls don't get the right food you may be absolutely certain. A Brooklyn girl says: "For a long time in spite of all I could do I was thin, skinny and nervous. My cheeks were so sunken my friends used to remark on how bad I looked. I couldn't seem to get strength from my food—meat, potatoes, bread, &c. So I tried various medicines without help.

"I often read about Grape-Nuts, but never tried the food until one day something impressed me that perhaps if I would eat Grape-Nuts for my nerves and brain I could digest and get the good of my food. So I started in. The food with cream was fascinating to my taste and I went in for it regularly twice a day.

"Well, I began to improve and now while on my third package I have changed so my friends congratulate me warmly, ask me what in the world I have taken, &c., &c. My cheeks are plump and rosy and I feel so strong and well. I sleep sound and it seems as though I couldn't get enough to eat. Thank you sincerely for making Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason for Grape-Nuts.

CHANGE IN ROUTING

Biwabik Mine Ore Will Hereafter Go Over Iron Range.

H. Cruger General Manager of Northern Steamship Company.

The range railways have not been given their estimates for carrying ore for the 1903 season as yet.

One change in routing of ore has been made, and the output of the Biwabik mine will be carried over the Iron Range road to Two Harbors this season instead of over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, as last year.

The mine is one of the largest producers, and it is expected that 1,000,000 tons of ore will be taken out of it this year.

At the railroads' general offices this morning it was said that the schedule and routings had not all come to their hands as yet, but the division of ore transportation would be more even this year than before.

Last year the Missabe road carried as much as the Iron Range road, but the shipments from the Missabe docks were not quite as large as those of the Iron Range, some ore remaining in cars.

At Two Harbors it is expected that the coarse estimate of 6,000,000 tons shipment from the docks at that place will be fulfilled, especially since the transfer of the Biwabik's output that way.

The Missabe road expects to carry as much, and some of the new mines near Hibbing are shipping over that line to offset the large amount that has been transferred to the Iron Range.

F. C. CRUGER MANAGER.

Will Have Charge of Northern Steamship Company.

Word was received at the Great Northern offices this morning of the appointment of F. C. Cruger as manager of the Northern Steamship company, with headquarters at Buffalo.

He will have charge of the operation of the company's property, and Mr. Lowrie will remain as the general passenger and ticket agent at Buffalo.

Circulars were received also announcing the abolishment of the office of auditor of the company, which was held by C. W. Jennison up to this time. The auditing will be done under the supervision of Mr. Cruger in the future in the accounting department of his office.

Mr. Cruger was formerly auditor for the Northern Steamship company.

No announcement has been received here as to what docks will be used by the North West, when she starts to ply between here and Buffalo.

OFFICIALS ARE HERE.

Northern Pacific Men Looking Over the Terminals.

A party of operating officials in three special cars are looking over this end of the Northern Pacific road and are expected in Duluth today.

Among those who are making the trip, accompanied by Superintendent G. E. Vandersilce, of the Sibrt line, are General Manager Thomas Cooper, the new assistant general superintendent, F. W. Gilbert, Assistant General Superintendent Newman Kline, and O. B. Richards, superintendent of car service.

The party was on the Ashland division yesterday, and it is believed that some plans are being formed for improvements in that part of the line. Primarily the object of the trip is for inspection by the new officers.

NEW SUNDAY SERVICE

Northern Pacific Establishes Train To Ashland.

The new train service on Sundays between Ashland and Duluth was instituted yesterday over the Northern Pacific road. The service will be of great benefit to people desiring to spend Sunday outings along the south shore of Lake Superior in northern Wisconsin, and also enables the News Tribune to get its Sunday morning papers in a new field.

The institution of the service was marked by a large excursion yesterday, made up of invited guests from Superior and Duluth. A number of leading citizens of both places took the trip and were highly pleased at the result. At Ashland and along the route traveled there were gratifying demonstrations by towns, and the train was met all along the line by crowds.

At Ashland the city officials of that place and leading citizens held a sort of public reception and showed the folks from the head of the lakes what they had at the thriving Wisconsin city, and extended the warm welcoming hand to the excursionists.

The train was put on through the instrumentality of the News Tribune, which endeavored to get its Sunday morning paper into Northern Wisconsin, thereby making the Minnesota newspaper a factor in the northern part of Wisconsin.

Resolutions were passed by the guests of the train management thanking the newspaper and the officials of the city of Ashland for their courtesies and commending the enterprise as a valuable commercial and pleasure factor for Duluth people.

SOUTH WANTS A SLICE.

Colonists Rates To Southeastern States Are Made.

The Atlantic Coast line has issued notice of a settlers and colonists' rate to the Atlantic coast states, the Carolinas, Alabama, Georgia and Florida.

General Passenger Agent W. J. Craig of Wilmington, N. C., has issued an attractive poster announcing that the rate from all points on and north of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers will be one fare plus $2 for the round trip and one-half the fare plus $2 for the single trip, the excursion days being the first and third Tuesdays of the month from March to November.

There is some matter regarding the advantages offered to settlers and colonists who are longing for homes on the south Atlantic coast or on the gulf, which is termed "the garden spot of the nation."

The rate makes a limit for return coupons of twenty-one days, and stopovers of fifteen days will be allowed. Wilbur McCoy, A. and I. agent, of Jacksonville, will issue full information.

MANCHURIA SITUATION

Is Now Viewed In a Much More Favorable Light.

Washington, May 4.—The Chinese minister called on Secretary Hay today at the state department and discussed the Manchuria situation. There is good reason to believe that the negotiations have taken a more avorable turn, and that the Russian coup which was expected has been either abandoned or indefinitely postponed. It is understood that this involves no retreat on the part of the Russian government from any position officially taken. Certain inquiries were addressed by M. Pluncon, the Russian charge at Pekin, to the Chinese government respecting the Chinese purpose as to Manchuria. The Russians hold that these were erroneously taken to be a set of demands. As a matter of fact, they were nothing but inquiries, and the Chinese answers being taken as satisfactory, the Russian government has decided to carry out the origfnal program for the evacuation of Manchuria.

Which Woman are you?

Some women have a great deal of trouble in getting clothes to suit them, while other women have very little!

One woman looks at goods in the piece or goes to dressmakers or so-called tailors—and wonders how this or that can be made up! How will it become me? What shape—what style will it have when finished!

Some other women go around here and there—perhaps have been induced to go to a store that has cried bargains so long and so hard that she felt almost duty-bound to go and see!

After long study, and frequent consultations she makes a wrong choice, perhaps, and is disappointed and dissatisfied!

Another woman steps into our store, looks at our incomparable garments, sees exactly how they will look when made up, tries on different styles and shapes and sizes, makes an intelligent selection, and is thoroughly pleased with herself and her choice!

The alterations (if any) are perfect—she knows that she has had full value for her money!

Which woman are you?

SUMMONS SERVED

Swallow & Hopkins and Others Called By Federal Court.

To Testify With Reference to Timber and Stone Entries.

Messrs. Sdallow & Hopkins, Hoss Mahon and Sven Olson have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury of the United States district court at the coming session in order that the twenty-three stone and timber entries that were recently held up by the special land agents may be investigated.

The entries were held up last December, the special agents claiming that they were made for the benefit of the lumber firm of Swallow & Hopkins, and that the land was paid for with money furnished by that firm and for their benefit. If such were the case the entrymen must necessarily have sworn falsely, as in making a stone and timber entry it is necessary for the entryman to swear that the entry is made for his own benefit and the land is paid for with his own money.

No patents are now issued on stone and timber entries in the state of Minnesota which were made previous to these entries of Swallow & Hopkins and which were not already patented, and as a result some 1500 stone and timber entries are held up. Shortly after the investigation into the Swallow & Hopkins' entries an extra set of questions was furnished the local land office, which were to be put to the entrymen. The 1500 entrymen whose patents are withheld will be compelled to answer these questions before their patents are issued, and should anything in their answers arouse the suspicions of the local authorities, a hearing may be ordered before the register and the receiver of the local office. This will necessitate an immense amount of work by the special agents and the local officials.

"Much injustice is necessarily done to innocent entrymen," said Special Agent John Stacklund today. "They are made to suffer from the wrong-doing of some few fraudulent land speculators."

The extra questions are now being put to all making stone and timber entries, and unless further orders are received from the department, which is not thought likely, patents will be issued to those who have made their entries since the extra crosss-examination blanks have been received.

STATUTE INVALID

Supreme Court Officers Decision Of District Court.

St. Paul, May 4.—A Grand Forks, N. D., special to the Dispatch says: The East Grand Forks Transportation company, which owns a steamer and a number of barges on the Red river, has bought the Grand Forks, six barges and all the other property of the Great Northern Transportation company, and is now in control of all shipping on the river at this point. The Great Northern company is the successor to the pioneer firm of Hill, Griggs & Co., which started the work of navigating the Red river by steam craft. For the first time since he started in the carrying business James J. Hill has no interest in Red river transportation.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

Cleveland, May 4.—Edwin C. Kelly, treasurer and general manager of the Enamel Brick company, has been arrested and locked up on a warrant sworn out by J. A. Blackburn, president of the company, charging the prisoner with the embezzlement of $25,000 of the funds of the company. Kelly was arrested in Fairmount, W. Va., and brought here by a local officer. The accused man declares that there is nothing in the charge against him, and that he will be able to prove his innocence.

IRISH LAND BILL

Is Before Commons For Its Second Reading.

London, May 4.—The Irish secretary, Mr. Wyndham, today formally moved the second reading of the Irish land bill in the house of commons. John Redmond, the Irish leader, supporting the motion, said never before since the act of union, had an English minister had such a chance as Mr. Wyndhamn now had. The landlords and tenants were in complete agreement on almost all the essential points. The Irish party had returned to Westminster with a mandate from the people upon this bill, and fortified by a vote of confidence. If Mr. Wyndham refused the reasonable amendments sanctioned by both the landlords and tenants, the Irish party washed their hands of all responsibility. If the bill was rejected the Irish people would be driven back into the old hell of warring passions and conflicting hopes."

With all his heart he prayed that such a state of things would not arise. It would be little short of tragic were the government to throw away the golden opportunity, which once lost might not return for a lifetime.

REMEMBERS DEWEY

President Roosevelt Wires Congratulations to Admiral.

Washington, May 4.—That President Roosevelt is keeping fully alive with current events during the rush and excitement of his trip in the West, is shown by the fact that he took occasion to recognize the anniversary of the great naval victory in Manila May 1, 1898, by sending the following personal telegram to the hero of that occasion:

"Topeka, Kans., May 1, 1903.—Admiral George Dewey, United States Navy, Washington: On this the anniversary of your great services to the nation, I wish you all possible happiness and a long life.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The delivery of this message was delayed because Admiral Dewey was at sea on the Mayflower, inspecting the North Atlantic fleet on the anniversary and did not receive the message until his arrival in this city.

SHOT IN SELF-DEFENSE.

Springfield, Ill., May 4.—Lewis Hubbard, who shot and killed Constable Peter Heck, of Ridgely last night, was arrested today. Hubbard said Heck insulted a woman who was with him. Hibbard resented and was assaulted and he then shot Heck in self-defense.

IS FASTEST SAILER

Ever Built, Say American Yachtsmen Regarding the Reliance.

Shamrock III Is the Superior of the Other Challengers.

New York, May 1.—Although the new cup defender, Reliance, has not been seen beside either the old faithful Columbia or the Constitution, it is possible to make several comparisons of no small interest. In view of the fact that Shamrock III is manifestly a better ship than any challenger that has come across the sea.

Even the casual observer will see, for instance, that the spread of sail on the Reliance is much larger than that on either of the old boats and greater sails should mean greater speed. As to the fit of the sails, of which some doubt has been expressed, it is certain that the mainsail of Reliance looks better than anything ever seen above a defender on a first trial. In connection with the fit of the sail is the fact that the gaff hangs almost directly above the boom. In this respect the new yacht seems far superior to the Columbia.

It is generally conceded now that Constitution's failure two years ago was due to her sails, and not to the model of the hull, and in no respect was she more defective above deck than in the swing of the gaff.

In designing the sails of Reliance, Herreshoff has plainly kept the Constitution's defect in mind, and he has entirely avoided it in Reliance.

With the peak of her mainsail well inboard she should point at least a half point higher than either of the old defenders and still hold her speed.

In connection with the fin of the Reliance, it is worth noting that the fin of the Shamrock III is relatively very small. With this in mind it is most interesting to note that when Reliance heels under puffs of wind she goes over to her sailing lines, and there she hangs. She is remarkably stiff therefore.

On the other hand, we now know that Shamrock III rolls to ease when she is struck by a puff. The long, flat fin of Reliance, with its lead well down, is not easily lifted by the power applied to the sails. That power, in fact, is unable to lift her fin. But when Shamrock III heels to the wind her little fin offers but little resistance to the power of the sails, and over she goes. Sir Thomas Lipton says that when the mast gave way the other day the water was six feet deep on the lee deck in her disposition to roll and spill the wind out of her sails Shamrock III is apparently inferior to Shamrock II.

A feature of Reliance is the ease with which she passes through the water. There is no wave under her bow, no hollow in the water abaft the rigging, and no wave under the counter—none to speak of—that is considering that she was crawling at a rate not far from 12 knots an hour. In this respect Reliance is superior to Columbia, and still more superior to Constitution.

A curious feature of the new defender is the way she has of poking her nose out of the water when going at high speed. She rises forward because of the wide flat surface there. She slides up on the waves. Naturally her great length will tend to prevent pitching. Another very encouraging feature is the apparent fact that the Reliance steers easily. She has a double wheel and four men can put their strength on the rudder at one time if necessary.

As to her work in stays, we may suppose that Columbia will be a trifle quicker. It takes time to slew that long fin around. Very likely Shamrock III will be a few seconds quicker and in the windward work of the international races we shall see Capt. Bob Wring flopping Shamrock III from side to side every ten lengths or less, as was done with Shamrock I four years ago. But we shall have Iselin and Barr to care for the defender, and they saw and met those tactics with success when Shamrock I was here.

On the whole, it is certain that old salts never felt as hopeful of a new boat at her first trial as they did about Reliance. This is not to say positively that she is the best ever, that cannot be told until she has had two or three fair trials with others. But certainly the outlook is most cheerful.

IS LIPTON'S FASTEST.

Air of Confidence Pervades the Lipton Fleet.

Weymouth, May 4.—For the first time in the three efforts of Sir Thomas Lipton to send out a challenger for the America's cup that could be called satisfactory before starting across, the goal of confidence has been attained by the challenger.

An air of satisfaction now pervades the Lipton fleet, where in former years were disquieting doubts and fears. The new boat is considered as good as could be made. Nothing has been left undone in design, construction or equipment the absence of which might lead to disaster, trouble or recriminations.

For the first time the task of tuning up the challenger goes forward under firm and businesslike leadership. Everything is done with alertness. There is no buncombs, no hippodroming, in the work of sailing the yachts. Both the old and the new Shamrock are sailed for all that is in them.

There is no need felt this time of concealing the weaknesses of the challenger, for there are no weaknesses. She is as sound, strong and able craft as ever spread racing canvas in English waters, and her speed, the racing world knows, is much greater than that of Shamrock I, against which she is being sailed. The confidence among the challenging Britons, therefore, is based on the merits of their challenging yacht. But it has for its support increased knowledge gained only by experience. Fewer mistakes have been made than formerly, for the pitfalls of earlier efforts are known and avoided.

There is no division of command this time to spoil whatever chance of winning the boat may have. Capt. Robert Wringe (pronounced Ring) has absolute charge of sailing the boat. He receives no orders from any one, and has instructions from Sir Thomas to recognize no one's right to suggest how he shall sail the yacht. Fife has control of the boat only so far as her preparation for sailing goes. When she slips her moorings to sail Fife's authority ceases and Wringe's becomes supreme.

To refer to a favorite speech of the day, there will be no "after you, my dear Gaston," business in the handling of this boat. Wringe is smart enough to handle the boat with the utmost precision in starts without the aid of amateurs or advisory committees or other species of talent such as sometimes encumber the decks of racing yachts; and what is better for Lipton's chances, he is what a Gloucester man would call "a dog" in starts. He will take no bluffs, and if Capt. Barr tries to amiably shoulder him off the line, as he did Sycamore in the first meeting of the cup yachts in 1901, there will be trouble. A line of action has been mapped out by Wringe that meets with Lipton's full approval, and it does not embrace the acceptance of bluffs in starts.

This may be mentioned here as are other elements in the many that go to give confidence to the challengers this year. They have learned the business of cup racing and now that they have a good boat under them they will go in for a battle royal.

To an American following the new challenger from day to day, the air of confidence described is the most striking thing about the present trials of the boat. It is not the blustering kind of confidence one sometimes encounters in those who would whistle to keep up their courage. No bragging is being done. Fife is as taciturn as ever, outwardly, and Sir Thomas only says, "We have as good a boat as it is possible to get in Britain." But privately Fife makes it known that he is perfectly satisfied with the boat, that he could not better her, and that she realizes all he dreamed of her in his most sanguine moments. As to Lipton, one sees in him an eager schoolboy itching for a chance to sail his latest model yacht, full of good cheer, and, for the first time in his career as challenger, full of genuine hope. He feels that if he does not win with this boat it will be a weary time before anybody can produce a better challenger, and he is content to do his best with the tools in hand and leave the rest to the god of chance.

The sailing of the new boat has been a delight to all who have seen her, and who love a fine craft. Not only is she fleet of foot, but she is handsome. Most yachtsmen think Columbia the handsomest yacht afloat. That view might hold good until Shamrock III was seen. The palm must go to Fife for producing a journal as well as a beautiful boat; a veritable greyhound in lines and proportions. Beside her the first Shamrock herself considered a fine vessel and still a favorite with many English watermen, appears like a bulldog.

The new boat's distinguished feature in sailing is the ease with which she displaces the water as she passes through it. Fife appears to have realized the designer's fondest hope by producing a boat with a minimum of resistance to a given displacement. The new boat's style of sailing, as compared with the old, is so marked that a landsman might note the difference in form. The bow action of the challenger is well-nigh perfect. There are no bumps or shoulders on her bow to bruise the waters, nor does she mush aside a heavy wave when going at high speed, as many yachts do.

Because of the fairness and ease of her lines, the challenger has the much-sought quality of driving out of the water forward and over it when hard pressed. Shamrock II always showed distress when pressed because of burying her bow, or the shoulder on it, and the harder she was sailed, especially on a reach, the worse her showing. In the present challenger the reverse is true, though in reaching in a good breeze she does not attain a much greater speed than Shamrock I, whose box-like sides gives her great aids on this point of sailing.

From indications received on this side the writers for the American press are laboring under several delusions regarding the new boat. One is with regard to her beam. On the day of her launch a statement was cabled to the United States that her beam is about 22 feet 5 inches. Such a statement is untrue and absurd. The man who sent it estimated the boat's beam while she was in the shed, where she looked like a seventy-footer. The writer cabled that the boat's beam was about 24 feet, and he felt obliged to reiterate the statement. The figure is not obatined by measurement of the eye, and is vouched for by a person who knows the boat's beam to the last eighth of an inch, as being nearer than any other yet published.

It will be some time yet before a tape is put on the challenger, and until such time, all who would hold a rational idea of the yacht's beam should set it at 24 feet approximately, and near that figure than 23. Any one familiar with the elements of yachts might know, on reflection that a boat of Shamrock III's over-all length, draught and displacement, could not carry her tall and narrow sail-plain on a beam of 22 feet, 6 inches.

The challenger is between 135 and 138 feet over all, about 19 feet 6 inches draft and about 145 tons displacement. Her sail area is about 11,000 square feet at present. To carry so much sail on a beam of 22 feet 6 inches, the boat would need a greater amount of draught, and more ballast than could be contained in short and comparatively shallow fin. In one respect the challenger has shown the way to improvement to British conservatives in yachting— the adoption of the wheel for steering. Her now-styled bicycle gear-wheel, with its chain and sprockets, and the quadrant under the disk has worked worked with entire satisfaction thus far, and all hands are pleased with it. The boat handles like a knockabout, and Capt. Wright is more nimble with his wheel than Capt. Bevis on Shamrock I, with the beloved British tiller.

In making comparisons of speed between the old and new boats one often hears the question: "Is the old boat sailing as fast as she did in 1901?"

It is hard to say whether she is not; but there is little question that she is sailing faster than when she went against Columbia. She has proper spars now, decent sails, and smart handling. She is sailed for all that is in her; for there is no need to hold her back to spare Lipton's feelings, as was the case when she was sailed against Shamrock II.

The truth is that she was never sent for her full speed against Shamrock II, but lagged, and waited for her. Even when Sir Thomas decided that she was a better vessel than his second venture. Off the wind Shamrock I was as good as Columbia. The cup races showed that On the wind she was never sailed within a point of her best, for fear of something parting aloft, and with her spars like tin tubes, bending constantly and throwing her sails out of shape, she made a sorry show.

This year the old boat seems to have found herself. With good handling and good spars and sails she is giving the challenger a great series of trials.

AT WEST DULUTH

Several matters of special importance to West Duluth will be brought up at the council meeting this evening.

The paving petition will be presented and it is hoped that favorable action will be taken which will allow the pavement to be laid this summer.

The condemning of the land for a trunk sewer will probably be brought up for final consideration.

TWO BALL GAMES.

West Duluth Fans Well Entertained Sunday.

Two interesting ball games were played in West Duluth yesterday. The West Duluth team was unable to go to Cloquet on account of the condition of the grounds there, and a game was arranged with the Fairmount team. It resulted in a victory for the West Duluth team by the score of 13 to 2. Meldahl and Ramsbottom pitched for the Fairmounts, and Young occupied the box for the visitors. The game was played on the grounds at the head of Fifty-second avenue, and a large crowd was in attendance.

The Irving Tigers and the East Duluth Imperials came together on the grounds near the Merrill & Ring mill. The final score was 22 to 14 in favor of the Tigers. Giard pitched for the Tigers and Oleson for the Imperials. The following is the score by innings:

Tigers ..... 2 8 0 2 1 0 6 3 x—22
Imperials ..... 1 7 0 0 0 0 1 1 4—14

STILL A MYSTERY.

Augusta Peterson's Shooting No Clearer Now.

One week has elapsed since the shooting of Miss Augusta Peterson and little more concerning her assailant is known by the police and the public at large than on the day that it took place.

The last of the suspects have been released, and although the police are still vigorously prosecuting the search there is such a lack of accurate information that it is almost a hopeless task. The public is losing interest in the case, and it now looks as if the mysterious assailant would never be apprehended.

Miss Peterson continues to improve, and it is the opinion of many in West Duluth that her release from the hospital will mark the closing of the case which has proved to be one of the most mysterious in the annals of West Duluth police history.

NEW SWITCH BOARD.

Work has commenced on the installing of a new switch board at the West Duluth central office of the Zenith telephone company. The board has been received and will be connected within a week or two. The outside work is already under way.

The new board has all the modern attachments, and the company claims that a much better and quicker service can be given than with the old one.

Since the fire a temporary switch board has been in use. This was put in until the new board should be received. The temporary board will be discarded as soon as the new one is connected.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Steve Brannigan has recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia from which he has been suffering for the past few weeks.

Rev. Charles Stelzle attracted a large audience to the Westminster Presbyterian church Saturday evening. His lecture on "The Church and the Workingman" was much appreciated by the audience.

John Richards, of Two Harbors, was in West Duluth yesterday.

Frank Pierce, of St. Paul, was in West Duluth Saturday on a business visit. He returned home yesterday.

J. Frackenberger died at St. Mary's hospital this morning. He was taken to the hospital in an unconscious condition. He is supposed to have been a farmer living north of West Duluth, and was brought to the hospital by two men. The cause of his death was old age. His body lies in the undertaking rooms of M. J. Filiatrault awaiting burial.

Go to Nygren's for wall paper.

Ernest Fagenstrom will lecture this evening in the West Duluth Baptist church on "Through Sweden With Camera and Cycle." Admission, 15 and 25 cents.

A STARTLING TEST.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

Another Bin Gives Way In Peavey Concrete Annex.

Flax Pours Out of Break —This Accident Expected.

Another of the great cells of the Peavey concrete elevator gave way this morning and poured its contents of flax out over the railroad track in a tremendous volume that forced the railroad track up several feet, smashed in the side of the trainshed opposite, and poured grain forty feet into the interior of the wooden house.

Thirty-five thousand bushels of flaxseed escaped through the break in the bin, but fortunately all of it fell on dry ground, and but little of it will be lost or seriously damaged.

This is the second accident of the sort at this elevator within three weeks. Thursday morning, April 16, the bin at the southwestern corner of the elevator gave way, and 50,000 bushels of flax poured out. This was a much more serious accident than that which occurred this morning, not only because more grain escaped, but because one of the galleries went down, bringing a workman with it—who fortunately escaped comparatively uninjured—and the wreckage was much more complicated.

The three bins beginning at the southwest corner and running east have been cracked for some time. Since the collapse of the first one it has been feared that the one that burst this morning might give away, and for the past few days the force at the elevator has been engaged in removing the flax from it. Had the walls held one day more, it is likely that the strain would have been removed so that the break could have been postponed, if not prevented.

The intervening bin is also cracked somewhat, but not so much as the others, and it is empty, so that there are no fears that it will break down.

The break occurred at 8 o'clock this morning. Suddenly the outer wall of the bin fell outward, and with a crash and a roar 35,000 bushels of flax, mingled with the shattered fragments of the cement wall, went to the ground. Part of the flax poured under the railroad track between the cement house and the wooden one, forcing the track up considerably. The overflow crashed through the framework of the trainshed, and flowed on into the shed, running forty feet over the floor.

Though the wall caved out, the round roof of the bin remains, and part of the walls still stand. There will be no trouble about saving most of the flax which escaped.

While many people might imagine that these accidents act to condemn the concrete variety of elevators, this is not admitted, by any means. The bins that fell are part of the work done first, and the walls are considerably thinner than those of the newer portion, which still stand.

The fact that all of the injured bins are in one portion of the elevator lends color to the theory that the foundation of the elevator in that place must have settled a trifle. An absolutely permanent foundation is necessary for concrete elevators, and should a portion of it settle there would be much strain on the walls above. This may have caused the breaks that have occurred.

Nobody was hurt in this morning's accident.

FISHING NO BETTER.

Trout Anglers Still Worried By High Streams.

The continuance of damp weather and the consequently swollen streams is creating gloom in the hearts of trout anglers.

There is absolutely no use in going fishing while the streams are as high as they are now, and experts who have been guessing of the condition of north shore streams by the known condition of those near at hand say there will be no use going out for a couple of weeks or so.

Duluth is full of enthusiastic trout fishermen, anglers who would pass up a chance to hook a sea bass, tuna, tarpon, whale or anything else for a chance to get a 7-inch trout on their fly-hook, and the itch for the trout brook bait been violently contagious for several weeks.

All of these gentlemen have been anxiously watching the weather and making inquiries, ready to go out the first possible chance that offered. Streams were running down pretty well when the snow and rain of the latter part of last week swelled them again, and now the fishermen who had their hopes high are down in the dumps again.

CHRISTIAN AMBITION.

Ernest Fagenstrom Delivers an Instructive Address.

Ernest Fagenstrom, the state Sunday school missionary, preached an interesting sermon last evening at the Swedish Baptist church in the West End, especially for young people. He has been conducting a series of gospel meetings for boys and girls in Duluth during the last three weeks. The series concluded last week at the West Duluth Baptist church. He has a special talent for interesting the boys and girls and has become a favorite among them. Rev. J. W. Laughridge, of the Second Baptist church, and Rev. A. Edstam, also took part in the closing service.

Mr. Fagenstrom said: "Ambition is the spirit in America. The struggle for the almighty dollar is intense. Everyone strives to win more. In the Christian life the ambition should be manifested in faithfully serving the Lord. We need more religion in our hearts which will develop true Christian life, giving ambition to serve the Master. The only source from which to receive abundance in your Christian life is through Jesus Christ. The Christian religion outdoes all religion in the world because Christ, the son of God, is its foundation.

"We are in constant contact with each other, our religion should be felt in the practical life. We want our religion not only for eternity, but for the present time. It is a miserable condition to only long for heaven, and do nothing for our Master while we live on the earth. What would it be to come empty to the throne of God? I wish to live as long as possible to work for my Master. Let us endeavor to live a true Christian life and by example and words, win others to know Jesus Christ. The more abundantly you receive of Jesus Christ, the more ambition will be manifested in serving the Lord in your life. Young men, young women seek to be faithful to Christ."

Mr. Fagenstrom will speak this evening in the West Duluth Baptist church. Of his recent visit to Sweden and tomorrow evening he will speak at the First Baptist church, Eleventh avenue east and Second street.

GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Good Scores Made Considering the Conditions.

A changing wind that made conditions different nearly every time a marksman stepped up to shoot made low scores at yesterday's shoot of the Central Gun club, but when that fact is considered the showing is good. The events came out as follows:

The shoot for the Consolidated Abstract company's A class medal was won by Cap with a score of 21 out of a possible 25. The near-by scores were as follows: Larson, 20; Wojeck, Jackson, 19; Berry, 17.

In the shoot for the Duluth Brewing and Malting company's B class medal, at 25 birds, the leading scores were as follows: Bob, 21; Frank, 16; Salter, 15.

For the A. Fitger & Co. C class medal at 25 birds the result was: Phil, 17; Max, Audi, 14; Patsey, 13; Brad, 10.

In the shoot-up for the Panton & White high average cup, at 50 birds, the result was: Jackson, 44; Larson, 41; Bob, 40; Salter, 36; Patsey, 35.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Marquette—In a street fight Sunday at Rockland, Alexander Bigelow killed Edward Kaiser with a blow of the fist.

The rush for government lands on the new Cheshire iron range in the Southern part of Marquette county, has left practically no tracts that have not been pre-empted. During the scramble for choice sections forty persons or more from this city made filings and altogether have taken more than 5000 acres. It has been known for years that there was iron ore in the Cheshire district, but until a few months ago it was not believed the deposits were extensive nor that paying mines could be opened there. Now it is reported the iron formation has been traced for several miles in the Cheshire section, and large deposits have already been located by diamond drills.

Hancock—Another company has been formed to operate in Arizona and another is in process of formation. The Quincy & Arizona Mining company, just organized, has an option on twelve claims in the Warren district. Capt. James Wilcox, of the Mass mine, is president.

Another mining company, composed exclusively of Calumet capitalists, will be organized soon to take over a property in the Warren district adjoining the Wolverine & Arizona.

Negaunee—William Staple, aged 57, died after an illness of six weeks of cacer in the stomach.

Professor O'Shea, of the university of Wisconsin, has been engaged to deliver an address at commencement on June 10. A class of ten will graduate.

Plainesdale—The Sarah Sargent Paine memorial library, given to the people of Painesdale by William A. Paine, president of the Copper Range Consolidated Mining company, in memory of his mother, will be finished June 1.

Houghton—A party of fishermen planted 100,000 brook trout fry in the various streams and lakes on the South range along the line of the Copper Range railway.

The annual summer outing of the Lake Superior Press association will be held in Houghton and the copper country July 28, 29 and 30.

Bessemer—John Ellard, a German, was killed and Gust Hill, a Finlander, is dying as the result of a premature explosion in the Mikado mine.

GROWTH IS STEADY

The Exports From the United States to China.

One-Fourth Ultimately Reach the Port of Newchwang.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 4.—(Special to the Herald.—Apparently about one-fourth of the exports from the United States to China ultimately reach the port of Newchwang, the treaty port through which northeast China, including Manchuria, receives most of its foreign merchandise. This is the conclusion of the treasury bureau of statistics after a careful study of the statistics of the imports of China, as presented by the annual yellow book, entitled "Maritime Customs of China; Returns of Trade and Trade Reports for the years 1900-1."

An accurate determination of the question of the share of American imports into China which enter Newchwang is difficult because of the fact that nearly all of the foreign merchandise reaching Newchwang is first received at some other port of China, chiefly Shanghai, and thence transshipped to Newchwang. Another difficulty lies in the fact that the Chinese country or origin of the articles imported, except in a few articles. Four articles are specifically named as of American production, viz: American drills, American jeans, American sheetings and American oil. These four articles, however, apparently form a very large proportion of the imports into Newchwang of American products. Our own statements of exports to China show that cotton goods and mineral oils form about 85 per cent of our exports to. If the figures of Chinese imports of kerosene oil, and the transshipment thereof to Newchwang, it is possible to get a fairly accurate estimate of the value of American products reaching Newchwang, the principal port of entry for the country in question.

The Chinese figures analyzed by the bureau of statistics show that the value of cotton goods imported into Newchwang direct from the United States was but 3787 haikwan taels (value of tael, January 1, 1903, 59.4c.) Of the receipts at Newchwang from other Chinese ports, however, the value of articles named as of American production was, in 1901, as follows:

Articles.	Haikwan taels
American jeans	157,415
American drills	1,936,043
American sheetings	3,526,412
American kerosene	541,485
Total	6,191,359

An examination of the statistics of the receipts of these four articles of American production at the ports which import direct from the country of origin shows that the total value of these articles received into China from foreign countries was, in 1901:

Articles—	Haikwan taels
American jeans	245,628
American drills	4,240,590
American sheetings	7,665,617
American kerosene	8,644,594
Total	21,400,369

Of this total of 21,400,369 haikwan taels, representing the value of the four articles named and reported as having reached China in 1901, 6,195,146 haikwan taels' value of twenty-nine per cent reached Newchwang, and all of it except 3787 haikwan taels by trans-shipment from other ports, chiefly Shanghai. The total value of these four articles which entered China in 1901 is, as already stated, 21,400,369 haikwan taels, out of a grand total of 233,529,656 haikwan taels' worth of imports from the United States in that year.

The facts here indicated would seem to justify an estimate that about one-fourth of the American goods entering China ultimately reach the treaty port of Newchwang for distribution. That this importation of American products into Newchwang has had a steady growth is shown by the following table, which presents the value of American drills, jeans, sheetings and kerosene oil imported into Newchwang in each year from 1896 to 1901, the very small figure for the year 1900 being, of course, due to the war conditions which existed at that time.

	Haikwan taels
1896	2,249,876
1897	3,426,228
1898	3,665,257
1899	6,359,151
1900	2,233,588
1901	6,195,146

The following table, also from the Chinese official returns, gives the total value of imports into Newchwang, from foreign countries and from native ports, respectively, 1896-1901:

	From foreign countries. (Haikwan taels.)	From native ports.
1896	1,886,485	9,055,940
1897	1,641,415	10,987,020
1898	1,458,318	13,627,199
1899	5,279,185	22,543,067
1900	2,482,420	8,582,968
1901	4,266,737	19,329,723

The average value of a haikwan tael for 1901 is given by the Chinese report as 72c; for 1900, by United States director of mint, 59.4c.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Young Man Shoots Father-in-Law Near Madison.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Madison—John E. Krueger was killed by Paul A. Thurlow near Madison, Saturday night. Thurlow had married Krueger's daughter the day previous. Krueger had never seen Thurlow, but he objected to the marriage on account of religious differences. He attacked Thurlow with a revolver. Thurlow returning the fire and killing Krueger.

Vermillion—Joseph G. Best, for many years chief of police, has resigned and will go back to his trade, that of a wagon-maker. It is announced that P. H. Sullivan, night watch, will be appointed chief, with ex-Sheriff Gilchrist stepping into the vacancy made.

Pierre—The Live Stock and Commission company, which held a series of horse sales last year, at which hundreds of horses were disposed of, will begin its sales again on June 3.

The state brand commission is at work clearing up an accumulated business before the beginning of the spring round-up work. About 150 brands are to be acted upon.

The supreme court has granted a certificate to Edward Russell Thomas, of Worthing, who is admitted on a certificate from the supreme court of Nebraska.

The State Historical society, through the kindness of Judge Jarvis, of Faulkton, has been presented with a fine crayon portrait of Governor Herreid, the picture being the work of Charles Greener, of Faulk county.

Brookings—Young people who are native-born South Dakotans have organized themselves into an organization for the purpose of studying the history of South Dakota, preserving historical relics, marking historical spots, etc.

Spearfish—Horace Reed has sold his ranch on Redwater to the Calhoun Brothers of Deadwood, for $9000. The ranch consists of 320 acres, part of it under cultivation, part of it in meadow and much of the cultivated and meadow portions under irrigation.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—A company to manufacture brick has been incorporated and a large force of men is at work building the plant. It is intended to have it completed in time to manufacture 1,500,000 brick this year. A. D. Fish, of the Rangers Lumber company, will be manager.

"Ole" Marsh, of Decorah, Iowa, and Dave Thomas, now at Buffalo, N. Y., will wrestle in private in about three weeks. A side bet of $500 has been made. As both men have some old scores to settle it will likely be a warm bout.

Bids will be advertised for shortly for the construction of a new city hall and jail. The structure will be of brick and probably two stories high.

Bismarck—At a meeting of the State Historical society steps were taken to give definite purpose to the work. The last legislature passed a bill appropriating $1666 for the purchase of historical sites, including the site of old Fort Abercrombie, in Richland county, and the grounds of the first Christian mission at Walhalla. This appropriation was made contingent upon the subscription of a like amount by interested persons in the state and steps have been taken by the society to receive contributions to this end.

Wheatland—Stanley Cure, of Chaffee, who has been hovering between life and death for a few days past with appendicitis, is slightly improved.

The backwardness of the season will make seeding very late; the flax acreage will not be large.

Milnor—The westbound Northern Pacific train was ten hours late owing to several cars being thrown from the track seven miles east. No one was seriously hurt.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default has been made in the payment of the sum of seven thousand two hundred and ninety-eight dollars ($7298.60), which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Ronald M. Hunter and Josephine C. Hunter, his wife, mortgagors, to William E. Lucas, mortgagee, bearing date the seventh day of January, 1897, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 28th day of January, 1897, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book 241 of mortgages, on page 112.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said William E. Lucas, mortgagee, to the undersigned D. A. Burke, by written assignment dated the 28th day of January, 1897, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 28th day of January, 1897, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 168 of mortgages, on page 475; and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, situated in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, viz:

An undivided one-half of lots numbered twenty-five (25) and sixty-six (66), St. Louis avenue; one hundred thirty-six (136) Minnesota avenue; one hundred twenty-five (125) and one hundred thirty-one (131), Lake avenue, Upper Duluth; also lots numbered two hundred seventy-one (271), one hundred sixty-nine (169), one hundred seventy (170), fifty-six (56), St. Louis avenue; three hundred and sixty-five (365), Minnesota avenue; fifty-three (53), sixty-four (64), one hundred thirty-eight (138), one hundred seventy-seven (177), two hundred twenty-six (226), two hundred forty-one (241), two hundred sixty-one (261), and three hundred and twenty-six (326), Lake avenue, Lower Duluth, according to the recorded plats thereof, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 16th day of June, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said mortgage debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and fifty ($50) dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

CANADIAN IMMIGRATION.

The rush of immigrants to Canada this spring has caused a congestion among the new comers, and some of them are not any too well pleased with their venture. This is particularly so in the locating of the Barr colony, in which a large number of people are handled under one management. The rush of people to the wheat-producing areas has been so great that the various agents and transportation companies have been almost swamped. A single day's arrivals at North Portal aggregated 125 settlers, with fifty-three carloads of effects, and that is not regarded as an exceptional record. During March there were 12,372 arrivals, of whom 3693 reached Winnipeg through Canadian seaports, 3859 came through American territory or from that country, and 420 were from Eastern Canada. The so-called American invasion was represented by 853 men, citizens of the republic, 214 women and 274 children. In addition to these, 473 Canadians who have been living in the United States, returned to the Dominion. More than half the total arrivals for the month, 6053 in all, are recorded as farmers.

A staff correspondent of the Toronto Globe, who has been on the field furnishes interesting information concerning the great influx and especially of the Barr colonists. Referring to the discomforts he says they are no greater than any immigrant may encounter, but the large force under one leadership makes the case more conspicuous. Lack of experience in pioneer life may tend to aggravate matters and provoke a tendency to complain. No explanation can be entirely satisfactory to the man who is sleeping on the ground during a cold dip, while his blankets are somewhere among the loaded cars of settlers' effects standing on the siding. The colony is composed of an exceptionally intelligent, thrifty and well-equipped class of British immigrants. The most successful settlers are the farmers from older Canada and the Western states, who come fully prepared and begin operations without missing a single crop. But of British immigrants those who have come under Mr. Barr's supervision seem to more than sustain the average of capacity and adaptability.

As the Globe remarks, it is too severe a test for close on 2000 people to be confronted with camp life without preparation or proper equipment. Even with military discipline and training and with necessary supplies and equipment, such a project would be beset with serious difficulties. The experience of this colony is a warning against attempting the impossible. The larger the body of immigrants the greater the difficulty of successfully dealing with them, and the greater the subsequent difficulty of political and social acclimatization. The individual immigrant dealing directly with the government agents will find his path easier than that of the members of an organized colony.

However, the same experience, to a greater or lesser degree, has been the lot of nearly every pioneer. There are hardships to be met and endured, but after a few years, when prosperity comes in their new homes, the settlers will have forgotten all about their early troubles.

TEACHERS FOR FILIPINOS.

An opportunity will soon be offered for another batch of school teachers to go to the Philippines. Governor Taft has requested the civil service commission to hold examinations throughout the United States for the purpose of securing eligibles for appointment as teachers on the island. A large number of instructors will soon be needed. One reason is that a great many of those who were sent out by the war department, have married. In fact, the establishment of a Philippine school system has proved a veritable boon for dozens of spinster school ma'ams. A couple of hundred men and women teachers were sent to Manila on a transport a couple of years ago, and romances begun on board ship resulted in a score of marriages as soon as the vessel arrived at Manila. This was a source of much vexation to the officials who went to great pains in getting the teachers, many of whom abandoned their vocation on entering the matrimonial state. Others have since married young officers of the marine corps and army and in this way still further depleted the number of instructors.

The examinations are to be held by the civil service commission after the summer vacation begins, so that all who are eligible will have an opportunity to take the examination. Candidates must be between the ages of 20 and 40. The pay will be better than the compensation for women teachers in the United States, being from $900 to $1200 to start with. The excellent pay offered, together with the opportunities for marriage, which teaching in the Philippines furnishes will undoubtedly cause many young ladies throughout the country to take the examinations.

The Portland Telegram suggests that perhaps all the friction and strife in the industrial world at present are for the best—that possibly the more strikes and demands and resistance and contention and confusion there are now, the surer will be the settlement, the more certain and durable the succeeding peace in the industrial world. This is a cheerful view to take, and all will hope it is correct.

The beef trust is again holding up the people. The packers say the rise in the price of beef is due to the scarcity of cattle. The reports of the agricultural department show that there is no shortage in cattle at present and no indication pointing to one in the future. It is simply a case of hold-up.

The strike epidemic is raging not alone in this country, but in Europe—in Holland, Russia and Italy. It seems to be in the air everywhere.

MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.

In the new treaty between the United States and China, which is now in the course of negotiation, provisions will be inserted to fix the status of missionaries to that country and which it is believed will, to a great extent, remove the hostility felt by the non-Christian Chinese to American missionaries and the converts. The right of Americans to engage in mission work in China was first accorded in 1858, when Minister Reed negotiated a treaty containing the following article: "The principles of the Christian religion, as professed by the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches, are recognized as teaching men to be good, and to do to others as they would have others do to them. Hereafter those who quietly profess and teach these doctrines shall not be harassed or persecuted on account of their faith. Any persons, whether citizens of the United States or Chinese converts, who, according to their tenets peaceably teach and preach the principles of Christianity shall in no case be interfered with or molested."

Sweeping as is this article, the Chinese have not always lived up to it. They have found it irksome, and they have suffered from the attitude which the missionaries have adopted in recent years. The latter have frequently interfered between the Chinese authorities and the Chinese converts. These have sometimes assumed an air of superiority over their non-Christian brethren which has caused considerable feeling. The Chinese government declared that the Boxer revolt was due entirely to the disagreement between the "people and the Christians." "Ever since foreign nations commenced propagation of their religion," to quote an imperial decree, "there have been many instances throughout the country of ill-feeling between the people and the converts. All this is due to the faulty administration on the part of the local authorities, giving rise to feuds. The truth is that the converts are also the children of the state, and among them are not wanting good and worthy people. But they have been led astray by false doctrines and have relied on the missionaries for support, with the result that they have committed many misdeeds. They hold to their errors and will not turn from them, and irreconcilable enmity has thus grown up between the converts and the people. Knowing that the converts are also subjects owing fealty to the throne, we ask how they can bring themselves to form a class apart and invite their own destruction."

It has long been felt that a new agreement should be made with the Chinese in regard to the missionaries, and with that end in view, a carefully drawn article has been inserted in the new treaty. The United States has specifically disclaimed any right on the part of missionaries to interference between the converts and the native authorities. The purpose of the missionary is to make the Chinese not only good Christians, but good Chinese subjects. The Chinese government, on its part, engages that there will be no discrimination by its agents against either missionaries or concerts. The convert and the non-Christian will therefore be absolutely on the same footing and no favor not shown to one will be accorded to the other.

IOWA FARMERS' COMBINE.

From all reports it appears that the several hundred farmers of Iowa, who a few years ago united to secure a free market for their products, are doing exceedingly well and the plan has more than met the expectations of the promoters. In 1901 they transacted business to the amount of $620,000, at an outlay of about $4000, inclusive of salaries, taxes, and insurance. In 1902 the volume of business was approximately $630,000. Since these farmers organized their company thirteen years ago the business transacted has amounted to over $4,000,000, and the expense of carrying it on has averaged $3000 a year. The company was not organized to demonstrate any economic theories, to make a fight upon capital, or to vent spite upon individuals, although the immediate cause of the organization was the persistent refusal of the chief tradesman in their vicinity to sell them goods and buy their products at fair rates. Their only contention was to have an opportunity, unhampered by monopolies or trusts, to buy in the lowest and sell in the highest market.

It is not a co-operative organization, nor socialistic. It is merely a business combination for mutual benefit, and only practical farmers may become members. The company does not come into competition with the retail dealers of small articles, but buys agricultural machinery, fence wire, salt, flour, fuel and other bulky articles. The agent of the company buys at the lowest wholesale rates large quantities of the materials needed, selling these in turn to the farmers at cost, plus the small percentage noted. From the farmers he buys cattle, hogs, sheep, oats, and corn, paying year in and year out higher prices than are paid in other towns in the state. Once each year, in the month of March, the company holds a general meeting, during which reports are made. There is but little actual business to transact, however, for the members of the firm have been transacting the business day by day all through the year. There is no large sum of accumulated profits to administer, no surplus to tempt to peculation. There are no profits in the business save the profits which accrue to each individual farmer month by month as he buys his necessities at wholesale and sells his products at figures uniformly higher than the surrounding markets. The success of this Iowa organization may influence others in different states to try the plan. Under proper management its success seems assured in any locality.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Frank Johnson, of the Johnson Nickel company, stopping at the St. Louis hotel, who claims to have solved the problem of making steel from the black titanic ferous ore of Cook county far cheaper and better than it can be made from iron ores on the old ranges, says that he expects a plant to be in operation in Duluth within a couple of months.

"There are several independent steel companies, one in Milwaukee, and on in Chicago," said Mr. Johnson, "which are to make tests within a week or so, and I have several hundred letters from all parts of the country asking for information regarding the steel making that can be done with the process and the ore I have at hand.

"It is not generally understood, the situation that exists. I claim to have found out something about the titaniferous ore that has not been ascertained before in practical test. The analyses shows little of practical value to the steel maker, but what can be ascertained by actual tests is what is of some worth. It is through the tests and the actual workings of the molten ore that I claim to have made my discoveries.

"After one plant is erected, this will be shown, and the process and the ore will be let to manufacturers o fsteel on a royalty proposition. There are all kinds of people who are willing to back up the plan to build a plant here, and several offers are now under consideration. There will be a test made at Utica in a few days also. The black ore in that vicinity has never been worked successfully, and probably cannot be, but this ore of Cook county, which has seemed to be the same, possesses different qualities than those possesed by the New York ore deposits.

"We expect to step aside when the making of steel is gotten under way, and dispose of all or ores on royalty.

"I do not think there is a shadow of a doubt now regarding what we can do in steel making. There will be no more tests at the Valley iron works in St. Paul, and the ones in the future will be made at the plants of independent iron companies in various cities, where interest is now being manifested."

Mr. Johnson has returned to St. Paul, but will be back here to attend to the taking out of ore from the Cook county fields.

Mr. Johnson says there have been two or three hundred people go up to the fields of ore since navigation opened, and he expects a big rush as soon as the snow goes off the ground. At present there is a good deal of snow up in that country.

CLEANING TIME.

Gird yourselves with gingham aprons, O, ye women of the land;
Pin your skirts to clear your shoe tops; take the scrubbing brush in hand,
Boil up alkaline infusions, turn the whole house upside down,
Slop the floors with soap and water, heedless of your husband's frown,
Yank up carpets, rugs and matting, jer't the pictures from the walls,
Have your pails of suds where we can stumble o'er them in the halls,
Pile the stairs till they are worse than any Alpine steeps to climb,
Have the regular old picnic incident to cleaning time.

Fill the bathtub with umbrellas, books and shoes and bric-a-brac,
Heap upon the grand piano kitchen dishes in a stack,
Set the dinner on the mantel, though there's little time to eat;
See that every one who enters wipes with care his muddy feet,
Keep the windows all wide open as you ply the mop and broom,
Have a hot and steamy vapor permeating every room,
Swab and scrub and splash and splatter in your flight with winter grime,
Revel in the moist discomfort incident to cleaning time.

Have the men with whitewash brushes spread the tinted calcimine,
Take all necessary bedding out and air it on the line,
Have the furniture revarnished till the odor makes one faint,
See that all the woodwork glistens with a coat of shining paint;
Don't have anything to sit on, sleep on, eat on; also frown
When you hear a meek suggestion as to "some hotel down town;"
Let the masculine complainer know it's nothing short of crime
Not to make one's life a burden in the glad Spring cleaning time.

Fruit of Overconfidence.

Portland Oregonian: The disaster to the British troops in Somaliland reads like an extract from the chronicle of surprises to British detachments during the Boer war. The whole military history of Britain in India, in North America, in South Africa, is full of disasters of this sort. The British soldier is always brave enough in battle, but his contempt for his enemy has cost him very dear. Braddock's defeat, Bunker Hill, Packenham's dreadful repulse at New Orleans, the Zulu massacre at Isandula, Majuba Hill, Magersfontein, are all illustrations of the fact that the British soldier has a deal more bulldog than fox in his composition.

A LITTLE JOURNEY HOMEWARD

By Sara Lindsay Coleman.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The Tiny One was making her way with some difficulty down the Pullman aisle and, in passing, clutched at the president's knee to steady herself.

The president of the big Graham cotton mill was young, handsome, cold-looking and bored. He stared at the child. A man who didn't fall victim to her charms was something new in her experience. She drew back and said, defiantly: "I am not crying."

The president smiled. He hadn't been in the best of humor. By some blunder his special had been sent ahead and he was reduced, not to the level of the common herd, for which he thanked his stars, the afternoon was hot, but to the publicity of the vestibule. The president was spoiled; he preferred solitude and his special to any attractions the vestibule might offer.

The Tiny One relented at the smile, came nearer and dug her fat, dimpled elbows into his knee.

"Whose papa is you?" she asked.

The president said nothing.

"I are tired," said the artful baby; "I are much tired."

The president did not respond.

With the air of an outraged tragedy queen the child turned away, and with a laugh he swept her to his knee.

"I wunned away," she whispered, putting her rose-leaf lips to his ear. "My muv's sleep." She sank down, settled herself as if she meant to stay indefinitely and looked up at him through a mist of shining curls.

Something rose in the president's throat and choked him—there had been a Tiny One in his own life.

He bought an orange, divided it into sections, seeded it and tied his handkerchief about her throat to protect the dainty frock. When she slept, her fair curls over his coat-sleeve, he held her close and loved her. Was he not a gentleman and had she not confided in him?

The president cast a resentful look at a brown head plumed on a seat farther up the car. It was the Tiny One's mother, he knew. When she waked he would have to return the runaway.

The car rumbled on. The president looked from the window with eyes that failed to see the stretch of cotton fields and pine thickets through which the train was rushing. Instead he saw a long, dim aisle that led to a flower-burdened altar. In the light of a woman's eyes he had thought to find a sacred thing called home.

The child stirred and the president shaded her eyes with his hat, for the low-lying glory of sunset flooded the car. His cuff was moist from contact with the warm little neck.

A low, plaintive voice at his elbow said:

"You have cared for my baby. It was so hot and I was so weary I fell asleep."

The president looked up and the tall, fair woman looked down. Every vestige of color left her face. She was young and girlish and frightened.

"Did you know?" she asked, with a sharp intake of her breath.

"No," said the man. He made room for her beside him, and she sat down in silence.

"I never knew her to leave me. I wonder why she did? Was she good?" The woman was regarding her self-control.

"You never saw anything like it," the president said, laughing a little drearily. "Perhaps she knew you," the woman spoke in a wondering voice. "I never knew her to care for strangers."

"For strangers?" in a hurt voice.

"Forgive me," the woman spoke, quickly. "I show her your picture—she calls it her daddy—and never forgets you in her prayers. I think she knew you."

The president's proud mouth trembled. He bent to the woman impulsively and said:

"Give her to me."

"Randolph," in a frightened, gasping voice. "It would be giving up my very life."

Silence fell between them and the man sat back as though tired.

"I will lend her to you," the woman whispered.

"Did you know I had closed the house, Eleanor? There are ghosts there. A woman's wrath on the stairway. Sometimes I smell the rose in her hair, catch the perfume of her gown, hear the patter of uncertain little feet in the hall."

"Yes," her voice was cold in her effort for self-control, "I knew."

"Have you just come back?" he asked.

"Yes," she spoke just over her breath. "I know you have been silent, and I've given the impression it was my craze for art that sent me wandering over the earth. But I got so tired I had to come back, and now they'll have to know," miserably.

"Will you come home with me, Eleanor? I've wanted to say it every day since you left. I wanted to say it the day you left. I was hard and cold and unjust."

"It was I who was unjust," said the woman, in a troubled voice.

"Will you try me again, dear. I—I am not worthy." The president laid his outstretched left hand on the woman's lap, the other was about the sleeping child. His heart sank as he watched her downcast face, then leaped, for her hand fluttered toward his and lay warm and white and still in his clasp.

The Tiny One stirred, opened her eyes, sat up, stretched her arms to her mother, then, with unexpected coquetrie, drew back, tossed her curls, looked at her mother from the shelter of the president's arms and announced:

"I are not tomin'."

The president's laugh was that of the man triumphant.

"Oh, I'm so glad, said the girl, with tears in her eyes. "I've had her for fifteen months and you are hungry for her. I've taught her to love you, and she does."

The train had stopped. Under cover departing passengers the president drew departing passengers the president drew his wife close. He saw, her through a sudden mist that blurred his own vision—in a woman's eyes the president had found a sacred thing called home.

GOSSIP OF THE CAPITAL

Washington, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The far Eastern situation continues to occupy the serious consideration of the leading diplomats in Washington. Notwithstanding that Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador to the United States, has given out a statement to the public relative to the intention of Russia regarding Manchuria there still exists grave apprehensions as to the future of China. The fact that a number of the leading diplomats at the last moment concluded to remain in Washington instead of joining their brethren of the diplomatic corps in attendance upon the dedicatory services at St. Louis is regarded as proof positive that all is not as serene as the representatives of Russia. Germany and Great Britain would have the people of this country believe. A personal letter received from the far East by a well known newspaper man of this city unhesitatingly states that the situation in China is far from reassuring; that the air of the land of the dragon is surcharged with excitement, and predictions are freely made that Russia and Japan are upon the eve of a mighty struggle for supremacy over the Flowery Kingdom. Japan although greatly inferior to Russia has told the czar of all the Russias that he must keep his hands off of Manchuria and that her last man and her last dollar will be expended to keep intact the Ming dynasty, and we are pledged as a nation to support Japan in her determination to resist the carving up of the Chinese empire. Not since the Spanish-American war has there been as much activity shown as is now being shown in naval circles. Ships out of commission have been ordered into active service and landsmen and marines are on their way to join the vessels ordered to the Asiatic station. Within three weeks there will be thirty vessels in Chinese waters. Within the last few days four of our biggest vessels have been ordered to join the squadron under the command of "Fighting Bob" Evans, the flag of the rear admiral having been hoisted at the "Kentucky's" truck. The Wisconsin, the Wilmington, the Albany are under orders to join at once, and when these ships report to Admiral Evans they will assist in making the most formidable squadron that was ever assembled off the coast of China. The following list of vessels with the number of guns carried in their main and secondary batteries will show the strength of our navy in the orient.

Vessel—	Main Battery.	Secondary Battery.
Albay	..	6

The complement of men and officers which these vessels carry will reach close to 5000, the Kentucky, the Oregon and the Wisconsin, first class battleships, carrying nearly 1000 men, while the cruisers Albany, the Cincinnati, the Helena, the New Orleans will carry about a thousand officers and men, the remainder being distributed among the gunboats and monitors.

Eminent criminologists in this city are at present busily engaged in trying to reach a conclusion as to the suicidal mania which has struck the national capital. At the Cosmos club the other evening the question of suicide was discussed in all its phases, the scientists who are members of that organization having failed utterly in assigning any rational reason for the number of suicides which has occurred in Washington during the past fortnight. Within the last two weeks there have been eight suicides in this city, three occurring in one day and all of them going by the carbolic acid route. Why carbolic acid should be chosen is one of those things which nobody can find out, except, possibly, that as the late Joe Rickey, who committed suicide in New York last week, used carbolic acid to terminate his career, some of the scientists of the city have reached the conclusion that Rickey's adoption of carbolic acid set the pace for those who followed. As the late Joe Rickey invented the gin rickey, immortalizing his name as well as the drink, the unfortunates who put ends to their lives during the past week by the use of carbolic acid, it is thought, were only paying proper respect to the originator of so universal a beverage as the gin rickey.

Postmaster General Payne, who is giving to the postoffice department one of the very best administrations ever had in that branch of our government, is hopeful that before many months the postoffice department will have treaties with all the European countries that will reduce the postage on parcels sent between those countries and the United States. In the last annual report of the postmaster general, Mr. Payne dwelt at considerable length upon the benefits to be derived from a modified parcels post arrangement, and so clear were his reasons for a parcels post that a very great many countries in the postal union have looked with much favor upon the suggestions of the postmaster general. Notice has been sent the German government of the termination of the last treaty and the desire to make a new one which will reduce the postage on parcels. The new treaty with France, it is thought, will likely become operative about July 1st, while negotiations are more or less advanced with other countries of Europe among which being Great Britain, Italy and Norway and Sweden. The postmaster general is hopeful that his administration will have the honor of making a uniform letter postage rate of two cents between the countries of Europe and the United States. To this end he has had a number of conferences recently with the representatives of foreign governments, members of the postal union, with a view of securing such uniformity, and so successful were these conferences that it seems safe to predict that the day for cheaper foreign postage is not far distant.

The famous Washington gavel, the one which the first president of the United States used in laying the cornerstone of the national capitol in September, 1793, is in St. Louis, to be used at the laying of the cornerstone of one of the exposition buildings by the grand master of Masons of the state of Missouri. A committee of well-known members of Potomac lodge No. 5, of this city, has charge of the gavel, which historically divides interest with Washington's apron and his jewels as grand master of Virginia. The gavel, when at home in Georgetown, is kept in a vault of one of the national banks of that place, and is taken away only when in the care of a special committee elected for the purpose. The relic now known as the Washington gavel was handed by General Washington to the then master of Potomac lodge after he had used it at the laying of the cornerstone of the national capitol. The gavel has participated in many of the big Masonic celebrations throughout the country. It was in Philadelphia last December at the Sesqui-centennial of Gen. Washington's initiation into Masonry, and was used in calling together that most distinguished body of Free and Accepted Masons. It was also used at the laying of the cornerstone of the Harrisburg Capitol building and will now be used to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the Louisiana purchase from Napoleon.

This is flower-planting time in the parks of Washington, and the public parterres are becoming a wealth of color. George Brown, the landscape gardener in charge of the propagating gardens of the department of public buildings and grounds, said today that more plants would be put into the parks of Washington this year than ever before had been set out in one year. In all, the number of 1,050,687 plants are now ready to be taken from the greenhouses to the parks. This vast forest of blooms will exceed the number transplanted last year by 300,000, or almost one third. There are 137 distinct varieties of plants, but not different plants, for of some species there are as many as forty varieties alone. The chrysanthemum, which is quite a favorite with Uncle Sam's gardeners, that liking being so strong that they have created a new variety for themselves, is represented in the collection of forty varieties. The rose, on the other hand, has only five members of its different families in this magnificent array. To those interested in floriculture it will be a matter of moment to know that included in this great forest of plants there are nine varieties of cannas; of pansies, nine; carnations, six; and, according to Mr. Brown there will be set out between now and the first of July, 638,338 eunynus; of geraniums, 22,000; of vincas, 8500; frisineas, 15,000; coleus, 66,500. Besides these there are cosmos, heliotropes, begonias and violets in almost countless numbers. To set out all these plants will require the services of 40 men working nine hours a day, but when they are all planted and growing Washington, which is at all times a beautiful city, becomes radiant with color and redolent with perfume, the slums of the city being entirely forgotten in the presence of the work of the floriculturists.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Detroit Free Press: "Isn't it funny?" "What?"

"She's the head of a matrimonial agency, but an old maid."

Puck: Gladys's So Beatrice is finally married? How did she come to make the plunge?

Ethel—She didn't. She was shoved off by six younger sisters.

Cincinnati Tribune: Mrs. Youngwife—I want to get some salad.

Dealer—Yes, ma'am. How many heads?

Mrs. Youngwife—Oh, goodness! I thought you took the heads off. I just want plain chicken salad.

Philadelphia Press: Churchman—That was an eloquent sermon you preached to us last Sunday on "The Poor We Have Always with Us."

The Pastor—Yes, I was inspired. I had observed how small the collection was that day.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Dear," said the physician's wife, "when can you let me have $10?"

"Well," replied the medical man, "I hope to cash a draft shortly, and then—"

"Cash a draft? What draft?"

"The one I saw Mrs. Jenkins sitting in this morning."

Smart Set: "He married her because she was such a brilliant conversationalist."

"Yes; I know; but—"

"Oh, he got a divorce from her for the same reason."

Kansas City Journal: Jonathan—I say, Britisher, can you spell horse?

Englishman—'Orse? Why, certainly. It honly takes a hatteh and a he and a har and a hess and a he to spell 'orse.

Chicago Tribune: "It's a mistake to say the course of true love never did run smooth," reflected Mr. Meekun. "In thousands of cases it does run smooth—until it reaches the ocean of matrimony, which, I'll admit, is sometimes rough enough."

THE MAN WORTH WHILE.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows along like a song,
But the man worth while is the man who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong.

The jostling crowd in life's pathway
Could stories quite bitter relate,
Of lives tempest-tossed and loves that are lost
And souls that are scrapping with fate.

The sun's brightest beams in the morning
Will see ere the close of the day
A million who must go down in the dust
And wrong over right have its sway.

There are moments of joy and of pleasure,
But they come from Utopia's shore.
We wake from the dream to find in its gleam
The glamor of pleasure no more.

So I sing of the soul's ever longing
To rest in Elysium's state.
The battle of life is a field day of strife,
And that is why I relate,

That it's easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows along like a song,
But the man worth while is the one who will smile
When everything goes dead wrong.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: When the wife's away the men will play.

When a woman forgets to ask if her hat is on straight it is because she isn't wearing one.

You can't teach a man who is in love very much about the sensations of chills and fever.

Women tell such plausible white lies that the second time they do it they believe it themselves.

When a woman keeps going to a mirror and looking into it it is a sign she is wondering if some man thinks some other woman is prettier than she is.

CHURCH'S DUTY

Must Study Workingman's Social Problems to Reach Him.

Rev. Charles Stelzle Discusses Relations of Labor and Church.

"Before the church can reach the workingman it must study its own social condition and understand his social problems," said Rev. Charles Stelzle, at the First Presbyterian church last evening in discussing the relation of the workingman to the church.

"The wonderful growth of the urban population in the United States during the past century has given a complexity to the social problems. At the beginning of the century but 3 per cent of the population lived in cities. At the end of the century about 33 per cent of the population was urban. The problem presented by hundreds of thousands of men crowded into a square mile of space is no small one.

"One winter in New York there were 25,000 people reported homeless and that same winter a New York millionaire gave a dinner at Delmonico's costing $50,000. This flaunting of riches in the face of the poor is what makes the workingman so bitter against the rich.

"What to do with the foreigner is becoming a serious problem. Each year we are receiving in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 foreigners into our country. Many of them cannot read or write. They are packed into the tenements in the larger cities, sometimes several families in a room. But the large tenements in the great cities are no worse than the smaller ones in some of the Western towns. It was against these that Jacob Riis made his great fight so successfully.

"The idea of confining the saloons to the poorer districts of the city, while it has its advantages, has also its drawbacks. The poor are least able to resist the temptations of the saloons and they are compelled to live alongside of them.

"If all the saloonkeepers were the devils incarnate that they are pictured by the temperance papers, there would be little difficulty in combatting them. They are not such devils. The majority of them are as honest as the average business man. They are often the friend of the workingman. They lend him money when he is out of work. They supply the men with a room in which to hold meetings and in many ways befriend him. Many means have been tried to overcome the influence of the saloons. The best way, however, much like a platitude it may sound, is to improve the home conditions of the men.

"This the men are doing themselves by means of labor unions. The greatest need of the workingmen today is competent leaders. They have a few, but they are not always understood. Honest, energetic, upright and capable leaders are what the men need in their battle.

"Class spirit against which the men declaim so bitterly at times is not confined to the relation between capital and labor, but is seen among the men themselves. It is a great detriment to the cause of the men. The labor unions have undoubtedly come to say, but whether their influence will be for good or evil rests with the leaders. Should demagogues with no qualifications but a glib tongue gain control of the men, the greatest evils may result.

"Preachers should interest themselves in the affairs of the laboring men. Resolutions were recently passed in some of the unions prohibiting preachers from attending the meetings. There is often prejudice against ministers among the men. This prejudice will have to be overcome."

The sermon was illustrated with stereopticon views, illustrating the seamy side of life in the large cities.

Capt. Gaillard Leaves Soon.

Major L. H. Beach, the new engineer in charge of the offices for the Lake Superior district has gone to Detroit. He will return about May 15.—Captain D. D. Gaillard and family will leave for Washington in about a week. Captain Potter, who will be the government engineer permanently assigned to this district is seriously ill at Memphis, Tenn., and it is not known how soon he will be able to assume the duties of the local office.

COLD WEATHER CAUSES DEATH

Exposure In May Day Storm Kills an Old Man.

Cold weather on the first day of May caused the death of August Johanson last Saturday.

As far as known this is the first instance on record where exposure to Duluth weather has resulted fatally so late in the season.

Mr. Johnson was discovered Friday morning in the basement of a vacant house on Bay View Heights. The severe cold of last Thursday and Friday caused him to seek shelter in the house where he was found and his condition was such that he did not recover sufficiently to explain why he went there.

In addition to being partly frozen he was almost dead from hunger when found. His death occurred in the Red Cross hospital.

Mr. Johnson has made his home with a sister living near Proctorknott, and it is said that he disappeared four days prior to the time he was found.

BOY ARRESTED FOR FORGERY

Charles Harris Tries to Pass a Bad Check For $10.

Charles Harris was arrested Saturday afternoon for trying to pass a forged check for $10 on David Frankfort, a clothing merchant at 630 West Superior street.

In the slang of the Bowery, "he needed the coin," and that is the only excuse. Harris is a mere boy and says that he came here from the Pacific coast for the purpose of obtaining employment as a waiter on one of the passenger boats, but failed to secure work and his funds gave out.

He was bound over to the grand jury, waiving a preliminary hearing and urging that his case should be disposed of as soon as possible.

WEATHER IN APRIL.

Month One Degree Warmer Than the Average.

The meteorological summary for the month of April has been published by the local weather bureau.

The highest point reached by the mercury during the month was 73 degrees on April 27, and the lowest 22 degrees on April 3. The mean temperature for the month was 39 degrees. The mean average for the month of April during the past thirty-three years was 39 degrees.

The prevailing direction of the wind was from the northeast and the maxim velocity was thirty-eight miles per hour on April 27.

The total precipitation for the month was 2.15 inches or .42 inches less than the average for the past thirty-three years.

There were eleven clear days during the month, eight partly cloudy and eleven cloudy.

No heavy frosts were reported during the month.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottle free. Regular sizes 50c, $1.00.

FAIR SALES MADE

Lumber Sold During Past Week About 10,000,000 Feet.

Ten Mills on Duluth-Superior Harbor Are Now Sawing.

Lumber sales for the past week or ten days at the head of the lakes are said to have aggregated about 10,000,000 feet. This amount does not include the several months' cut at the Alger-Smith mill, which was practically sold some time ago. The company is said to have no stock on hand or in sawing that is in the market. The advance sales were made some time ago, but the prices were made by the manufacturers at a recent date and are understood to be figures according with the usual run of prices in this locality.

Besides the sales of rough lumber for the East, the American Lumber company has disposed of about 4,000,000 feet to Bolin & Wood. This sale is in advance of the sawing, as the logs for the stock are not yet out.

The lath and shingle market is in excellent condition. Outside of the harbor mills there is quite a strong demand for lumber in carload lots. With the opening of the lumber shipping season on the lakes and the arrival of the big lumber fleet the movement of lumber by the water route is showing great activity. The first movement of the fleet down the lakes is expected to clean up about 25,000,000 feet of the stocks at hand on the docks either side of the bay.

Ten mills on the harbor front are now sawing and only two are idle, the Clark-Jackson and the Peyton, Kimball & Barber plants, the latter in West Superior. It is understood, however, that both these mills have contracts and will start up soon. The Peyton mill is to cut 12,000,000 feet for Bolin & Wood, the logging contractors. The timber will come off state lands recently bought by the contractors. The Clark-Jackson company is to saw for Scanlon-Gipson, the contract to include timber that cannot be sawn at the Scanlon mill this season. The timber will be taken out of the water and hauled by rail to the mill here.

The Scanlon-Gipson company has recently closed a deal that will largely increase its lumber output this season. The company has secured title to about 20,000,000 feet of logs banked in the northern part of the state from F. W. Boness. None of the logs will come to Duluth. They will be driven down the Mississippi river to the mills at Minneapolis. About 10,000,000 feet will be brought down this season and the balance next season.

The Itasca Lumber company, operating in Itasca county, is very active this season. The company keeps three locomotives at work, one on railroad construction, one for switching log trains in the woods and a third for hauling the logs to the river. Another locomotive will be added to the equipment shortly. Steel is being laid on the Jessie lake branch which is being graded to the Big Fork river.

The Crookston Lumber company's big mill at Bemidji was started for the first time last week. The mill employs about 70 men and will have a steady cut for ten or twelve years to come. The opening of the mill was made the event of quite a celebration at Bemidji.

The Edward Hines Lumber company has sold about two-thirds of its cut at the Whitebeck mill operating on the Menominee river. The stock comprises 20,000,000 feet, sold to Buffalo parties. The Hines company has also sold several hundred thousand feet of good lumber to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road.

The St. Croix Lumber company will begin sawing at its mill at Winton this week. The mill will manufacture about 40,000,000 feet this season, having changed it single-cutting band saws to a double-cutting machine.

GIVEN ONE MORE CHANCE

Cass Lake Townsite Case to Be Soon Heard Again.

Washington, May 4.—Special Agent Nessler, of the Indian service, will soon be sent to Minnesota to conduct a final hearing in the famous Cass Lake township site case.

This case has been before the department for several years, and was decided last December in favor of Mrs. Nellie Lydeck and her two minor children, who took allotments as members of the White Oak Point tribe.

The land selected was on the site now occupied by a considerable portion of the population of Cass Lake.

Senator Nelson petitioned during the last session of congress for a re-opening, which was granted, and further evidence will be taken. The settlers who have been opposed to Mrs. Lydeck's claims have employed Charles H. Babbit, of this city, to look after their interests.

It is alleged that while Mrs. Lydeck was once a member of the White Oak Point tribe, she severed her tribal relations with that band of Indians some time ago, and, consequently, forfeited her right to take an allotment on the lands set aside for that tribe.

Secretary Hitchcock says that this is the last time he will take up the case. He thinks that the opposition to the Lydecks, if it does not submit any new testimony at this hearing, will have to give up. But few of the squatters really object, and many of them already have provisional contracts with the Lydecks to purchase the lots upon which their stores, shops and houses stand.

THE STAGE.

Here is what the press agent has to say of "Finnigan's Ball," which will be seen at the Lyceum this evening, and if you don't believe it, just go and see it it is not so:

"Finnigan's Ball" is a high ball made from true Irish mirth, spiced with clean wit, effervescing with sparkling song, from the pretty lips of rollicking colleens. But unlike other 'high balls,' its intoxication does not send one home to beat his wife, but rather to see new beauty in everything, to make tomorrow's work seem lighter and life more worth the living.

Tim Murphy will be at the Lyceum Tuesday night. No one more popular than this amiable comedian comes to this city, and the increasing circumference of his circle of admirers now makes assured a welcome as substantial as the clean, hearty and wholesome humor of which he is an exponent deserves.

On this occasion Mr. Murphy will again be seen as the quaint and original old politician, the governor of Mississippi, in "The Carpetbagger," a comedy written for him by Opie Read, the widely-read novelist, and Frank Pixley, known to fame as the author of "Kine Dodo," "The Burgomaster" and "The Prince of Pilsen." This is the only instance of their colaboration, and they declare that they were led to it by a genuine admiration for the sterling gifts of Mr. Murphy. "The Carpetbagger" will be given an elaborate production both in point of scenery and costumes.

Tonight the Ferris comedians will produce at the Metropolitan, by special request, the beautiful play, "The Lady of Lyons," in which the comedians scored such a fine success some time past. Gus A. Forbes will be seen in his favorite role of Claude Melnotte, while Miss Mona Carrington will be seen in the role of Pauline. Careful attention will be given to all details as to the costuming and scenic effects. There will also be a complete change of vaudeville between the acts.

MAY MAKE AMENDS

Rumor That Asphalt Company Will Give Better Bid.

Duluth May Get St. Paul Prices on the Next Job.

It is currently reported that the asphalt trust will endeavor to "square itself" in the forthcoming bids for street paving, particularly for the material to be used between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues east on Superior street.

The last bid for asphalt here was about $2.45 a square yard for the paving of Superior street, between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues east. Last week the same company bid $1.88 a square yard for a contract on University avenue, in St. Paul. And it is reported on what seems to be good authority that the forthcoming bids for Duluth work will be lower than that.

However, it is not likely that asphalt will be seriously considered at any price for work here until the property owners see a good test of the material to be put down on Superior street, from Eighth to Sixteenth avenue, within the next few months.

Local engineering experts predict a rather speedy failure for this paving, claiming that the wet subsoil will cause it to heave and crack in the winter, and in this respect say that Duluth is peculiarly handicapped in any kind of a sheet paving. The water from the hillside is apt to run down and work under the paving despite the best efforts at drainage.

The people that have to pay for the improvements contemplated are protesting strongly against any consideration of asphalt at this time, and say that it would be unwise for the city to experiment with it until the price is more satisfactory and until a fair test is given on the asphalt already contracted for.

Despite this overwhelming public sentiment against asphalt, the representatives of the trust are busy figuring on the work soon to be let by the city, and say that when the time comes they will get what they are after—presumably whether the property owners are willing or not.

MAKES HIS RULING.

Judge Dibell Decides Canosia-Grand Lake Case.

Judge Dibell has filed a decision in district court granting judgment to E. F. Jewell against the Townships of Canosia and Grand Lake, in the sum of $6,133.01. In the case of the Township of Grand Lake the judgment has been satisfied.

The township of Canosia, for the purpose of raising funds to build bridges, issued bonds in the amount of $10,000, August 1, 1892. The bonds became due in August, 1898. Four of the bonds were sold to Jewell and the balance to the American Loan & Trust company. In November, 1895 the township of Canosia was divided but no division of the bonded indebtedness was made. The territory detached, now known as township of Grand Lake claimed that it, as well as the township of Canosia was responsible for the indebtedness of the bondholder, Jewell. The court divides the indebtedness pro rata, Canosia paying $4,335.01 and Grand Lake the other $1800.

HOSTILE CHURCH FLOCKS

End Lawsuit With Tears and Hallelujahs.

Chicago, May 4.—Prayer settled a case in an Evanstone justice court Saturday where the law failed. There was anything but religious feelings in the air when the hostile flocks of The Second Baptist and Second Baptist churches (both colored) presented themselves in court to settle a long-standing feud. Before they left, however, the court had adjourned in favor of the prayer meeting and harmony and love prevailed among the brethren.

"This is not a matter for the law to settle," said Justice J. F. Boyce to the 113 representatives of the rival congregations assembled as witnesses before him. Mrs. M. Mathews, who with her husband, were the defendants in the case, had just fainted, following the recital of lengthy charges by John Cole, the plaintiff, who declared the couple had spoken of him in abusive language.

"I would suggest that this court adjourn and that a prayer meeting take its place," said the justice. Acting upon the suggestion, Mrs. George Beattie, one of the witnesses, started a hymn, and before the justice realized it he found he had been taken at his word and that religious services were in progress in his courtroom. After the singing several of the brethren present offered up prayers for the happy settlement of the dispute and the scene terminated in a reunion of the discordant flocks, with tears and "hallelujahs" profusely scattered.

Perfect preparations for the cure of dandruff, falling hair and premature baldness have existed in the past only in theory.

They were compounded without any exact knowledge of the real cause of the diseases which they were intended to cure. They were good enough for the time—because there was nothing better known—but they are not good enough for today.

We know that diseases of the hair and scalp are of parasitic origin.

This truth is the result of modern investigation and our knowledge of the bacteriological origin of disease.

Send your hair for microscopic examination.

IN a microscopic examination of 1,000 samples of human hair, made in the Cranitonic Hair and Scalp Institute (Incorporated under the laws of the State of New York), 24 different diseases of the hair and scalp were discovered and identified, many of them extremely contagious, and all fatal to the life of the hair.

The Cranitonic preparations were formulated for the exact purpose of preventing and curing these diseases.

In the Cranitonic institute 19,862 people were personally examined and prescribed for by the physicians during the past year, while 165,681 were successfully treated by correspondence. For scientific research and investigation into the causes and cure of hair and scalp diseases and in the perfection of its formulæ, the Cranitonic Hair Food Company has already expended more than $200,000.

We Know that the itching scalp, the falling hair and the dandruff that annoys and disfigures are the work of a parasite hidden deep down in the scalp.

To cure the surface indications we must reach the cause below.

This Cranitonic Hair Food does.

Being a parasiticide, it penetrates to the entire depth of the hair-follicle and destroys the parasite that causes the trouble.

It does more—it feeds the weakened hair-follicle back to health.

It is both a germicide and a natural food for the hair. It gives the hair new life, lustre and growth by feeding the scalp which holds the hair roots, for the life of the hair is in the scalp.

It is the only hair and scalp food and there is nothing like it in the world.

It cures dandruff, stops falling hair and prevents gray hair and baldness.

It is pure, clean, clear as cystal, delightful to use and certain in its results. No sediment.

Have you dandruff?

Then you have a contagious disease, unpleasant, unhealthy and one that will lead to baldness unless cured.

Cranitonic Hair-Food will positively cure it.

Does your scalp itch?

Then you are suffering from a parasitic disease, distressing, annoying and one that indicates uncleanliness.

Cranitonic Hair-Food will cure it.

Is your hair falling?

The cause is a parasite in the hair-follicle eating away the delicate membrane which holds the hair-root in place. The only way to stop falling hair is to destroy the parasite which causes it.

Cranitonic Hair-Food does this, and then feeds the follicles and roots and rebuilds the waste tissue.

The result is a new growth of strong, beautiful, youthful hair.

Cranitonic Hair-Food is for sale by dealers in three sizes—$1, $2 and $5 bottles. Express prepaid.

ARE YOU IN TROUBLE?

All readers of The Herald who have any hair or scalp TROUBLE, or neglected their hair, and are worried about it, and who would like a microscopic examination of their hair are recommended to CALL on us, or send a few hairs pulled from the head, or a sample from the daily combings, when our Medical and Scientific Department will mail you, ABSOLUTELY FREE, a FULL REPORT and DIAGNOSIS.

Hair Food by Mail.

To enable the Public to test the Possibilities of Cranitonic, a LARGE Bottle will be given to all who CALL or a sample will be sent by mail, prepaid, to all who send name and complete address and 10 cents in stamps or silver to cover cost of postage and patent United States mailing case, to CRANITONIC HAIR FOOD CO., 526 West Broadway, New York.

ENERGETIC BOOM

For Cleveland Started By One of His Close Friends.

May Again Be Named As Democratic Standard Bearer.

Chicago, May 4.—Walter Williams, in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says: Among Democrats here there is more and more discussion of the possibility of Former President Cleveland's nomination next year, and also of the attitude of Col. Bryan in case Mr. Cleveland is made the candidate. The former president's recent activity and his visit to St. Louis, considered in connection with the vigorous "boom" for him started by the Brooklyn Eagle, have served to draw attention anew to Mr. Cleveland and the possibility that he may again be named as the Democratic standard bearer.

St. Clair McKelway, the brilliant editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, is one of Mr. Cleveland's nearest friends. He is supposed to be in the former president's confidence and no one believes Mr. McKelway would urge the Democratic party to make Mr. Cleveland its nominee without the consent of that gentleman, or at least without the knowledge that Mr. Cleveland would accept. When Mr. Cleveland's name was first mentioned most Democrats at the national capital regarded it as a vain and almost foolish suggestion, but the more they think about it the less impossible does it appear to them. Many Democrats who never liked Mr. Cleveland have of late said.

"I would rather vote for almost any other man in the country than old Grover, but I'm forced to admit that it looks as if he was the only man who would stand a ghost of a chance to beat President Roosevelt."

Concerning the attitude Mr. Bryan will assume in the event of Mr. Cleveland's nomination, an exceedingly interesting story is current here. I am not able to vouch for its accuracy, and so give it for what it is worth. It comes from a Washington Democrat who is one of Mr. Bryan's intimates and who has recently conferred with Mr. Bryan. According to this authority, Mr. Bryan has said he will not only refuse to support Mr. Cleveland if the former president is nominated, but will exert all his influence to compass the defeat of the Democratic candidate.

It is expected, says this gentleman, that it is not Mr. Bryan's intention to run on the Populist or some other ticket, but to give Mr. Cleveland a dose of his own medicine. In 1896 Mr. Cleveland advised gold money Democrats not to throw away half their votes and "be in the air" by voting for Gen. Palmer, but to go clear over to McKinley and make every vote count double. If Cleveland is nominated next year this authority says, Mr. Bryan will advise all "Bryan Democrats" not to "be in the air," but to vote for Roosevelt. But Mr. Bryan believes the nomination of ex-President Cleveland by the Democracy is an impossibility.

Notwithstanding this alleged threat of Col. Bryan, a good many Democrats are convinced that Editor McKelway is right when he says Mr. Cleveland is the only Democrat who can be elected. They point out that the places in which Mr. Bryan's influence would count for most are states in which the Democratic party could not hope for electoral votes. That is to say, some Democrats in the South, in the border states, in Missouri, in Iowa, in Nebraska and in the mountain states might follow Mr. Bryan's advice and throw their votes to Roosevelt. But the electoral votes of these states are not in doubt. With possibly a few unimportant exceptions they are absolutely fixed quantities, either for the Republican or the Democratic ticket, no matter who is the Democratic candidate.

If Cleveland should be the nominee the Democratic party's hope of winning will lie in the Solid South, in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, with the bare possibility of a few votes from Montana, Colorado and California. Where the battle would rage the fiercest and where the issue would really be decided, they say, Mr. Bryan has such small influence that his opposition would not count for much.

A GRUESOME DISCOVERY

Daughter Finds Father's Body In a Dissecting Room.

Chicago, May 4.—"It is my father," gasped a woman in the cooling room of the Northwestern Medical college, and then she fainted.

One of the most gruesome places in the city is the room where human bodies are suspended in a row from the ceiling to await the young men who are learning surgery. It was in such a place that the last chapter was enacted in a long search for a missing man. It was a daughter who made the ghastly discovery that her parent's body was about to become a subject for the demonstrator at the medical school.

Fearing what she might find, and yet anxious to clear up a mystery, Mrs. Bell Lowrey, 6351 Lexington avenue, went to the school with two detectives.

A police official thought he remembered a case of an unidentified dead man which answered the description of William Frane given by the daughter, and that led to the pitiful scenes.

The woman, two detectives and a demonstrator passed by a line of human forms and reached the last one.

The demonstrator had just remarked: "This body will be taken to the dissecting room Monday."

The woman, peering at the features in the dim light of the vault, gasped: "It is my father."

Her unconscious form was carried from the place, and it was some time before she recovered sufficiently to go home.

The dead man was 70 years old and had formerly been a bridge coptractor. He left the home of his daughter Friday and it was supposed by her that he had gone to Toledo, Ohio, to visit a brother.

All the police records show is that the body was found March 3 in a lodging house at 1241 State street. It was removed to a morgue. Kept the regular time awaiting identification, and then turned over to the medical school.

Where the old man was between the time he disappeared and when his lifeless body was taken to the morgue will probably never be known. He is survived by five children.

DIED FROM INJURIES.

Herman Overby Jumped From a Moving Train.

Fisston, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Herman Overby, who died at the hospital here late Friday evening, was held on Sunday afternoon at the home of the deceased. Overby lost his right leg in an accident at the Great Northern depot Thursday evening, while trying to get off a moving passenger train, falling under the train, the wheels of which cut the leg in two. After an operation had been performed at the local hospital, jaundice set in and speedily brought on death. Overby was 39 years of age, and leaves a wife and five children. He had been a resident of Fosston during the past ten years, and was in comfortable financial condition. No blame is accorded to the railway company for the accident that cost Overby his life, as he got on the train before it started and leaped from the car after the train was in motion.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH

Came to Seven Polish Excursionists at Detroit, Mich.

Fast Train Crashed Into Large Party on Tracks.

Detroit, Mich., May 4.—A day of merry making and celebration by 1500 Polish excursionists from Toledo, O., was brought to a close by a frightful catastrophe at the corner of Canfield street and Dequindor street at 8:20 last evening in which at least seven of the excursionists were killed.

The excursion was given by the Polish Lancer of Toledo over the Lake Shore railroad. The excursionists left the train at the corner of Canfield and Dequinder streets yesterday morning and were met by a number of local Poles and Polish societies who escorted the visitors to St. Josephat's church. An entertainment was held later at Harmonia Hall. About 8 o'clock the visitors began to gather again to take their train back to Toledo. There the Lake Shore and Grand Trunk tracks run out from the Brush street station on Dequinder street. Four policemen endeavored to keep the excursionists from crowding through the gates onto the tracks. Despite their efforts hundreds crawled under or over the gates and walked down the dark tracks to await the arrival of their train, which could be seen coming slowly up from the station. Probably 1000 persons were scattered along the tracks for two blocks waiting to board the Lake Shore excursion train and secure seats. It was only a few blocks down the track creeping carefully along. Suddenly from out the darkness came the Grand Trunk Chicago-New York express known as the Pan-American Flyer. It ploughed through the mass of people, throwing them to both sides of the track, bruised and maimed and ground a number of them under the wheels of the heavy train.

Four of the dead were killed outright by the train and the others died after being taken to the hospital. The tracks are very dark below Canfield street and lanterns had to be brought into use to find all the victims. Every ambulance in the city was called to the scene and the injured were very soon under the care of the surgeons in the hospital.

The list of dead:

MRS. HELEN PALICKI, Toledo O.
FRANK ROSINSKI, Toledo.
WATSON LUDWICK, Toledo.
YOUNG WOMAN, about 20 years of age, unidentified.
MAN about 26 years of age, unidentified.
BOY, about 10 years of age.
BOY, about 12 years of age, unidentified.

Patrolman Schultz, who was one of the officers on duty at the crossing, said: "We made every effort to keep the people off the tracks, but it was impossible. There were 1500 excursionists going back to Toledo and twice that number of local residents, who had been entertaining them were down at the depot to see them off. No whistle was blown and the bell was not ringing. The Grand Trunk train came out of the darkness up the track like a meteor and was through the crowd almost before I realized what had happened."

A cry for vengeance went up from the Poles as soon as they realized what slaughter the Grand Trunk train had done. A demonstration was started against the engineer of the flyer. Someone shouted "Get the engineer; kill him," and a rush was made down the track for the cab of the engine. The police had forestalled them, however, and an officer guarded each door of the cab.

When Thomas H. Hart, the engineer who was in charge of the Grand Trunk train which ran into the crowd was seen at his home this evening he gave the following version of the affair:

"The place where the accident occurred is not a regular stopping point for incoming passenger trains and the engineer receives notice before reaching the crossing or has the signal turned against him he runs through without stopping.

"We were running down on time tonight and when we neared Canfield street I noticed the headlight of the Lake Shore train standing on Canfield street, but as this is a common occurrence I paid no attention to it. The light from the other engine was shining in my eyes and it was impossible for me to see the crowd on the track until I passed the other engine.

"Then I first noticed the crowd. The people were scattered all over the track and after blowing the whistle I applied the brakes but could not stop my train in time to prevent running into them. We were running about twelve miles an hour, the usual speed at that place."

Fire Sunday night destroyed the five-story building at 151-153 Wabash avenue, Chicago, causing a loss of $150,000. The building was occupied by several mercantile firms whose stock was completely destroyed.

At Sand Run, a mining village five miles north of Nelsonville, O., Charles Dunkle probably fatally wounded his brother, John Dunkle, the result of a quarrel. Believing his brother to be dead, Charles shot himself in the head and died almost immediately. The wounded brother is reported to be dying. Both men were miners.

Fire Sunday destroyed the tannery of C. A. Mueller at Port Washington, Wis., with a loss of $50,000. Several other factories were in danger. The plant will be rebuilt immediately.

Miss Evelyn Hodge, Miss Ingersoll Binge and Samuel Williams, three prominent young society people of Shreveport, La., were drowned in Twelve Mile Bayou Sunday afternoon. They rowed up near a dam and were drawn beneath the falls by the eddy.

Mrs. Linneburger and her son were found dead at Bristol, Tex., Sunday, both having been chopped to pieces with an axe. The husband and father, W. C. Linneburger, was subsequently found on his farm, four miles north of Bristol with his brains blown out with a shot gun.

The thickly settled portion of Kennebunk, Me., was threatened with destruction by a fire Sunday which raged for three hours among the mills and business blocks and which caused a loss of $100,000. The municipal lighting plant, valued at $35,000 and unused, two mills, five blocks, seven wooden buildings, and two tenements were burned to the ground, and the stocks of fourteen stores are a total loss. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Appetite of Human Nature

When Uneeda Biscuit were first introduced, a conservative said:

"They are all right as far as they go, but they won't satisfy the worker. The worker, you see, wants something solid, and substantial, and plain—like potatoes, cabbage, or beef. These delicate and crisp biscuit, packed so daintily, in that In-er-seal Package, will not appeal to him any more than winter strawberries."

That sounded like good reasoning. But fact upsets theory.

Workers everywhere have been great consumers of Uneeda Biscuit The outdoor worker, seated at noon upon the sidewalk, a house wall for his back rest; mill hands in the mill yard, seated on comfortable bales; teamsters and draymen, on their high box seats—all have eaten Uneeda Biscuit, and their wives have eaten them, and their children have eaten them.

Another conservative took another view:

"Uneeda Biscuit are all right," he said, "to sell to the workers, but you must not expect to sell them to the more prosperous people. They are too cheap. Five cents a package—that kills Uneeda Biscuit so far as the wealthy are concerned. The price should be higher—they are worth it."

That, too, sounded reasonable, but it also turned out to be only theory.

For the greatest grocers of the city and of the country say Uneeda Biscuit have taken the place of the more expensive biscuit. Over 200,000,000 packages have been consumed.

The worker eats Uneeda Biscuit because of their goodness.

The wealthy eat them because of their delicacy.

The whole world eats them because they represent the highest value as a food product—pure, wholesome, good.

The appetite of human nature always relishes a good change of diet—Uneeda Milk Biscuit is a change that never disappoints.

SENSATIONAL DENUNCIATION

Of Authorities Made By Father Reichlin of Lorain.

Lorain, O., May 4.—The Rev. Charles Reichlin, pastor of St. Joseph's church in this city and brother of Agathia Reichlin, who was murdered last Tuesday night, last nigat made a sensational denunciation of the authorities for the arrest of Rev. Father Walser for the murder of his sister. The occasion was at the services of that church and was made from the steps of the altar. The father was greatly affected over the happenings of the week and could hardly speak. Several times his voice was husky from emotion and he paused frequently to overcome his feelings.

Father Reichlin's statement was as follows: "Various events have happened during the past week. No doubt they are a lesson to us. The lesson is that we should always be ready for death, for we know not when it will please the Lord to call us to Him. Avoid sin and do good. The lesson is also how little we can trust the world.

"Brutality is not a thing that is or was confined to the so-called dark ages; it is not exclusively confined to non-civilized countries; it is right here at our home in this twentieth century. The world sees it every day. I am sorry to see that Father Walser is connected with the murder of my sister. I am sorry because I am convinced before God that he is absolutely innocent and no matter how strong public feeling is, how spiteful, how atrocious that public opinion is, it cannot make him out a murderer of my sister. The time will come when I will give my version of the bloodhound story upon which the character of public opinion seems to be based. My friends, I believe Father Walser innocent until he is proven guilty. Personally, I do not know which assault is most brutal, the assault of the murderer upon my sister or the assault upon the reputation of Father Walser, the assault made by public opinion upon that good priest.

"In your prayers pray for my poor sister, pray also for Father Walser. Let us help him carry his cross and heavy though it be, let us act with fortitude and as becomes Christians."

The scene of the murder was the point of interest for thousands of callers at the Reichlin home yesterday where the body was on view until it was taken into St. Joseph's church at 3 o'clock, where the vespers for the dead were sung by Rev. Charles Reichlin and two assistants. The congregation was so great that it entirely filled the seats and all the standing room.

Father Walser, who is confined to the county jail at Elyria, was not accessible to visitors today and he has seen no one since yesterday. He is treated as any other prisoner, except that he has the freedom of the corridor. His preliminary hearing will probably be held Tuesday. There is no excitement at Elyria and no signs of any mob violence.

The authorities are not disposed to give expression to any views. Support of the belief that a burglar committed the crime was given impetus today, by the statements of several neighbors who had seen a stranger hanging around the Reichlin home for several hours on the night of the crime.

JUDGE HIMES

Was the Winner of the Kentucky Derby.

Louisville, May 4.—Judge Himes, at 10 to 1, won from Early the twenty-ninth Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday by half a length, largely because Winkfield, on Early, the favorite, was overconfident. Bourbon was third, six lengths back.

The victory of Judge Himes was a surprise even to the owner Ellison, for he had not thought his colt good enough to win. It was an exciting finish. Early, with a length and a half to the good, was ridden down the stretch as though the race had already been won. Within the last sixteenth Jockey Booker bought up Judge Himes and though Winkfield rode Early hard in an effort to make up the ground lost by easing Early when the race seemed won, the task proved too great and Judge Himes won by half a length, to the plaudits of one of the greatest crowds ever seen at Kentucky's famous race course. The day was perfect and the track was fast.

LIVELY FIGHT IN A CHURCH

Slavonic Congregation Has Bloody Hand to Hand Battle.

Joliet, Ill., May 4.—Men and women fought hand to hand together with each other and then fought hand to hand with the police in the Slavonic Roman Catholic church yesterday. The trouble was started by several women as the collectors were circulating through the church. There were 2000 men, women and children in the church when the fight began. In spite of all the protestations of Father Kollar and assistants, the church members fought hard and furious with pieces of furniture, knocking each other right and left. Someone ran from the building and called on the police for help. In a few minutes a patrol wagon full of police drove up to the church and the men hurriedly entered into the edifice, which was full of thwacks, din and turmoil. Bloody limbs and battered faces were frequently seen. A few men had been penned into a corner by a number of angry women, who punished them with clenched hands and books. But by the time the police arrived some of the combatants had fled to the street. As the police entered the church those on the outside returned to the fight, armed with clubs, stones and revolvers. Those within left off fighting with each other and unitedly beset the police.

Those from without fired into the patrolmen in the rear. Women and children cried out in terror at the sight, and many men ran from the church or leaped out of windows. Then the policemen drew revolvers and threatened to shoot unless order prevailed. The affrighted combatants ceased fighting, and the policemen began to make arrests. Of all the persons injured none had to be taken to the hospital.

Father Kollar, who rushed into the midst of the fight in an effort to calm his parishioners, escaped uninjured.

Many arrests were made during the day, but no one knows exactly who started the fight or what it was about.

BISHOP HURST PASSES AWAY

rominent Methodist Divine Dies at His Washington Home.

Washington, May 4.—Bishop John Fletcher Hurst, of the Methodist Episcopal church, died here at 12:40 this morning.

With the bishop when he died were his daughter, Ellen, and a son, Lieut. Paul Hurst, of the Third United States infantry, who arrived only a few hours before his father's death. Another son, John L. Hurst, is on his way here from Denver, having been summoned when it was seen the end was near. One other son, Carl Banley Hurst, is at Vienna, where he is United States consul general. Bishop Hurst had been in failing health for nearly two years and for more than a year it had been recognized that a fatal termination of his malady was but a question of months. He was stricken with paralysis in London last September a year ago when attending the Eumenical conference. The news of President McKinley's assassination prostrated him and the shock brought on rapidly the decline that finally ended in his decease this morning.

Bishop Hurst remarried a few years ago after the death of his former wife, but the latter marriage was not a happy one and they separated about three or four years ago.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

Fond du Lac, Wis., May 4.—J. Curtis Hardington, alias J. C. Curtis, of Schuylerville, N. Y., was arrested yesterday, charged with forging a draft of $1500, which he is said to have presented at the Commercial National bank. The chief of police has a telegram from Little Rock, Ark., saying Hardington is wanted at Litchfield, Ill., Springfield, Mo., and Schuyler-N. Y., on similar charges. Hardington admits he is wanted in Indian territory.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

The Fire at Nashwauk.

A correspondent writes to The Herald from Nashwauk correcting the statement that the recent fire there was confined to a number of shacks. One building which cost $3000 and was used as a boarding house was destroyed with all its contents, the occupants barely escaping with their lives, while a large force of men fought the fire with what little water they could find in pools—the only fire protection the village council has so far provided for the taxpayers. The second building burned was also a boarding house, and all the contents were destroyed. While the fire raged at the north end of the village, the large hotel owned by John Carlson, the Superior Clothing company's building, Latter's grocery store and C. E. King's meat market, all on Central avenue, were constantly in danger, as the flames were driven across the townsite by a heavy wind. The failure of the council to provide adequate fire protection is severely condemned.

YOU CAN SEE HAIR GROW

after washing the scalp with

Munyon's WITCH HAZEL Soap

It makes the hair grow thick
It makes the hair grow strong
It makes the hair grow beautiful

Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap is truly a blessing to those who are losing their hair and becoming bald. This soap is a food and vitalizer; it stimulates and acts as a gentle tonic to the weak and sick roots, and gives them new life and vigor. It promptly removes dandruff, scales, humors and all sores of the scalp. Don't use any more hair tonics or decoctions that are advertised to make hair grow on bald heads. Give this soap a fair trial, and if there is a particle of life in the roots, this soap will stimulate and invigorate them into new life and healthy growth. Of course, you know that Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap for the complexion and for the toilet is superior to any high-priced French soap made. It makes the skin soft as velvet, and keeps one free from pimples, blotches and most skin eruptions.

If your blood is out of order, take Munyon's Blood Cure. It will drive all impurities from the system and make good, rich, red blood.

If your liver is sluggish and you have a sallow complexion, use Munyon's Liver Cure. These two remedies taken in alternation, will soon rid the blood and system of all impurities, and give life and vigor to the whole body, and, when used in conjunction with the soap, makes the skin glow with youthful freshness.

FIVE WILL BE APPOINTED

To Civil Engineer Corps From Candidates Passing Examinations.

Washington, May 4.—Examinations of candidates for appointment as civil engineers and assistant civil engineers in the navy will be held on June 8 at the navy yard, New York.

Five appointments will be made to corps of civil engineers of the United States navy, two in the grade of civil engineer and three in the grade of assistant civil engineer, from candidates successfully passing these examinations.

Appointees to the grade of civil engineer will enter the corps with the rank of junior lieutenant and pay of $2700 per annum. At the end of five years the pay will be increased to $3000 per annum and at the end of ten years to $3500 per annum.

Appointees to the grade of assistant civil engineer will enter the rank of Junior lieutenant and pay of $1800 per annum, increasing to $2100 at the end of five years.

The senior civil engineer at the principal yards is usually furnished with quarters by the government. Rank in the corps is from junior lieutenant to captain, with the chief of the bureau of yards and docks at the head, with the rank of rear admiral and pay and allowances amounting to $6200 per annum. Officers of the corps on arriving at the age of 62, or if disabled in the line of duty, are retired on three-fourths full duty pay.

The corps at present numbers 26 members. The last congress authorized an increase to 40, comprising 28 civil engineers and 12 assistant civil engineers. The corps is a growing one and its position in the navy organization one of prominence and constantly increasing importance. It has charge of all improvements, including the large dry docks, at all navy yards and stations, comprising ten large yards at home and twelve stations scattered over the world. It is charged with the expenditure of several millions of dollars annually in the way of public improvements at these various yards and stations. It offers an attractive field for able and ambitious young engineers.

PASTOR DISMISSED.

Columbus, O., Congregation Objected to His Declarations.

Columbus, Ohio, May 4.—Rev. J. Johnston was dismissed from the pastorate of St. Matthew's Lutheran church by the congregation yesterday, because of his declaration made from the pulpit that he had received some new revelations on the Bible, particularly with regard to the baptism of the Holy Ghost and to faith in Christ. He was remarkably successful in his pastoral work at St. Matthews church and had just completed the erection of a handsome edifice for his congregation.

The doctrine which he proposed to his congregation last Sunday for the first time is that after earnest and long praying one may receive a real baptism of the Holy Ghost, and that after that can heal diseases and perform other miracles by the aid of faith.

He startled his people by declaring that he had by faith cured himself of a certain throat trouble with which he had been afflicted. Suddenly the trouble returned while he was preaching and he was scarcely able to speak. He asked his people to pray with him, as the devil was trying to overcome him, and after ten minutes he announced a victory over the devil, and his voice returned with its former power.

The Innocent Suffer With The Guilty

The world to-day is full of innocent sufferers from that most loathsome disease, Contagious Blood Poison. People know in a general way that it is a bad disease, but if all its horrors could be brought before them they would shun it as they do the Leprosy. Not only the person who contracts it suffers, but the awful taint is transmitted to children, and the fearful sores and eruptions, weak eyes, Catarrh, and other evidences of poisoned blood show these little innocents are suffering the awful consequences of some body's sin. So highly contagious is this form of blood poison that one may be contaminated by handling the clothing or other articles in use by a person afflicted with this miserable disease. There is danger even in drinking from the same vessel or eating out of the same tableware, as many pure and innocent men and women have found to their sorrow. The virus of Contagious Blood Poison is so powerful and penetrating that within a short time after the first little sore appears the whole system is infected and every drop of blood in the body is tainted with the poison, and the skin is soon covered with a red rash, ulcers break out in the mouth and throat, swellings appear in the groins, the hair and eyebrows fall out, and unless the ravages of the disease are checked at this stage, more violent and dangerous symptoms appear in the form of deep and offensive sores, copper colored splotches, terrible pains in bones and muscles, and general breaking down of the system.

BLOOD POISON IS NO RESPECTER OF PERSONS

S. S. S. is a specific for Contagious Blood Poison and the only remedy that antidotes this peculiar virus and makes a radical and complete cure of the disease. Mercury and Potash hold it in check so long as the system is under their influence, but when the medicine is left off the poison breaks out again as bad or worse than ever. Besides, the use of these minerals bring on Rheumatism and stomach troubles of the worst kind, and frequently produce bleeding and sponginess of the gums and decay of the teeth. S. S. S. cures Blood Poison in all stages and even reaches down to hereditary taints and removes all traces of the poison and saves the victim from the pitiable consequences of this monster scourge. As long as a drop of the virus is left in the blood it is liable to break out, and there is danger of transmitting the disease to others. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and can be taken without any injurious effects to health, and an experience of nearly fifty years proves beyond doubt that it cures Contagious Blood Poison completely and permanently. Write for our "Home Treatment Book," which describes fully the different stages and symptoms of the disease.

DOMESTIC TRADE

Movements For the First Quarter of the Present Year.

Traffic on the Great Lakes Shows a Large Increase.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—A summary of domestic trade movements for the first quarter of 1903 is presented in the March summary of internal commerce, issued by the treasury bureau of statistics. It shows that for the three months comprising the first quarter of the current year, the receipts of live stock at five leading markets were 7,607,901 head, compared with 8,030,882 head last year and 7,646,572 head in the preceding year for corresponding periods. A comparison of traffic operations shows that to the end of March, 1903, the same five markets received 144,876 cars of stock, whereas 141,275 cars were credited to the corresponding quarter of 1902, and 112,332 cars in 1901. A noticeable feature in the market is the increase in the number of cattle, sheep and horses, accompanied by a numerical decrease in hogs, but an extraordinary increase in the average weight of hogs, the average weight at Kansas City for March, 1903, being thirty pounds greater than in March, 1902.

Eight wheat receiving markets, to the end of March for the current crop year, reported 212,730,926 bushels of wheat received. For the corresponding period of 1902 a total of 196,732,768 bushels were reported, and in 1901 only 180,912,896 bushels.

The stocks of cut meats at five reporting markets on March 31, 1903, was 231,962,052 pounds, compared with 306,214,553 pounds on the same date a year ago. This is a reduction of 24.2 per cent. A comparison of receipts of hogs at five markets shows a reduction of 20.2 per cent.

Freight receipts for the first three months of the current year on the great lakes totalled 810,968 net tons, compared with 614,818 net tons in 1902. For the three months ending with March, 2670 arrivals were reported, with a combined registry of 2,666,138 net tons.

At the North Atlantic seaboard the four ports of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore received 64,041,991 bushels of grain, including flour reduced to bushels, for the first quarter of 1903, and 44,308,077 bushels for the corresponding quarter of 1902. At New York receipts for three months ending with March, were in 1903 27,214,349 bushels, compared with 21,500,107 bushels in 1902. At Boston the corresponding figures were 8,826,147 bushels, compared with 7,911,131 bushels; at Baltimore, 15,651,841 bushels, compared with 7,311,457 bushels; at Portland, Me., officially inspected receipts for three months ending with March, amounted to 3,760,209 bushels, not including flour, of which total 345,315 bushels were of American origin and 3,423,894 bushels of Canadian origin.

Coastwise commerce in coal at the Atlantic seaboard is reported to the end of February this year. For the two months ending with February, 1903, 2,550,552 tons were reported as shipped from New York harbor points; from Philadelphia a total of 577,679 tons was reported; from Baltimore, 244,722 tons, including 49,296 tons for the fueling of vessels; from Newport News, 292,627 tons, including 21,433 tons for vessels fueling, and from Norfolk, 321,945 tons, including 67,249 tons for fueling vessels.

Receipts of coal at Boston for three months ending with March were 1,701,662 tons, of which 920,494 tons came from domestic ports by coastwise routes, and 682,694 tons by sea from foreign points of shipment, of which only 194,316 tons came from foreign sources by sea.

In Southern territory traffic operations in cotton for the first seven months of the season indicate that out of total available supply of 9,539,666 bales, 7,065,152 bales were received at ports, 941,158 bales entered into overland shipments and 1,379,000 bales yere included in Southern mill takings. This last figure is to be compared with 1,231,256 bales for Southern mill takings last season and 1,004,532 bales in the preceding season. Of the port receipts given above 4,540,173 bales were received at the Gulf ports and 2,523,412 bales at Atlantic ports.

The increase in the volume of grain trade at the Gulf ports is shown by a comparison of shipments through those ports to the end of March. At New Orleans grain shipments, including flour, reduced to bushels, for the first three months of the year, amounted to 15,316,318 bushels, compared with 2,135,487 bushels for the corresponding period a year ago. At Galveston the total when shipments for the firts quarter of this year amounted to 2,652,527 bushels, compared with 420,370 bushels for the first quarter of 1902.

Receipts of naval stores at eleven Southern markets for the commercial year ending March 31 give 2,131,909 barrels of rosin and 561,099 casks of spirits as the year's total, compared with 2,212,415 barrels of rosin and 596,492 casks of spirits for last year and 2,238,820 barrels of rosin and 617,972 casks of spirits for the preceding year.

On the Pacific coast shipments of red wood from Upper California during the quarter under consideration were 56,996,783 feet, compared with 58,728,019 feet in 1902 and 56,590,056 feet in 1901. The movement of citrus fruits from Southern California from Nov. 1 to April 1 inclusive rreached a total bf 10,541 cars, 10,541 cars last season and 13,381 cars the preceding season. The movement of flour though ports on the North Pacific for Oriental destinations credits Tacoma with 596,463 barrels, Seattle with 409,875 barrels and Portland with 319,674 barrels.

Traffic movements on rivers and canals reporting indicate increasing activity with the beginning of the season of navigation. For the three months ending with March, Monongahela river traffic amounted to 2,876,064 tons, compared with 2,122,279 tons in 1902. The combined freight passing Louisville, Ky., for the quarter ending with March, 1903, was 676,200 net tons. Tonnage moved by way of Davis Island dam for the quarter was 1,284,922 net tons. On the Kanawha river, 418,388 net tons passed Lock No. 11. The eastward and westward movement on the Chesapeake and Delaware canal for seven months ending with March amounted to 301,723 net tons.

Anthracite shipments for the first quarter of the current year were 16,247,008 tons, compared with 12,098,158 tons in the same months of 1902, and 14,271,347 tons for a like period in 1901. The Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg report 9,732,244 tons originating on those lines during the first twelve weeks of the current year, compared with 8,853,371 tons in 1902, and 8,451,696 tons in 1901. The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad handled 955,391 tons of coal during the first two months of 1903, compared with 1,059,984 tons in the same months of 1902. Connellsville coal shipments averaged 10,244 cars per week during the first twelve weeks of the current year, 10,605 cars in 1902 and 10,485 cars in 1901. Coal receipts at St. Louis for the first three months of 1903 were 1,602,298 tons, with 1,446,780 tons for a like period in 1902. At Chicago, coal and coke receipts for this quarter were 3,384,675 tons, and for the corresponding period of 1902 were 2,712,528 tons. The Baumont oil fields shipped 16,428 cars, containing 2,791,483 barrels of petroleum for the three months ending with March.

CONSTABLE AND PREACHER SHOT

Double Tragedy In Missouri Resulting From Minister's Misdeeds.

Caruthersville, Mo., May 4.—D. M. Malone, a preacher for a sect known as "Sanctified" people, and Constable W. J. Mooneyhon were shot and killed by a mob at Wardell. Malone had been proselyting in this county for several months and considerable feeling had been aroused against him. A woman named Mrs. Frill, having left her husband, caused much agitation recently by living with Malone, who left his own wife. Mrs. Alice Maline, the preacher's wife, objected vigorously to this arrangement and Malone declared her insane and caused her to be detained in jail pending an inquiry. This action aroused citizens to a frenzy and a warrant was issued against Malone and Mrs. Frill on the charge of unlawfully living together. Constable Mooneyhon Saturday night arrested both and because of the lateness of the hour decided not to take them to Caruthersville until morning, but instead took his prisoners to his home for the night. Shortly after midnight there was a knock at the front door and Mooneyhon opened the door. He was shot dead in the doorway. A mob streamed into the house and seized Malone, dragging him out into the darkness. Mrs. Frill frantically begged that no harm be done to him, but she was roughly pushed inside the house and the mob departed. Malone was taken to a wood some distance away and shot to death. The mob then dispersed. No harm was offered to Mrs. Frill or to Mrs. Mooneyhon.

Sheriff J. A. Franklin says he has several clews to members of the mob.

The warrant was issued for the arrest of the couple last Wednesday. At that time Constable Mooneyhon attempted to make the arrests, but when he appeared at the door Malone met him with a rifle and the declaration that he "lived by the laws of grace and not of men and would acknowledge no sovereignty on the part of the public."

Mooneyhon departed but returned Saturday night with assistance and took the couple into custody. It is not explained why the constable was shot by the mob, but it is believed that he was either mistaken for Malone or that the mob was angered because the constable took the couple to his own home after arresting them.

RECEIVED BY POPE.

Emperor William Spends Forty Minutes With Pontiff.

Rome, May 4.—Emperor William was received by the pope yesterday. He had a conference with the pope of forty minutes' duration and then returned to the residence of the Russian minister.

The day was bright, and as the emperor and his suite traversed the streets of Rome he was enthusiastically acclaimed. His majesty presented Prince Frederick William and Prince Eitol to the pontiff. At the vatican the emperor was received with military honors by the palatne guard and a platoon of gendarmes, and he was welcomed by the high dignitaries of the pontifical court.

The visit of Emperor William was returned by Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state at the Prussian legation.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH.

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and is today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membane of the air passages, prevents irritation and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance Company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In Duluth there are scores of well-known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, S. F. Boyce will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the stronest evidence that can be offered as to his faith in the remedy.

WHEAT IS LOWER

The Market Is Dull and Prices Sag Off Somewhat.

Slow Export Demand—Flax Fairly Active and Prices Firm.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 4.—The wheat market was dull and generally lower in all markets today. The fear of crop damage in the Southwest through the frosts of last week has worn off and while it is admitted that it may be too early to tell whether there is damage or not, the fact that few or no reports of injury are coming in has caused the feeling of alarm to subside considerably. Export business was quiet, there being nothing doing in the local market and a moderate amount only in the East. The demand from Eastern millers in this market was very good and considerable wheat was sold for Eastern shipment.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher. Paris ½@¾c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

World's shipments of wheat last week were 8,528,000 bus, of which America furnished 3,348,000 bus, Russia 2,040,000 bus, and Argentine 2,416,000 bus. The previous week they were 10,801,000 bus, and last year 8,036,000 bus. The amount on passage decreased 4,000 bus. The visible supply of wheat last week decreased 2,104,000 bus, and is now 33,456,000 bus, against 28,328,000 bus a year ago. Primary receipts of wheat were 630,000 bus, last year 431,000 bus. Shipments 478,000 bus, last year 318,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 473,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market was weaker, closing ¼@¾d lower. July corn in Chicago 5@5⅛c lower and July oats ⅞@¾c lower. The world's shipments of corn last week were 4,079,000 bus, against 2,585,000 bus the previous week and 3,753,000 bus last year. The amount on passage increased 672,000 bus. The visible supply last week decreased 1,276,000 bus and is now 6,459,000 bus, against 6,240,000 bus a year. Primary receipts of corn were 564,000 bus, last year 405,000 bus. Shipments 502,000 bus, last year 324,000 bus. Clearances were 462,000 bus.

Trading in wheat was light on the Duluth board. May opened unchanged at 77⅞c, sold up to 78c at 9:40 and then fell off to 77½c at 11 and closed at 77⅝c. This was a decline of ¼c. July opened unchanged at 77⅛c, sold at 77c at 9:33, advanced to 77⅝c at 9:42 and reacted to 76¾ at 11:30. It continued its downward course selling at 76⅜c at 1:03 and closing there. This was a decline of ⅝c. In Chicago May fell ⅞c and July ⅝c. In Minneapolis May lost ¼@⅝c and July ⅜c. In New York May was off ⅝c and July ½c.

Cash prices were unchanged at ⅛c over May for No. 1 northern and ¼c under for No. 2. Sales were 10,000 bus.

Flax was fairly active and very firm. May made an advance of ¼c to $1.01¾, but July held steady at $1.03¼, which was Saturday's closing price.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive: No. hard 76¾c; No. 1 northern, 77¾c; No. 2 northern 76¼c; May No. 1 hard 79½c; No. 1 northern, 77⅝c; July 76¾c; Sept., 76½c. Flax in store $1.01¾; to arrive $1.01¾; on track $1.01¾; May $1.01¾; July $1.03¼; Sept. $1.04¾; October, $1.04½; November, $1.03¼. Oats on track 33½c; to arrive 33c; May 33¾c; Rye on track, 56c; to arrive 56c; May 56c; Barley 35@50c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 15; last year 13; oats 5; rye, 3; barley 1; flax 5.

Receipts: Wheat 11,335; oats, 5780; rye 164; barley 462; flax 1,053.

Shipments: Wheat 7750; oats 322,260; barley 273,396; flax 7920.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Commission House Demand Held Wheat Prices Firm.

Chicago, May 4.—July wheat opened a shade lower to a shade higher, at 73¾c to 73⅞c. There was little feature in the trading, but a good commission house demand operated to hold prices firm, July selling up to 73⅞c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 324 cars, which, with local receipts of 62 cars, 2 of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 376 cars, against 326 last week and 315 a year ago.

Under the leadership of May, which was in good demand by shorts, the market itch streak at the decline during the remainder of the day. July closed ⅝c lower at 72½@⅝c.

Corn was barely steady at the opening on increased receipts, and better grading with July unchanged to a shade lower at 45⅝c to 45¾@⅝c. An improved shipping demand offset the freer country offerings and prices held steady during the early part of the day. Local receipts were 22 cars with 15 of contract grade.

Continued selling by locals, with rather poor support, caused weakness in corn and July closed ¼@⅓c lower at 45⅝c.

Oats opened steady on prospects of damage to crops and a fair cash demand. Outside traders were the best buyers, but there was little for sale. July held steady at 32⅝c after opening ⅛c lower to ¼c higher, at 32¾c to 32⅝c.

The feature in the provision market was the advance of 25c to 75c in the opening prices of May pork, initial sales in the option being made at $18.50 to $19.00. Active covering by shorts, with but small offerings caused the upturn. Other products show little change, July pork and ribs being unchanged at $17.07½ and $9.45, while lard was unchanged to 2½c higher at $9.25 to $9.27½.

Close: Wheat—May, 75¾c; July, 72½@⅝c; September, 50⅝c. Corn—May, 43½@⅝c; July, 44⅝c; September, 44¼c. Oats—May, 33⅜@⅛c; July, 31½@⅝c; September, 29¾@¾c. Pork—May, $18.00; July, 17.15; September, $16.80. Lard—May, $9.10; July, $9.17½@9.20; September, $9.22½@9.25. Ribs—May, $9.42½; July, $9.42½; September, $9.35. Rye—May, 56c; July, 56c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.12; S. W., $1.09; May, $1.09; July, $1.12. Timothy—May, $3.45@3.50. Clover—May, $12.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was fairly active and irregular. It sold up early on the cables, then broke sharply. Prospects of favorable weather and the failure of any damage reports to materialize by reason of the frosts, occasioned liquidation, and Armour was supposed to be a liberal seller of July wheat. There was only a moderate export business reported from the different markets. California still reports high temperatures and no rain. Nothing new on foreign crop situation. There was a good deal of covering of May shorts, but the price is still well maintained. Estimated cars 65.

Corn—The market here was weak. Prospects of warmer weather and rather liberal country offerings together with a poorer cash demand made a good deal of local selling pressure. Much of it came from the bear element, but the support on the whole was not good. Export business reported for the day was small. Estimated cars, 220.

Oats—In sympathy with the weakness in wheat and corn, and no better wants, the tone of the market was weak. There was also a pressure from short selling by prominent local bears. The cash demand does not materially improve and is on the whole slow. Estimated cars, 225.

Chicago Record-Herald: Last week's wheat market was based on a one-man affair. There was almost as good an advance in the September as in the May and there was a better advance in the July than in the May option. The feature in this market was 5c to 17c and the Liverpool market advance was equal to 7½c. There were two sets of influences, the bear element and the unseasonable weather on this side. There was more to unsettle the short seller than at any time in weeks. There was enough covering to make it possible for the Armour party to cease its support and to do some selling. There is always incredulity of crop damage and there is skepticism as to any severe loss from the extraordinary temperatures of Wednesday and Thursday. But in spite of the inclination to doubt loss, the cold was so extreme and extended so far south the fears led to a good deal of covering. The conservative bear felt it wise to get out and sell new crop without any risks. The facts in regard to these freezing nights in Kansas and Missouri should be known definitely this week. Sunshine and warmth will tell the story and nothing else will. The popular view as to the situation was shown by the conduct of the September. It would not have advanced a half if there had not been the general belief the crop was having some trials. There is abroad, as on this side, a difference of opinion as to how serious a the crop promise has been impaired, and is probably the truth, there is much uncertainty about it. Paris, however, would probably not be paying $1.04 for its wheat for May if everything was favorable with its crop promise.

F. P. Frazier, Chicago: I just had a talk over the long distance 'phone with our Omaha office. They report that they have plenty of rain in Nebraska, that the wheat has not been injured; that oats are looking all right and that the farmers are busy planting corn, and that movement of corn direct from the farmers will be a little light until corn is planted.

King of Chicago: Wheat holds its strength, but with limited trade because four-fifths of the operators are spending their time trying to guess what Armour is doing instead of trying to form an idea of the value of wheat.

Kalb of Chicago: Our agent at Anvers writes us under date April 30th: "Weather unseasonable, cold, rainy. Consumptive demand from all quarters, especially from France, remains excellent. The Prussian government report on prospects new autumn sown crop is bad, lower than an average crop."

IN HOPEFUL CONDITION

Henry Clews Says Wall Street Is In Restful Mood.

New York, May 4.—Henry Clews says in his weekly financial review: Wall street is in a restful and generally hopeful mood. It is not making any superfluous display of energy just now, many of its leading spirits being absent or inactive at the moment, but it is calmly putting its furniture in order, cheerfully accepting the inevitable and making ready to adjust itself beforehand to the known favorable and unfavorable situations which may have to be faced between now and the close of the year.

Chief of all influences is the understanding that next fall an active money market may be encountered. With such a contingency prudent men are careful about contracting lots of distant financial engagements; bankers are unwilling to unduly lock up their resources, and all through financial circles a spirit of moderation prevails that promises well for the future and is the surest safeguard against subsequent difficulties. Behind this disposition to caution there is a feeling of reasonable confidence, inspired of course by the numerous tests values have successfully endured, and by the probability of another good business season should the harvest turn out satisfactory.

Bank reserves are rising as usual at this season, so that if speculative excesses are prevented easy conditions seem likely to prevail until crop demands begin. The construction of Panama canal reserves will necessarily make some demand upon the money market, but these have been so carefully anticipated that no derangement should follow. Some slight uneasiness has been exhibited over gold exports, though these need occasion no alarm. Gold usually goes abroad at this season; but the precious metal is required here, it will probably stay; for our credit aboard is improving and we can undoubtedly borrow in Paris or elsewhere, if needed, without difficulty. Fortunately our exports continue heavy, and the crop failures in Europe coming when our own wheat crop promises to be unusually large make it almost certain that we will enjoy another season of large exports. There is, therefore, nothing adverse in our international trade or financial relations to cause anxiety, and moderate gold shipments would do no harm so long as bank reserves continue to rise.

The Phosphorus tax decision of the court of appeals had little injurious effect. This was because the verdict had been partly anticipated, while other financial conditions were sound. Friday's weakness so close upon the decision against the Northern Securities company this was emphatic testimony of the strength of the general market. That stocks have lately met a whole series of adverse events without flinching can only be explained by the fact that stocks are in strong hands. Bearish conditions have been amply discounted by the fall since last summer, and by the continued large volume of general business. Nothing but easy money is now required to allow the pendulum to swing in the opposite direction. Railroad earnings show gratifying increases, indicating the growth and activity of trade; labor agitation though still prevalent is less rampant than formerly; the masses are well employed at good wages; immigration is surpassing all records; there is plenty of work in sight for all, and should the harvest prove satisfactory one more season of large prosperity is almost certain. Another good feature is the subsidence of the consolidation craze in the industrials. Schemes of this class now find no encouragement in Wall street. Speculation is conservative, and even then bankers are more anxious to close out existing deals than to enter upon fresh ones. It is quite likely that the winding up of some of the older syndicates will afford more relief to the money market than any other source.

All things considered, the market offers safer and better trading opportunities than usual. For some weeks to come good stocks are likely to be a purchase upon all sharp declines, or equally good sales upon pronounced advances. It is evidently the policy of the big leaders to allow the market to harden itself by natural processes and thus establish a new basis of confidence. There are no indications of an extreme bull market in sight, but good support is noticeable against all bear attacks. The prospects, however, favor increased activity and a higher range of prices. A few individual stocks show exceptional strength: The indications pointing to a specialty market for the present, at least, as the most feasible under present conditions.

The building and completion of the new stock exchange has been coincident with the advance of New York City to the foremost rank as a financial centre of world-wide influence and power. The building itself, in beauty and completeness of construction, is a further evidence of the great strides of our whole country toward a prosperity never before equalled in the world's history. American energy and enterprise are large factors in this great result, and the members of the New York stock exchange may claim no small share of praise for their part in the progress. The spaciousness and equipment of the new structure invite the trade of the world to a market that seems destined soon to be the leader of the world's finance.

THOUSANDS OF JEWS FLEE.

Fear An Anti-Semite Crusade At Kief.

Kief, European Russia, May 4.—Thousands of poor Jews have fled from this city because of reports that an anti-semite crusade is imminent. The richer Jews have left their houses and have sought refuge in the hotels. In order to allay the excitement, troops are patrolling the streets and the walls are placarded with notifications that assemblages are prohibited and that the military will use their weapons unsparingly in case of necessity.

TRADING IN STOCKS

More Active Than of Late But In Moderate Amounts.

Some Strength Shown and the Closing Was Dull.

New York, May 4.—The opening stock market was irregular within a narrow range and on small transactions. The majority of stocks were higher but the market showed no change from its recently prevailing dullness and sluggishness. There was a large absorption of National Railroad of Mexico. Delaware & Hudson was pushed up 2¾ and Denver & Rio Grande fell 1⅜. Wide advances in the high priced coalers infused a strengthening effect on the entire list. Stocks improved slowly but gradually at other points. St. Paul, National Railroad of Mexico and Brooklyn Transit gained 1. Kansas City Southern preferred 1¾, North American 1⅝ and Northwestern 1⅜. Lackawanna rose ⅞. Delaware and Hudson, 3½ and New Jersey Central, 4. Westinghouse Electric jumped 10 and reacted 7. Trading was more active than for some time but the buying was largely in moderate amounts and had apparently spent itself by 11 o'clock.

The strength of the coalers maintained the tone of the market which made further advances. Delaware & Hudson was lifted 6½, Jersey Central, 5⅞, Lackawanna 3 and Reading, the Eries, Norfolk & Western, Wabash preferred, Rock Island, Kansas & Texas preferred and Chicago Terminal preferred 1 to 1¼. American Express advanced 7. There was a decline of a point in Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis and of 3 in Chicago Great Western preferred A. Bonds were firm at noon.

The market halted in its advance and became dull but there were no reactions of importance. New York Central advanced a point while Delaware & Hudson yielded as much. Sugar joined the ranks of conspicuously strong stocks and moved up a point. Illinois Central improved a point but other stocks were at about a standstill. Canada Southern lost 1⅛.

The market took up a moderate advance again late in the day when Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and Texas Pacific came into the movement. Northwestern rose 2½, Kansas & Texas preferred 3 and Delaware & Hudson 3. Chicago Union Traction dropped 1⅛. The closing was dull and firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: In one sense, such a dull market is a good sign. Big bull campaigns always start with extreme dullness. I learn that many people who have been hanging on for months past have recently closed their accounts and taken away what is left of their money. Some of the larger interests however, are undoubtedly picking up good stocks. Stocks are down 20 points on an average, and very dull here at the bottom. Even though they go lower it would be foolish to sell after such declines. But I doubt if the market goes as low as last Tuesday. There is no way to tell when activity will start. With activity will probably come advancing prices. Meanwhile a narrow trading market is probable. Stocks ought to be a purchase around current levels.

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was dull and steady at the opening, but later developed some strength. There was some short covering and this helped prices. During the middle of the day the market was very dull. In the afternoon there was further buying and the market became quite strong. Delaware & Hudson had a big advance, and most of the high-priced stocks showed strength. The close was steady at best prices of the day and with much better feeling. Money remained easy. Traders tried at the close to cause short covering and succeeded very well.

* * *

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The views expressed by the leading brokers and operators are in the main hopeful and the belief is strong that stocks should be bought on all drives. It is considered significant that the reports of crop damage have made little impression on sentiment. This it is believed is due to the low range of prices and the increased resisting power the market always shows after stocks have been declined largely, and been absorbed by investors and the big financial interests. Gold exports are talked of for next Thursday's fast steamer unless bankers sell bills more freely than of late. It is doubtful, however, if exports at this time will cut much of a figure. It is argued that cheap money will prevent a scare and that if the bearish room traders knock stocks off a point or two on the gold engagements they will do to buy for a sharp advance. Quite a large short interest has been made in the railroad shares the past week by the reported crop damage. It is therefore worth while to state that high officials of Western roads Saturday received advices to the effect that as the plant has not generally jointed the cold wave did no widespread injury to the winter wheat. Good opinion is that after allowing for the damage actually done the indicated yield is still unprecedented. Talking over the day's incidents Saturday, speculators for the decline make capital out of Penna's March statement, because the increased expenses absorbed nearly all of the great increase in gross earnings. While recent selling of this stock has been based partly on this statement and in part of adverse dividend rumors, it may be noted that current buying had for its basis the theory that Penna ex-dividend and ex-rights of about 6 per cent will look tempting to investors and inside assurances that April earnings will make a fine showing.

* * *

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was better and more general strength shown than has been witnessed in some time. The advance in Delaware & Hudson in the early morning reflected favorably on the other anthracites. The Eries followed next and were very active and showed exceptional strength. Gould brokers were large buyers of Missouri Pacific and in the afternoon Texas Pacific followed lead, the buying of both being good. In the last hour the market became very active on the continued buying of Pennsylvania and all the anthracite stocks closed at best prices of the day. This is the first Monday in months where the market has not only maintained its opening prices, but advanced. We believe this foreshadows the beginning of a bull movement and we look for better prices.

* * *

Coe Commission Co.: Notwithstanding the fact that the bank statement was rather a poor showing than was anticipated, the market opened with very little change from the previous close. There was rather good buying reported in the Coalers. This was offset by rumors of further gold exports. The market seems to be in a state of hesitancy owing to the conflicting rumors of probable damage to the growing wheat crop. These reports are being made up by the bear as a club to further depress values, but so far they have met with very poor success. Strong interests are quietly accumulating heavy lines of the good stocks, which will undoubtedly result in materially higher prices in the near future.

Logan & Bryan, to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is dull and firm. Wall street sentiment is still bullish and there is a professional buying of Coalers which with light offerings of stocks generally supports the whole list. We are not able to observe an increase in outside interest. Sterling exchange keeps strong. The Gould interests are said to be buying Missouri Pacific and probably Wabash. Talk of Norfolk put on a four per cent basis.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 4.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 4 points with the bears more aggressive on weak cables, better weather a full movement and continued apathy on the part of spinners. Following the opening call, the market rallied a couple of points on bull support and covering, but in the absence of public interest ruled dull and nearly featureless at a decline of 3@4 points, apparent after the first hour's trading, when business ruled slack and quite local.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, $10.75; middling gulf, $11.00. Sales, 11,000 bales. Cotton futures closed steady. May, $10.58; June, $9.96; July, $9.96; August, $9.45; September, $9.06; October, $8.72; November, $8.62; December, $8.63; June, $8.62.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Efforts of Canadians to Get Traffic Excite Comment.

This Will Take From the Buffalo-New York Route.

The effort which is being made by the Canadian government and Canadian vessel owners to diver the grain traffic of the great lakes to the Canadian route to Montreal and Quebec is causing no little comment among vessel owners engaged in the grain trade on the lakes.

The announcement that the Canadian government would remove all tolls from the Canadian canals was the first step in this direction, and it is believed that it will have the effect of diverting much traffic from the Buffalo-New York route.

Extensive improvements have been made in the elevator facilities at Montreal and Quebec in preparation for a large increase in the traffic and vesselmen say that the Canadians are after not only the Fort William and Port Arthur traffic, but are striving to divert some of the Duluth and Chicago trade to the Montreal-Quebec route.

It is figured that under present conditions it will be possible to carry grain from Fort William to Kingston for 3.05 cents per bushel. From Kingston to Montreal would be 1.5 cents which with the insurance and charges at Montreal would bring the cost up to about 5.85 cents.

The rate from Fort William to Buffalo on a basis of 2 cents including the charges from there to New York makes the cost 6.68 cents per bushel on board.

From these figures it is contended that the rate from Chicago at 1½ cents for wheat to Buffalo will amount to about 6.18 cents on board at New York, while the cost by way of the Canadian route to Quebec is claimed by the Canadian figures to be about .31 cents less.

THE REUBEN DOUD RELEASED.

Charlotte, N. Y., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner Reuben Doud, with coal from Fairhaven to Toronto, which was ashore at Devil's Nose, was released by the tug Yates last night after much of her cargo had been thrown overboard. The wrecked boat was towed here by the tug. The cargo is insured, but there is no insurance on the vessel.

RATES FOR GRAIN.

Chicago, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charters were made at 1½ cents for wheat and 1⅝ cents for corn today, which may stand as the going rate for some time to come. The demand for boats seemed to be a little improved from last week.

THE OFFICIAL NOTICE HERE

Land Office Receives Announcement of Change In Districts.

Official notice of the removal of the United States land office from St. Cloud to Cass Lake and of the change in boundaries of the St. Cloud, Marshall, Crookston and Duluth districts has been received at the local land office.

The order is signed by Commissioner of the General Land Office W. A. Richards, by order of the president.

Section 3 reads as follows:

"To be detached from the Duluth land district and made a part of the St. Cloud land district:

"Beginning at a point where the line between Ranges 22 and 21 west of the Fourth principal meridian intersects the northern boundary of the state; thence south along said line to the southeast corner of Township 35 north, Range 21 west; thence westerly following the course of the Mississippi river to a point where it intersects the line between Ranges 29 and 30 west of the fifth principal meridian; thence north along the line between the counties of Itasca and Beltrami to the northern boundary of the state; thence east along boundary to the place of beginning."

The efforts of Duluth Commercial bodies and Duluth congressmen have thus proved unavailing and the order goes into effect. Notice of the exact date on which this change will take place will be published later.

HEARING IS BEGUN

Arrested Freight Handlers Having Their Preliminary Examination.

Attorney C. O. Baldwin Is Appearing In Their Defense.

Rioting strikers arrested for Friday's demonstration against non-union freight handlers, were undergoing their preliminary examination in the municipal court this afternoon.

While the Garfield avenue outbreak was not sanctioned by the Freight Handlers' union, it is unedrstood that that organization will stand by its members in the present trouble, and the union men were numerous when the examination began before Judge Windom.

Defending the freight handlers is C. O. Baldwin and County Attorney McClintock is conducting the prosecution. Five members of the union are charged with obstructing a Northern Pacific train and endeavoring to upset a freight car containing between fifty and seventy non-union workmen.

Private Officer Baker, of the Northern Pacific company, was the first witness, also the complaining witness. On cross-examination Mr. Baker said that while he had sworn to the complaint, charging the five men with obstructing the train, he did not know all the men he had preferred charges against and did not see some of those that he had sworn were in the crowd that made a rush for the car of non-union men. He said he did not see Murdock McDonald in the crowd, though Murdock McDonald was one of the five men arrested, and he explained this by saying that he had been informed that these men were in the crowd around the detached train.

Attorney Baldwin questioned Mr. Baker's right to act as a special policeman in the state of Minnesota when he was a resident of Wisconsin, and his questioning was of such a nature as to elicit laughter from the big crowd of spectators in the rear of the room. Several times it was necessary to rap for order, and the court finally threatened to clear the room unless the laughing ceased.

Mr. Baker testified that David Wright, one of the men under arrest, led the charge on the car, saying, "Cut loose the engine and tip the scabs over." He also testified that H. E. Pomeroy, another of those under arrest, had helped carry out the instructions with regard to uncoupling the engine from the car.

Since the disturbance it has been claimed that Mr. Baker fired his revolver during the effort to tip over the car. He neither denied or affirmed this when questioned by Mr. Baldwin, but admitted that he had his gun out, saying if it went off he did not remember it.

William Eden, of the freight handling contract firm of Knudsen & Eden, said he saw the difficulty from a distance and recognized most of the men under arrest as having been in the crowd.

The state witnesses were still testifying at a late hour, and it was not determined whether the striking freight handlers' side of the case would be presented today or not.

Building Is Begun

The work of tearing down the two old wooden structures on the lower side of Superior street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues west, preliminary to the erection of the Arlington hotel addition, was begun today. The improvement is being made by G. G. Dickerman, of St. Paul. The new addition will be built of brick and will have three stories on Superior street. The first floor will be utilized as stores. The property will front on both Superior and Michigan streets. The improvement will cost about $17,000.

INCOME ACCOUNT

Of Northern Securities Company Is Made Public.

New York, May 4.—The Northern Securities company today issued a statement of its income account from November 13, 1901 to December 31, 1902, showing dividends received on stocks owned to be $15,364,820 and a surplus, after payment of expenses, dividends, on stocks, taxes, etc., of $758,117. The circular to stockholders says that an audit company has certified to the financial statement given out.

REFUSED TO SIGN TREATY

Red Lake Indians Formally Decline Provisions of Treaty.

Fosston, Minn., May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Kratka of Thief River Falls has just arrived here from the Red Lake agency. He attended the council of Indians and Maj. McLaughlin on the Red Lake treaty. The Indians finally decided on Saturday not to sign the treaty. The council began Tuesday, when Maj. Scott, acting agent at Leech Lake, was sent for. The Indians objected to setting aside sections 16 and 36 to state school purposes. This objection was nearly overcome, when word was received from the acting secretary of the interior at Washington that it was necessary to consult the Pembina Chippewas on the White Earth reservation, which caused the Indians at the council to finally refuse to sign the treaty.

Maj. McLaughlin has left the matter so it can be taken up again. He told the Indians if they changed their minds Kratka will notify the department and negotiations would be reopened. Mayor Kratka intimates that the outside parties exercised undue influence over the Indians, causing their refusal to sign. He hopes to reopen the negotiations before the next session of congress.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Philadelphia, May 4.—William Bergner, president of the Bergner & Engel Brewing Co., died suddenly today of heart failure. Mr. Bergner was Belgian consul in this city and for a number of years president of the United States Brewers' association. He was 49 years old.

Bay City, Mich., May 4.—Louis Reep, of West Bay City, is dead, aged 105 years. He was, it is said, in the battle of Waterloo, under Blucher.

Dubuque, Iowa, May 4.—Judge B. W. Poore, a pioneer lawyer of this city, died here today, aged 85.

IMPORTANT DECISION

The Northern Pacific Holds Its Lands Against Homesteader.

Washington, May 4.—The United States supreme court today reversed the decision of the supreme court of the state of Minnesota in the case of the Northern Pacific Railroad company vs. Townsend involving the right of an individual to locate public land within the Northern Pacific railroad grant. The state court's decision was favorable to Townsend's contention, but the federal court reversed that judgment on the ground that the grant to the Northern Pacific was equivalent to a congressional adjudication.

The case is one in which the railway company was granted a strip of 400 feet near Verndale, Wadena county, for a right of way through public lands. The company only fenced in 100 feet, 50 feet each side of the track. Abner Townsend, the defendant, homesteaded the land adjoining the grant and for fifteen years occupied the rest of the land granted to the railway company, improving it in various ways. The company began ejectment proceedings in district court of Wadena county, the defense being that the railway company had lost its right to the land by reason of adverse possession. Judge Searle, the district judge ruled in favor of the plaintiff railway company and the state supreme court reversed his decision. The United States supreme court now concurs in the decision of the district court.

Eyes and Nose Ran Water.—C. G. Archer, of Brewer, Maine, says: "I have had catarrh for several years. Water would run from my eyes and nose for days at a time. About four months ago I was induced to try Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and since using the wonderful remedy I have not had an attack. I would not be without it. It relieves in ten minutes. TO EXPEDITE ITS APPEAL

Northern Securities Company Wants Hearing Soon as Possible.

St. Paul, May 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Securities company will do all possible to expedite the hearing of its appeal from the circuit court decision according to a statement received here with dividend checks today dated May 4, and signed by President J. J. Hill. After referring to past dividends it is stated that the trial of the suit brought by the attorney against the company in the circuit in March, 1902, has "resulted in a decree against your company's holding the stocks of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroad companies and restraining the two railroad companies from permitting your company to vote on the shares, and from paying to it dividends thereon.

"So much of the decree as restrains the two railroad companies from paying over to your company dividends upon shares owned by it has been suspended by the court during the appeal of the case to the supreme court of the United States. This appeal has been taken by your company and will be urged as promptly as possible.

"The suits brought against your company by the states of Minnesota and Washington, respectively, have not yet been tried. The earnings of your properties have, since their purchase, largely increased and their actual value has been materially enhanced and cannot be impaired, even though the decisions in any of these suits shall be adverse to your company."

FATHER ARRESTED

In Connection With Murder of Paul Paszkowski.

Chicago, May 4.—The police, unable to shake the claims of innocence of the three boys, suspected of the murder of six-year-old Paul Paszkowski, whose body was found in a shallow grave near the outskirts of the city Saturday, have ordered the arrest of the boy's father and of a boy named Vito. It is stated that one of the boys now under arrest saw the elder Paszkowski kill the boy Vito in the woods near where a dog later discovered the body. The man said he was going in search of his boy Paul, who was lost.

FISHERMEN ARE DROWNED

French Brig Sans Souchi Had a Terrible Trip.

New York, May 4.—Of the crew of seventy-two men who sailed from St. Malo, France, on March 28, on the French fishing brig Sans Souchi, of St. Servan, sixty-five reached here today on the Phoenix liner St. Andrew, from Antwerp.

Of the others six were washed overboard and drowned during the gale of April 25, and one died. When rescued by the St. Andrew, the members of the crew had just about despaired of keeping the birg afloat. The Sans Souci had a terrible trip, being first caught in the ice and crushed and later dismasted by a severe storm.

The St. Andrew came up with her on April 28. In response to signals of distress, life boats were sent to the brig which was found to be a complete wreck, as a result of collisions with ice floes and the effects of the storm. The crew was removed to the St. Andrew and the San Souci was scuttled. Among those lost was the father and two brothers of the captain, Louis Gouymard.

The Sans Souci was engaged in the lobster fishery at Labrador and was bound hither when lost.

A HEAD-ON COLLISION

Bad Accident On the Pere Marquette Branch at Mayville.

Saginaw, Mich., May 4.—In a head-on collision between two passenger trains on the Port Huron branch of the Pere Marquette at Mayville today, Fireman R. Osmund, of this city, was killed and Engineers Robert Campbell and Terrance Kelley, and Express Messengers O. S. Smith of this city and Gus Sloga, of Port Huron, and Mail Clerk Peck, of this city, were badly hurt.

The engines and express and baggage cars were piled in a heap. The cause of the wreck is not known.

ARGENTINA OPTIMISTIC

Presidential Message Congratulates Country on Prosperity.

Buenos Ayres, May 4.—The presidential message which was read at the opening of the Argentine congress today was entirely optimistic. It congratulates congress that "no dangers at home or abroad threaten Argentina. Confidence credit is re-established in the markets and whose trade is notably reviving in every direction."

The message refers to the note sent to the government of the United States in consequence of the attitude of some of the European powers towards Venezuela saying:

"Europe now understands that the object thereof was not to ask protection for the republic but merely to set forth the danger to which American nations were exposed by the doctrine underlying the debt collecting expedition against Venezuela."

The revenue from posts and telegraphs for 1903 is estimated at $1,500,000 in the message which says the estimated deficit of about $5,000,000 in the budget for 1902 has been covered by economy and good administration.

IN LIGHT BREEZE

The Reliance More than Pleases Her Owners.

Glen Cove, L. I., May 4.—The Reliance was taken out today, this time in a very light easterly wind, giving Mr. Iselin a chance to discover whether his new boat might be expected to duplicate speed in such a drifting match as frequently takes place during the cup races. The Reliance left Glen Cove early today and was towed across the sound to her moorings at New Rochelle. About 2 p. m. she got under way and began to beat down the sound along the New York shore. Although the breeze was very faint and the Reliance heeled very gently, she moved off quickly, carrying besides her three lower sails a big club topsail and a baby jib topsail. She was close haul and making good headway to windward.

AN ENGAGEMENT REPORTED.

Salonica, May 4.—An engagement between Turkish troops and a band of revolutionists is reported to have taken place in the Monastir district of European Turkey. Both sides suffered considerable losses. Ten Turkish officers are said to be killed. Ambulances are being hurried to Monastir.

SUPREME COURT ADJOURNS.

Washington, May 4.—The United States supreme court today adjourned until Monday, May 18, when it will meet to announce opinions, hear motions, but not to listen to arguments.

MEDICAL MEN

New Orleans, May 4.—The association of American medical colleges opened its one day convention here this afternoon.

The attendance was large, many of the medical men being also delegates to the annual gathering of the American Medical association which begins tomorrow. Today's meeting was called to order by Secretary Winfield S. Hall, of Chicago, and after the annual address of President Rodman of Philadelphia, the report of the special committee appointed at last year's convention in Saratoga to report upon requirements for admission to the freshman year of medical college was submitted. This committee consists of Dr. Purks Ritchie, dean of the medical department of the University of Minnesota; Dr. John M. Dodson, dean of Rush Medical College, Chicago, and Dr. Wm. H. Wathen, dean of the Kentucky school of medicine. Dr. Wathen does not concur in the report of Drs. Ritchie and Dodson and made a minority report. The majority report made the following recommendations:

Every college holding membership in this association, shall demand of each student, as a minimum requirement for admission to the medical course, either (a) a diploma from a four years high school or academy whose credits are accepted by a state university; or (b), the diploma of a state normal school having a course of instruction equivalent to a four year high school whose credits are accepted by a state university; or, (c) a certificate of admission to the freshmen class of a state university (or of a college whose credits are fully recognized by a state university), or (d) an examination in the following branches:

(a). English, grammer, rhetoric and composition, the equivalent of two years of high school work in this branch.

(b). Algebra to quadratics.

(c). Latin, one year high school work including grammar and four books of Caesar, or a full equivalent therefor.

Latin—one year; Caesar; Cicero or Virgil.

French, German, chemistry, botany, zoology one year; geometry one year, plane geometry, one year solid; trigonometry, astronomy, physicology, physical geography, English literature, advanced alegbra and civics one year.

Candidates for the degree of doctor of medicine shall have attended four year courses of study each, and at least twelve months shall intervene between the beginning of any course and the beginning of the preceding course. Credit for one year of time may be given to students holding the degree of A. B. or other equivalent degree from a reputable university or literary college.

A college which gives less than a four year's course of medical study but does not graduate students and is possessed of other qualifications may be admitted to membership.

FARMS

The North Half of Sections 5 and 6 T. 51 R. 13.

We offer these two fine half sections, subdivided into 40, 80 or 160 acre tracts at prices 40 per cent of what they sold for in 1891, some have hardwood timber enough on them to more than pay the price we ask. Other parts have been thoroughly burned over and can be put under cultivation for ten dollars per acre. Others have clearings on them with good buildings—good soil free from stone. You will never have another opportunity to buy lands of the quality of these, so near the city, surrounded by the best of roads at such low prices.

BROTHER GIVES HIS VERSION OF TRAGEDY

Was Awakened In Night By Father Walser.

Found That His Sister Had Been Murdered.

Lorain, Ohio, May 5.—For the first time since the tragedy Casimir Reichlin, the younger brother of the murdered girl, who was in the house last Thursday night when the crime was committed, has told his story of the happenings of the night. Little of importance is added to what was known already. The statement details how Father Walser, Agatha and Casimir spent the evening in talking and singing, all retiring between 10 and 11 o'clock. Casimir says he was awakened about 1 o'clock by the priest rushing into his room and excitedly stating that burglars were in the house. He arose and ran to his sister's room and found her lying in her bed covered with blood and life extinct. He then searched the house but found no one.

Continuing, Casimir said: "I went down stairs and called the central and told the operator to notify the police. The dog gave two sharp barks, and then I spoke to him. Fifteen or twenty minutes later the police arrived. In the search we found fresh mud on the attic floor, under the attic window, and afterwards on the ladder. I pulled in the ladder so that the scent would stay in the room and we could start the bloodhounds from it.

"Father Walser turned to me and said: 'I must break my fast. I cannot say mass tomorrow unless I have something to drink tonight.' There was nothing in the house, so I decided to go to a saloon and get liquor. Father Walser was afraid to stay alone, so Officer Masterson stayed with him. I took a gallon jug and went to the saloon. I have been incensed by the stories which have been circulated that we were drinking before we went to bed. It was untrue."

"You have every confidence that Father Walser is not guilty of the crime with which he is charged?" was asked.

"If Father Walser is guilty, then I am guilty. If he should hang, then they ought to hang me. I know he is innocent."

Later the same question was asked of Father Reichlin. He said: "I have absolute faith in Father Walser; I know he is innocent."

MURDERER KNOWN

The Assassin of James B. Marcum Was Recognized.

Man Who Knows Him Positively Refuses to Talk.

Lexington, Ky., May 5.—Wood G. Dunlap, of this city, left today for Jackson, Ky., as attorney for the fusionists in the Breathitt county contested election cases. He succeeds as counsel James B. Marcum, who was killed in the court house yesterday while filing papers in these cases. It is feared here that the proceedings at this time will precipitate further trouble in the Cockrell-Hargis feud, in which half a dozen lives have already been lost.

A telegram from a member of the Hargis faction to ex-Senator Alexander Hargis, at Winchester, said that Belvin Ewen, who was talking with Marcum yesterday when he was shot by the assassin in the Breathitt county court house, recognized the murderer. Ewen, when seen today, positively refused to say anything regarding the shooting, except to describe how they were standing when the shots were fired. He refused to say who fired the shots or who was recognized in the hall of the court house. The belief is that the feud is now reopened.

INCREASE OF PENSION.

E. R. Jefferson Will Receive $55 a Month.

Washington, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Increase—Ernest R. Jefferson, of Duluth, $55; Richard F. Gehm, of St. Cloud, $8.

MORE EXCITEMENT OVER FIRE.

Richmond, Va., May 5.—The excitement caused by the big fire at West Point last week was renewed last night when an attempt was made to burn the newly chosen residence of Richard Pilcher, the man in whose house last week's conflagration started. The flames, however, were quickly extinguished. An unknown man was seen running from the ally in the rear of Pilcher's residence after the fire was discovered last night. He was pursued but not captured.

MONARCHS VISIT

The Historic Old Abbey of Monte Cassino.

Emperor and King Are Warmly Welcomed By Friars.

Rome, May 5.—Emperor William and King Victor Emmanuel, escorted by cuirrasseurs and cheered by the people, drove to the railroad station this morning and went to the abbey of Monte Cassino. The weather was magnificent.

Monte Cassino, Italy, May 5.—Emperor William and King Victor Emmanuel arrived here this morning, accompanied by Crown Prince Frederick William, Prince Eitel, the duke of Aosta, the duke of Abruzzi, the duke of Genoa and the count of Turin. They were accorded an enthusiastic reception.

The scene was extremely picturesque. Quaint crowds of peasants, friars and sisters gathered from miles around the village to see the extraordinary spectacle of two sovereigns and six princes at Monte Cassino. The reasons for the visit were the part taken by Emperor William in assisting the Benedictine institutions in Prussia and the promise which he made to visit the celebrated mother house here.

Gorgeous equipages with outriders and postillions in hunting livery, accompanied by a military escort, and the suites of the sovereigns and princes drove up to the abbey from the station, cheered by the peasants. At the abbey a detachment of troops rendered military honors and a volley of guns fired a salute.

When the abbot, the Rev. Father Boniface Krug, from St. Vincent's arch abbey, near Beatty, Pa., appeared, surrounded by the friars, at the foot of the grand staircase the contrast in the two groups, the sovereigns and their party and the abbot and the friars, with the background of grim, historic walls, which had resounded on various occasions with battle cries as well as with prayers, presented a most attractive spectacle. It was the first time an emperor of Germany had been received at the abbey of Monte Cassino.

The Rev. Father Krug received the emperor and King Victor Emmanuel in a most cordial manner and expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred on the abbey by their visit.

SAFELY ANCHORED.

Robert Wilson Has His Floating Kidney Fixed.

New York, May 5.—Robert T. Wilson, Jr., brother of the wife of the British ambassador, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Ogden Goelet has been operated on at his home in this city for a floating kidney, which for two years has been troubling him.

Mr. Wilson rallied quickly from the shock and official bulletins announce that he is doing well.

SCORE OF LIVES LOST IN COLLISION AT SEA

THE METAL FLEW

From Wound on Application of a Powerful Magnet.

Electrician Demonstrates New Method For Surgical Operations.

Vallejo, Cal., May 5.—John Getteg, an apprentice at the navy yard was severely injured last week by a piece of steel which flew from a tool, imbedding itself in his face. It was thought that the metal had been entirely removed from the wound, but yesterday it showed indications of the presence of a foreign substance. Master Electrician Petrie became interested in the case and rigged up a magnet of a design of his own; capable of lifting 500 pounds. The magnet was held directly over the orifice and the current turned on. In an instant the offending piece of metal flew from the wound attached itself to the magnet, demonstrating a new method of applying electricity in surgical operations.

YALE WINS IN DEBATE

Finally Breaks the Long Standing Tie With Princeton.

Chicago, May 5.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald, from New Haven, Conn., says: Yale broke her tie last night with Princeton in debate, making the score, after nine years of arguments, stand Yale, 5; Princeton, 4.

At last night's debate Yale had the affirmative on a resolution declaring the senate should adopt the closure rule. The Yale speakers were Walter M. Adrai, St. Louis; Robert D. Brinkerd, Brooklyn, and Janson O. Pierce, Brockton. The Princeton team was Thomas R. Good, Denver; Arthur Pearson Scott, Chicago, and Axtell Julius Byles, Titusville, Pa.

President Arthur T. Hadley, of Yale, presided. The judges were John G. Carlisle, of New York, former speaker of the house of representatives, Francis Lynde Stetson and Charles Burlingham, prominent New York lawyers. It is the first debate Yale has won in two years.

MISS GOULD'S PROJECTS

Will Be Furthered By Use of Buildings.

New York, May 5.—Because Miss Helen Miller Gould is determined that nothing on her estate which may be made useful to the public shall remain idle, workmen are making ready several buildings on the grounds which have not at present any special use, so that they may be the homes of Miss Gould's philanthropic projects.

Improvements on a stone building, which is to be used for a cooking school for the girls of Irvington and Tarrytown are almost completed and by next Saturday afternoon everything will be in readiness for the school to open.

Besides the cooking school, Miss Gould has donated another building to a sewing school. Here, too, the girls of Irvington and Tarrytown will be the students. The school already has been started.

GREAT CENTRAL RAILROAD

Will Build an Important Line In Nicaragua.

Pittsburg, May 5.—Papers for the incorporation of the Great Central Railroad company have been forwarded to the secretary of state of Maine from this city. The project is to build from the head of navigation on the Coco river, Nicaragua, to connect with the National railroad of Managua while a main line will be built through Honduras into Salvador. The line will be shorter hauling from Pittsburg by nine days. The capital stock is $10,000,000.

The company will operate its own vessels from New Orleans to Cape Gracios de Dios, Nicaragua and its own cable and telegraph systems.

SUCCUMBS TO BURNS.

Death of Brave Fireman In New York.

New York, May 5.—Fireman William McNally, who was burned in a brave rescue at the fire at East Fifteenth street and First avenue, Sunday, died today. McNally tried to save the life of Henry McWilliams, a tenant, but was overcome by the smoke and heat. Another fireman, James McAvoy, rushed to the rescue of McNally, dashing through a window filled with flame to do it and brought McNally out. McAvoy was badly burned and had to be taken to a hospital. McWilliams died of his injuries. McAvoy left the hospital yesterday. Mayor Low went to the hospital yesterday to see McNally and commend him for his bravery.

Steamer Clyde Is Sunk Off Coast of Virginia.

Run Down By Dominion Liner Hamilton.

New York, May 5.—A dispatch from Norfolk reports that the Old Dominion liner Hamilton and the Clyde liner Saginaw were in collision and that a number of passengers were drowned.

A long distance 'phone report to the Evening World places the number of drowned at twenty. The collision occurred at 12:40 a. m. off Hog island. The Saginaw was bound for Philadelphia from Norfolk. She carried a crew of forty men and twenty passengers. The Hamilton carried a full crew and more than 100 passengers. Soon after passing the Jersey coast the Hamilton ran into a fog, which lasted all night. It is believed that this fog was responsible for the accident. The Hamilton was going at three-quarters speed off Hog island, when the passengers were suddenly thrown from their berths and in an instant all was confusion, and as the passengers managed to reach the deck they learned that there had been a collision. In the fog could be seen only dimly across the bows of the Hamilton a steamer about her own size. Those on board the other ship shouted that they were sinking and in reply to questions answered that their boat was a Clyde liner and that the name was the Saginaw. The Saginaw had been struck about twenty feet from her stern, on the starboard side, and her stern had been cut through as cleanly as if it had been done by men in a dry dock.

The stern sunk almost at once and the forward part drifted several hundred yards. As soon as possible the boats of the Hamilton, which had been made ready after the collision, were lowered. The thick fog made it impossible for the crew of the Hamilton to work quickly and in a few minutes before the boats reached her the Saginaw was going down. She settled slowly and then went down with a suction that almost drew the boats of the Hamilton after her. In the darkness could be heard the cries of those on the Saginaw. In the water clinging to the wreckage was a number of persons and as many as possible of these were pulled into the boats of the Hamilton. When the survivors were taken on board the Hamilton, they were made comfortable and after waiting around to pick up any one that might have clung to wreckage, the Hamilton proceeded on her way. She was only slightly damaged. The Saginaw was sunk in ten fathoms of water and her masts were left sticking out of the water.

According to a dispatch from Fortress Monroe, the number of persons rescued by the Hamilton was twenty-nine. This report places the number of drowned at thirty. Hog island, off which the wreck occurred, is on the coast of Virginia, a short distance above Cape Charles.

A report to the Old Dominion line officers here says: The collision occurred at 4:30 today in a thick fog off the Delaware Capes, near Winter quarters lightship. Ten or twelve people are missing, supposed to be drowned. They were passengers and two members of the crew, all the Saginaw. The Saginaw was struck on the port aft quarter, which was cut off, leaving a big opening in her hold. The sea ran in and she sank within half an hour after the collision. Only the body of the stewardess of the Saginaw has been recovered.

The Hamilton of the Old Dominion line, was only slightly damaged, having her stem and a few plates twisted. She proceeded on her way and arrived at Norfolk, Va., today.

The Hamilton was bound from New York to Norfolk in the regular Dominion Line service.

The following white passengers from the Saginaw were rescued: E. B. Cole, Philadelphia; J. Greever, Philadelphia; R. B. Younghead, Chester, Pa.; Harry Winners Jr., Camden, N. J.; George Hoar, Philadelphia. Colored passengers are: Mary Saunderlin, Windsor, N. C.; Marcus Joyner, Windsor, N. C.; John Reese, Norfolk; Willie C. Winn, Norfolk; John Servillus, Berkely, Va.; Dora Rowland, Newport News.

The captain, second officer, second assistant and six seamen of the Saginaw were rescued. Three others of the Saginaw are missing.

The Hamilton left New York yesterday at 3 p. m. There were thirty-three people all told on the Saginaw, of which nine were passengers.

Norfolk, Va., May 5.—The collision occurred at 5 o'clock this morning off Winter Quarters. Chief Engineer Sultzer of the Saginaw, reports six of the crew and nine passengers lost. Capt. Tunnel of the Saginaw is here injured.

AMERICAN NEGROES CONSIDER CONQUEST OF ISLAND OF HAYTI

A Scheme Is on Foot to Set Up a Government Utopian In Its Character Which Would Be Administered as a Gigantic Corporation.

New York, May 5.—William Pickens, the Negro who won the junior exhibition prize at Yale, has been asked to become the head of a new Afro-American republic, to be established in Hayti, says a World dispatch from New Haven, Conn. In his oration which won the prize Pickens discussed Hayti's freedom and declared against it.

The scheme is to effect a conquest of the island of Hayti by American Negroes and to set up a government utopian in character. The junta of the movement is at Sturgis, Ky., and the correspondent of the society is N. L. Musgrove. He asks that Mr. Pickens act as secretary and board member in this section, and says that the Yale man would eventually be chosen as president of the society. It is also suggested that he take the lecture platform and raise funds. Mr. Pickens, when seen, said that he had the matter under consideration and would seek advice before enlisting his services in the movement. In discussing the plan, he said:

"Innovations and novelties in methods of government are proposed after Hayti has been overcome. While the government would be Republican in political formation, it would be administered as a gigantic corporation, of which all members of the society would be stockholders. All land titles and franchises are to be vested in the state. All dangerous and incorrigible criminals will be provisioned and set adrift on the sea to seek other shores.

"Agriculture, manufacturing and all other profitable industries are to be encouraged.

"Public schools are to be established and liberty is to be widespread, but the rights of each individual are to be bounded by the equal rights of every other."

ANOTHER LOT OF HEIRS WHO THINK THEY OWN NEW YORK

Enterprising Lawyer Has President Roosevelt, Governor Odell and Others Prominent Men On His Little List of Dutch Descendants Owning Property.

New York, May 5.—Most of the land owners in Harlem are not the hightful possessors of their holdings, according to a lawyer of this city. Heirs of Dutch freeholders of 250 years ago, some thousands in numbers, on the authority of this lawyer, are the owners of Harlem, of a large part of Central park and of about all of the water front property on the East river, and down the Hudson to the Hundred and Twenty-ninth street.

The present day value of the property is conjectured to be $1,000,000,000.

Prominent among the descendants of the alleged rightful owners are President Roosevelt, Governor Odell and Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of the late Mayor Strong.

In 1665-67 the duke of York, through Colonial Governor Nichols, gave grants and charters to twenty-three men who were created a corporation known as the Town of New Harlem ad later further grants and patents were issued to the twenty-three and to "their heirs, successors and assigns forever."

The plan of the lawyer in charge of the matter is to gather a majority of the descendants and, as he says they are all by inheritance members of the corporation, have them hold a meeting, elect officers and parecel out the land among themselves.

It is argued that quit claims, leases or deeds executed by any descendants of the grantees are void because no individual had a right to dispose of at the corporation meeting.

the property, but only a right to vote

President Roosevelt, who traces his ancestry to the Brevoorts of colonial times, will, it is announced, appear at the meeting of the descendants.

ALLEGED ABUSES IN CONGO STATE ARE FULLY CONFIRMED

Many Natives Have Fled From Their Villages to Escape the Tyranny of the Whites Who Carry On the Rubber Industry.

London, May 5.—The Rev. William Morrison, of Lexington, Va., a member of the American Presbyterian mission, who is here on his way home after six years' work along the Kassai river, about 1200 miles in the interior of the Congo state, fully confirms the stories of the abuses in the Congo administration. He has furnished an exhaustive report on the situation to the Congo state authorities, to the American and British ministers at Brussels and to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, detailing the results of his personal investigation and showing that the situation is daily growing worse, as a result of the rubber monopoly introduction of forced labor, virtually amounting to slavery. On his way to the coast the Rev. Mr. Morrison covered 800 miles of the Kassai river, formerly thickly dotted with villages, and he says there are now less than a dozen villages there, the people having fled to escape the tyranny of the whites. The missionary declares it is impossible for the natives to get any redress from the Congo state officials for the flagrant abuses and cruelties to which they are subjected.

The Rev. Mr. Morrison sails for New York on the Cunard liner Etruria, leaving Liverpool May 9, and will furnish the state department at Washington with further evidence on the subject of Congo state abuses.

TO HAVE A CHRISTIAN THEATER

New York, May 5.—To teach the gospel through the eye by means of a religious theater, is the plan of Herbert Booth, son of Gen. Booth, whose resignation from the Salvation army is still a mystery.

Mr. Booth, who has arrived in New York is not unlike his brother, Ballington. He came to New York almost directly from Zion city, the headquarters of Dowieism, but he denies that he has joined the Dowie movement. "The movement I am going to start in New York," said he, "is meant to solve the problem of the unreached masses. It was for that my father started the Salvation army. My appeal is to the eye. I am going to form in this city a great theater, with a powerful company of Christian actors. My movement is to be known as the Scientific Evangelization society, and it will be for the purpose of sending broadcast illustrated Bible dramas. I expect to get such great writers as Canon Farrar was to write powerful dramas for me. This I will have told in continuous pictures by the cinemetograph.

DONG GONG HAS MADE HIS ESCAPE

St. Louis, May 5.—Dong Gong, the Chinese leper, who has been in close confinement at quarantine, about two miles below Jefferson barracks for the past year and a half, has escaped. Dr. Woodruff, superintendent of the quarantine, at once ordered a search for the dangerous patient, who is still at large. Dong Gong's condition has not materially changed since his ostracism from society, and he is too dangerous a patient to be at large. Every effort will be made to apprehend him.

INTERNATIONAL MACHINISTS OPPOSED TO PIECE SYSTEM

Action Will Be Taken at Present Meeting of the Association Being Held at Milwaukee, Looking to Doing Away With the Plan In the Future.

Milwaukee, May 5.—President James O'Connell, of the International Association of Machinists, delivered his annual report at today's session of that body. A strenuous battle is being fought by officers of the organization against "the piece work" system in factories, the report states, regarding which action will be taken before the close of the convention. Calling attention to the fact that employers are trying to enforce the system in preference to the regular day rate of employment, the report says:

"This convention should decide that the systems are either right or wrong, and that our members shall or shall not be permitted to work under them. If you decide that the piece work system and the operating of two or more machines is wrong, then I recommend that a date be set a sufficient time ahead, when our membership at large shall be notified that they will no longer be permitted to work under the piece work or other systems of paying for labor, except the regular daily rate and that they will not be permitted to operate two ore more machines."

Touching upon the question of government by injunction, the report says:

"I recommend that this convention pass a strong set of resolutions denouncing the methods adopted by judges in issuing broadcast injunctions enjoining men from the exercise of their rights as citizens, and voicing our opposition against government by injunction in no uncertain language."

Mr. O'Connell criticizes David M. Parry, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, for "inviting the manufacturers of the United States to unite with a view to wiping out the trade union movement and forcing the wage workers to accept any conditions of employment that the employer feels like granting."

TIRES OF HIS FAMILY AND SKIPS

Houghton, Mich., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nelson Navarre, an electrician living at 404 Quincy street, Hancock, has disappeared and no trace of him has been found. Mrs. Navarre alleges that last Thursday her husband beat her almost into insensibility and then left the house. The cause of the quarrel was the accusation on the wife's part that Navarre failed to properly provide for the family. Mrs. Navarre and her 13-year-old daughter are left in straightened circumstances and were forced to sell the household furniture to provide for immediate wants. Mrs. Navarre is an expert masseur and will go to Sault Ste. Marie, where she and her daughter will try to earn a living.

MRS. CARLISLE PETS DYING HORSE

New York May 5.—Mrs. John G. Carlisle, wife of the former secretary of the treasury, was driving on Fifth avenue yesterday afternoon, when one of the horses slipped, bursting a blood vessel. Mrs. Carlisle was on the way to the Thirty-fourth street ferry when the horse fell. While waiting for a veterinary doctor, who had been summoned, Mrs. Carlisle sat on the asphalt pavement and put the animal's head in her lap. She patted it and rubbed it and talked softly to the horse, endeavoring to soothe it, while a crowd gathered and watched the actions of the elderly woman seated in the middle of the street.

The horse died as it was being lifted into the ambulance the veterinarian brought.

FORMER ST. PAUL MAN IS KILLED

Butte, Mont., May 4.—A mysterious shooting in which George J. Benz, lately of St. Paul, is the victim, and in which two women who names are withheld by the police, are involved, occurred yesterday in a lodging house in the city. Three shots were fired, two of them entering the ceiling while in the man's heart is a wound caused by the third. There is an air of mystery about the case. Benz was about 20 years of age, apparently, and was a nephew of George Benz, of the liquor firm of George Benz & Co., of St. Paul.

FIRE CAUSES A PANIC IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 5.—Four persons were injured, a damage of $10,000 caused and a panic among fifty boarders resulted early today when the Deering hotel, 25-27 Fullerton avenue, was destroyed by fire. The injured: Charles Hoffman, fireman, overcome by smoke; Mrs. Victoria Nelson, burned about face, hands and body, may die; Leonard Olson, fireman, overcome by smoke; George Robinson, sergeant of police, bruised and burned about face and body while rescuing Mrs. Nelson.

The building is owned by the Deering Harvester company and nearly all of the inmates were employed by the concern. The fire started from the overturning of a lamp. The structure was five stories high.

OPEN PHILANTHROPIC PAWN SHOP

New York, May 5.—Thomas Mulvey, president of St. Vincent De Paul society, the Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, of the Marble Collegiate church; the Rev. Alex P. Doyle, of the Paulist fathers; Edwin F. Cragin, Robert B. Miller and others, are backing a philanthropic pawn broking enterprise, in which they hope to embark soon after a bill incorporating the personal property loan company shall be signed, with a capital of $1,000,000. One hundred thousand dollars has been pledged to start the business. The corporators aim to establish a system of pawn shops, non-sectarian in character, but in touch with church interests, so that the worthy poor may be assisted. The company is to charge only one-half of one per cent interest a month on loans. In view of this low interest charge the bill says that the city officials shall record all chattel mortgages, bill of sale, and the like free of charge.

Fire-Fighter's Story

How the Strongest Man In the Philadelphia Fire Department—Once the Weakest—Gained His Strength and Health, By Using Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney and Bladder Remedy.

HERE'S the story of a man who was near death's door and was saved by using Swamp-Root.

If he came to you and said: "My friend, do you suffer with kidney trouble? Does your back ache? Do you feel bad all over and can't tell exactly what's the matter? Have you tried medicines or doctors without benefit? Are you about discouraged? Then do as I did, and get well—Use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root! I know it will cure you."

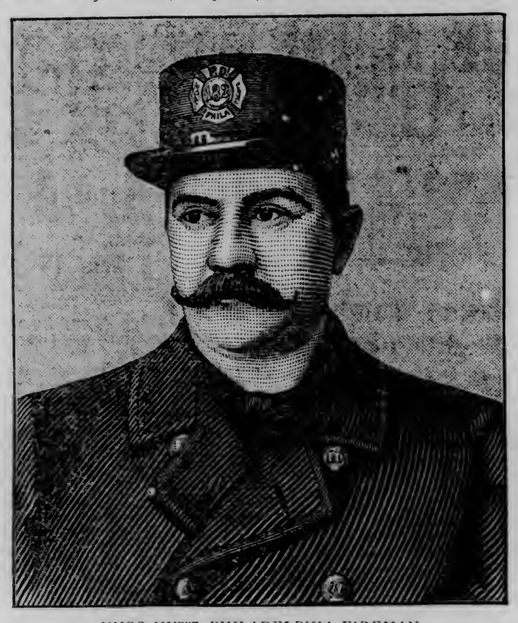
If he did this, would you believe him?

Wouldn't you, if you were a sufferer, follow his advice, knowing that he bore living, sentient, vital testimony to the wonderful virtues of this great natural remedy?

WELL, that is just what Hugo Hut, strongest man in the Philadelphia Fire Department, hero of a hundred battles with the flames, is doing now through the medium of this paper.

Hugo Hutt has been connected with the Philadelphia Fire Department for the past four years. He is stationed at the engine house at Nineteenth and Callowhill Streets. Mr. Hutt is known as the strongest man in the Fire Department and has taken many prizes at athletic tournaments for his prowess in the field of sports.

He is also an ex-sergeant of the United States Infantry, having for several years been stationed at Fort Niobrara, Neb. Mr. Hut also served with the Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment during the Spanish-American war.



HUGO HUTT, PHILADELPHIA FIREMAN.

HERE is the story as he gave it to a special representative of Philadelphia's Great Newspaper, "The North American:"

"You will hardly believe it when I tell you there was a time when my body was in such a diseased condition that my relatives and friends would have, at no time, been surprised to learn of my death. It was all due to kindney trouble, for which I could secure no relief. I was under the care of my family physician for a number of years, but he was unable to do me any good. I also consulted two noted specialists on kidney diseases, but they were unable to give me more than temporary relief. I had already made application to join the army, but was turned down on account of my bad physical condition.

"I was advised to try that greatest of all remedies—SWAMP ROOT.

"I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., at Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and its effect upon me was so noticeable that I went immediately and bought a supply from my druggist, with the result that in a comparatively short time I had entirely recovered and became the man you see me now.

"I served a number of years in the army, and for the past four years I have been connected with the Philadelphia Fire Department. My work, both in the army and fighting fires in Philadelphia, has been of the most arduous, and work that I could not do did I not have a strong physique.

"I do not know what the words "Kidney Trouble" mean now, and do not expect to. I cannot speak too highly of swamp-Root. A few bottles of this great remedy did more for me than a dozen physicians could."

(Signed) HUGO HUTT,
865 Stillman St., Philadelphia, Pa.

AND this is only one man's story — if the average reader of a newspaper could be persuaded to read the thousands of such testimonials which come to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the kidney troubles which now afflict humanity would be cut down fifty per cent.

For these testimonials all prove beyond a doubt that the greatest cure for kidney, liver and bladder troubles is

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

NATURE'S GREATEST AID TO THE SUFFERING.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root is so remarkably successful that a special arrangements has been made by which all of our readers who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail, also a book that tells all about it and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. In writing, be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Daily Herald. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth is reported to have a "peeping Tom." Several citizens living in the western portion of the town have complained of late of an unknown prowler looking in at their windows, and one or two ladies have been much alarmed by the appearance of a man's face at the window.

He is described by one man who saw him as being tall and rather slim, wearing dark colored clothes. His face was clean shaven and by his appearance would indicate that he was about 22 years of age.

"I would not hesitate to shoot him," said the gentleman who was describing the prowler, "should he ever visit my house again."

The police have not yet been notified of the visits of the unknown man, but should they continue it is likely that complaints will be laid.

Miss Mabel Carmichael, of Ashland, is visiting relatives in West Duluth.

A large audience was attracted to the West Duluth Baptist church last evening to listen to a lecture by Earnest Fagenstrom on "Through Sweden With Camera and Cycle." A large number of views of Sweden were shown.

William Smeaton, of Scanlon, was in West Duluth yesterday to attend to the shipment of a number of horses.

Robert Simpson, of Ashland, is visiting friends in West Duluth.

F. S. Bacon, of Minneapolis, a former resident of West Duluth, is registered at the Tremont hotel.

John Hanson will leave this week for Brainerd, where he will work during the summer in the Northern Pacific shops.

E. Anderson, of Pine City, is in West Duluth today on a business trip.

A young man, who gave his name as McDowell, was arrested by the West Duluth police yesterday, charged with being drunk and disorderly and using indecent language on the street. He was released on bail.

The new suits of the West Duluth baseball team have arrived. They consist of maroon shirts and trousers, with blue belts and stockings. The words "West Duluth" are printed in white lettering on the front of the shirts. The combination is a very pretty one and the team will make a fine appearance when it goes to Hibbing next Sunday. The money for the suits was raised by popular subscription and the boys are endeavoring to show their appreciation by putting a winning team in the field.

The funeral services over the body of Clement, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Leidinger, of 120 Fifty-sixth avenue, took place Sunday morning. Interment was made at Calvary cemetery.

A public drinking fountain is being placed at the corner of Central avenue and Ramsey street.

The street railway company is hauling rails to Oneota street preparatory to relaying the tracks in that vicinity. The new rails are of the 80-pound variety, similar to those being laid on East Superior street.

Dick Ferris Coming.

Harry Bubb, manager of the Ferris Comedians at the Metropolitan, was called away yesterday by the news of the serious illness of his father and left in the evening for his home at Williamsport, Pa., for a week or ten days. During his absence Mort W. Sanford, Dick Ferris' private secretary, from Minneapolis, will attend to the business of the company. Mr. Sanford says that Mr. Ferris has just opened another stock company in Omaha with great success. Mr. Ferris will be in the city next week to see in what way he can give the patrons of the Metropolitan continued satisfaction.

SPAIN'S BOY KING

Unable to Stem the Republican Progress.

Madrid, May 5.—Unless something very unexpected should happen it seems that a revolution is inevitable here. Ever since the unlucky war with the United States the taxes have been almost unbearable, and the country has been on the verge of ruin. Small riots have been the order of the day all over and on top of this now comes the terrible frost and snow of last week, which has ruined all prospects of a good crop this year. The frost came most unexpectedly after a severe drought of several months.

The peasants of Andalusia, La Mancha and Castile are suffering from lack of food, and the field workers have assumed a threatening attitude, which has caused the government to call out troops. Cordova has been under military law for some time, and the Anarchists are very active.

The king, of course, cannot be expected to be able to meet a crisis of this kind, and is said to be very vacillating, now listening to his prudent advisers, who advocate the building of public roads and works to relieve the distress caused by want of employment, and then giving way to his youthful impetuosity and giving orders to use shot and bayonet and smother the riots in blood.

POETIC COMMENT

On the Indiana Injunction Against Cooking Onions.

New York, May 5.—Commenting, largely pictorially, on the injunction granted by the Appellate Court of Indiana, prohibiting the cooking of onions on account of their unpleasant aroma, the World publishes the following:

"From the Courts we get an inkling that the death knell is a-tinkling
For the tear-compelling onion (best concomitant of steak).
Maybe limburger is fated to be likewise expurgated,
While jail may yawn for those who sauerkraut would make."

LUMBER IS BURNED

Threatening Blaze In Alger, Smith & Company's Yard.

Loss Falls Under $4000 —Garfield Water Main Inadequate.

Fire, supposed to have been caused by a spark from a Great Northern locomotive, broke out in the lumber yards of Alger, Smith & Co., at the foot of Garfield avenue, shortly after 6 o'clock last evening and several piles of No. 3 grade lumber were destroyed. The lumber that burned adjoined the tracks of the Great Northern company, near the railroad bridge across the bay.

The fire was first discovered by some children playing in the yards, who gave the alarm. The flames spread rapidly to some eight piles in all before they could be controlled by the fire department. In addition to the usual trouble encountered in fighting fire in a lumber pile, the department was handicapped by the water supply. The main on Garfield avenue is too small and only one engine could take water from it, while the other took water from the shallow slips.

The part of the yard in which the fire started was at some distance from the mill and contained about 2,000,000 feet of lumber. The total amount of lumber in the yards is estimated by some at nearly 25,000,000 feet.

The usual effective manner of fighting lumber pile fires was carried out, that of tearing down the piles nearest those burning.

The loss is estimated at from $3000 to $4000 and is covered by about $500,000 insurance.

CITY DOES NOT PAY

Scrap Over Prisoners' Board to Come Before Commissioners.

City Chopped Off Its Payments Several Months Ago.

There are indications of a legal scrap between St. Louis county and the city of Duluth over the boarding of prisoners committed to the county jail under the ordinances. At the meeting of the board of county commissioners this afternoon Sheriff Butchart will call attention to the fact that the city has not paid the county anything for the care of its prisoners since January of this year; that, in fact, the city is still owing the county for boarding prisoners in December. The cost of caring for the city prisoners is about $100 or more per month, so that the amount which the county claims is in the neighborhood of $600.

More or less controversy has arisen in the past over the matter of boarding the city's prisoners, the county, under the statutes, claiming 50 cents per day per prisoner and the city interposing objections on the ground that the county was paying only 11 cents per meal to feed them, and was making a rake-off of 17 cents per day per prisoner.

The county authorities claim that the cost of the meals is the smallest expense that the county is put to for the care of the city's prisoners; that in addition to the cost of the meals there is the cost of heat and light, salary of the jailors, water and soap bill and the expense of furnishing clothing to some of the prisoners. Sheriff Butchart declares that 50 cents per day does not begin to cover the average cost per prisoner sent to the county bastile by the city.

It is also argued by the county authorities that the greater part of the jail population during the month is comprised of 10, 20 or 30 day men sent up by the city.

At a previous meeting of the county board several of the city officers were present in connection with tax matters, and Alderman Mannheim took occasion to bring this matter to the attention of the county commissioners. He protested against the charge of 50 cents per prisoner, and claimed that the county was not treating the city of Duluth right in the matter.

Commissioner Patterson, who was loaded up on statistics relative to the cost of keeping prisoners, presented the county's side of the argument. He said, among other things, that many of the prisoners the city sends to the county jail are in such filthy condition that the county has to furnish them clothes while their own are being washed or else burned. Attention was called to one city prisoner that was sent to the jail wrapped up in a blanket and to whom the county had to furnish a full suit. On that occasion the commissioners bore down all opposition or protest on the part of the city, and was further strengthened in its position by Assistant County Attorney Crosby, who said that inasmuch as the amount that the city is to pay the county is fixed by statute, the county commissioners had no authority to reduce the figure even were it so disposed.

While it will not be known until late this afternoon what action the county commissioners will take in the matter of the holding up of the prisoners' board bill by the city, it was intimated that a resolution might be passed demanding that the city pay up its delinquent bill for prisoners' board inside a certain limited period, and instructing the county attorney to begin a civil action to recover it in event the bill is not paid.

FOR GIRL'S HAND

Two Rivals Will Run a Foot Race.

New York, May 5.—Miss Rayee Bernstein, a pretty East Side milliner, was wondering as she deftly fashioned flowers and laces on fetching hats whether Tom Dalton or Jacob Rosen will win her for his bride in a two mile foot race, with her heart and hand as the stake, which they will run off at the outing of the Young Men's Waldorf club, to be held at Grauer's Ridge Wood Coliseum.

The fair trophy says she really doesn't care which of the young men is the victor. She loves them both. The young men love her desperately. They'd run their legs off for her.

Rosen is a traveling salesman. Dalton an insurance agent. There is little difference in their ages, both being about 20. The object of their athletic affections is 19.

The young men met Miss Bergtein at a club entertainment about six weeks ago. She seemed to enjoy going with one as much as with the other.

Neither Rosen nor Dalton appeared to be making any headway in the social race, they were running for her. The other day a member of the club suggested that they run a foot race for her. The proposition was readily accepted.

WAITERS WIN

All Restaurants Have Now Signed the Advanced Scale.

J. J. Haley Held Out Longest, Signing This Afternoon.

Organized labor's power in Duluth is illustrated by the complete surrender of eight of the city's largest restaurants to the new wage scale of the cooks and waiters union.

The strike became operative last Friday. The following day five members of the Restaurant Owners' Protective association signed the new wage scale, yesterday another signed the scale leaving only the Waldorf Cafe and the New England restaurants non-union.

This morning the New England agreed to the demands of the union and this afternoon J. J. Haley, proprietor of the Waldorf signed the new scale and discharged the non-union colored help that he had employed to carry on the fight against the new wage scale.

The restaurant owners say that while it was their intention to resist the demands of the union when they voted not to sign the scale, they were compelled to give in to an appeal of public sentiment.

The waiters and other members of organized labor quietly curculated about town asking prominent citizens and business men to take the matter up with the restaurant keepers, and as a result all members of the union will be back in their old places this evening drawing $3 a week more pay in some instances, though not all the strikers will be given a raise for the reason that some of them were getting the wage asked before the strike.

The restaurant owners admit this and say that the sole object in resisting the new scale was to avoid paying the higher wage to some of the help that were considered less competent than others.

Naturally the waiters are in a good humor over the settlement and point with considerable pride to the fact that they won their point of the contention without resorting to even a harshly spoken word. They even found the picket system unnecessary and predict that from this time on better feeling and better service will prevail in the restaurant business.

TO DIVIDE KELSEY.

Petition Is Before the County Board.

The board of county commissioners at its meeting this afternoon will have presented for its consideration a number of county road petitions. Among the other petitions is one from R. T. Houge and others asking for a divison of the town of Kelsey into three separate towns, the division to be made as the board deems best for the interests of all concerned.

The residents along the Normanna road have petitioned for the appropriation of a sum of money sufficient to put the road in a passable condition from its intersection with the Vermilion road to the quarter post between sections 16 and 21-52-13.

Some action is likely to be taken this afternoon relative to the wolf bounty in this county. The recent law passed by the state legislature places the bounty at $7.50 for each full grown wolf, but the county commissioners may increase this amount out of the county revenue fund.

County Auditor Halden has appointed William J. Jacques assessor for the unorganized territory of St. Louis county. The appointment will come up for confirmation by the board this afternoon.

COUNTESS TO FIGHT

Drink In Her New Temperance Hotel.

London, May 5.—The countess of Warwick intends to add the management of a licensed public house to her other activities for the amelioration of the condition of the working people in the neighborhood of her Essex country house. She has bought the Sarcen's Head hotel near Dunmow, and, desiring to promote temperance, intends to present soft drinks and food as attractively to her customers as beer and whisky. She paid $25.00 for the house. The management will make her the busiest peeress in the realm. She already conducts a model farm and runs an embroidery shop in Bond street.

The countess is campaigning now, trying to secure a Conservative parliamentary nomination for her son, who recently came of age. The boy pawned his jewelry and ran away from home in order to fight the Boers.

According to the dictum of an English judge no gentleman can be a publican, but the countess intends to prove a lady can be.

Princess Alexandra of Isenburg, like Lady Warwick, has bought a hotel at Romansborn, Lake Constance, and intends to run it according to her own ideas. Should the enterprise succeed, a new opening has been found for the unemployed among the numerous impecunious scions of royalty in Europe.

BUILDER

Of Lilliputian Fairyland of Fancy Dead.

London, May 5.—Sir Charles Edmund Isham, who died last week, was the tenth baronet and creator of the famous Rock Garden of Lamport, Northamptonshire.

Sir Charles began to build his remarkable and unique rockety shortly after his succession, and it was the result of half a century's work. It is a Lilliputian fairyland of fancy. He took a space measuring 90 feet by 37 feet, rising at the summit to 21 feet, and out of it carved caves and hollows, caverns and grottoes, and quarries where pigmy miners delved. The softest of verdure upholstered the rocks, rare flowers trimmed the ledges and from the crevices of miniature bowlders, century-old trees sent their wizened trunks.

The baronet's grottoed conceit was not without a touch of humor. In some rocky recesses manikin miners, two or three inches high, lounge in various attitudes against the inscription demanding "Eight hours' sleep, eight hours' play, eight hours' work, eight hours' pay," oblivious of the existence of conciliation boards and the good offices of the board of trade.

Sir Charles himself described it as "an assemblage of small caves, crevices, excavations and inequalities carpeted and incrusted with vegetation suited to the purpose."

BANISHED FROM VIENNA

Is Brother of Crown Princess of Saxony.

Vienna, May 5.—Another archduke of the Tuscany family has made himself persona non grata here. This time it is Archduke Joseph Ferdinand of Tuscany, a brother of the crown princess of Saxony and of Leopold Wolfing, who by his democratic ideas and resulting popularity has aroused the ire of the Austrian aristocracy.

For some time attempts have been made by persons in court to blacken him in the eyes of Francis Joseph, but the emperor, who always admired the young officer for his frankness and honesty, very much against his will, been forced to send the archduke to Laibach as a punitive measure.

The punishment, however, is not considered a very severe one, as the archduke has been put in command of a cavalry regiment stationed there, so that all his enemies have actually gained is that he has been temporarily banished from Vienna. Persons who know the old emperor well, however, say he will very soon long for his young favorite, and no one will be particularly surprised to see him come back with new favors within a month or so.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

OLD AND NEW WAY.

Hyomei the Latest Scientific Discovery For the Cure of Catarrh.

The discovery of Hyomei has wrought a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh.

Prior to three years ago the medicines ordinarily employed in the cure of this disease were nauseating drugs and worthless tonics. In some instances they benefited, but the improvement was not lasting.

With Hyomei you take into the air passages of the throat and head a balsamic air that goes to the minutest cells, effectually killing all germs and microbes of catarrh. It enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood, and restores health to the whole system. Many astonishing testimonials have been received from those who have been cured by Hyomei.

N. G. Durham, 23 Wellington street, Boston, Mass., writes: "I have suffered from catarrh for a number of years. I tried Hyomei and found it the only cure for that disease I ever used."

Perhaps the strongest evidence that can be given to doubters is the fact that S. F. Boyce has so much faith in Hyomei that he sells every package under a positive guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Now is the time to begin the use of Hyomei.

THE GREAT COAST

Luther Mendenhall Finds Pacific Slope Teeming With Wealth.

Particularly Impressed With the Prosperity of Los Angeles.

Luther Mendenhall has returned from an extended trip to the Pacific coast, where "everybody does as he pleases and all have wealth."

Seattle, Tacoma, San Francisco and Los Angeles were some of the points visited, but Los Angeles was the place that impresed him most, for he points out where the place is literally shooting out of the ground and forming into one of the most beautiful cities on the continent.

Seattle couldn't very well be passed without some interest, as, he pointed out, the coming supremacy of Seattle will affect Duluth in a commercial way, and when it is the commercial center of the Pacific coast, Duluth will be the gateway from East to West, through which the commercial articles pass.

"They live out there," said Mr. Mendenhall. "It's different from here. They have the climate and they take the time. The Puritanical squint is entirely out of place, and what is done is above board. If a person don't like it, he don't have to look at it. They attend to their own business, and get as much pleasure out of life as they can, each in a manner he desires, so long as he does not interfere with the rights and tender sensibilities of others.

"We were at Seattle when the gambling houses scandal was forming. They had just discovered some of the bribery and the implication of the old mayor in it. But people didn't seem to care particularly, unless they were interested in the gambling. They don't look at those things out there the way they do here. They do a great many things that are not nice; some things we would call Bohemian, and other things we would call disreputable.

"But the people who have no inclinations that way do not seem to be in any way contaminated, and to the stranger from a more strict community it is a wonder how they all get along so well together. But they do.

"Los Angeles, I want to tell you, is a hummer. Seattle is growing, but Los Angeles is simply bulging with health, wealth and prosperity. It is a town of 140,000, perhaps, in the most delightful clime in the world, with sea on one side and mountains on the other. There are buildings going up everywhere. There are twenty-three banks there, and in little Pasadena there are more than in the hustling and urbane Duluth.

"The greatest surprise to me was the density of population. You see, this was my first visit to the coast. I wasn't looking for it. The little valleys are teeming with life from the ocean shore to the mountains, where they end. Fruit is raised mostly in these valleys, though there are many farmers raising grain.

"Los Angeles has a half dozen first-class hotels; what I mean is fine hotels, business hotels. Over in Pasadena, where the finest hotels on the coast are, we couldn't secure accommodations. They told us it would be a week or ten days before we could be promised anything desirable, if we spoke for it then.

"The country is being laced and intertwined with electric railroads. The interurbans are being built rapidly, and a son of Colis P. Huntington is just putting in miles and miles of interurban and suburban roads in the vicinity of Los Angeles, from Riverside to Redlands.

"These lines are both passenger and freight, and the connections with the rural districts are as good as in some of the municipalities up in this country.

"Oh, I am surprised when I think of the country, and I am truly enthusiastic over it. It's a great place."

On the return Mr. Mendenhall visited Salt Lake City and Denver. Both the cities are booming again, after some years of adversity.

THEY VISIT IRON RANGES

Officials of Great Northern Viewing the Mines.

General Manager F. E. Ward, General Superintendent G. T. Slade, Superintendent J. E. Davis and Assistant General Superintendent Philbin of the Great Northern railway left Superior at 7 o'clock last evening for a trip over the Mesaba range. They will return this evening and the officials from the general offices will return to St. Paul by the midnight train.

Louis W. Hill and a party arrived in the city at 7 o'clock last evening and remained until 11 o'clock last night, going to St. Paul on the regular train.

The party up on the ranges is looking over the Hill mining property and will inspect the ore washing at the Arcturus mine, where experiments are being made.

GET HIGHER WAGES.

Missabe Road Trainmen Are Given an Advance.

Advances of 15 per cent for freight trainmen and 12 per cent for passenger trainmen have been granted the employes of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, after conferences that lasted for a week or ten days. The schedule goes into effect May 1 and is the same as the one in effect on the Iron Range road. Engineers and firemen receive an advance on the Missabe road, and the men on the large new engines will also have special advances on account of the character of the work.

No Change In Strike.

Assistant General Freight Agent H. E. Still, of the Northen Pacific railway, was in the city today, looking over routine work. He claims to be uninformed in regard to the so-called strike of freight handlers on the Northern Pacific docks. Local Freight Agent Thomas said this morning that there was no change in the situation and that the men who had been at work were continuing to the utmost satisfaction of the contractors and railroad officials.

PRICE IS DROPPING.

Black Diamonds For Drill Work Lower In Cost.

Black diamonds are selling at $50 a carat, the lowest figure they have touched for a long time. The price has been going down for the past month, when they were $62 a carat about that length of time ago.

The principal trouble the exploring companies are having in this vicinity at present is said to be with the diamond drill operators, the men to run the machines and the diamond setters. They are scarce and hard to secure.

A drill man says that they never were so scarce before as now, and some exploration work is being put off because of the difficulty in securing them.

C. A. Wolf, who is handling black diamonds for drilling purposes, arrived here this morning from New York. He stopped off a few days in the Michigan range country, where there is a lot of snow. New York city has been having great golf weather for the past three weeks, with the thermometer in the vicinity of 75 above.

RICH HEIR STUDIES

Sociology With the Idea of Helping His Workmen.

Is President of an Establishment Employing 4800 Men.

New York, May 5.—A shy, retiring, but important young man is Alexander Smith Cochrane, of 5 East Forty-fifth street, of this city and Yonkers, who has just inherited $14,000,000. He is the president of an establishment employing 4800 men, and is a close student of sociology. His fortune was left him by his uncle, Warren B. Smith, the wealthy carpet manufacturer, whose will was filed last Friday.

Young Cochrane is the enthusiastic head of Hollywood inn, which his father built in the heart of Yonkers at a cost of $200,000 and endowed with $150,000. In it 1500 workingmen find nightly amusement and enjoy all privileges of club life. Next to his business this social experiment is his greatest fad. He spends many evenings there, meeting workingmen and studying their conditions. It was his father's hobby and he inherited his father's enthusiasm.

"There's nothing to say about me at all," was his reply when asked to tell about himself. "I've simply been in the business. Nothing interesting could be written about me." A more modest young man it would be hard to find. Not until his uncle's will was filed at White Plains on Friday was his good fortune known. It was believed, however, that Warren B. Smith would leave him more than any other relative. Mr. Smith, who was 55 years old and a bachelor, was a chum of his young nephew. The two had much in common, and before the uncle's sudden death in Tunis, March 31, were almost constantly together.

The carpet establishment was started fifty years ago in a little house in West Farms, by Alexander Smith, who was then poor. The little West Farms place was burned, and the factory was moved to Yonkers, and Alexander Smith began the foundation of his great fortune. His son, Warren B. Smith, was left $32,000,000, and his son-in-law, William F. Cochrane, who died eighteen months ago, was left $10,000,000.

Alexander Cochrane was called by his kinsfolk more of a Smith than a Cochrane, and was likened to his uncle, who was twice his age. As soon as he left Yale he entered his uncle's office. He soon took a fancy to the business and decided to learn it. He left the office for the mill and went through one department after another and learned the routine of each. He learned how to make tapestry Brussels and how to weave tapestry velvet and Axminsters. Two years ago he had worked his way so steadily to the fore that he was elected president of the corporation.

The elder Cochrane was one of Yonkers' chief benefactors. He gave more than $200,000 to St. John's church, and he handsomely endowed St. John's hospital, but the most distinctive of his gifts was Hollywood inn. It is one of the principal buildings of Yonkers, standing in the heart of the city, at Hudson street and Broadway. It was designed for the use of working men as a club house and place of recreation and amusement. Only a nominal fee is charged, the annual membership being $3. For this the members have all the benefits of a great library, plunge baths, billiards, pool, bowling alleys, smoking rooms, social halls, concerts, and club life. At the club nothing but soft drinks are sold. Young Cochrane was made president of the inn at his father's death.

Under young Cochrane's management every branch of the carpet business has been enlarged. He gets down to work every morning at 9 o'clock, and three weeks is the limit of his vacations. Much of that time he spends at his 600-acre farm in East View, which he bought and stocked. The colonial house which stood there has been modernized and a cook is always in readiness for his visit. He has a splendid stable in Forty-fourth street in this city. His favorite recreations are riding and driving, and he keeps plenty of horses here and in the country. He is also a racquet player.

When his uncle died young Cochrane went to Paris to bring the body home. Smith's valet had brought the body from Tunis. Mr. Cochrane attracts little notice on his almost daily drives, or gallops in the park. He never frequents conspicuous restaurants, dining modestly either at the club or some quiet place. He is a member of the Metropolitan club, where his uncle had apartments, of racquet, riding and driving clubs, and one or two others. He is one of several brothers. A younger brother, J. W. Cochrane, is married and lives in Baltimore. The youngest brother, Gifford, is a student at Yale.

ALDRICH BILL TO BE REVIVED

Republican Members of Senate Finance Committee to Act.

Washington, May 5.—There is to be a strong effort made this year not only to revive, but actually to expand the Aldrich bill, which failed to get through the senate last March. Republican members of the senate finance committee are to hold several sessions during the recess, and an effort will be made to have a new financial measure ready to be submitted at the special session early in November.

The Aldrich bill, it will be remembered, proposed to permit the use of state, municipal and railroad bonds as security for government deposits in national banks.

These deposits now amount to $150,000,000 in round numbers and are secured by government bonds exclusively, except in a few cases, where Secretary Shaw temporarily sanctioned the use of other securities. The object of the Aldrich bill on the face was to release $150,000,000 worth of government bonds, with the belief they would naturally be used as a basis of national bank notes, thus largely adding to the circulating medium. The Aldrich bill, if passed, would not have added materially to the government deposits in banks, because these are practically controlled by the cash balance in the treasury. If the Aldrich bill had passed, however, all these government bonds now in trust would have been idle and could have been used either "on the street" or as a basis for circulation.

When the Aldrich bill was first introduced an effort was made to tack to it a provision for asset banking. This the senate leaders refused to listen to, as they knew the scheme could pass neither house of congress. On the contrary, the Aldrich bill provided for a distinct tax for government deposits. It was this tax which beat the bill, as the bankers of Chicago, New York and other cities is one of several brothers. A younger brother, J. W. Cochrane, is married and lives in Baltimore. The youngest brother, Gifford, is a student at Yale.

RIDING MAN FASHION

Resulted In Mrs. Abbey Brown Being Killed.

Philadelphia, May 5.—A dispatch to the Press from Ellenville, N. Y., says that Mrs. Abbey L. Brown, widow of Eugene Brown, a wealthy clothier of New Bedford, Mass., was killed at Ellenville yesterday while attempting to ride her horse man fashion. Mrs. Brown was the guest of Mrs. M. C. Julian, wife of the pastor of the Unitarian church. A new habit permitting her to ride astride had just been completed, and she donned it for the first time. Though a skilled horsewoman, Mrs. Brown dropped the reins when her horse became frightened and fell off, striking on the back of her head and dying almost instantly.

OREGON IN GREAT PERIL.

She Came Near Going Down In Typhoon.

Washington, May 5.—Additional details have been received here, says the Star, regarding the trying experience of the historic battleship Oregon in a typhoon it encountered during its trip from Honolulu to Yokohama several months ago.

The storm that the Oregon encountered was the worst reported this winter from Pacific waters. The steamship Gaelic was in the same storm, and within 280 miles of where the Oregon was struggling with the elements. The Gaelic was hove to for nearly twenty-four hours, an occurrence which is unusual with it, for it is one of the best sea boats.

On the other hand, the Oregon proved unwieldy in the storm, and was practically helpless. "All hands save the ship," was piped that night, and of the 500 and some odd men aboard none thought that the vessel would emerge safely from the storm. But it did, and when it went limping into Yokohama it was with its superstructure dented and twisted, all of its lifeboats smashed or swept away, and a quantity of other damage done to it. The amount of this damage represented in the neighborhood of $75,000.

The Oregon was repaired at Yokohama and again put into active service. It has done considerable cruising since, and, so far as the navy department is informed, is in as good condition as ever.

STRIKE ENDS.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 5.—The strike of the Kingston Coal company's workers ended today, the men referring their grievances to their general committee.

ROBBER IS PARDONED.

Washington, May 5.—The president has pardoned Martin Guilford, who in November, 1902, pleaded guilty to robbing a postoffice in Indiana, and who was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment in the penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kas. The pardon was granted upon the representation of the prison physician that he was in the last stages of consumption.

WILL BID FOR BUSINESS.

Portland, Ore., May 5.—It is probable that the Portland and Asiatic Steamship company (a Harriman property) will make a bid for the government transportation business between Portland and Philippine ports. The freight department of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company now has the matter under consideration and is preparing to submit a bid.

AN INDIAN PRIEST.

Green Bay, Wis., May 5.—Cornelius Hill, chief of the Oneida Indians, last survivors of the famous Six Nations of New York state, will be ordained as a priest of the Episcopal church June 24, on the reservation, near this city. Bishop Grafton, of Fond du Lac, will conduct the ceremony.

GIVEN LIGHT SENTENCE.

Chicago, May 5.—Elsie Barrett, who was convicted last week of assault in the shooting of Bessie Palmer, an actress, in her apartments in this city several months ago, was today sentenced to serve sixty days in the county jail.

ASK JUDGE TO VACATE.

Caleb Powers' Attorneys Object to Cantrill.

Georgetown, Ky., May 5.—The case against ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers as accessory to the murder of William Goebel, three years ago, was called today for a third trial, when attorneys for Powers renewed their motion for Judge Cantrill to vacate the bench. The judge took the motion under advisement. The cases of Harlan Whittaker, "Tallow Dick" Coombs and J. W. Davis, as accessories to the Goebel murder, were continued. As another murder case was called, it is conceded that the Powers' case will not be heard at this term of court.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Of the Dynamite Explosion at Hollidaysburg.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., May 5.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the cause of the explosion of dynamite at the plant of the Cresson Powder company, near Williamsburg, whereby ten persons were killed, has been unable to fix the responsibility for the explosion. The jury says: "The managers of the plant were watchful and careful over its operations, and the cause of the explosion is unknown."

TO ASK FOR MORE WAGES.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, May 5.—Telegraphers to the number of 200 representing the Iowa lines of the Chocago & Northwestern railroad, met at Belle Plaine today to formulate an appeal for an increase in wages. No strike is likely. The men say they are compelled to work long hours on small pay without vacations.

Western North Car olina In the Spring.

Western North Carolina is attractive at any season of the year, but certainly during the spring months, when the trees are budding and the flowers blossoming; what could be more inviting than a trip to this beautiful mountain country.

The months of April and May in the Land of the Sky and Sapphire country, including Asheville and Hot Springs, N. C., are very enjoyable. The climate at this season is delightful, the scenery most beautiful, and the opportunities for the enjoyment of sport, including golf, cannot be surpassed.

The hotels in this region afford the very best accommodations. If you wish to know something of this delightful region, communicate with your nearest ticket agent, or address G. B. Allen, A. G. P. ARE BOUND OVER.

Four Freight Handlers Must Answer to Grand Jury.

Within a few days the grand jury will take up the cases of the striking freight handlers that made a demonstration against a carload of nonunion men last Friday.

At the conclusion of the preliminary examination in the municipal court yesterday afternoon, David Wright, Frank Callahan, Harry E. Pomeroy and Thomas Doran were bound over to await the action of the grand jury and committed to the county jail until able to raise $250 bail each.

Murdock McDonald was released from custody, there being no evidence connecting him with the Garfield avenue disturbance.

Mr. McDonald appeared in the municipal court this afternoon and put up $250 cash bail for David Wright and the latter was subsequently released from the county jail.

GETS WARM ONES

President Bryan Announces Signing of Great Players.

Pitching Department Will Be Very Strong—League News.

Large, romping streaks of gladness are palliating across the former grief-twisted features of the baseball fans.

Other teams of the Northern league will resemble so many blighted beings with a romantic past when they strike Duluth.

The maroons are beginning to look like real pennant chasers, and as a result the average fan talks of the future with so much enthusiasm that he sounds like a seltzer siphon.

An extra consignment of enthusiasm was jerked open today when President Bryan returned from St. Paul and announced the signing of three new players.

One of the new men is Jacob Volz, whose terrific No 66 round house curves won the New England league pennant for the Manchester team last season. He won nineteen out of twenty-five games pitched in that last organization and topped the season off with a batting average of .320.

Volz was secured from the St. Paul American association team, and the fan scribes are frantic with agony to think that Manager Kelley farmed him out to Duluth.

He and Dellar should certainly make good in the maroon twirling department. The latter distinguished himself on Sunday by shutting out the "Blue Labels" of Minneapolis without a hit in a nine-inning game. He is pitching for Stillwater temporarily and getting a great deal of valuable practice.

Duluth has also secured Marcan from the St. Paul team to play short. He is a fast infielder and a little above the average with the stick. Last year he played with the Winnipeg champions, and in fifty-seven games he made forty-four hits, scored thirty runs and stole thirteen bases.

Martin, now pitching for the Kansas City American association team will also wear the Duluth uniform during the coming season. He was with Crookston last year and the second best pitcher in the Northern league, Dellar being the first. Martin won twelve out of nineteen games, and out of 568 men that faced him only 129 hit safely, and but sixty-five scored. He struck out forty-five men.

Crookston lost the first game of the preliminary practice season Sunday, La Crosse winning on its own grounds in a twelve-inning game by a score of 2 to 1.

This indicates that Crookston is unusually strong, as the men went into the game with scarcely any practice against a team that had been defeating nearly everything in Central Wisconsin.

Fargo won three out of six games played against teams of the "Three-I" league.

* * *

Manager Lyons says that the Crookston team will consist of two catchers, three pitchers and the regular infield and outfield, without any utility substitutes. This puts the team down to twelve men.

* * *

Fargo claims to have a find at second in Pilcher, who has been doing good work in preliminary practice.

* * *

President Laxdal has announced the appointment of Steeve Cusack and William Ray on the staff of Northern league umpires.

* * *

Winnipeg is scheduled to play Eau Claire at Chippewa Falls today.

* * *

On May 17 the Duluth team will line up for the first real hard game, going against Stillwater.

FINE PREMIUM LIST.

The Minnesota State Fair Makes Liberal Offers.

Liberal premiums in all departments have characterized the offerings of the Minnesota state fair for many years, but this season's premium list, which has just been issued from the press, rather excels all previous premium schedules made by the society. Over $20,000 is offered to exhibitors. This is divided among the usual classes, but includes many additions, such as four or five premiums for a lot where before there were only three, or the insertion of new lots, or the actual increase of the amount of a premium in a standard classification. The list includes full details of the national exhibitions of the Herefords and Shorthorns, which will be features of the cattle division again this year. Among the interesting items in this department is a new class for Minnesota Shorthorns, in which outside breeders may not compete. H. F. Brown and N. P. Clarke have generously agreed not to enter their cattle in this competition, thus leaving it open for the smaller breeders of the state. Arrangements for the county exhibits have been made even more generous than heretofore, and for farmers' individual exhibits there are new premiums. The same is true of poultry, sheep, swine and other classes. The Minnesota state fair always pays its premiums promptly and is especially liberal in its treatment of exhibitors. It is believed that the revised premium list for 1903 will lead to much larger exhibits and that there will be a more general participation by all classes of people than ever before. Premium lists may be secured without cost by addressing the secretary of the fair, E. W. Randall, Hamline, Minn. The fair opens on Aug. 31 and continues to Sept. 5. Among the new buildings this year will be the agricultural implement building now being erected at a cost of $10,000, and the new swine exhibition building. Many other improvements are being made on the grounds.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and cathartics, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon for breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

SHOT THE CHUTE.

John Wolfe Narrowly Escapes Death Doing It.

Cooperstown, N. Y., May 5.—There is no danger that John Wolfe will forget his experiences in "shooting the chutes" down the steep side of Mount Utsayantha in Delaware county. The mountain is one of the most commanding peaks in the Catskills. Wolfe, who had been spending the day in mountain climbing, came unexpectedly upon a big trough or chute built down the mountain side and used for carrying wood from the heights down to a point nearly a quarter of a mile away, the lower portion ending about fifteen feet from the ground.

Wolfe found a flat stone, placed it in the trough, and seated himself on it. He began his journey by starting gently enough, but in a short distance had gained such speed that he became frightened and clutched in vain at the railings to stop his speed. With torn clothes and bleeding hands he shot with lightning speed down the long trough, out into space, and fell in a heap on the ground. He was unconscious when found, but, although his body was a mass of cuts and bruises, no bones were broken.

SHE WANTS $20,000

Because Two Burly Deckhands Abused Her Dogs.

New York, May 5.—Miss Virginia Laurenson of Baltimore is pressing a suit for $20,000 damages against the Chesapeake & Atlantic railway corporation because the employes on one of the steamers operated by the company forcibly took from her two pet poodles while she was a passenger on the vessel and removed them from the saloon to the deck below. The story of a witness, Charles K. Newman, was to the effect that Miss Laurensen held the two dogs in hand by means of a leash and was strolling on the saloon deck, when the guards approached her and announced that it was a violation of rules to have the dogs in the saloon or on the saloon deck. He advised that the animals be taken to the lower deck. Miss Laurensen resented this and declared positively that she would not permit the dogs to go below unless taken from her by force. Two deckhands made an appearance, and, upon requesting possession of the dogs, Miss Laurensen raised her clenched first and struck one of the men in the face. The deck hands then wrested the animals from her grasp and carried them away.

DOG WAS THROWN

From Car Window Into the River Below.

New Haven, Conn., May 5.—The passengers on the 2:30 o'clock train from this city to Ansonia yesterday afternoon were surprised to see Conductor Charles N. Phillips reach out to a woman passenger, grab her pet dog and throw it from the window into West river, fifty feet below. The conductor had just begun to collect the tickets. He reached out his hand to take the ticket from a woman in the first seat of the car and as he did so a bull terrier sprang from under the folds of her cape and bit Phillips, lacerating his wrist.

The wound was serious and as soon as Phillips reached Ansonia he had it cauterized. Then he returned to his home in this city.

There is a rule on the New York & New Haven road that dogs must ride in the baggage car. The owner of the bull terrier was trying to hide her pet to avoid this rule.

TAKE IT IN MAY.

Purifies the Blood as Nothing Else Can Do—Makes Makes Strong Nerves, Cures Disease.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Weariness, insomnia, impure blood, and nerve troubles make life a burden for our women in springtime. Accumulations of waste and morbid matters in the blood during the winter season have poisoned the life stream, causing the liver to become sluggish, and the kidneys are suffering and unable to remove waste and dangerous products from the system. It is now time for the sick and ailing to strike at the root of trouble. The month of May should be a time of recuperation and cure. The needed and blessed work can be successfully accomplished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that can correct unhealthy nerve action and feed the nerve centers with elements that will build them up into healthy tissues. Try Paine's Celery Compound this month if you are suffering, weak, languid and despondent; happy and blessed results will follow. Mrs. Rebecca K. Rowland, Lexington, Ky., writes as follows:

"Some time ago I had a very severe attack of Grip, and it left me with a cough. Then kidney and bowel troubles set in, and I became so weak that I reeled when I walked. I was so nervous I could scarcely feed myself, and could only sleep a small part of the night. I had doctor after doctor, but did not get rid of my ailments. I chanced to hear of some wonderful cures wrought by Paine's Celery Compound, and decided to give it a trial. I did so, and it cured me of my troubles. I thank God that Paine's Celery Compound was discovered; it made me strong, it made me walk, and it gave me sleep. People say to me: 'You look younger than you did ten years ago,' and I reply that Paine's Celery Compound did it with God's help. I shall praise Paine's Celery Compound while I live for all it has done for me."

REVIVALS ABROAD

American Evangelists Create Enthusiasm In Australia and India.

Crowds Flocked to Meetings In London For Three Weeks.

Chicago, May 5.—William E. Curtis in a New York special to the Record-Herald says:

Friends who have recently returned from England bring enthusiastic reports of the success of Reuben A. Torrey, superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, and Charles M. Alexander, "The Singing Evangelist," also of the Moody Institute, who last year started around the world upon an evangelistic tour to stir up the spirituality of other countries by the old-fashioned and unfashionable method of "revival meetings." They went first to Honolulu, then to Japan and China, where large congregations of natives and foreigners gathered to hear them, many of whom witnessed for the first time the Moody and Sankey plan of awakening religious interest.

Mr. Torrey is a Yale man, a scholar of profound learning and at the same time a commanding figure upon the platform and a magnetic speaker, which is an unusual combination. He is blessed with a vigorous constitution and his religion is of the same stalwart type. Mr. Alexander is a Chicago man—and the successor of Mr. Sankey in gospel song.

From China Mr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander went to Australia, where the clergy and laymen of every denomination united in co-operation with them, and for two months of more meetings were held several times a day in the largest halls and churches of Melbourne and other cities. The secular newspapers devoted whole pages to reporting them and Mr. Torrey's sermons were published verbatim in special editions of the religious weeklies of the several denominations. It is agreed that there was never so great a popular interest in religious affairs in Australia. In Melbourne Mr. Alexander trained a choir of 1200 voices—the largest ever gathered on that continent. A few weeks were also spent in India.

Upon their arrival in London they were met by a committee already organized to lay out their program—representing all the churches and including Lord Radstock, Lord Overtown and other men distinguished in politics, business and society as well as in church affairs. Their meetings in London continued for three weeks and then they went to Scotland, remaining a month in Edinburgh, a month in Glasgow and another month in Aberdeen with great success. Their meetings were interdenominational, the clergy of the established church of Scotland taking the lead.

Mr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander return to Chicago this month arriving there about the first of June when a reception will be given them at the Auditorium. They have arranged to spend August and September at Northfield, returning from there to England when they will spend October in Liverpool, November in Manchester, December in Dundee and then go to London for an indefinite stay. They have applications from thirty different cities in the United Kingdom.

CAR RUNS AWAY.

Several Were Hurt at Beaver Falls, Pa.

Rochester, Pa., May 5.—A Beaver Valley traction car bound for Beaver Falls, ran away last night and was wrecked. Conductor Charles Miller was probably fatally hurt, Motorman Roscoe Sheperd badly cut and bruised and six passengers were more or less seriously injured. It is thought the accident was due to wet rails, caused by a broken water main.

NINTH VICTIM OF ACCIDENT.

Detroit, May 5.—The ninth victim of Sunday night's accident at the corner of Canfield and Dequindre streets, when a Grand Trunk train struck a party of Polish excursionists from Toledo, who were boarding a Lake Shore train at the crossing, died today at Harper hospital. He is Joseph Szarluetta, aged 20 years.

CLEVELAND IS SILENT

Gives Impression He Is In Hands of His Friends.

New York, May 5.—A Herald reporter interviewed former President Cleveland at Princeton after Mr. Cleveland's return from St. Louis. The reporter says that in the course of the pleasant conversation which followed, Mr. Cleveland was given half a dozen opportunities to declare his attitude toward the presidential nomination of 1904, but he skilfully parried all questions bearing directly upon his own political future or that of his party.

If he regards himself as permanently out of the field of available presidential candidates, he studiously refrained from saying so or even from hinting that he prefers the classic retirement of his Princeton home to a re-entrance into the activities of public life.

If one might judge by the smile with which Mr. Cleveland greeted the reporter's frank reference to the words of former Senator Smith, of New Jersey, and of Norman E. Mack, of Buffalo, as fairly placing him in the field as the hope of the new democracy, then it is a fair inference that Mr. Cleveland regards himself to use the time-worn phrase of politics—as in the hands of his friends.

Mr. Cleveland spoke with sincere warmth of the magnitude of the St. Louis exposition that is to be held next year, and the spontaneity of the ovation he received there last Thursday.

"Surely, you cannot expect me to discuss the flattering things that warm friends are partial enough to say about me," Mr. Cleveland said with a pleasant smile. "I cannot consent to discuss politics, nor can I now say anything about the future of the democracy or the outlook for 1904."

Largest Ship In the World.

The new steamer Cedric, recently built, is the largest and probably the strongest vessel of its kind ever built. When she recently set sail from Liverpool for New York a large crowd saw it start on its first long journey. There is also a large crowd of people throughout our country who are daily witnesses to the facat that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters positively cures stomach, liver and kidney complaints, because it cured them. It will do as much for you, too, if you will only give it a trial. It positively cures headache, belching, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, nervousness, insomnia and malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to try it at once. The genuine is for sale by all druggists and general dealers. Don't accept any other.

Norwegian Trapper Had a Mania For Deer Hunting.

Sault Ste. Marie—Game Warden Chapman made public one of the strangest violations of the game laws of the state that has ever come to light. Last Thursday the department captured a Norwegian trapper whose cabin is located near Floodwood, Dickinson county, and who apparently is possessed of a deer killing mania. From information given by the man himself it has been his practice for more than a year past to kill deer whenever and wherever the opportunity occurred. Usually he left the carcass lying where the animal fell, no part of the hide or body apparently being considered worth carrying off. The department is confident that at least forty deer have fallen victims to the Norwegian's gun within the past twelve months. The deer slayer was brought into court, fined $500 and $55 costs and the department is now engaged in following up some clues against him. It appears his operations have been known to the department for some time, but direct evidence was hard to secure. His name is withheld for the present.

Menominee—The Diamond Match company has bought the entire business of the A. W. Clark Lumber company, the yards, dry kilns and factories, and engaged A. W. Clark as manager of the Menominee plant and general overseer of the match, block and box department in the United States and Canada. Extent of operations of the Menominee property will be determined shortly as to whether it will be used for local requirements only or for several match, block and box departments for western territory. In the latter case a large box factory will be erected.

Iron Mountain—Daniel Wheeler of Green Bay, Wis., a brakeman on the St. Paul road, is in a hospital at Iron Mountain with one leg gone at the knee, the result o fbeing run over by an engine in the Iron Mountain yards. One month ago he left the Green Bay Business college, where he had been taking a course in bookkeeping. Thinking that he would like railroading better than bookkeeping, he found employment on the St. Paul, three weeks ago, in the capacity of brakeman.

Bessemer—A Bessemer dispatch states that Watersmeet township is having a big fight on saloon licenses. A brother of the supervisor of the town wants a monopoly of the saloon business there and so liquor bonds were raised by the board to $6000 and only resident bondsmen accepted. Aside from the town officials, the town has not resident freeholders enough to make up that amount, its population being mostly transient railroad and lumbermen. Applicants refused have now begun proceedings to enjoin issue of license to the brother because his bondsmen are town officials, which the laws of Michigan prohibit from going on any liquor bonds.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Small Boy Rescues Two-Year Old Boy From Drowning.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Cavalier.—Mr. and Mrs. Date Stoughton recently moved to a farm a few miles from this place. The father was working some distance from the house when Rossie, a boy two years of age, stepped on a sack full of hay that covered a well, and fell into the water fifteen feet below. The mother was notified, but in her excitement was helpless. Ritchie, the 12-year-old son, then threw off his coat and shouting "I'll save him," slid down the ice-lined hole through which his brother had disappeared. He managed to clasp the log of the pump and down this he slid till within reach of his brother, who was struggling in the water, which was about five-feet deep. He raised him out of the water and held him there till his mother secured a rope and notified his father, when the two were pulled to the surface. Rossie was unconscious when he was taken out, but a few minutes work revived him. Ritchie has been the hero of the neighborhood since the accident.

Wheatland—Wheatland has two automobiles, owned by Banker Mares and August Buttke, manager of the Improvement company. There are the only two autos west of Fargo in the state.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Gary—The east-bound freight was wrecked one and one-half miles west of Gary this morning. It run into a cow and the engine and one car fell over a thirty-foot embankment. No one was injured.

Elk Point—E. W. Miller, of this city, secretary of the Lucky Strike Gold Mining company, of Deadwood, received a dispatch saying the company had struck a very rich vein at eighty-five feet. Nine assays show yields running from $22.40 to $101.60 of free-milling ore. A large share of the stock is held in this vicinity and the shareholders are much elated at the outlook.

Lewis Eleeson and S. D. Halliday have resigned their positions as rural carriers out of this city.

The Southern Dakota Association of Baptist churches will hold its thirty-second annual session in this city May 12-11 inclusive. A large attendance is expected.

For her sixth season Miss D. May Miller of this city has closed a contract as pianist for the Chautauqua assembly at Madison, S. D., during the coming summer. Joseph Hankin and Miss Louella Conly, violinists, have been engaged for one week each.

Milbank—Two prominent citizens and old settlers died Saturday, Andrew Cegal, aged about 83 years, and Charles W. Cannon, in his forty-seventh year. The former settled on a farm in this vicinity about the year 1879 and for years past has resided in this city with his children. Mr. Cannon also settled in this city in 1880, coming here from Buffalo county, Wis. He was the proprietor of a wagon and blacksmith shop and had been a member of the board of education for many years, and was re-elected at the late election. He was a member of the Masonic order and of the A. O. U. W. He leaves a wife and five children.

MORE ABOUT BACTERIA.

Claim They Cannot Survive In Healthy Blood.

Boston, May 5.—Immunity of the human body against generation of bacterial diseases furnishes a field for scientific research in which highly important discoveries have been made by Dr. Ralph L. Thompson of this city, who is about to announce to the profession the results of his labor.

For six months Mr. Thompson has been at work on this proposition at the city hospital and as a result will present to the profession a technique whereby the discoveries of recent years may be brought into a practical use in the combat against disease. In the light of what already has been found and which is nothing less than an analysis of what physicians vaguely term "Vital force," it is obvious that men need no longer remain in uncertainty about their own ability to resist the attacks of infectious diseases.

Susceptibility to such maladies as typhoid fever which poison the blood and disable the whole system, is declared dependent upon the condition of the blood at the time of attack, and not merely upon the presence of the infecting germ. In other words, it is now an acknowledged fact that when the blood is in its normal condition, it possesses the properties necessary to kill bacteria, and the condition of the blood may be determined in about six hours without inconvenience to the patient.

DR. FORBES CHOSEN

Elected Assistant Secretary of Methodist Board of Extension.

Will Require Him to Make Philadelphia His Home.

Dr. Robert Forbes, presiding elder of the Duluth district of the Methodist Episcopal church, is to leave Duluth.

At the annual meeting of the board of bishops, held at Meadville, Pa., yesterday afternoon, Dr. Forbes was elected assistant secretary of the board of extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Rev. Manley S. Hard.

The news of the appointment was received in a telegram to Rev. S. P. Long, pastor of the First M. E. church of this city, who has just returned from a three weeks' visit in the East. He now is somewhere out in his district attending his duties, and it is expected that he will also receive a telegram during the day notifying him of the appointment.

The change in his position will necessitate the removal of Dr. Forbes and his family to Philadelphia in the very near future.

Dr. Forbes' friends in this city and district will rejoice over his new appointment for it is considered one of the most important offices in Methodism in this country. The object of the board of church extension is to provide and handle the money that is used for building new churches, aiding established churches in paying their debts and lifting mortgages. During the year hundreds of thousands of dollars pass through the hands of the secretaries, of whom there are two. Dr. Forbes' associate secretary is an Eastern man.

The position to which Dr. Forbes is appointed came to him entirely unsolicited on his part. It was a position for which many prominent Methodist ministers from all over the country were professedly after and for whom their friends were working faithfully in every way. It was really a contest of the bishops of the East against the West, and the West won out. The other leading candidate was a New York pastor.

In his new duties Dr. Forbes will go before the annual conferences throughout the country, also the general conference, where his talents as a persuasive speaker will be felt. He will be brought into contact not only with all the prominent men of his own denomination, but with prominent religious workers from all over the world, peculiar fitness for the place will be appreciated by all who know him.

The vacancy in the presiding eldership of the Duluth district caused by Dr. Forbes' elevation will also be filled by appointment by the board of bishops. It is not known where the honor is likely to fall.

The board of bishops was expected yesterday to designate some one to preside at the annual conference to be held here this fall, but no word had been received in the city regarding the matter this morning.

Dr. Forbes' term of office as presiding elder of the Duluth district would have expired in October, and according to the rules of the church, no elder can continue to hold the office over the six-year limit. He was formerly presiding elder of the St. Paul district, and between the intervals was pastor of the Asbury M. E. church at West Duluth.

Dr. Forbes has long been a resident of Minnesota, and is known throughout the state as a man of wonderful power as a speaker and one of the ablest evangelists in the denomination. He numbers his friends by the hundreds and thousands, and there will be none who will not rejoice in his good fortune.

It is pleasing to note, too, that Dr. Forbes is enjoying better health now than he has had at any time in the past fourteen years.

Rev. S. P. Long, who was in Meadville during the canvass of candidates before the board of bishops, returned yesterday from a three weeks' visit in the New England and middle states, where he went for a rest and to meet old friends and acquaintances. He spent some time in Boston, Pittsburg and other prominent cities of the East, and has returned splendidly improved in health. Dr. Long says that the East has been undergoing the same bad weather that the Northwest has for the past week, but if anything the weather in the Eastern states has been even worse than here. He met a friend in the East who had just returned from a visit in Duluth, who said that Duluth was the only place in the country where they were having decent weather.

TO REPAIR BRIDGES

City Will Strengthen Those on West Duluth Line.

Double Truck Cars Can Then Be Ordered Installed.

The council last night—

Authorized an expenditure in repairing West Duluth bridges so that a double truck car service will be safe.

Received an engineering estimate for filling in ravines on West Duluth line now bridged.

Authorized negotiations for purchase of portable tar-macadam mixing plant for street paving purposes.

Referred proposition to resurface London road to a committee for futher consideration.

Approved the course of Mayor Hugo in employing special police during strike emergency.

Received a long petition from merchants asking for regulation of auction sales and street peddling.

Authorized board of public works to readvertise for cement walk building bids.

Received a petition for increase in wages from street laborers, who say they need $2 a day.

Authorized an investigation of application for saloon license at 612 West Superior street.

Voting unanimously the aldermen decided to expend $7078 in rebuilding the Oneota and Polk street bridges, thus removing the last obstruction to a double track service on the West Duluth and East End line.

It is proposed to rebuild underneath the street car tracks, on plans recently submitted by City Engineer Patton, and from a legal point of view the strengthening of these dangerous bridges gives the city power to compel the street railway company to intsall a thoroughly modern service.

Some time ago the street car company agreed to install such a service for West Duluth within one year if the city would agree to drop preparations to take the matter into court and not force the company to intsall double truck cars on the uphill lines for three years.

This proposition was virtually agreed to but the agreement has not been signed. The proposition brought forth a vigorous protest from Woodland residents, that insisted on having the three-year agreement as to the uphill lines stricken out.

City Attorney Mitchell has since looked the situation up and is of the opinion that by strengthening the West Duluth bridges, as planned by Mr. Patton, the street car company will not be in a position to make much of a fight in courts, so far as the down town lines are concerned, but that the city would have little right to compel the double truck car service on the Woodland line, for the reason the line there was built before there were any streets, and consequently the city does not exercise any franchise rights as regards the Woodland service.

Alderman Sang made a vigorous speech in favor of the appropriation for repairing the Oneota and Polk street bridges, and he was backed up in his efforts by Aldermen Kern and Barnes.

Ultimately it is proposed to abolish the bridge system on this line, but in view of the fact that such a change, which will be made by filling in all ravines with rock and earth, would cost about $65,000, it is evident that the bridges as strengthened will have to stand for several years.

City Engineer Patton says it will cost $9302 to fill the ravine at Fortieth avenue west and Oneota street, and $14,960 to fill the Forty-ninth avenue ravine. The opening on Central avenue, over Polk street, would cost about $15,571 to fill in.

Alderman Mannheim secured the adoption of a resolution instructing the city officers to advertise for bids for a portable tar-macadam mixing plant.

This is considered an important step in the campaign for the municipal ownership of a street paving plant under which it may be possible to pave Duluth streets with a preparation of Duluth rock and tar, by Duluth labor at 25 per cent less than the same paving could possibly be put down under the existing contract system, with the material furnished by corporations.

The proposed resurfacing of London road between Forty-sixth and Sixtieth avenues east created a great deal of discussion. Alderman Moore introduced a resolution authorizing the department of public works to make the improvement at a cost of not to exceed $6500, as soon as that amount of money should be available for such a purpose in the permanent improvement fund.

The two First ward aldermen made a determined fight for this improvement, but owing to a charter technicality it was referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks for further consideration.

* * *

Prominent merchants presented a strong petition against transient peddling and auction sales, characterizing such methods as ar. imposition on the public and a detriment to the legitimate business of men that had invested much money in Duluth to establish the city's permanent prosperity. A similar petition asked that hucksters be barred from doing business on the streets and avenues of the down-town district. Both the petitions were referred to a committee and will be reported on later.

City street laborers petitioned the council for a raise in wages from 22 cents an hour to 25 cents an hour, saying that it is impossible for a laboring man to live and keep his family for less than $2 a day under current rentals and the increased cost of the necessities of life.

Mayor Hugo announced the employing of three special police, under the authority of section 255 of the city charter, which provides that on occasions of large public gatherings, riot, unlawful assemblage or disturbance, temporary police shall be appointed for not longer than one week at a compensation of $2.50 a day.

Alderman McEwen criticized the appointment of these specials, saying the present labor strike situation did not justify it, and further contending that the specials were simply creating trouble. The course of the mayor was approved, however, with only Mr. McEwen voting in the negative.

The saloon license application for 612 West Superior street was held up. This is the building where two young girls were recently taken out of the basement by the police.

* * *

The board of public works was instructed to readvertise for bids for the annual cement walk building contract, owing to a misunderstanding in the original bids.

MURDER IS THE CHARGE

Oscar Anderson of Superior Is Arrested In Duluth.

Oscar Anderson, of West Superior, was arrested in the Union depot, of this city, yesterday afternoon, as he was about to leave this part of the country, on the charge of murdering Bernard H. Nassin, an aged shoemaker of West Superior, with whom he lived.

Nassin lived on Fisher avenue. He was discovered in a pitiable condition day before yesterday. He said there had been a quarrel over the payment of rent and that Anderson had struck him. Nassin's condition steadily grew worse and yesterday he died.

As soon as notified of Nassin's death the Superior police began to hunt for Anderson, finally finding him in this city in company with his brother, John Anderson, the two having procured employment tickets. John Anderson was taken into custody and may be charged with being accessory to the assault.

Oscar Anderson admits that he quarreled with Nassin over the rent, but denies that he struck the aged man or in any way caused his death. Anderson claims that Nassin was all right when he left with his brother.

Both of the Andersons have figured more or less in the police annals of West Superior.

The murdered man has a daughter residing in West Superior and another in Michigan. Other children reside at his old home in Switzerland.

THE LIBRARY BOARD.

New Members to Be Named Before Next Meeting.

The meeting of the library board occurred last evening at the library. The terms of Dr. C. L. Codding, W. H. Hubbard and Mrs. C. R. Keyes have expired and before the next regular meeting the reappointment of these, or the appointment of new members, will be made by the mayor.

The board has placed $35,000 worth of insurance upon the library, $20,000, on the books and $15,000 on the building. The insurance has been placed with the Little & Nolte company.

The annual report of the administration committee was read by the chairman of the committee, Dr. C. A. Codding, and in the records was placed a charming compliment that C. E. Seymour, who has been lecturing here for the past few weeks, gave to the management of the library. He expressed to members of the board that Duluth had reason not only to pride herself upon the beautiful building she had in the library, but equally upon the able and courteous management the institution had. During his stay in the city, not only was he given the books and references he desired, but given in a pleasant and deferential manner, no other business was taken up.

Lecture on Ireland.

The Elks lodge of Duluth has arranged for bringing Rev. Roderick J. Mooney here to lecture at the Lyceum Wednesday evening, May 27, on "A Tour in Ireland." Rev. Mr. Mooney is not unknown to Duluth people as he is a resident of the state of Minnesota and has spoken in Duluth. The Minneapolis Tribune said of his lecture delivered in that city:

"Rev. Mr. Mooney is a very interesting and fascinating speaker, with a clear voice, and is complete master of his subject. His lecture was illustrated with eighty views showing the historic buildings and places of Ireland. Starting with his audience from America the lecturer took them to Queenstown, then to Cork, Blarney Castle, through the Lakes of Killarney and to Kenmare. Thence to Dublin, of which city all the principal buildings were shown in fine views, and on through the Vale of Avoca and the Valley of Blackwater to Kilkenny, Limerick, with its old castles and bridges, was shown and the lecturer ended with several pictures of the city of Belfast, the most modern city of Ireland.

"Throughout the lecture the extreme poverty of the people of Ireland was depicted and with this the great evils of the land system under the English government, were explained."

GEN. CORBIN'S REJECTION

A New Explanation of the Metropolitan Club Incident.

Washington, May 5.—The Philadelphia Press prints what it terms the "inside story" of Gen. Corbin's rejection as a member of the Metropolitan club. It says two enemies of Corbin in the club made effective use of the old story that years ago Corbin worked off a bob-tailed flush for the real thing on another army officer and scooped in a nice pot. The incident is said to have led to a good deal of criticism of Corbin and to the vogue of the phrase, "one of the Corbin kind," in describing flush that lacked one card of the proper suit. According to the Press writer, the story is a lie. There was a game of poker at Schenck's and Corbin was in it. He did not win on a bob-tail, but did it fairly in a good bluff. But this is not the true story of the failure of Gen. Corbin to be elected to membership of the Metropolitan club.

Some years ago a man named Weightman, a member of the Metropolitan club, managed to secure appointment as secretary of the Vicksburg park commission with a salary of $200 a month. The commission has never had a meeting which Weightman attended and his job was therefore a pure sinecure. For years he drew the salary without performing any work. Finally the case was drawn to the attention of Secretary Root, and Mr. Root asked Gen. Corbin to look up the facts. Gen. Corbin did so, reported the result of his inquiries, and Secretary Root promptly disconencted Weightman from the pay roll.

Weightman has always blamed Corbin for the loss of that nice little salary so easily earned, and has been awaiting a chance to "get even." When the adjutant general was propsed for membership in the Metropolitan club, Weightman saw his opportunity and made the most of it. No great influence is required to "turn down" a candidate for admission when two votes out of fifteen on the board of governors are sufficient to reject.

SON IS FOUND IN A CIRCUS

St. Paul Boy Was Lost For Years and Thought Dead.

Portsmouth, Ohio, May 5.—"My God, there is my boy! Oh, it is years since I saw him! Will——"

But the noise of the bands of the American Water circus drowned the voice of A. A. Willard, of St. Paul, who, while standing on the curbstone, saw his son, clad in circus raiment, sitting upon a wagon in the parade.

Will is married. He and his wife, a pretty woman, rank high in the jugling and tight-rope walking profession, but his father never knew this. The son did not hear the father's cry, but after the parade the father followed the wagons to the river front and inquired for his son. He was not disappointed, for his son saw him coming on the big boats, and he was soon in his father's arms. The meeting was a most affectionate one.

William Willard disappeared years ago, having been overcome by the fascinations of circus life, and being a bright boy and a natural athlete he left a happy home for the tent arena.

Every effort of his anguished parents to ascertain his fate had been unavailing, and at last he was given up for dead, except by the hopeful mother. Years went by and William grew to stalwart manhood.

He and his wife are both star performers.

CHIP OF THE OLD BLOCK.

Young Archibald Roosevelt Creates a Sensation.

Washington, May 5.—Archibald Roosevelt's spotted pony Algonquin, which has figured conspicuously since its advent on the living floor of the president's private quarters by means of the levator, Sunday dashed up Pennsylvania avenue, with Archibald sitting astride of its back, a veritable picture in minature of the president himself. The avenue was crowded with people on Sunday parade, when, tearing up the avenue, came the president's young son astride of the pony and wearing a big Roush Riders hat of white felt, a black sweater with bands of red at the wrist and neck, a pair of corduroy trousers, tucked into yellow riding boots and a swirl and dash of the whip with every movement of the pony.

Close behind him came the president's footman, black Charley, a negro of short stature, doubled up on a bicycle, and riding far behind the speed limit on the city streets. Every one stopped to watch the riders, and young Roosevelt was perfectly aware of the sensation he was creating and smiled as he went.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new address.

THE STREET CAR SERVICE.

The city council has directed the repair of the bridges at West Duluth over which the street car line passes. This will remove the last obstacle in the way of putting the large double-truck cars on the West Duluth line. It has been claimed by the company that the bridges are now weak and unsafe and could not stand the weight of the large cars. With the repairs ordered by the council, this claim will be removed, and the street car company must give the service desired or invent some new excuse.

There has been much talk of improved service on all the lines throughout the city, and there have been several conferences between the railway company and the aldermen with a view of reaching an agreement as to the improvements to be made this year. Is it not time that this agreement was completed and made public? The people are anxious to know what is to be done, and they have a right to know. The repair of the bridges and the putting on of double-truck cars to West Duluth will satisfy that section of the city to a great extent. The people of the East End, of Lakeside and Woodland are also looking for better service, and they want it this year—not next year or three years hence. They look to the aldermen to insist on the building of the loop line connecting the East Superior and East Fourth street lines. This is a much-needed improvement and its construction would do much to give to the residents in those sections the street car accommodations that they should be provided with. The aldermen should not permit these matters to drag along.

Procrastination is evidently the policy of the traction company, and steps should be taken to force it to take immediate action on all the matters which have been discussed.

THE NAVAL DESERTIONS.

In view of the rapidly increasing number of desertions from the navy some experiments are to be made to try to make the life of the Jackie more pleasant. Secretary Moody has decided to grant a ten-days' leave of absence to all the sailors of the North Atlantic fleet, after the inspection at Hampton Roads. This leave is to be arranged so that each man will have ten days at his home the time going and coming not to count against him. The men have been saving a good deal of money since the fleet went South early last fall and it is believed that each has enough to buy a railroad ticket to his home with some money left over to have a good time in addition. Of course the department will not undertake to provide the men with railroad transportation. The old officers of the service shake their heads over this wholesale granting of leave and say that it will surely be followed by many desertions. They believe in tying Jackie tight to the ship and only letting him ashore for short periods. The whole thing is being done as an experiment, and the department looks for quite a few desertions. However, Secretary Moody is convinced that there is too much harshness and severity in connection with the treatment in the service, and this is one of a number of things that have been proposed in an effort to relieve some of the tension under which the men are forced to serve.

It is certain that something must be done to make the condition of the men on the warships more pleasant. The numerous desertions are a disgrace to the service, and there seems no good reason why they cannot be prevented by proper treatment of the men.

PENSIONS FOR LIFE SAVERS.

Although strong efforts were made at the last session of congress to pass a bill granting a pension and a retired list for members of the life saving service, nothing was accomplished in the interests of the brave men who risk their lives for those who brave the dangerous elements of sea and lake. Another attempt will be made at the next session of congress and it is to be hoped that something may be done. The life saver risks his life as often, if not oftener, than the soldier, and there is no reason why he should not be treated equally. A law which will be introduced provides that pensions shall be granted to members of the life saving service, their widows and minor children, according to the terms of the regular pension laws. It is provided further that superintendents in the life saving service are to receive pensions equivalent to those of a captain in the navy; that keepers shall be ranked with ensigns and that members of crews shall be ranged with seamen in the navy. The same bill also carries the retirement feature.

The men who are constantly on the alert to detect danger, and succor others even at the risk of their lives are certainly entitled to equal consideration with any of Uncle Sam's employes, and the bill should receive favorable consideration.

Joseph Chamberlain, who is regarded by many Englishmen as one of the cleverest politicians in Europe, owes much of his success in public life to the fact that he has splendid capacity as a business man. He is thus able to bring to bear on questions of high national or international importance the trained mind and clear perception of a man of affairs.

A Brooklyn man has invented an automobile of a peculiar type, with which he thinks it possible to travel over the ice and reach the North Pole. Now if all the automobilists could be induced to start on a race to the pole, the streets might be safer for common ordinary pedestrians.

The Atlanta Constitution has made up its mind that the real trouble will come when somebody tries to prove that St. Patrick was an A. P. A.

PERMANENT PROSPERITY.

Proof that the prosperity of the United States has come to stay is furnished by the increased use of home products, together with the large revenues of the government from customs far in excess of previous years. It is a well-known axiom of political economy that prosperity is indicated by the consumptive capacity of a nation. From all parts of the country come reports that the industrial establishments are working overtime and yet are unable to supply the demand, orders being piled up for months ahead.

During the twelve months ended with March the exports amounted to $1,114,000,000. There was a great increase in grain and cotton exports over last year's figures. A slight decline is noted in the exports of iron and steel, but the authorities find in this fact a striking evidence of prosperity, in that the home demand for these staples has increased and is greater than the output of all the foundries and factories working more days in the year than ever before. There can be no stronger proof of prosperity than this, and the fact that these industrial establishments now have orders that will keep them busy for many months, means continued prosperity.

O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics of the treasury department, says: "I have been studying the statistics of our commerce for twenty years, and I have never known the time in which they indicated a greater activity in agriculture and manufacturing, or in any of the producing industries, than at present."

The statisticians are not the only people who are sanguine in view of the present conditions and bright outlook and are making cheerful predictions. Men in all branches of trade and industry talk in a similar strain, and all authorities agree that the indications point to a continued prosperity in this country that assumes the form of permanency. Nowhere are these gratifying indications more noticeable than in the Northwest, especially in the territory tributary to Duluth. Industries of all kinds are active, retail and wholesale business is steadily growing, settlers are taking possession of the unoccupied lands, new towns are springing up, new manufactories are being started, and throughout the whole region there is a remarkable degree of industrial and commercial growth and prosperity.

LARGE AND SMALL BANKS.

The methods of banking have changed considerably in the past few years and there are many institutions in the large cities of the country today which do not care to do business with the "small man." That is to say, accounts not showing an average balance of $10,000 or $25,000 are not desired. The officers say that they are in the wholesale business, and have no time to throw away on the "little folks." For that reason one of the New York banks already declines personal accounts, cultivating principally such corporations as can show balances of $100,000 or more. Fifty thousand dollars is its average balance. While the $10,000,000 or $25,000,000 institution may be too busy to give the small borrower, special attention, there are plenty of banks equipped for such service. He will always find accommodation. As between 2500 small accounts and the same number of larger ones, the profit is relatively greater with those of moderate size on account of their stability the year round. An officer of one of the best managed banks in New York, that has built up an enormous business from a modest beginning, said that he had no use for "millionaire accounts," since they were sure to be drawn down to the last penny as soon as money ruled high.

Bankers who have studied the proposition point out that the bank of great capitalization would probably contribute stability in times of financial disturbance. Its influence might be exercised through efforts to relieve the strain of an overburdened money market; or by breaking money rates when they reached panic level. In these respects co-operation by such institutions would be of great value. The feature chiefly referred to in banking discussions over the danger of concentrating so much capital into few hands lies in the power it gives to a small coterie of men to tie up other people's money in their own enterprises. Power to do just this is admitted by the banks themselves to constitute one of the chief advantages of the "massing process," and in one instance at least has given rise to much friction because the president of a New York bank refused to accede to certain demands. The desire of banks to be able to furnish large sums of money has led to the merging of the most stable institutions of the country. Banks of enormous capitalization are needed primarily, one of their most important officers says, "for the purpose of financing great enterprises." This means ability to raise a $5,000,000 loan at one hour's notice without outside assistance; to supply a railroad with $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 whenever it wishes to increase its capital; to underwrite new flotations in heavy amounts; to finance syndicate operations in foreign bonds; to be ever ready to further the projects with which interests affiliated with the bank are connected; in various ways to do at short notice what a dozen different banks were formerly required to accomplish.

Banks capable of raising such vast sums necessarily exercise great influence. They have come to be a decided force in the community. But the $25,000,000 bank is in a certain sense still an experiment. Its mission is not altogether clearly defined. That is to say, it is difficult to see how the $25,000,000 bank is to render very much more service to the community than the $10,000,000 institution is capable of. Ten million dollars still ranks as a pretty heavy capitalization, and when you have to pay dividends on more than twice that sum your profits have to be enormous.

Many of the banks in the larger cities are corporation banks, although they do not refuse profitable mercantile accounts, but are intended for big deals rather than small ones.

Our grandfathers, says the Washington Post, used to have a cure for habitual drunkenness, which consisted in putting an old soaker in a place where he could not get away and then feeding him on nothing but alcohol-flavored foods. There was whisky in his coffee, his beef was smothered in burnt rum, his bread smelt of gin. Nine times out of ten a few weeks of this sort of thing would make the poor creature crave even starvation as a relief and hate alcohol with a deadly hatred.

This, from the Philadelphia Record, may hit off the situation about right: "There is no mystery about the president's attitude; no psychological expert is needed to explain his mental operations. As a man he knows the tariff ought to be reduced; as a president and an aspirant for the nomination next year he is in the hands of Republican leaders."

When the Presbyterian general assembly meets at Los Angeles this month, the revision of the "confession of faith" will probably be ratified. This will end a long-drawn out controversy.

Someone claims to have discovered the smallpox germ. Why not kill it off and end the vaccination controversy?

HOTEL GOSSIP.

R. L. McCormick, of Hayward, Wis., a prominent lumberman in northern Wisconsin and Minnesota and president of the Universal Milling company of Duluth, is at the Spalding hotel.

Mr. McCormick said that he had not been at Hayward for several weeks, and had only dropped off there within the past few days and he was not conversant with the affairs of the community.

"A party of surveyors was in the vicinity some weeks ago," he said, "and they were employes of the Wisconsin Central company. The line they ran, they told me at home, was headed this way, but what the company's plans are I do not know.

"There has been talk of an extension by the Wisconsin Central to the head of the lake country for a long time, and so every time a party of surveyors get into the community there is an instant rumor that the extension to Superior and Duluth is on its way, is started.

"There didn't seem to be any further rumors after the surveying party went, and I have heard nothing more regarding the appearance of the men.

"I have been at home so little this winter that I am not particularly conversant with the affairs at Hayward."

Mr. McCormick is here for a day or two, and it is his first visit in Duluth for some time.

C. A. Rickert, a Minneapolis traveling man, registered at the Hotel McKay this morning. In a long, flourishing hand, as if he were used to the book and owned the house.

There was a reason for the flourish and assumption.

Mr. Rickert was the man who opened the Hotel McKay, a year ago last Nov. 10. When the future ages dig up the registers of the Hotel McKay from some sub-glacier strata, they will find upon the first page of the first register of the hotel, the name, "C. A. Rickert, Minneapolis, Minn."

That is there will be characters that convey the idea to the present day mortal, who looks for characteristics and motive, and figures out the name from what he thinks inspired the scrawler. But it is doubtful if the future generation will read it, after it has been "cold" for a thousand years or so.

Manager McKay was telling this morning about the registration. There were three guests who came in, and they all wanted to register first. The register was not on the desk, for the house wasn't to be open until Thanksgiving day.

So each of them registered on a blotter and raced to get the memorandum in the hands of the proprietor. But about the time they were off their guard Mr. McKay produced the register, and Mr. Rickert, always alert, grabbed it and registered number 1.

He did it so politely, but so hurriedly, that he could hardly read it himself, when he came to pay his bill, and he has endeavored to follow the lines of his first signature, which was bad.

Mr. Rickert is spending a few days in the city in the interest of the Pillsbury Milling company, which he represents.

The "Loot" marched over to the corner table with an elastic stride and upon his countenance was the expression of a man who has solved some difficult question of life.

"Well," he said, heaving a deep sigh of relief, "I never knew before there was a tide in Lake Superior."

"What kind of a tide? A lunar tide?" asked the Judge, who had been seated for some time, pricking up his ears.

"A regular lunar tide like they have in the ocean," said the "Loot."

"Don't be foolish; don't act nutty," said the Judge.

"I know it's so, because a young lady told me last evening, and I never thought of it before, or I'd known it myself."

"Now look here, my boy," said the Judge. "There isn't any tide. When the wind blows from the East it piles the water in the harbor, and when it blows to the East, it blows it away from this end of the lake. But that's no tide."

"Well, I'm perfectly satisfied with what I found out, and we looked to see the water mark, when the tide was low."

"Now, I'll bet you $5 and we'll spend it for a large bottle, that there are no tides here on lake Superior," said the Judge, shifting uncomfortably in his chair and bristling up.

"Oh, I ain't betting on it," said the "Loot," "but I know, and that's all there is to it."

Shortly afterwards the captain came strolling to his seat, and he was told about it. The epitomy of his speech was:

"You are crazy in your head, and there isn't any tide, lunar or solar, and I've been on the lakes for forty years and ought to know. If there's a tide I'll drink the harbor dry."

The subject dropped until the next evening, and in the meantime the "Loot" had seen Captain Gaillard in the United States engineers' office. He had been informed that there was a drop and rise of about one one-hundredth of an inch, caused by the locking of water at the Soo.

"Well, I'm sorry I didn't bet," said the "Loot," as he took his chair.

"Why? What?" asked the Judge.

"Well, the engineers' office says there is a tide," said the informant pulling out his napkin and spreading it.

"What does the engineers' office know about it?" snarled the Judge. "A lot of West Pointers who have been here only six months. And now Captain Gaillard is going away (with a sneer). Perhaps he is going because of his discovery regarding the tide; Tommy rot!"

At this point the Captain and the Master Mechanic and the Railroad President came in and the discussion was carried on at all points. But the bet is off and authorities at Washington are being looked up on the tide question.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Pres: When a secret is not a secret is when it is a woman's.

The man who can't be fooled by a woman exists only in his own imagination.

Surely the recording angel is lenient with a man who has a big family-in-law.

What a girl loves about being a bridesmaid is that her blushes are all for somebody else.

A woman thinks she is having a real good time when she can find something to cry over without actually feeling bad.

But He Can Still Speak Softly.

Miwaukee News: It is suspected that Secretary Hay will need a bigger stick than the administration carries to pry open the closed door of Manchuria.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), May 5.—Pressures remain low in the Southwest and high in Eastern states. The Western Sanada "low" has been displaced by a high pressure area that apparently mixed in from the Pacific coast. Light rains fell over the upper lake region, the Red River valley and from thence Southwest to Texas, and over districts north of Montana and over South Carolina. It is cooler over North Dakota and Manitoba and warmer in the central valleys and most of the lake region. In the latter district the winds are fresh to brisk easterly on Superior and generally southerly elsewhere.

Local forecast for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 a. m., (local time), Wednesday: Duluth, West Superior and vicinity: Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, with probably occasional showers. Fresh and brisk northeasterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 5.—Forecast till 7 a. m., Wednesday: Wisconsin—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday, except possibly light showers in southeast portion tonight. Cooler tonight.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday. Cooler in southeast portion tonight.

The Dakotas—Generally fair tonight and Wednesday. Frost tonight.

Lakes Michigan and Huron—Fresh southerly winds, probably shifting to brisk northerly by Wednesday afternoon.

Lake Superior—Variable winds becoming fresh and brisk northerly tonight and Wednesday. Showers.

BASEBALL TIME.

The baseball days again have come,
The gladdest of the year;
Again the heroes known to fame
Upon the field appear.
The sage crowds are rushing in,
And stands and bleachers fill,
And over that great concourse sweeps
The old, ecstatic thrill.

The cranks and fans of all degrees
Are there to howl and scream,
And here and there a knocker wants
To back the umpire shot.
Adjacent roofs and poles display
Bold kids on perches high,
And to each knothole in the fence
Is glued a watchful eye.

At last the umpire takes his place,
To be the boss of all;
He swiftly glances 'round the field,
And then he yells "Play ball!"
The pitcher sends a twister in.
There's rushing here and there,
And whoops and yells and cheers make plain
The season's on for fair.

The umpire gets the same old roasts
He often got before,
And stinging are the taunts that come
From rooters who are sore.
A runner sprints from base to base,
He slides across the plate.
While rooters yell till they are hoarse
And thousands jubilate.

Each lucky hit is hailed with cheers,
The cranks jot down all feats,
And victory stirs frenzied fans
To tear up bleacher seats.
From start to finish there are thrills,
And when the game is won
The cranks and rooters spend long hours
In telling how 'twas done.

There are some other games, of course,
That men and urchins play;
There are some other heroes who
At times are feeling gay.
But they are all forgotten when
We come to baseball time
And see the diamond heroes up
Fame's shining ladder climb.

A VICIOUS PRINCIPLE.

Moorhead Independent: The differences between the Great Northern railway and their employes ought to be easily adjusted, as the only question is the use of double headers. There are only a few places on the road where this is necessary, and the road is now spending large sums of money in reducing the grades where double headers are now used. All the other requests for increased pay were promptly granted by the company, but the committee of the employes insisted upon the cutting out of all double headers.

The whole matter is an attempt to compel the company to employ more men, as two train crews would be necessary if the cars were moved in two sections, instead of one hauled by two engines. The demand is not made on the ground that it is more dangerous for the men, but simply to compel the company to employ more men.

This principle is vicious and there is no limit to the extent to which it might not be carried. What would the farmer think of the proposition that he could only use one team to haul a plow or a wagon? The principal is the same, save in one case it applies to a corporation and in the other to an individual.

The men ought to see that their position is an unfair one, as they ask the company to spend money for which nothing is received in return. No labor union should permit itself to stand in this position and the trainmen should not insist upon the abolishment of the double header clause. They will not have either the sympathy or support of the public if they vote to strike, for their demand is so entirely unreasonable

Both Are Noted Experts.

Detroit Free Press: An interesting debate might be held between Mr. Morgan and Mr. Carnegie on the steamer as to whether it really is more blessed to give than to receive.

William Knows a Few Things.

Brooklyn Union: Mr. Bryan approves the presidential candidacy of a man named Williams, which might not have been the case if anybody had ever heard of Williams.

He Can Become a Commoner.

Philadelphia Press: Col. Bryan says "a man can have money and be a Democrat." Perhaps, but how can a Democrat have money and not be a plutocrat Ah, ha!

Get the Hits Bunched.

Denver Republican: Apparently the only thing left for Col. Bryan and Col. Watterson is to accuse Mr. Cleveland of all the crimes we have been laying to Pat Crowe.

It Can't Be a Mint Julep.

New York Herald: That Chicago faction which wants Hill, Olney and Mr. Cleveland at one picnic must have discovered something extra in the way of a harmony drink.

Startling Innovation.

Baltimore American: The police commissioner of New York is a very remarkable man. He declined an invitation to address a political meeting on the ground that as he had issued orders to the force under his command to keep out of politics it was his duty to set them an example. Such consistency is novel enough to touch on the revolutionary.

IN THE HOUR BEFORE DINNER

By Elizabeth Sears.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Dorothy Marshall sank back in the big, cushioned, bamboo chair before her drift-wood fire with a sigh of content. She held a package of business papers in her hands. Dorothy always dreaded business details. It would be a real relief when Thurston should take it all off her hands. Meantime—the fire snapped and the embers glowed seductively.

She was tired. Positively worn out. Thurston had upset her so that afternoon. He had been so impetuous and she was not used to scenes. She dropped the papers in her lap and clasped her hands before her head. She loved the fragrant smell of burning wood. She loved to watch the dancing, brilliant flames that nothing but driftwood could produce.

She held out her dainty toes to the heat and lazily congratulated herself, as she admired them, that she had never adopted the mannish styles either of dress or of manners that so many women did. Tom had never approved of it.

Her clinging black dress hung in essentially feminine and well-built lines as she sat there; but it was not at all becoming. She did not look well in black, yet she had worn it faithfully, even devotedly, ever since Tom's death.

Her mother had spoken her mind plainly about it.

"You look like a fright in black," she had said, with the brutal frankness which is permissible to relatives. "Tom himself would not wish it if he knew how unbecoming it was."

Thurston had said almost the same thing that afternoon when he had asked her to marry him in a month and go with him to Japan.

"Tom himself would wish you to be happy," he had urged. She loved Thurston with every fiber of her being, but he was a man and could not understand her feelings about it.

Tom would wish her to be happy. That was just it. If he had been a brute or anything of that sort, it would be different. He had been more than good to her, always. She remembered, with a choke in her throat, all his affectionate little ways.

Thurston was not always quite reasonable. He had shown more than a trace of a horrid temper. He had been unnecessarily severe when he had denounced her reasons for delay as absurd, quixotic, unreasonable.

Surely it was not unreasonable to wish to show proper respect to one's husband.

Thurston, too, had reminded her of the fact that she had been a widow more than a year, that she had mourned her husband faithfully and with sincere grief.

She felt a thrill of conscious virtue at the thought. Not many women would have worn black so constantly and so long when it was so unbecoming. She had really been very fond of Tom. Not, of course, as she loved Thurston; no one could expect it. They were so different. She could not help but love Tom. He had been so good to her. He had loved her so completely.

"I had his every thought," she murmured. She remembered the day he had brought her home the very chair she sat in, especially for her comfort. And even when he had gone to Japan that time he had been so worried about leaving her. She had wanted to go. She had always longed to see Japan, but Tom had been so tied down with that tiresome business he had thought the trip might not be pleasant for her. But he had promised to go again just to take her, the dear boy.

The Grantleys had gone in the same steamer. Mrs. Grantley had told her how worried and busy poor Tom had been. If she had known the Grantleys were going at that time she would have gone too. She would have enjoyed the trip with them even if Tom had been too busy and occupied to take her about. Dear Tom. He had never encouraged her intimacy with Helen Grantley. She was not his style of woman, though she was undeniably handsome and brilliant in a Cleopatra sort of way. She was so popular with most men. But Tom could never bear any woman who made herself noticeable in any way.

"No woman ever suited him so well as his brown-eyed, womanly wife." How often he had said that. Tom had never dropped his loving ways. True, they had been married but two years, but she had known men who had been positively coarse to their wives in far less time than that.

It was so odd that Thurston would not understand the way she felt. It would be so mean, so disloyal to poor Tom to forget him so soon. No—not to forget him, exactly; she would never do that—but to live and be happy and be loved while he—no, decidedly, Thurston must wait. Men were so selfish, the best of them.

"If you love me," Thurston had said, "do not allow a mistaken impulse of conscience to keep us apart." Conscience! It was but a simple act of justice to the dead. Tom would have been inconsolable if it had been she who had died. He had so often told her she had filled his life so completely.

How angry Thurston had looked when she had refused to marry him so soon. Still she had never admired him quite so much as when he had gone away with a black frown on his handsome face. He had slammed the door, too. One only slams a door as a last resort.

How fortunate she was to be loved by two good men. It was so puzzling to know just how to decide. Of course if Thurston insisted she might shorten the waiting six months——

A cinder snapped and flew out on her knee. She roused herself to a realizing sense of her surroundings. She shivered and she listened to the muffled fall of the snow against the window and seemed suddenly cold. A mysterious, hardly defined sense as of some overwhelming emotion, exhilarating and yet depressing, surged through her.

She half rose as the feeling became stronger, more tense. She seemed waiting—waiting for a decisive blow to fall. Tom—Thurston—Japan. All were revolving through her and about her in a raging flood of sensation. The papers dropped from her nerveless hands.

"I have been half asleep, mooning over the fire," she said, nervously, rising and trying to shake off the strange influence that possessed her. "I am all unstrung. I will not look at these papers tonight."

She crossed the room to her desk. It was Tom's desk, and she loved to use it because of that. She drew out a drawer in it sharply. It was one she seldom used. A little bundle dropped from a recess behind it. "My picture," she said, wonderingly, as she bent to take it out. "Dear Tom, he always kept my pictures and my letters."

Her eyes glowed with tender tears. "If I loved Thurston twice as much I would still bear your name a little longer, dear, after this," she murmured, softly, holding the bundle to her cheek.

A moment later she stood as if carved from pulsating wax. She had seen the face in the picture. It was not her face. Staring boldly back into her startled eyes was the laughing face of Helen Grantley. She opened the letters. Ah! what they revealed.

A surging wave of fierce, uncontrolled anger swayed through her. It was the anger which comes to a woman when she first learns that she has been deceived where she has loved and trusted. She crushed and bent the smiling lips in the picture as her clenched hand beat impotently at the empty air.

The flames in the dying fire flashed up once, twice, as they greedily wrapped about the food she flung them. She looked at the calendar on the desk and made a rapid calculation. Then she wrote a note.

"But not to Japan," she thought, bitterly, as she sealed and addressed it. "Never there."

And I took him by the hand,
And I said: "How's Irish drama now,
And how does she stand?"

For the wearin' o' the grin."

The Butcher Man's Moan.

With grab uncouth and grimed face marked
With many a furrowed line;
With tear and high moan he said,
"My name is Christian Klein.

"I was an east side butcher, sir,
For many happy years;
A false love slaughtered my fond hopes—
So pray excuse these steers!

"Oh, fickle Katie Dinkelspiel!
Why for you did I yearn?
Why give to you my fresh heart, and Ask skewers in return?

"I said I'd carve my way to wealth;
She vowed she'd marry me.
Infatuated I! the time
How brisket seemed to flee!

"But she proved false. One day she wrote—
It was no tenderline—
"I love the baker, and I am
Frankerfurter own it, Klein!

"I liver lone for him, and oh!
He finds his knead in me.
I never sausage such love as his!
He suits me to a T!"

"I read, then cried, 'She's tongue me deepl
A viper have I nursed!'
Oh, sir, of all bad cuts I've had,
That was the very worst!

"One thought is branded in my brain—
Your pity, pray, allow—
Were my poor head she fondled once,
His head cheese pressing now!"

Then paused the uncouth butcher man,
And fierce his eyes did glare;
And, closing tight his brawny fist,
Right furiously he swarc:

"False Katie Dinkelspiel!" he cried,
"I'll haunch ye till I die!
But saddle be my lonely lot!"
"Pork Christian Klein!" quoth I.

The good man dried his tearful eyes,
And said, "It's hock beer time;
Oh, sir! Oh, could you favor me
Bolognaning me a dime!"

Mme. Yale's Almond Blossom Complexion Cream

GREATEST TOILET LUXURY MADE

Cleanses, softens, purifies, whitens and beautifies the skin. Soap and water only cleanse superficially; a little Almond Blossom Complexion Cream should be applied every time the face and hands are washed. It removes the dust, soot, grime, smut and smudge from the interstices of the skin and makes the surface smooth as velvet. A daily necessity at home and abroad; a treasure when traveling by land or water, or when on an outing of any kind, and particularly prized at a seaside or mountain resort. Protects the skin from cutting winds, burning rays of the sun and every injurious effect of the elements. Prevents and cures abnormal redness of the nose or any part of the face, and that purplish hue due to exposure to cold, also chapping, chafing, cold sores, fever blisters and all irritation of the skin. It is the greatest known specific for burns; takes the fire out more quickly than anything else, soothes, heals and prevents scars and suppuration. Indispensable for use of infants and every member of the household. An exquisite natural beautifier. A grateful application after shaving. Excellent for massage purposes. SECOR'S DISAPPEARANCE.

Winnebago City Cashier Last Seen In Milwaukee.

Winnebago City, Minn., May 5.—The deepest mystery still surrounds the disappearance of S. S. Secor, cashier of the Faribault county bank of this place.

On Friday evening, April 24, he left home for Milwaukee on a business trip, expecting to return the following Monday. He registered at the Plankinton hotel early Saturday morning and stepped out, since when nothing has been seen or heard of him.

His grip was found at the hotel and the police and detective department of Milwaukee and Chicago have been working on the case, but so far not the slightest clue has been found.

The books and business of the bank have been thoroughly checked over and found to be in excellent shape. An incipient run was promptly quieted as soon as the facts were ascertained.

The Secor family has resided here for fifteen years, and is wealthy and prominent in business and social matters.

The National Clothing and Shoe Co.,

EFFECT OF MERGER

Duluth Shipper on Virtues of Northern Securities Company Case.

Power It Would Give Mr. Hill to Build Up Northwest.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Now that the courts have passed on the merits or rather demerits of the case of the government versus the Northern Securities company, possibly it will not be amiss to point out some of the virtues of the Securities company's case. The control of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern placed in the hands of the Securities company, even although competition between the two roads would have been utterly annihilated (although there never was any great amount of aggressive and ruinous competition between them on account of the conservative policy of the Northern Pacific) would have meant much to the Northwest from Lakes Michigan and Superior to the Pacific ocean. It would have meant that Mr. Hill, always a friend of the Northwest, would have developed this section of the country to its fullest possible extent unhindered by any one. Competition or no competition, the healthier the condition of the country and the more prosperous the inhabitants thereof, the better for the railroads, and Mr. Hill saw this years ago and acted accordingly. We would, therefore, have seen the North Pacific coast and all the intermediate territory developed as never before and much of the commercial supremacy of the Golden Gate moved to the North, possibly Seattle. Who is there that will say the Southern Pacific has not had matters pretty much its own way in the Southwest, even the advent of the Santa Fe railway in California being of little or no benefit to force that company to adopt its policy and tactics? Not so, with the Great Northern always aggressive and fearless, pushing ahead until it was able to force recognition form its strong rival the Northern Pacific, who working together under the Northern Securities company were to do much for the Northwest. We saw this worked out in practice when the Northern Securities company tried to divert much of the government business from the San Francisco to the Seattle gateway. Then it was that Mr. Harriman fought frantically for the supremacy even as he did that morning in May, 1901, when he and his friends purchased control of the Northern Pacific at such a fancy price. Had there not been merit in the cause of the Northern Securities company, would Mr. Harriman have fought so fantastically to purchase Northern Pacific stock, to whose hands the management of the property will revert should the decision of the circuit court stand? Can anyone believe that Mr. Harriman acted in a purely patriotic and unselfish role, or was it not because he realized almost too late the plans of J. J. Hill? Who wants to see a condition of affairs existing in the Northwest such as has been practiced in the Southwest for years by the Southern Pacific?

In the summer of 1898 there was adopted by the trans-continental freight rate committee, then meeting in Milwaukee, a most iniquitious freight tariff to all Pacific coast territory—California in particular. This tariff was fathered, practically compiled, by the California jobbers and agreed to by the Southern Pacific company after the latter, entering into an agreement with the former, to force the acceptance of such tariff on the other trans-continental lines were in return to receive all westbound business for their Sunset Route—even the water routes from the Atlantic seaboard, via the Straits of Magellan to San Francisco, were to be forsaken, all in the interests of the California jobbers and the Southern Pacific. This they could well afford to do, for under the provisions of the tariff it was absolutely impossible for jobbers of the Middle West, Louisville, St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis or Duluth to make shipments to Pacific coast terminals, San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles, California, Portland, Ore., Tacoma and Seattle, Wash. As soon as this condition of affairs was brought to Mr. Hill's attention, and he had opportunity to inform himself properly on the subject, he directed his traffic managers to adjust their tariffs so that the Middle West jobbers could make shipments to the North Pacific coast—Portland, Tacoma and Seattle. In addition to this the two Northern lines also adopted the practice of graded rates, that is, Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth were given the benefit of a lower rate to North Pacific coast terminals than all territory east of Chicago, although previous to this time the rates were the same from all Eastern territory, including the Middle West to Pacific coast terminals. This action was bitterly opposed by the Pacific Slope jobbers, aided and abetted by the Southern Pacific, but to no purpose. The Southern Pacific would not adjust or reduce the tariffs to California, and no amount of pleading or urging on the part of the Middle West jobbers could get them to recede from their position or contract entered into with the California jobbers. Consequently, the Business Men's league of St. Louis instituted proceedings against the Southern Pacific and all California trans-continental lines before the interstate commerce committee in November, 1899, to compel such lines to reduce their tariff to the same basis as that of the Northern lines. This case was stubbornly contested by the jobbers of the Middle West on the one side and the California jobbers on the other, again and as usual ably seconded by the Southern Pacific. After a period of two years the interstate commerce committee rendered a decision which was really not a decision, but suggesting enough inconsistencies in the tariff to warrant the different interests in getting together and agreeing on a basis of settlement. One of the benefits derived by the Middle West jobbers was the privilege of mixed carload shipments of wire, nails and staples under commodity rates, which formerly was provided for in straight carloads only. This was also true relative to mixed carloads of sheet-iron, including corrugated iron.

The Northern lines immediately adopted this ruling to all of their territory, including Idaho, Eastern Washington and Montana, but the Southern and Union Pacific have only come in so far as they were obliged to do so to meet the competition of the Northern lines into Montana common points and Spokane common points, the arrangement not applying to intermediate points or points in Utah, Nevada and other Southwestern states.

Another instance of the broadmindedness of the head of the Securities company was when, several years ago, he adopted the practice of allowing a differential on trans-continental rail and lake traffic from all territory east of Lake Michigan to North Pacific coast points. This was a very substantial reduction in rates, forcing business from east of Chicago from the all-rail routes to the rail-and-lake routes via Buffalo and Cleveland to Duluth, thence via Great Northern and Northern Pacific. This meant that a shipment originating at Pittsburg, Pa., and taking a rate of $1.25 per 100 pounds all-rail, would take a rate of $1.14 per 100 pounds rail and lake, and that the lines up to Duluth would receive their full proportion, while the lines west thereof absorbed the differential of 11 cents per 100 pounds. The Union Pacific and Chicago Railway and Navigation, also Harriman lines, soon published the same rates to the territory affected, but never have extended the privilege to California terminals, a most likely thing for them to do. Of course the Southern Pacific owning its own line of steamers from Boston, New York, Philadelphia and all Atlantic Seaboard territory to Galveston and New Orleans in connection with its Sunset route, prefers to see the business go that way.

This, in a measure, illustrates the spirit of the president of the Northern Securities company. It has been his policy in the past, and it is only fair to assume that he will be as liberal in the future. His interests are in that vast domain known as the Northwest, and he is broad minded and sagacious enough to see that that section does not suffer, for in so doing, it means pecuniary loss to himself.

As head of the Northern Securities company, embracing the Burlington, Northern Pacific and Great Northern, Mr. Hill would have had it in his power to build up the Northwest wholly untrammelled by any man or combination of men.

RICHARDS COMING

Land Officials and Attorney Much Interested Because of It.

To Look After Opening of Chippewa Indian Reservation.

The approaching visit of W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office, to Duluth, is a topic of considerable discussion among the local land office attorneys, land office officials and others interested in the opening of the Chippewa Indian reservation.

It is believed that the commissioner's visit is for the purpose of completing the arrangements for the opening of the lands for settlement. Timber estimators have been at work on the lands for months past and their work is now about completed.

The local officials have been instructed to forward certain information to the department at Washington to be used in connection with the advertising for bids for the timber. This they are now collecting and it will be forwarded to Washington during the coming week.

The sale of the timber lands is to be advertised for six months and should the information be acted upon promptly by the land office at Washington it is thought that the advertising will commence June 1, which would allow the sale to be held December 1. This would enable the purchasers to conduct logging operations during the winter months.

The opening of the agricultural lands for settlement is expected to closely follow the sale of the timber lands.

"The visit of the commissioner may have something to do with the division of the districts," said Receiver Smith, of the local land office. "It is not likely, however, that any change in the present plan will be made at this late date and it appears that the efforts of Duluth citizens have been in vain. The official note received yesterday was signed by order of the president and is final. It is likely, however, that the commissioner hearing of the discontent in Duluth and knowing of the many stone and timber claims that are being held up here decided to make this an occasion for his visit and come to Duluth to make a general survey of the situation in addition to making arrangements for the opening of the reservation."

TO DIVIDE STUNTZ TOWN

Matter Is Coming Before the County Board.

The petition from the taxpayers from the town of Stuntz asking for a division of the town will be presented to the board of county commissioners this afternoon, and it is likely that some early date will be set for the hearing. Stuntz has an area of more that forty square miles and embraces all of 57-20, 57-21, 58-20 and 58-21. The claim is made that many of the residents have to go too far to reach the town hall, and the proposition is to divide the township so that Hibbing will be in one portion and Chisholm in the other. This would place sections 1 to 30 in 58-20 and sections 1 to 30 in 58-21 aside in the new township to be formed.

It is understood that the project does not meet with unanimous approval among the residents of the township, and that opposition will develop at the hearing.

The commissioners will probably set the date of hearing for the proposed division of school district No. 27, the petition for which was presented a month ago and laid over at Commissioner Connor's request.

GREEN GETS A PARDON

State Board Allows Carlton County Perjurer His Freedom.

Sheriff Butchart has been notified by the governor of the full pardon of Albert Green, of Carlton, who was convicted of perjury in the dustriet court of this county and who was sentenced to serve a year in the state penitentiary. The pardon was granted by the state board of pardons on condition that Green pay a fine of $50, which it is understood he will have no trouble in raising. Green has been out of jail on bail ever since his conviction, bonds being furnished by his friends.

The crime of perjury which he committed was in making a false affidavit when he took out a marriage license, the woman he wished to marry not having been divorced six months, the period required by the state law. The Carlton county officials knew the circumstances, and through them the matter was brought to the attention of the county attorney and the grand jury. Green's defense was that he did not understand the oath he was taking when he applied for the license.

THE STAGE.

A well filled house greeted "Finnigan's Ball" at the Lyceum last evening. The plot of the play but served as an excuse for the introduction of a number of specialties, good, bad and indifferent. The energy which the players put in their work, however, and the brisk lively manner in which the play was carried through covered a multitude of sins.

• • •

Tonight Tim Murphy, the delightful comedian, will appear before Duluthians at the Lyceum. On this occasion the admired comedian will be seen in the popular comedy "The Carpetbagger," in which he plays the imported governor of Mississippi. It is one of those native types in which Murphy excels. The play was written especially for him by Opie Read, the novelist, and Frank Pixley whose "King Dodo," "The Prince of Pilsen," "The Burgomaster," have made his name celebrated all over the English-speaking world. Charming Dorothy Sherrod is with Mr. Murphy and the balance of the large company are able players. He brings a stunning production and the costumes have been carefully prepared in harmony with the qualnt styles of the period.

• • •

"The Lady of Lyons," the prettiest and most romantic of the plays given by the Ferris comedians, was produced at the Metropolitan opera house last evening to an appreciative audience. The story is a familiar one to theater-goers. The cast is strong throughout and the costuming and scenic effects are good. The leading characters are taken by Miss Carrington as Pauline, G. A. Forbes as Claude Melnotte, Thomas Clarke as Beausant, Jack Ferris as Col. Damas and Albert Dorris as Glavis.

In the specialty line Lang and Lang continue to please in their comedy turn and Bundy and Wilson, a new team appear for the first time in clever singing and dancing turns.

TO CHASE SQUATTERS.

Move Being Made By Lower Park Point People.

Owners of lower Park Point property, in the district not yet platted, are taking active steps this spring in forcing squatters either to move off the premises or procure leases. The government work at the lower end of the Point this summer will cause quite a demand for homes in that region by the men employed on the work, besides the Superior people who usually spend part of the summer on the Point opposite Old Superior. A large part of the lower Point property is owned by the Sargent estate, and W. C. Sargent, as agent for the estate, is giving the matter especial attention this season.

IT WOULD BE DISASTROUS

Strike on the Great Northern Would Cripple Business.

Grand Forks, May 5.—The vote of the railroad men on the strike proposition on the Great Northern is arousing intense interest among business men. The fact that Grand Forks may be said to be strictly a Great Northern town makes the situation more grave here than in other places where several roads are bidding for the business. A strike would be disastrous to the entire northern portion of the state. There is an immense business to be handled this summer before a bushel of grain is hauled. The crop prospects are so promising that the merchants are carrying bugger stocks than ever before. Building operations promise to be more active than they were a year ago even, and this necessitates the hauling of an immense amount of material. The contractors all over this section of the country have taken contracts for an immense amount of work, and if a strike should be declared they would be subjected to no end of annoyance.

While statements have been made from time to time since the negotiations between the employes and the Great Northern officials were broken off and the word for a vote started, as to what the vote would be, none has been founded on anything but guesses. Among the employes who have been interviewed on the northern division there is still a well-defined hope that a settlement may be effected.

It is generally felt that the whole controversy has many of the elements of making a mountain out of a mole hill, and that both the Great Northern and employes have acted too stubbornly. It is felt that neither has taken into consideration the rights of the general public, and that the question in dispute is a trivial one compared to the consequences to this section.

Iowa Woman Meets Death Under Peculiar Circumstances.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 5.—A remarkable example of death under peculiar circumstances occurred in Sac City on Sunday evening. There are a number of members of the Free Methodist church in the city, and, as there is no church of the denomination in the city, it is their custom to meet at the homes of the members and have prayer meetings every Sunday evening. Th meeting was at the home of Mrs. C. F. Sprague, a prominent lady of the city, a long-time resident of the state. Mrs. Sprague had just offered a fervent prayer and a song was being sung in which she joined; but it was observed, when she was well into the second verse, that Mrs. Sprague ceased suddenly, and her companions rushed to her side only to find her dead.

SHOOTING OF MARCUM

Was the Outcome of an Old Political Feud.

Lexington, Ky., May 5.—Just after he had finished filing papers, reopening the contested election cases of Breathitt county, James B. Marcum was shot and killed by an unknown assassin yesterday.

He fell in front of the entrance to the court house at Jackson, Ky., and never spoke, death being almost instantaneous. He fell within a few yards of where Town Marshal James Cockrell was shot down in July, the assassin being stationed in the court house in each instance.

Marcum was counsel for the fusionists who are contesting for the offices of county judge, sheriff and other places now held by the Democrats.

As a result of his efforts and his sympathy with the Cockrell faction in the Hargis-Cockrell feud, he had for a year been generally regarded as a "marked" man.

Various plots to assassinate him have been reported and sworn to in affidavits. For seventy-two days last fall he was a prisoner in his own home, not daring even to go out on his porch. The bitterness of the feud somewhat abated, however, and the election cases were allowed to sleep until Monday. Despite warnings Marcum felt safe in resuming his interrupted practice sometime ago and felt secure in filing a motion to reopen the cases which had imperilled his life months before. Yesterday he went to the court house at Jackson and the papers were filed.

He walked from the clerk's office to the front door of the court house, and facing the street, engaged in conversation with Benjamin Ewing, a friend. The corridor, stretching out to his back, was full of men. Ewing was half leaning on Marcum's shoulder. The men had been talking about three minutes when a shot rang out in the rear corridor.

Marcum staggered and as he sank to the floor another shot was fired. The first bullet entered the back to the right of the spinal column, and passing through the breast and body struck the door facing him. The next shot passed through the top of his head and was aimed as he reeled.

The shots appeared to come from a doorway or possibly from behind a door in the corridor, but as the passage was quickly cleared amid great confusion, no one seemed able to state accurately where the assassin was located. A telegram from County Judge Harris, received last night, states that the assassin is still unknown, after a diligent search, and no arrests have as yet been made. Marcum's body lay for ten minutes untouched. Even his friends feared to approach the place. It was finally picked up by friends and carried to a drug store opposite and from there taken home. Some say they saw the assassin run out of the rear door, and it seems certain that he made his escape that way during the confusion following the shots.

It is generally believed that the assassin was recognized by some people, but no one has thus far had the courage to name him.

Marcum was a trustee of the Kentucky college, United States commissioner of his district and represented the Lexington & Eastern railroad and other large corporations. He had practiced law in Breathitt county for seventeen years. He had avoided feuds and until he took charge of the election cases, which involved the Hargis faction, had been a friend of members of both factions. For three months, beginning last July, he did not leave his home, and after that for months was always accompanied by his wife and women friends or carried one of his children with him for protection.

FAILURES IN APRIL

Insolvencies Less Numerous, But Large Increase In Liabilities.

Not Regarded as Indicative of Any Reaction In Business.

New York, May 5.—Reports to Dun's Review from the branch office of R. G. Dun & Co., in the United States and Canada show that bankruptcy returns for the month of April are very satisfactory as to number, failing more than 100 short of the failures in the corresponding month last year, but as to amount of defaulted liabilities the exhibit is exceptionally unfavorable, owing to a few failures of unusual size, particularly among manufacturers. Exclusive of banking and railway insolvencies, all strictly commercial defaults during April numbered 750 with liabilities of $11,811,967, compared with 855 in the same month of 1902, when the defaulted indebtedness reached only $7,359,341. In manufacturing lines there were 212 failures for $6,396,295, as against 220 last year with liabilities of $2,908,817. Trading bankruptcies were 492 in number and $4,586,595 in amount, which compares with 580 failures involving $3,947,455 a year ago. In other commercial lines, not properly included among manufacturers or traders, there were forty-six defaults with liabilities of $829,077, as compared with fifty-five failures for $503,069 last year. There were four banking and loan association suspensions with an aggregate indebtedness of $71,000. This compares with a similarly good exhibit a year ago, when there were but three defaults involving only $72,600.

The number of commercial failures in April each year, and the amount of liabilities are compared below:

	Number.	Liabilities.
1903	750	$11,811,967
1902	855	7,359,341
1901	763	5,571,222
1900	705	5,703,809
1899	995	5,780,096
1898	927	9,267,892
1897	941	17,013,477
1896	1,040	12,887,626
1895	999	10,906,459
1894	1,050	13,336,404

Not only were liabilities larger than in the corresponding month last year, but they were fully double those of April, 1901, which was an exceptionally light month as to insolvencies. In addition to generally sound business conditions at that time, there was the influence of a buoyant stock market, and an almost universal upward movement of quotations. In manufacturing the April insolvency statement was particularly depressing. Not only were liabilities greater than in the corresponding month of any year since 1897, but exceed any month of the past five years, with the single exception of December, 1900. This is explained by the disasters for twelve manufacturing failures for over $100,000 each, with an aggregate indebtedness of $4,271,820, or over two-thirds of the entire loss in the 212 failures of this class. One default alone involved $1,886,375, an agricultural implement manufacturer of the West. Most of the other large failures were at the East, the South reporting fewer heavy defaults than usual. Even after deducting the failures for $100,000 and over, in order to prevent distortion of the returns and secure a representative statement for the bulk of ordinary-sized disasters, there still appears a larger average to each failure than in most other years.

Liabilities of commercial failures in the United States for each month are compared below:

	1903.	1902.	1901.
January	$12,978,979	$14,312,501	$11,220,811
February	10,997,454	11,902,029	11,287,211
March	10,468,000	8,117,228	9,195,464
April	11,811,967	7,359,341	5,571,222
May	9,109,840	7,990,423
June	10,173,317	10,539,559
July	6,932,851	7,005,533
August	8,068,625	9,438,866
September	10,031,258	8,241,372
October	10,851,534	10,080,627
November	9,276,716	9,070,446
December	11,941,029	12,780,441

All things considered, failure statistics for the year thus far are not indicative of any reaction in business, although the total defaulted of liabilities makes a poor comparison with preceding months. Exceptionally high rates in the money market during the winter made it difficult to carry weak concerns through, and there has been somewhat more pressure on account of the high cost of materials and labor. Moreover, there is always a tendency to excess during a season of prosperity, and it is to be expected that a considerable crop of these ill-advised ventures will be harvested in the near future.

Canadian failures during the month of April numbered sixty-two with liabilities of $509,826, as compared with seventy-seven defaults last year involving $584,480. Manufacturing suspensions were fifteen in number and $207,338 in amount, compared with twenty defaults for $147,992 a year ago. Trading insolvencies in the Dominion of Canada were forty-four in number during April, with agregate indebtedness of $299,388, which compares with fifty-seven defaults for $434,388 last year. In other commercial branches of business, not properly embraced with two chief divisions, there were three failures for $2100. Relatively speaking, more especially in comparison with the corresponding period last year, the April insolvency return for Canada was much more encouraging than that of the United States.

PRINCESS HAS DAUGHTER.

Lindeau, Bavaria, May 5.—Princess Louise of Saxony has given birth to a daughter.

Princess Louise deserted her family at Salzberg last December and eloped with M. Giron, the tutor of her children.

A recent dispatch from Berlin says that a Saxon court official with a physician and nurses was at Lindau, having received royal orders to bring the princess' child to Dresden three weeks after its birth.

BID HIGH FOR FRANCHISE.

Los Angeles, May 5.—A street railway franchise, covering slightly over two miles on Sixth street from Figuero to the western limits of the city was sold to G. C. Johnston yesterday in the city council for $110,000, after some lively bidding for the privilege between Johnson, the Los Angeles Railway company and the traction company. Johnson declined to divulge his backing, but it is commonly presumed that he was acting for the so-called Clark-Harriman syndicate, who are supposed to be behind the blanket franchise application.

A STRANGE STORY

Of Certified Check For $130,000, Which Was Never Found.

Deacon White Had to Make Good the Amount.

New York, May 5.—Deacon Stephen Van Cullen-White, of some fame in the financial vortex, and for years the mainstay and support of Lackawanna in the stock market, had two pretty Irish girls in his home, one as maid and the other as waitress. They were so bright, honest, agreeable and clever that almost any favor they might have asked would have been granted. Through Mrs. White they approached the "Deacon" in the interest of a young brother in Ireland, whom they wanted to import if their master would employ him in the office of S. V. White & Co.

"You girls are so good that your brother cannot be bad," said the broker. "I will send for him and give him a chance."

The boy was green, of course, but willing and smart, and in a short time was made confidential messenger for the firm, with an increasing salary. His only bad habit was an inclination to take an occasional night off with the boys and turn up at the office next day with blear eyes and hands shaking. Mr. White had noticed this tendency, and cautioned the young man.

One of Mike's duties was to make deposits in the bank at a quarter of 3 in the afternoon. The firm's accounts were kept in the First National. He had never slipped up in the performance of this task, and his employers had every confidence in his integrity, notwithstanding his occasional "left over."

On a certain day Mike started out with several thousand dollars in cash and a certified check on the Fourth National bank for $130,000. This check represented a deal in which some large firms were interested, notably Charles J. Osborn and H. B. Claflin. On the way to the bank he paused to look at a new drain pipe that had been placed in a building in course of construction, and an acquaintance who happened to be there asked for a piece of paper on which to make a diagram. Mike carelessly handed him some loose scraps from his coat pocket, then hurried on to the bank, which he reached at 2:55.

His cash was right, but he could not find the certified check. He told the bank officers that he had started with it, he felt sure, but it had disappeared. He hastily returned to Mr. White and informed him of the loss. White was much concerned. It is no light thing to lose a certified check for $130,000. The office was turned inside out. Word was sent to the various banks to look out for the check. The detective bureau, under Byrnes, at that time, was informed, and an alarm was sent out.

Mike told just where he had been on that afternoon, whom he had met, where he had stopped, etc., but no clew could be found. The acquaintance who had borrowed a piece of paper was placed under surveillance, but he could offer no assistance. The piece of paper he had drawn a diagram on, and afterward had thrown it on the ground or into the drain pipe, he did not remember which.

Claflin's interest in the check was $40,000, Osborne's $30,000 and White's $60,000. The Fourth National bank sent word to White that it would hold him directly responsible for the full amount, which, of course, it was legally bound to do. Equally, of course, the "Deacon" acknowledged the obligation, and made no protest when Claflin and Osborn intimated that they also would look to him for satisfaction should the check be cashed.

It is said he sent his personal checks to Claflin and Osborn for the amounts due them, then waited patiently for the certified bit of paper to turn up. The Fourth National bank insisted on holding $130,000 of his money for six months, at the end of which time he released it.

This incident occurred nearly twenty-five years ago. Nothing has ever been heard of the check. It probably went into the drain and fed fishes at some sewer's mouth.

AT CLOQUET.

Cloquet, Minn., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—F. P. Hunter made a trip to Duluth Monday.

Ben Chainey and Nelson Boncher and family leave here today for the Pacific Coast, where they expect to make their future home. Mrs. Chainey and children will follow in the near future.

Miss S. Walker left on Monday for St. Paul for a short visit.

The Ladies' Episcopal Guild was entertained today in the guild room by Mrs. W. L. Case and Mrs. A. J. Grant.

Mrs. C. D. Harrington, of Scanlon, was shopping in the city on Monday.

C. F. Beaupri has removed his drug store from Arch street to 311 Cloquet avenue, known as the Longtin building, and recently vacated by Rogers Bros. The room left vacant by the drug store will be renovated and turned into barber shop, bath rooms, etc., and will form part of the Northern hotel.

The Oddfellows celebrated their Eighty-fourth anniversary on Saturday evening with a reception and dance. About 100 couple responded to the invitations and spent a most enjoyable evening. The Cloquet band furnished the music for the dance, which was given in the Elm hall, after which a delicious lunch was served in the I. O. O. F. hall.

Philip Sarazin has purchased the barber shop owned by Nelson Boncher on Broadway, which he will lease to I. N. Peterman.

V. Swanson has accepted a position as clerk in the grocery department of the Northern Lumber company's store.

C. L. McNair made a business trip to Brainerd on Monday.

R. D. Musser, of Little Falls, was the guest of C. L. McNair over Sunday.

Quite a little excitement prevailed in town Sunday morning when it was discovered that F. P. Thompson's boarding house had been ransacked by burglars and money and jewelry had been taken. To date no arrests have been made, but an individual who arrived in town on the late train Saturday night and who, after applying at the Northern hotel, was sent to the Thompson house for lodging, is strongly suspected, as he failed to appear next morning and no trace of him, as yet, has been found. The theft is supposed to have been done while the family were at breakfast.

SUGAR MEN WIN.

Government May Have to Return Large Sums.

New York, May 5.—An important decision was handed down yesterday by United States Circuit Court Judge Townsend, which, if confirmed by the United States circuit court of appeals, will cost the government many hundreds of thousands of dollars in rebates paid to sugar importers.

In 1898 the American Sugar Refining company and other concerns appealed from the action of the collector of the port in assessing duty on a certain test of sugars imported, the assessment being made under the official polariscopic test returned by the appraiser.

The importers protested to the general board of appraisers, claiming that the government's polariscopic test was erroneous and excessive, owing to an alleged incorrect method of testing as prescribed by the treasury department. The board confirmed the collector and the importers brought suit, claiming that, under the new provision of the act of 1897, the government methods of testing by polariscope had resulted erroneously and in the consequent exaction of excessive duties.

Judge Townsend decided that the government method of testing introduced in 1897 was improper and should have conformed to the practice formerly followed.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Philippine commission has put a premium on matrimony by making an increase of $15 (gold) per month in the salary allowances of married officers of the constabulary. The increase is for commutation of quarters. There are many bachelors on the force.

The Great Northern flyer east-bound No. 2, was wrecked Sunday morning near Troy, Mont., by an unlocked switch. The baggage car, two coaches and a sleeper were ditched. Passenger were shaken up badly and one man's shoulder was cut open, but railway officials state that no one was seriously injured. Traffic was delayed about eight hours.

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me.

"Better health is all I wanted, and cure if possible. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. Life seems new and sweet to me, and everything seems pleasant and easy.

"Six bottles brought me health, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick women as your Vegetable Compound, and I advocate it to my lady friends in need of medical help."—MRS. B. A. BLANCHARD, 422 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

A Severe Case of Womb Trouble Cured in Philadelphia.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been cured of severe female troubles by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was nearly ready to give up, but seeing your advertisement I purchased one bottle of your medicine, and it did me so much good that I purchased another, and the result was so satisfactory that I bought six more bottles, and am now feeling like a new woman. I shall never be without it. I hope that my testimonial will convince women that your Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine in the world for falling of the womb or any other female complaints."—MRS. MAY CODY, 2660 Birch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Her address is Lynn, Mass., her advice is free and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it.

SWINDLERS ARRESTED

British African Finance Company Is Charged With Fraud.

New York, May 5.—Central office detectives and postoffice inspectors yesterday raided the handsome offices of the "British African Finance company" in Wall street, and arrested John J. Prince, his son Joseph Prince, and Horace Blackmur, on charges of grand larceny and the fraudulent use of the United States mails. The concern is said to have victimized many persons by the sale of bonds and stocks of the Nokanna company, limited, owning extensive diamond fields in South Africa which, with the company, are said to be purely mythical. According to the circulars issued by the British African Finance company members of the nobility figure among the officers and directors.

Sir Frederick Cammington is named as president. Sir Percy Sanderson, the British consul general, has informed the police here that no such person exists. The other officers are given as General Edmond L. Wallon, vice president; Cameron Edwards, secretary; Hansell Taylor, treasurer, and the board of directors consists of Sir Frederick Cammington, chairman; Sigmund Rothschild J. Cammeron Rogers, Thomas Kanney Brown, Baron Heinrich von Prall, Hon. Edmund L. Wallon and Sir Charles Noble.

The police say they have a letter from Sir Percy Sanderson in which he says there are no such persons in London, like has also written to the postoffice authorities that he believes the company to be a fraud. John P. Austin is named as manager of the British African Finance company, but the police think him a myth, as they have never been able to come upon him during their investigations.

The chief complainant against the concern is William Bush, of New London, Conn., who says he corresponded with the company and was referred by them to various firms, which the police say were mythical.

One reference was the British bank in South Africa. Bush wrote them and got a reply but later learned that no such bank existed.

The detectives found a list of about 200 names of customers of the company, and a number of letters from people who acknowledged receiving small dividends. Among them were A. W. Askne of Twinsburg, Ohio; Dwight Loomis, Hartford, Conn.; E. J. Grimes, South Hadley, Mass.; John P. Gage, Fall River, Mass.

The concern is supposed to have been running about seven months.

CAREER OF PERKINS

Exemplifies What Industry Can Do to Advance a Man.

Morgan's Trip Abroad Places Scepter In Perkins' Hand.

New York, May 5.—With the departure of J. P. Morgan for foreign lands in pursuit of recreation and art treasures, the scepter of the king of finance passes into the strong hand of George W. Perkins. Strange, is it not, that a man who five years ago was scarcely known in the financial world is today known in every financial center in the world. Perkins is a man of ability, of genius, of industry.

Mr. Morgan in the last few years has proven to the world at large that the industrial and financial world has been to him as a checker board. Railroads, rolling mills, forges, banks, trust companies have been as the pieces set upon it. His has been the masterful hand which has made every move. His genius for combinations, his ability to win in the great game of finance is spread on the records of contemporaneous times. He knows the value of combinations; he knows the value of men. It is in these personal assessments of values of properties and of men; it is in these personal combinations of properties and in these combinations of men which Morgan makes, lies the secret of Morgan's power. Perkins attracted Morgan. Morgan needed a man like Perkins, and hence the invitation of J. P. Morgan & Co. to Perkins to enter the great world famed banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Not one of the great controlling financiers of today began life with the proverbial silver spoon. Glance them over: John Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, William C. Whitney, Thomas F. Ryan, James Sullivan, John McCall, P. A. B. Wiedner, Charles F. Barney. Why name more? George W. Perkins was no exception to the rule. He began life as an employe of an insurance company in Chicago.

It was a small beginning. Industry, perseverance, careful acquisition of knowledge made him valuable. He tossed aside clerical work to enter the more profitable field of insurance solicitation. His work as a solicitor was remarkable. He read men like a book, he learned their secret thoughts, he sold them insurance where other agents failed. He became the manager of a territory with Chicago as headquarters. His agency became so strong, his agency forces so well organized, his territory so extensive that the home office authorities feared their indefatigable manager might organize a company of his own. They bought him out and made him the Western superintendent of agencies.

It is related that Superintendent of Western Agencies Perkins was riding west from the New York office when a telegram was put in his hand stating there was a vacancy, the superintendent of Eastern agencies was dead. The train was in motion, moving from the station. Perkins seized his valise, jumped on the platform and bought a ticket back to New York.

On the following morning the president of the company was surprised to receive a visit from Perkins. He quickly made known his mission. It was that there should be one superintendent of agencies, and his name should be George W. Perkins. The argument was to the point. He was appointed.

Dark days came to the company. William C. Whitney, David B. Hill and others started in to reorganize. John A. McCall, comptroller of the Equitable and late commissioner of insurance, was to be the new president. Mr. McCall had no experience with agents or agencies. Perkins undertook to secure the proxies from stockholders. He did so. When the company was reorganized John A. McCall was president and George W. Perkins third vice president. Then the knowledge acquired by Perkins began to tell; for years his energy, genius, industry, was absorbed by the New York Life Insurance company. He made it the great company it is today.

European governments, jealous of the American life insurance companies, decided to bar them from doing business. Perkins went abroad. It was not long before his skill as a diplomat revealed itself by government after government admitting Perkins' company to do business. He negotiated successfully a Russian loan, taking it away from the Rothschilds and J. P. Morgan & Co. Morgan wondered and then sent for Perkins. Result, George W. Perkins became a member of the firm.

Financiers in Wall street rubbed their eyes. But it was only for a short season. At conferences of great importance the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. was represented by George W. Perkins. Old men soon discovered in the young financier a skillful, earnest, thoughtful, able man. His information surprised them; his resourceful suggestions astonished them. They realized Mr. Morgan in seeking a partner in Perkins had acted with that keen, clear foresight which has always characterized him.

Today George W. Perkins is one of the most talked of men in Wall street, and exercises an influence in the industrial and financial worlds unequalled by any man of his age. In the natural progress of events he must become the foremost figure in the financial world. His is a wonderful career, and one that should tend to stimulate the ambition of American youth.

DULUTH WOMAN

Injured In Wreck of Great Northern Express.

Kalispel, Mont., May 5.—A complete list of those injured in the wreck of the Great Northern express near Troy yesterday shows that fully a dozen were hurt, while two may die. Conductor Learney, in charge of the train, was badly cut about the head. The list of the remaining injured is as follows: Mrs. Helen A. Chorchowski, Duluth, internally injured; H. W. Johnson, Spokane, shoulder dislocated; H. Kilroe, Grand Forks, N. D., head badly bruised; George S. Koglund, Rossland, B. C., head badly cut; Thomas Kain, Wines City, Mich., ribs fractured; Mrs. Wray, Toronto, Ont., hip badly cut; Dr. W. C. Valentine, Spokane, hip cut and head bruised; Gus Cochrane, Coville, Mont., shoulder dislocated, may die; Mrs. Wilson, Sioux Falls, N. D., hip dislocated, may die.

DEVOURED BY SHARKS.

Coatzacoalcos, Mex., May 5.—Three unknown men who were bathing in the surf near here yesterday went out about 200 feet from the shore and were devoured by sharks. People on the shore witnessed the tragedy, but could render no assistance.

EARTH AS CURE

For Mortal Ills Is Idea of Self-Appointed Doctor.

He Uses Herbs In Conjunction With the Damp Soil.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 5.—Wet earth is the latest cure for all ills. Jacob Marshall, of 4601 North Fifth street, 75 years old and a self-appointed doctor, since he was 9 years old, applies the earth in liberal dabs to the affected parts of the body and trusts to the generosity of his patients for his fees. According to his own story the number of patients treated daily runs from 100 to 190.

Besides the wet earth applications, Marshall prescribes liberal doses of herb teas, hard and fast rules for the taking off, hanging up and putting on of garments, the greasing of parts of the body with his "special soap," and, most important in his eyes, total abstinence from what he terms "the doctor habit."

"Above everything else keep away from the doctors," he said to a boy with a congenital malformation of the foot. "They are only after your money like they are after everybody else's. Doctors is a-killin' of more people than anybody knows on. I'll cure, an' cure you right."

Before the correspondent and the lame boy were called into the "doctor's" combined office and operating room they were made to wait for some time in an anti-room lighted by chapel windows and furnished with half a dozen long benches. The building, which is divided into the office and the anteroom, has the outward aspect of a small church. It stands at the back of a large lot. Four small one-story buildings of the packing box school of architecture are grouped in the front of the lot. They comprise the "doctor's" residence. Fruit trees in blossom and a truck patch in a high state of cultivation add to the value and appearance of the property.

The general neatness ended at the threshold of Marshall's office. When the correspondent and the little lame patient entered it a wheelbarrow, filled with fresh turf, stood in one corner. Folds of wet canvas covered the earth and kept it moist. Beside it was a large wooden tray, in which were more than fifty balls of earth. Each ball was still moist and each apparently had been used during the morning in the treatment of patients. It was then only a little past 9 o'clock.

The "doctor" wore, by way of professional distinction, a cap of dark blue stockinet, the baggy end of which fell with a rakish air to one side of his gray head. A snow-white chin beard and a clear complexion gave to him the appearance of an English farmer.

The lame boy was invited to sit on the high "operating" stool that stood in the middle of the room. The correspondent seated himself on a battered old cot at the side of the room. About his head dangled bags of herbs bearing such legends as "Stomach Up" and "Legs Down." A big cat, the very type of a familiar for the practitioner of a mystery cult, disputed the possession of the cat, but was finally called off by his master.

After the boy had told of his affliction and the old man had cautioned him against the medical fraternity the treatment commenced without any attempt at examination or diagnosis.

"Take your stocking off of the bad leg," said Marshall. "Take off your undershirt, too. Now, every night turn them inside out, this way, and shake them three times out of the window."

As he spoke he shook the garments out of the half-opened office door.

"After you've shook the clothes well, hang them over the back of the chair, like this. Always be sure to hang them the same way and be sure they ain't disturbed through the night. Monday, Wednesday and Saturday nights wash the bad leg with my special soap. On Saturday nights rub the soap on thick and don't wash it off."

Marshall then took a handful of herbs from two bags, apparently selecting the bags at random, and gave directions for making an herb tea, which he directed the boy to drink three times a day for three days, and on the fourth day to drink all that remained. His treatment was called to a cold and fever from which the boy was suffering.

"Yes, I see that," he said. "This'll fix him up." He picked up a piece of common rock candy from the midst of the dirt on an old table and put it in the boy's mouth.

"It's all covered with grease," whispered the lad as he spat out the disgusting morsel when the old man's back was turned.

"I can cure anything," Marshall declared. "My mother, who knew all these things, showed me, and at the age of 9 I began to treat people.

"How many come to me regularly? From 100 to 190 a day. My wife often has to turn a whole carful of patients away. They come from all parts of the city. Most of them come in my regular office hours, between 5 and 8 in the morning."

A Thoughtless Druggist.

ONLY a thoughtless druggist would offer a preparation without the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when Castoria is called for; the "delicate, faint and flickering light" that joins baby's life to its devoted parents being too sacred, to the self-respecting druggist, to be trifled with.

For over thirty years Mr. Fletcher has given, and still gives, his personal attention to the preparation of Castoria. It has won the confidence of mothers and physicians everywhere—never harmed the tiniest babe. This cannot be said of Imitations, Counterfeits and the "Just-as-good" rot.

The thoughtless druggist only offers the counterfeit because of a few pennies more profit. Any new preparation can be but an experiment, and they are experiments—mere guess work—irrespective of what their sponsors may say for them. It is experience of over thirty years, against wild and injudicious experiment.

Hints To Advertisers

The keenest advertisers are realizing the benefit of getting their copy in early, thereby securing the advantages of The Herald's iron range editions.

Printer's Ink: The capacity of the business concern that advertises judiciously and continuously is invariably limitless.

The more merchants who advertise a given business, the better for each one individually. The first life insurance company had the whole world to work on; there are hundreds of companies now, and each does considerably more business than the first.

Persistency is one of the strongest factors of successful advertising. Some of your arguments may fail, but eventually some particular one will gain for you a permanent customer.

Rummage sales are very popular. If you want to buy, sell or exchange anything, try the for sale column of The Herald.

The Evening Herald — everybody reads it.

Excellent positions are constantly being secured by those who use Herald "want ads."

Have a rummage sale of your own by trading something you have for something you want. A Herald "want ad" will do it.

Mahin's Magazine: The history of John Wanamaker's rise in the business world—his humble beginning with a stock of goods in a wheelbarrow, subsequent renting of a small store, years of persistent effort and rugged honesty—is a matter of common knowledge. An item of great interest to advertisers, relating to that sagacious merchant, is the announcement that Mr. Wanamaker is to have a new $5,000,000 department store in Philadelphia on the site of the old establishment. The building will be fourteen stories high. Work has already commenced at dismantling the Juniper and Market streets end.

When completed, the structure will be the epitomized, outward manifestation of a successful career, and will emphasize the fact that the man who achieves must be the man who does things well. In truth, John Wanamaker's new emporium will be a veritable "monument" to advertising that pays.

"There was a man in our town, and he was wondrous wise,
He swore by all the fabled gods he would not advertise.
But he was advertised ere long, and thereby hangs a tale—
The ad was set in nonpariel, and headed
'Sheriff's Sale!'"

The Herald is for the home, and gets into more homes than all the other Duluth newspapers combined.

RUMORS OF DAMAGE

Wheat Has Advance on Disquieting Reports From Southwest.

The Export Demand Is Light—Flax Market Advances.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 5.—The wheat market opened lower today under the effect of lower cables, but the market quickly cut loose from foreign influences and advanced sharply. The top prices were receded from somewhat, but the close was at higher prices. The crop news from the Southwest was the factor which brought the strength. St. Louis was the buyer and was spreading crop damage reports with much assiduity. Hessian fly and damage by frost were the disquieting things which they rumored as existing. The expert demand was not very good. In the local market there was nothing doing in foreign business, but a small amount was sold to Eastern millers. New York reported 22 loads of wheat and 12 of corn worked for export. Yesterday, ten loads were worked for shipment to Italy.

The Liverpool market closed with a decline of ½@¾d lower. Paris ½c higher to ¼c lower, and Antwerp unchanged.

Bradstreet reported a decrease of 4,752,-000 bus. in the world's visible supply of wheat against a decrease of 6,954,000 bus. last year. Primary receipts of wheat were 334,000 bus. last year 771,000 bus. Shipments 568,000 bus. last year, 212,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 258,000 bus.

In the Liverpool market, corn closed unchanged to ¼d lower. July corn in Chicago was higher, advancing ¼-¾c and July oats advanced ¾c. Primary receipts of corn were 435,000 bus. last year, 87,000 bus. Shipments 350,000 bus. last year, 296,-000 bus. Clearances were 93,123 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 1,231,000 bus in the world's visible, against a decrease of 994,000 bus last year.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was quiet and the market very strong. May opened ¼c off at 76½c and sold up to 78¾c within an hour, falling back then to 78c at 11:30, and closing steady and closing there, an advance of 1½c. July opened ¼c off at 76½c, sold up to 78¾c at 10:35, reacted to 77¾c at 10:50, and held steady there, closing at that price, an advance of ¾c. In Chicago July advanced ¼-⅝c, and May was unchanged. In Minneapolis July advanced 1¼c and May ¾c. In New York the advance in July was ¾c and in May there was a decline of ½c.

Cash wheat prices opened unchanged to ¼c over May for No. 1 northern, but before the close it fell to May price. No. 2 northern sold at 1½c under.

Flax was fairly active and strong, both May and July advancing 2c. Shipments of flax are heavy.

Following are one closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard 80c; No. 1 northern 78c; No. 2 northern 76c; May No. 1 hard 79½c; No. 1 northern 78c; July 77½c; September 76¾c. Flax in store $1.12½; May $1.12¾; July $1.13¾; September $1.15; October $1.15; November $1.14½. Oats on track 33½c; to arrive 33c; May 35½c; Rye on track 56c; to arrive 56c; May 56c. Barley 32@45c.

Cars inspected: Wheat 16; last year 20; oats 1, flax, 9.

Receipts: Wheat 10,832; oats, 478; rye 2144; flax 20,000.

Shipments: Wheat 192,500; Rye, 13,-773; flax 415,123.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Easier on Lower Cables; Firmer Later.

Chicago, May 5.—Wheat opened easier on lower cables, July being ¼ to ¼c lower at 75¾ to 75¾@¾c. Locals were the best sellers, while the buying was credited to the leading longs, who took enough May and July to cause a firmer tone to the market, and July advanced to 75¾c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 126 cars, which with local receipts of 62 cars—1 of contract grade—make total receipts for the three points of 188 cars, against 172 last week and 151 a year ago.

Good buying by local traders on reports from the Southwest of damage by fly caused a strong feeling, July closing at the top with a gain of 1⅝@⅞c at 75¾c.

Increased receipts and better grading caused an easier feeling in corn at the opening, July being ⅛c to ⅜@⅝c lower at 44⅝@⅝c to 44⅞c. There was but little trading early in the session and steady cables in spite of the decline here yesterday, resulted in a better feeling, July advancing to 44⅝c. Local receipts were 318 cars with 38 of contract grade.

The strength in wheat helped corn and the close was strong with a gain of ¼@⅜c for July at 44⅝@45c.

There was a continuation of yesterday's feeling in oats at the start due to improved weather conditions, and to the increased receipts and opening prices were easier, July being a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 31⅜@31½c. Trading was quiet, but the market became firmer in sympathy with other grains. Local receipts were 211 cars. Smaller receipts of hogs than anticipated with higher prices at the yards gave a steady tone to the provisions market with the opening, but trading was light and featureless. July pork opened unchanged at $17.15, lard was a shade higher at $9.20 and ribs 2½c higher at $9.45.

Close: Wheat—May, 78¾c; July, 75¾c; September, 76¾@¾c. Corn—May, 43⅝@⅞c; July, 44⅞@45c; September, 44⅜@45c. Oats—May, 33¾c; July, 31⅜@32c; September, 29¾c. Pork—May, $18.50; July, $17.05; September, $16.62½. Lard—May, $8.90; July, $9.06; September, $9.05. Ribs—May, $8.30@32½; July, $9.32½; September, $9.25. Rye —May, 56c; July, 56c. Flax—Cash, N. W., $1.12; S. W., $1.09; May, $1.09; July, $1.12. Timothy—May, $3.50. Clover—May, $12.50. Barley—Cash, 42@56c. Cash wheat—2 red, 78½@79; 3 red, 75@76; 2 hard winter, 76@77c; 3 hard winter, 76@75c; 1 northern spring, 79½@80½c; 2 northern spring, 76@80c; 3 spring, 74@78c. Corn—2, 44⅝@45c; 3, 44@½c. Oats—2, 31½@32c; 3, 30@½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: "All exporters at the seaboard," said David A. Noyes, who has been back yesterday from a trip which took in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, "are bullishly inclined on the wheat market. They say their news indicates poor crop results on the continent, and their correspondents advise them the export requirements by Europe from this side will be large."

C. H. Spencer of St. Louis, wired yesterday: "My friends here in the receiving business tell me they are getting many reports that the winter wheat crop is deteriorating. The weather has been so unseasonably cold, it is not to be expected the crop has made the progress it would under normal conditions. I doubt if much of the plant has been killed by the freezing temperature, as only a small area was jointed, but I doubt if present conditions warrant the expectation of a bumper crop. Reports of damage will probably increase and if we don't soon have return of normal weather conditions, but I think the situation today warrants the expectation of a fair average crop."

W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: Wheat—The market opened weak and lower on lower Liverpool cables, but recovered on the cables and a fairly good weather map. After the early weakness, however, the market turned firm and closed at an advance of 1⅝@⅞c for July and ¾c for May unchanged. As we stated yesterday, it looks as if there was some little liquidation on and as soon as it was out of the way of late seeding of short acreage, but good weather is needed. Estimated cars for tomorrow, 318.

Oats—Market was firm but only moderately active. The strength was on the rather unfavorable advices concerning the growing crop. While these are in no sense bad, yet the conditions are hardly as desirable in respect of the new crop as might be. Some modification of the acreage seems likely, and the growth and development are slow by reason of the low temperatures. Not much activity in the cash situation. Estimated cars, 75.

Broomhall's summary of foreign crop conditions is as follows:

United Kingdom—Crop reports continue favorable.

France—No decided improvement in crops reported and only in some districts in the center are conditions really good. Warm seasonable weather is required from now on.

Germany—Weather now favorable for all crops but the earlier damage is becoming more apparent.

Russia—Droughty conditions are reported in some important districts in the southeast and east. Weather is favorable for crops to make proper growth.

Roumania—During past week all grains have made favorable progress.

Bulgaria—Reports are favorable.

Austro-Hungary—Crops developing satisfactory.

Spain—General rains have saved wheat.

Harris, Gates & Co.: Wheat—News for some weeks on wheat has been decidedly bullish. Early complaints of German and French crops have been confirmed. The foreign demand for our wheat has been constantly on a large scale. Meantime the prospect for our own crop has deteriorated somewhat. The short interest in this market has undoubtedly been very much reduced, still wheat is only 3 cents higher than when conditions mentioned first showed themselves, and is a cent lower than ten days ago. This cannot be explained by the fact that the holder of wheat in this market has been a persistent seller of July wheat on every strong market. Considerable fault is being found with conditions on the Pacific coast where rain is needed.

Kalb, of Chicago: I only can repeat what I said about September wheat for the last three weeks, buy it on all soft spots. Our crops can only get worse, not better. The weather has been against it, the foreign situation warrants higher prices before September.

Bartlett, Frazier Co., Chicago: The following is from H. J. Nicollet, Kansas City, our best authority there: "The most reliable people in Kansas, at Anthony, Hutchinson, McPherson, Minneapolis, Salina, and other places, say the wheat is in fine condition. All the fly damage in the state won't amount to 1 per cent. The Lee Warren Milling company people at Salina say the state will raise 125,000,000 bus wheat."

Chicago: There is to be a meeting of the members of the Chicago open board of trade shortly to consider the advisability of rescinding the rule making No. 3 wheat and corn deliverable on contracts in case of a manipulated market. If the rule is thrown out it will bring the open board market up even with the other.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: On stocks bought last week, take 2 to 3 points profit when in sight and reduce on moderate recessions. I am a bull for the long haul however, and expect to see prices materially higher by the end of the month, and still higher before July.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: The market opened strong and higher on good investment buying and no noticeable increase in outside speculation. The advance was maintained and further gains scored in quite a number of the better class of securities. Announcement that the experts who have been auditing the books of the Metropolitan Street Railway Co. have finished their work and gave a very favorable report, promptly exciting the management, was another element of strength. The market seems to be in a very strong position. Adverse news seems to have little or no effect while on the other hand anything of a favorable nature quickly causes a sharp advance. All signs seem to point to higher prices.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is unchanged. It showed some strength early, but lost it before the close. It is the same old market. Wall street bullish and professional traders buying in spots and waiting for the public to come in. The public is indifferent. An advance in sterling in Paris operates to temporarily arrest gold exports, but little activity there is in the Coalers.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Although the week opened without much increase in regular commission business, brokers last night said that the market reflected a scarcity of good stocks and a strong undertone. The latter is expected to continue though a recession may be caused by gold exports. Inquiry among bankers gives the impression that further shipments will be made, but that the movement will not be large nor will it last long. This matter, however, is apparently over-shadowed by the fact that further advices indicate unimportant damage to wheat from the late freeze and in this connection much capital is made out of the Ohio State Crop Report just issued showing the condition of the winter wheat crop of Ohio on the first of May to have been 92 per cent, or only slightly lower than for the previous month. Railroad earnings for the fourth week in April are also likely to give similar encouragement, as there is talk of some heavy gains to be reported for this period during the current week. All this adds to bullish sentiment on Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Union Pacific, Rock Island, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie and Reading. In the case of the coal stocks, however, there is a conservative disposition to wait before adding to present holdings for Attorney General Knox to make known his intentions in respect to the government's bringing suit under the anti-trust law. High officials of the coal company insist that there is no violation of the law by the coal combine. Nevertheless there is a latent fear that President Roosevelt may order suit to be brought. This is the cloud on the anthracite shares. The bull point on them is largely increasing earnings and the favorable outlook for their continuance during the rest of the year. The jump in Delaware & Hudson, directs attention to other high-priced investment stock which have recovered but little from their lowest prices.

• • •

Chicago to Coe Commission Co.: The earnings of Canadian Pacific at this time are notable not only on account of the remarkable increase that the road is showing, but also on account of the way the company is spending money. During the eight months ending Feb. 28, the company expended in the form of operating expenses about 63 per cent of gross earnings. In January the expenditures amounted to 72¾ per cent and in February to 74 per cent.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Canadian Pacific for the fourth week in April increased $118,000. For the month the increase was $534,000. From July 1 the increase has been $5,096,000.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market was tested by a very fair volume of profit taking in which Waldorf-Asteria crowd and a section of western speculative element were conspicuous. The market took it remarkably well and was materially helped by the fact that London was buying some stock. U. S. Leather issues acted well. There appears to be some reason for thinking an important block of long stock which was hanging over the market for a long time has been absorbed.

• • •

F. M. Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: Stocks have been strong today, although they showed some hesitation in the afternoon when talk of gold exports and crop damage induced some profit taking. No gold was engaged and the movement of the exchange market made it uncertain whether any will go or not on Thursday. Very good buying was seen in Readings and other coalers. Half a dozen prominent railroads reported very large earnings for March and April. Money continued easy.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers was considerably stronger in London today and the copper share market had a better tone. There was more selling for some time past, and this prevented an improvement in prices. The coppers act well and promise to work higher. The general market was heavier. It offers no attraction except to those who wish to scalp a point or two by selling on rallies and buying on reactions.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 5.—Cotton was strong today, the quotation advancing to 10.65, a new high record for the present upward movement. The market opened steady with prices 5 point lower to 4 points higher. It then turned stronger on cables of bad crop news, covering by shorts and a bulge of 50 points in New Orleans.

Cotton, spot closed quiet; ten points higher; middling uplands, 10.85; middling gulf, 11.10. Sales none. Cotton futures closed quiet: May, 10.05; June, 10.01; July, 10.09; August, 9.64; September, 8.66; October, 8.72; November, 8.64; December, 8.65; January, 8.65.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 5.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balances, $225,235,918; gold, $110,187,501; silver, $21,925,689; United States notes, $4,821,787; treasury notes of 1890, $58,-833; national bank notes, $6,676,046; total receipts this day, $1,326,706; total receipts this month, $6,582,273; total receipts this year, $473,007,775; total expenditures this day, $1,640,060; total expenditures this month, $3,410,000; total expenditures this year, $437,409,855; deposits in national banks, $155,105,646.

COTTON GINNER'S REPORT.

Washington, May 5.—Final cotton ginner's report, census office, 11,078,892. The quantity of cotton ginned from the growth of 1902, exclusive of linters, amounted to 11,078,892 running bales.

CONDITION OF CROPS

As Shown By Weather Bureau's Weekly Bulletin.

Washington, May 5.—The Weather Bureau's weekly crop bulletin is as follows: The week ending May 4, was unseasonably cool over much of the greater part of the country, the minimum temperatures on April 30 and May 1 and 2 being the lowest recorded in the last decade of April and first decade of May for the past thirty years, at nearly all weather bureau stations from the central and west gulf states to the upper Missouri valley, and also at a number of stations in the central Mississippi and Ohio valleys, lake region and New England. General light rain fall, or absence of rain, has been favorable for farming operations, but the unseasonably low temperatures have checked the growth of all vegetation and heavy frosts and freezes have caused much damage. Drought has been relieved over southwestern Texas and over limited areas in the central gulf states, but continued over the greater part of the last mentioned districts and in northern Texas. Rain is needed in Florida. Notwithstanding the decidedly cool weather during the latter part of the week, the temperature in New England and portions of the middle Atlantic states and lake region averages above the normal. Rain is generally needed on the Pacific coast.

The early planted corn was extensively destroyed by the freeze during the latter part of the week in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and the crop has suffered from cold weather throughout the southern states. Preparations for planting have progressed favorably in the Ohio valley and middle Atlantic states but little progress has been made in the upper Missouri Valley and lake region. The present season to date has been very unfavorable for corn, planting being greatly delayed.

Winter wheat appears to have escaped material injury during the recent freeze over the western portion of the winter wheat belt and the general outlook for this crop continues very promising although a slight deterioration is indicated in portions of the central Mississippi and Ohio valleys. On the Pacific coast the outlook is less favorable, especially in California.

Very little seeding of spring wheat could be done over the northern portion of the spring wheat region during the past week. The reports indicate that no serious damage has been done to early sown over the southern portion. On the north Pacific coast the crop is now in need of rain.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In Stock Market Early, But It Was Lost Later.

Some Activity In the Coalers But Not Much Elsewhere.

New York, May 5.—Prices advanced a fraction all around on light opening dealings. The gain in D. & H. reached a point and the coalers generally showed signs of strength. Canadian Pacific was up ⅝c. Kansas & Texas pfd declined ¾.

The market was active during the first hour, but the demand was well fed and prices did not advance notable above the opening level. D. & H. reacted 3¼ and then rallied a point. Canadian Pacific got a point above last night. Leather rose 1⅞. Pump 1¾ and Paper 1⅛.

The market stiffened but the only new gains reaching a point amongst prominent stocks were in St. Paul, Northwestern, L. & N. and St. Louis Southwestern pfd, which gained 1 to 1¼. There was active demand for paper stocks, the common rising 2⅝ and the preferred 2. Gains of 1 to 2 were made by International Power, Stoss-Sheffield Steel, R. & T. H. preferred, Peoria & Eastern and New York, Chicago & St. Louis. There were losses of 1¼ to 2 by New Haven, Kansas & Texas preferred and Reduction and Refinding. Bonds were steady at noon.

Large blocks of Reading were bought, lifting it a sharp fraction. The other coalers are not benefited by its rise. Lackawanna reacted 4 and rallied 2, and Delaware & Hudson was one of the lowest. Some of the trans-continental stocks hardened an additional fraction but they did not hold. Colorado & Southern second preferred advanced 1 and Linseed preferred 2½. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred and Iowa Central preferred declined 1.

Dullness was the chief characteristic of the late trading. Room operators realized when they could, but the demand was so flat that but little stock changed hands.

Prices settled gradually to a lower level the trading diminishing to nominal proportions. The only important stock to close in new ground below last night was Delaware & Hudson. Reading second preferred rose 2¼. Chicago Terminal preferred and Lead lost a point. The closing was dull and heavy.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Change In Policy of the Tug Trust Is Intimated.

Management of Business Will Be More In Local Hands.

Chicago, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The changes in the officers of the Great Lakes Towing company indicate a complete reversal of the policies of the tug trust, which have prevailed since that organization was formed five years ago. The management of its affairs will go back to the local managers in a large degree, and they will be held directly responsible for the returns from their ports. The upheaval, it is said, is much more than the changes of a few officials. It is more of a return to the business methods which prevailed prior to the formation of the trust, so far as possible with the changed ownership of the tugs.

Chicago, May 5.—(Special to The Herald)—A number of charters were made today at 1½ cents for wheat, but the call for vessels was not large enough to give any hopes of a change in rates.

Kingston, Ont., May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner reported stranded on the Main Ducks proves to be the Acacia, which was driven ashore Sunday night. It is not expected the vessel can be saved. She is owned by Capt. James Crosby, and has 350 tons of coal on board.

RECOVER MACHINERY.

Boilers and Engines of Belle P. Cross Saved.

The boilers and enghes of the Belle P. Cross which was lost last week on the North Shore have been recovered. The wrecking outfit of Whitney Bros., of Superior, had charge of the work and a tug and a large scow was sent to Gooseberry river.

The engines are somewhat battered but are not in as bad condition as it was expected they would be. Much of the cargo can also be recovered, although the vessel itself is a total loss.

PRESIDENT NEWMAN RESIGNS.

Cleveland, O., May 5.—The resignation of T. F. Newman, president of the Great Lakes Towing company was accepted yesterday by the officials of that company. Mr. Newman's resignation is said to be the outcome of some misunderstanding between himself and the members of the tug trust in which Mr. Newman made requests for the removal of certain other employes of the tow company, the refusal to do this resulting in Newman's resignation

BILL OF SALE FILED.

The bill of sale of the steamer E. T. Carrington has been filed at the local marine customs office. It records the transference of the steamer from Cornelius Flynn to the Duluth Steamship company, of which Charles F. Hartman is president. The consideration mentioned in the papers is $4000.

The Carrington is the steamer which is to ply between Lake avenue and Park Point, taking the place of the tug Estelle during the coming summer.

THE SAULT PASSAGES.

Up yesterday: Grecian and whaleback, Niagara, 11:30; Mannaloa, noon; Nyanza, W. L. HAS A BIG CARGO.

Port Colborne, May 4.—The Turret Cape which arrived yesterday on her way from Fort William to Kingston, has a cargo of 100,000 bushels of wheat on a draft of 17 feet, 3 inches. This is the largest grain cargo and deepest draft that ever entered this harbor. Probably 40,000 bushels of the cargo will have to be lightered before the steamer can get through the canal.

RECEIPTS SLUMP

April Land Office Business Falls From March High Pace.

The Attractive Timber Land Is About All Taken Up.

The land office report for the month of April shows a large falling off from the heavy receipts of March.

The receipts from the sale of public lands were $32,034.93, disposing of 14,586 acres of land.

The fees and commissions for the month were $2671.82, received in the disposition of 22,000 acres of lands. The total cash receipts for the month were $35,106.75. The total cash receipts for the month of March were $49,372, or nearly $15,000 in excess of April.

The falling off was not due to the division of the land office districts, as that has not yet affected the Duluth district. All timber and stone proofs for land in the district transferred to the Cass Lake office will be taken by the local office until June 30. The officials say that the falling off is due to the fact that the greater part of the land which is valuable for timber has been taken up and that there remains but little land in the district which falls within the stone and timber class and which is worth more than the price charged for it by the government.

The receipts still remain considerably above the figure of last year. Last April the total receipts at the office were $18,191.85, or about half the amount that was received during April of this year. A very heavy decline is expected however after the transfer takes place, as a large part of the most valuable agricultural land in the district is in Itasca county.

KING EDWARD AT LONDON

Receives a Royal Welcome on His Arrival Home.

Cherbourg, France, May 5.—The royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward on board, left here this morning for Portsmouth escorted by a British squadron, after an exchange of salutes with the forts and French warships and cheered by the crowds ashore.

Portsmouth, England, May 5.—King Edward reached Portsmouth this afternoon from Cherbourg. The forts saluted and the ships were manned and dressed. The king later took a train for London.

London, May 5.—King Edward received a great welcome on his arrival in London from Portsmouth. The railroad station was closed to the public, but the approaches were thronged by large crowds and the road to Buckingham palace, which was gaily decorated with flags, was thickly lined with people. The Prince of Wales, Prince Christian, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Charles of Denmark, Premier Balfour, Field Marshal Lord Roberts and others greeted the king at the station. After inspecting the guard of honor, the king drove to the palace visibly pleased by the hearty cheers which followed his progress along the whole route. He appeared to be in excellent health.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chicago, May 5.—Harold Smallwood, who had been connected with the First National bank of Chicago for twenty-one years, is dead as a result of an operation. He was 49 years old and had been in the banking business in Chicago since 1883, when he came to this country from Buckinghamshire, England. After the organization of the National bank Clerks' association, Mr. Smallwood was treasurer.

Des Moines, May 5.—Mrs. James Miller, of Cedar Falls, has received a cablegram announcing that her daughter, Mrs. Edward B. Haskell, a missionary, is dead at Salonica, Turkey. There is nothing to indicate that the death was not natural. Mrs. Haskell was a graduate of the Iowa state normal school and Oberlin University.

Washington, May 5.—Funeral services over the body of the late Bishop John F. Hurst, of the Methodist Episcopal church, who died early yesterday morning, will be held Thursday afternoon from the Metropolitan church. Bishop Hurst always has expressed the wish that at his death Bishop Charles H. Fowler, of Buffalo, N. Y., should preach the funeral sermon and that Bishop McCabe, of Omaha, Neb., should assist him, and this program will be carried out Thursday. Interment will be at Rock Creek cemetery, Washington, D. C.

Milwaukee, May 5.—Orasmus Cole, former chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, died at the residence of his son, Sidney H. Cole, in this city today from general debility, aged 81 years. Mr. Cole served in the first congress as a whig and was a member of the constitutional convention. He served on the state supreme bench from 1855 to 1862 when he retired.

THE MUELLER BILL.

Springfield, Ill., May 5.—The senate concurred in the house amendments to the Mueller traction municipal ownership bill at 11 o'clock this morning.

MAD MULLAH REPULSED.

Aden, Arabia, May 5.—It is rumored that the Mad Mullah recently attacked a British column at Galadi, Somaliland, and was repulsed with heavy loss. The British also suffered considerable losss.

AMES WAS CRAZY

Witnesses Say He Could Not Tell Right From Wrong.

Physician Describes His Mental Condition as Due to Alcoholism.

Minneapolis, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Former Mayor A. A. Ames was subjected to a rigid cross-examination by the state this morning while on the stand in his trial for bribery and extortion. When confronted by his written orders to the superintendent of police with regard to making a list of houses of ill-repute, he declared that the signature was made with a rubber stamp and he had never seen or authorized the order. On redirect examination he declared that he had never seen the list of such houses found in his desk by Thomas R. Brown, his secretary. He denied that he had given Irwin A. Gardner $50 to reimburse a woman who had been fined in court although paying for protection. At this point Brown was called and asked about the publication of Ames' letter withdrawing from the contest for the Republican nomination for congress. Dr. Ames on the stand had declared that he had never seen the letter until it appeared in print, and while he had prepared the letter after consultation with his chief, who, after making some changes in it, signed it and authorized its publication.

Dr. Ames then, being recalled, admitted that he might have authorized the letter, but if so he did not remember it. He had no recollection of seeing or hearing of the letter until his wife read it to him out of a newspaper. His memory was similarly hazy when questioned about what Gardner meant when he spoke about "getting the expense money back," although he supposed it was in connection with raids on street-walkers.

The defense then put on a number of witnesses to testify to the defendant's previous good character. John Long, an attorney, swore that when he called on the mayor with reference to an appointment, the latter seemed to be out of his mind. Witness told several people that the mayor was crazy.

Dr. E. J. Clark, who officed with Ames, said the latter had a number of delusions. His mental condition was bad, and witness ascribed it to alcoholism. He testified that in his opinion Dr. Ames was not capable of judging the effect of such acts as receiving money in the manner charged, nor could he distinguish right from wrong.

MANAGER IS MORE EXPLICIT

Position of Great Northern Clearly Defined to Men.

St. Paul, May 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Ward of the Great Northern railway today issued a second circular to the men defining more clearly the position of the road, and stating explicit terms that the management cannot afford to allow its employes to dictate as to what kind of trains it shall run on its system. The company is at this time reliably reported to be making arrangements to open an office in Chicago for the employment of trainmen in the contingency of a strike being finally decided upon.

The system has been canvassed almost along its entire length by the committees which left St. Paul ten days ago, and the men are expected to begin arriving in St. Paul Friday and by Monday all of them will be here.

Messrs. Garretson and Newman, grand officers of unions involved, will be in St. Paul Friday and the presentation of the side of the men will be in their hands and in the hands of other grand officers who are expected here before Sunday.

IN BAD SHAPE.

Messenger Boys' Strike Gets Another Hard Blow.

The strike of the messenger boys is apparently broken.

President Fred Smith, of the Strikers' Co-operative company, is under arrest, charged with cloak room prowling at the Kitchi Gammi club, as is James Dodd, a bell boy.

A warrant charging them with grand larceny was sworn out by W. C. Brown, who claims that the boys stole a pair of gloves valued at 50 cents.

Eight other strikers, including the treasurer of the co-operative organization, are out on bail to appear in the municipal court Friday and answer to charges of disorderly conduct, and two of them are to answer to charges of assault, while another is likely to go to Red Wing, at the request of his father, who says he is incorrigible.

Briefly, the strike has been allowed to lapse into a state of innocuous desuetude for the reason that a majority of the boys are having too many personal troubles in the municipal court to get time to carry on the strike with the vigor that characterized it the first few days.

The strike is over, as far as the Western Union is concerned, as that company now has a complete service of men and girls, and the delivery of messages is not interfered with in the least.

FIFTY CENTS A MONTH

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort.

Babies that are given Scott's Emulsion quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most.

Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

A STRONG PROTEST

Is Made Against the Removal of Duty on Grain.

London, May 5.—The opposition to the proposal of the chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Ritchie, to abolish the duty on grain which has been voiced by numerous chambers of agriculture, crystallized in a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Agriculture in London today. With only three dissents the large assemblage after a heated attack on Mr. Ritchie's "wobbling policy in connection with this tax," passed a resolution strongly condemning the proposed action and appointing a deputation to call on Premier Balfour and confer with him on the subject. It is not believed the protest will have any effect.

Answering a question in the house of commons today, Mr. Ritchie held out little hope of the millers getting a refund of the duties paid on imported grain which they may still have on their hands when the tax is abolished July 1.

PROMINENT PHYSICIANS

In Attendance at Meeting of American Medical Association.

New Orleans, May 5.—With a record-breaking attendance, both in point of delegates and visitors, and with many distinguished physicians, surgeons and scientists present, the fifty-fourth annual meeting of the American Medical association opened today at Tulane theater. The main business of the association is to be acted by the house of delegates, the first meeting of which was held subsequent to the formal opening of the session today. President Billings presided and presented his annual report. The report of the secretary, treasurer, trustees and various standing committees followed. Simultaneous with the opening of the meeting of the house of delegates, the several sections into which the association is divided, opened their sessions in various halls, hotels and churches of the city.

The endowed medical colleges of the North scored a big victory at the Association of American Medical colleges late last night in the adoption of an amended report of the committee, to which the matter of acquirements for admission had been referred. The report, as adopted, requires four full years of work in the high school or its equivalent for eligibility to admission in a medical college. This is believed to mean the final exclusion from admission in the medical colleges of all applicants who have not a college education. Two-thirds of the medical colleges in the country are not endowed.

WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY

Passes Resolution For Constitutional Tax Amendment.

Madison, Wis., May 5.—The assembly today, by a vote of 78 to 1 and without debate, passed the joint resolution for a constitutional amendment providing for a graduated income tax.

The senate ordered the engrossment by a vote of 14 to 12, the bill providing for reports at stated periods by coal mine owners of coal shipments within the state.

STEAMERS COLLIDE.

Southampton, Eng., May 5.—The Atlantic transport liner, Marquette, Captain Richardson, from London, May 4, for New York, and the north German Lloyd steamer Prussen, Captain Prehn, from Hamburg, Sunday for the Far East, collided during a fog in the channel last night. Both steamers put into this port for repairs. It is not expected that they will be delayed for any length of time. The Marquette's stern was stove in above the water line and part of her railing was carried away. The Prussen's bow was stove in. It is hoped the Marquette will be able to resume her trip Thursday.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

Muncie, Ind., May 5.—William Patterson, a member of one of the prominent and wealthy families of this city and a brother-in-law of George F. McCulloch, president of the Union Traction company, was shot and fatally wounded last night. The morning was well advanced before the shooting became known. The affair is shrouded in mystery and no definite motive is known for the deed.

MOLDERS WALK OUT.

Indianapolis, May 5.—Fifty molders employed at the Home Stove company's plant walked out today because of the refusal of the company to accede to the demand for an increase in pay. If the plant is finally tied up, over 175 men will be thrown out of employment.

A SUICIDE.

Baltimore, May 5.—H. E. Morean, aged 65, of Helena, who has been in Baltimore several months for his health, committed suicide today in Druid Hill Park, by shooting himself through the head with a revolver.

CORONER'S INQUEST

Into Death of Miss Reichlin Begins at Lorain.

Police Captain Tells of Finding Mud In the Attic.

Elyria, Ohio, May 5.—The coroner's inquest in connection with the murder of Miss Agatha Reichlin last Thursday night at Lorain began here today in the presence of a large number of people.

Father Walser, the accused priest, was represented by Hon. E. G. Johnson, of Cleveland, as counsel. Many friends of Father Walser were present, including the Rt. Rev. Boniface Russ, of Lima, Ohio, head of the Order of Precious Blood Fathers.

Capt. Ketchum of the Lorain police, who was summoned by telephone to the Reichlin house on the night of the murder, was the first witness to take the stand. He gave a detailed description of the house and its surroundings. He said he found Casimir Reichlin and Father Walser fully dressed and down stairs when he reached the house. Continuing, the captain said: "The dead girl's mouth was open and three or four of her teeth broken out and lying on the blood-stained pillow. Going to the attic I found fresh mud on the floor, that had apparently recently dropped from a man's shoes. There was also fresh mud on the ladder that had been put up to the attic window."

Casimir Reichlin described the scene in his sister's room when he reached it after being aroused on the night of the murder. The girl's left foot was drawn up, her head was bleeding, and she lay partly on her left side.

The bed clothes were smooth and undisturbed and the bed quilt drawn up close under her chin. The body was still warm. The door between the girl's room and Rev. Walser's room was open. One bed in the latter room had been disturbed. The other had not. A ladder on the south side of the house leading to the attic window was found. It did not reach the window by two and a half feet. The window itself was out and leaning against an old trunk. He noticed no tracks until morning. When discovered the tracks were small but not distinct. He said Walser gave him a description of the man he had seen as being thin, tall, wore a mustache and slouch hat.

Casimir said the watch dog that was on the lower floor of the house on the night of the murder had an ugly disposition and usually barked when anybody came around the house at night. The dog did not bark on the night in question, however, until after the murder had been discovered. There was suppressed excitement when Prosecutor Stroup asked the witness, "You do not know of your own knowledge who killed your sister?"

"No, sir," replied Casimir, with emphasis.

"You do not know whether the person who killed your sister came from the outside or whether he was on the inside?"

"No, sir; I cannot tell you."

"The first you knew of any trouble was when Father Walser told you there were burglars in the house?"

"Yes, sir."

"And he was greatly excited?"

"Yes, sir."

"He was only partially dressed?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did he rush into your room?"

"Yes, sir; he rushed to the foot of my bed."

"Was there any light in your room?"

"No, sir; there was not."

Casimir could not say whether Walser had been out of the house at anytime during the evening. He went to the kitchen door once while Casimir and Agatha were carrying a lounge into the house.

The rest of Casimir's testimony was practically the same as given out in his statement to the newspapers early today.

Mayor King, of Lorain, announced that the preliminary hearing of Father Walser's case could not be held today, owing to the fact that the latest would probably take up the entire day.

COLLIERY SHUTS DOWN.

Shamokin, Pa., May 5.—The Royal Oak colliery operated by the Llewellyn company, was shut down today because 300 employes went on strike for a 20 per cent increase on contract work. They claim they did not receive the increase accorded by the strike commission.

STRIKE IS FELT.

Business Interests of Omaha Are Affected.

Omaha, May 5.—The strike of the teamsters and restaurant men is beginning to be felt keenly by the business interests. Not a ton of coal is being delivered and the wholesale houses are unable to handle their wares to and from the freight depots. A number of large buildings have been compelled to shut down their elevator service, several factories may be closed for want of fuel and at the hotels the same difficulty is being experienced. To add to the seriousness of the situation the teamsters have added 100 more men to their ranks and the Horseshoers' union has voted not to shoe horses driven by non-union men.

OLYPHANT WILL RESIGN.

New York, May 5.—An official announcement was made today to the effect that Robert Olyphant had announced that he would resign from the presidency of the Delaware & Hudson railroad at the annual meeting on May 12. Vice President and General Manager David Wilcox is likely to succeed him.

SUBWAY STRIKE SETTLED.

New York, May 5.—At the office of Contractor McDonald it was announced this afternoon that the subway strike had been settled and that the striking men will go back to work tomorrow morning.

MECHANICAL TIME FUSE.

Berlin, May 5.—A watchmaker named Fritz has sold a mechanical time fuse for projectiles to the Krupp company for $50,000 and a royalty of 25 cents for each device used. The Schneiders of France have acquired the rights for Latin countries and Vickers Sons & Maxim have secured the rights for the United States and Great Britain. The mechanism can be adjusted so as to explode in an astonishingly short time, at long distances, or immediately after penetrating a resisting substance, such as armor plate or a fortification wall. The new fuse is regarded as being especially useful in exploding schrapnel shells.

SUFFOCATED IN MINE.

Milwaukee, May 5.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Florence, Wis., says: Jim Dunkel and Otto Mentke were found dead at the bottom of the shaft at the Florence mine today. They had been suffocated from poisonous gas.

SCHWAB RE-ELECTED.

New York, May 5.—Charles M. Schwab was re-elected president of the United States Steel corporation at a meeting of the board of directors held in this city today.

KILLED BY BEANS.

Baldwinsville, N. Y., May 5.—Andrew, the 10-year-old son of Leonard Baldwin, was killed by the discharge of a gun loaded with beans. Andrew was playing with some children at a neighbor's house. They found a shot gun charged with dry beans, which had been used for shooting rats that over-run the place. While playing with the weapon it was accidentally discharged, the load striking Andrew in the left temple. He died in a few hours.

FRENCH FISHERMEN IN TERRIBLE HURRICANE

Their Brig Dismasted and On Her Beam Ends.

All But Three Were Rescued By a Steamer.

New York, May 6.—Twenty-three survivors of the crew of twenty-six of the French fishing brig Ile De Terre Neuve, of St. Servean, France, arrived here today on the German-American Petroleum company's steamer Phoebus from Hamburg. The Ile De Terre Neuve was swept by a hurricane on April 26 and seven of her men washed overboard. Of these, four were rescued and three drowned. On the 29th the wreck was sighted by the Phoebus and the survivors were taken on board the steamer with much difficulty and the brig was set on fire.

Capt. Schilehorst of the Phoebus says that at 3 o'clock on the morning of April 29 a flare of light was sighted dead ahead, evidently a signal of distress. The Phoebus bore down and found a small dismasted sailing vessel, which proved to be the Ile De Terre Neuve, listed heavily to port, rolling frightfully, with the seas washing over her.

The condition of her crew appeared very dangerous and they were seen grouped on the after part of the vessel. A lifeboat was sent to the wreck to which a line was passed. Some of the crew jumped into the sea and were hauled one after the other into the boat and brought to the steamer. When the second trip was made, daylight broke and the work progressed more rapidly. Four trips were made, the captain being the last to leave. He maintained strict discipline throughout the transfer and set fire to the wreck before leaving.

Capt. Corbinais, of the brig, said he sailed from St. Servean April 9 and on April 26 experienced a hurricane which dismasted his vessel, swept the thirteen boats overboard, smashed the bulwarks and hove the brig down on her beam ends, where she was held by the 150 tons of salt, which had shifted. Seven of the crew were swept overboard, of which number three were lost. The ship rolled terribly and at times it was feared she would roll bottom up. On April 28, at 9 o'clock at night, a large steamer passed and replied to distress signals, but on account of the heavy gale was obliged to proceed.

TURKEY STUFFED WITH ONE HUNDRED ONE DOLLAR BILLS

Missing Husband Sends His Wife a Thanksgiving Bird, Which He Went Away to Get Seven Months Ago—Family Will Join Him.

Merrigtown, N. J. May 6.—Stuffed with 100 one dollar bills was a turkey that has been received by Mrs. E. C. Adams of this place.

The gift came from Mr. Adams, who had been mysteriously missing for seven months. Its stuffing was discovered when the wife started to prepare the fowl for dinner and it will be used to pay the passage of Adams' family to Sister Lakes, Michigan, where the head of the house now resides.

Adams was a carpenter. Just before Thanksgiving times were especially dull and the outlook for a Thanksgiving dinner was very slim. On the eve of the feast day, Adams left his home, saying he would not return until he brought a turkey with him. From that time no word from him was received until the turkey came by express. Pinned to the neck of the bird was this note:

"Sister Lakes, Michigan: Dear Wife—I cannot bring the turkey to you as I am too busy, but you can fetch it to me and give love to Mother Pinchbill. Bring her with you. I have a fine job with Uncle Charley, whom you do not know and never heard of. Affectionately,

"ED."

It looked like other turkeys until it was being prepared for the oven when its "undigested insides were discovered." The Adams family will start today for Sister Lakes.

FRIARS HAD NO FOOD FOR TWO DAYS

Paris, May 6.—A dispatch from Bastia, Corsica, says the Capuchins, who had been barricaded in their monastery there for many days, were expelled today by the police, a detachment of infantry and a number of gendarmes. The friars, who had been without food for two days owing to the siege, refused the final demand of the authorities to take down their barracks, and the doors were then broken in with axes and the friars were arrested. About 5000 persons made a demonstration against the authorities, but they were dispersed.

YALE FRESHMEN MUST HAVE MONEY

New Haven, Conn., May 6.—Because there is a lack of money to support the freshmen crew this year, the management of the Yale university crew has taken unusual means to secure funds for that purpose, threatening to disband the crew unless the money is subscribed. The Yale freshmen class has been represented for many years by a crew and has met the Harvard crew, and earlier in the season other crews in practice races every year. The following vote has been passed at a meeting of the managers of the Yale University Athletic association:

"The freshmen crew will be disbanded on June 1 unless by that date the freshmen crew management has raised an amount of money which the management of the university crew shall deem sufficient to meet the expenses of the freshmen crew."

AMERICAN FAILURE IN PHILIPPINES

New York, May 6.—The Daily Mail today publishes the first of a series of letters from Percival Landon, its special correspondent at Manila, showing the American failure in the Philippines, cables the World's London representative. Mr. Landon declares that the American campaign has made no impression in the islands; that the firing line is co-extensive with the coast line, and that a feeling of utter insecurity prevails at headquarters. The correspondent asserts that in a country depending entirely on agriculture for its prosperity the land is being largely abandoned. He says it is time for the United States to decide whether there might be a reconsideration of its policy of the past few years.

BURNED TO DEATH IN THE WATER

Tionesta, Pa., May 6.—Standing in a mill pond with the water to his neck, where he had gone to escape a forest fire, Walter Boyd, owner of Hats Shingle mill, near Pigeon, was burned to death. A tank of oil exploded and the burning fluid covered the man. His body has been recovered. When the fire swept in from all points the other members of the crew fled in terror, but Boyd decided to remain until the last moment. When flight was impossible, he plunged into the mill pond. The mill burst into flames. On the bank of the pond, near the mill, was the oil tank. With a roar heard above the hissing of the fire, it exploded. His face, from a line about the neck, as well as his head, was burned black, showing what he suffered before he died.

A MICHIGAN BANK JANITOR SHOT

Chicago, May 6.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Charlotte, Mich., says: Janitor Phineas Ballard of the First National bank was shot twice through the body and fatally wounded last night while attending to his routine duties at the close of banking hours. The weapon used was a revolver, which is kept constantly in the cage occupied by the paying teller. The back door is fastened by a spring lock and an arrangement crossing the entire width of the door. This had been removed, indicating that some one had passed outside. Nothing was disturbed, the vault not having been tampered with.

DR. LORENZ THERE

Eminent Surgeon a Visitor at Medical Association Meeting.

Reported Criticisms of His Methods Have Not Appeared.

New Orleans, May 6.—Sectional meetings kept the delegates to the American Medical association busy today. There were seven meetings in the forenoon and a dozen in the afternoon. Dr. Adolph Lorenz was a conspicuous figure at the section of surgery and anatomy. He was immediately recognized upon entering the hall, and invited from the chair by Chairman Moore. He was cordially applauded and briefly expressed his acknowledgments. Stories have been afloat here that there would be some criticisms of Dr. Lorenz' methods in the discussions, but nothing of this character has yet appeared. Dr. Lorenz says he is simply here as a visitor with no desire to appear as a participant.

As a result of interesting papers read by Drs. H. M. Bracken and Cressy T. Wilbur and Hon. W. A. King, of the census bureau, resolutions have been passed by the hygene and science department impressing physicians throughout the country with the necessity of co-operating with the census bureau in recording vital statistics and improving the method of determining these causes of death.

At a meeting of the section of materia medica, pharmacy and therapeutics, over which Dr. Solomon Solis-Cohn presided, Dr. Robinson read a committee report declaring that there were too many "patent medicines" and proposing an act of congress to limit the sale of poisonous and dangerous patent medicines.

Dr. John Cook, of Chicago, read an interesting paper before the diseases of children section on "The Development and Care of Children."

The American Medical Editors have elected Dr. C. E. De M. Sajois, of Philadelphia, president; Dr. Charles Chalgnac, of New Orleans, and Dr. O. F. Ball, of St. Louis, vice presidents, and J. McDonald, of New York, secretary-treasurer.

Milwaukee will make a strong bid for the next convention of the American Medical association.

BE ACTIVE POLITICALLY

But Do Not Strive For Office, Says Dr. Wilson.

Chicago, May 6.—President Roosevelt owes his high position to the fact that he was a politician who did not want to hold office," said Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University last night, in addressing the annual meeting of the Twentieth Century club in the Fine Arts building. The subject of the address was "Patriotism."

"Roosevelt was a thorn in the side of the politicians," continued the speaker. "He attended their meetings and became one of them. But if things did not suit him he said so. He was so sure he knew how it ought to be done and he was so much trouble to the politicians that they gave him a position to get rid of him.

"If men would study politics, not striving for office, it would change the face of affairs all over the country. The danger of our age is not partisanship, but that our thoughtful men will belong to no party. Go into the arena and take your active part."

HUNTING FOR EVIDENCE.

Detectives Overhaul Italian Population at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, May 6.—New York detectives are searching among the Italians here for evidence against the men arrested for the murder of Benedetto Madonia.

In company with Pittsburg officials, assisted by Capt. Walsh, of the United States secret service, they are working night and day on the case and it is said have already secured what is called important evidence.

Last night they visited the Webster avenue district, and in a short time arrested four Italians. These men were sweated for two hours by Detective Aymer, who speaks Italian. The information obtained from them is being withheld by the detectives, but it is said that a number of points were secured by Sergeant Cherry which will be of value in clearing the barrel mystery.

CHARITIES CONFERENCE

Will Have Lengthy Session at Atlanta, Ga.

Atlanta, Ga., May 6.—The thirtieth annual meeting of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections will begin here this evening in the First Baptist church. An address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Howell, to which response will be made by Dr. Frederick H. Wines, of Washington. The president of the association, Robert De Forest, of New York, will then deliver his annual address. The conference will be in session until next Tuesday.

DAY IN THE SADDLE

President and Party Exploring Grand Canyon of Arizona.

Crowds at Various Stations Disturbed President's Rest Badly.

Grand Canyon, A. T., May 6.—President Roosevelt is sight-seeing today in the Grand Canyon of Arizona. His special train arrived at 9 o'clock this morning. Horses were in waiting for the president and his party and several expeditions were soon formed for the purpose of exploring the canon. The president, Governor Murphy of Arizona, President Butler of Columbia college and Dr. Rixey, the president's physician, composed the party. It is their intention to spend most of the day in the saddle. The train will leave here this evening and will arrive at Barstow, Cal., tomorrow morning at 8:20. President Roosevelt's rest was disturbed last night at a number of places where it was necessary to stop for water. At each place crowds had gathered and notwithstanding they were informed that the president had retired, they yelled for him to come out, at the same time firing off pistols and making other noises.

IMPLICATED IN MURDER.

Chicago, May 6.—Mrs. Ona Wiltrix, wife of the saloonkeeper under arrest in connection with the murder of Paul Paszkowski, was taken into custody today, having been implicated in the crime through statements to the police by her son, Julius Wiltrix.

MET A HORRIBLE DEATH.

Butte, Mont., May 6.—Emil Bouthelier, a miner in the Cambria mine, met a horrible death yesterday, being slowly crushed between the side of the shaft and the top of the cage until life was extinct.

MEXICAN CENTRAL.

Boston, May 6.—At the annual meeting of the Mexican Central Railroad company today, E. Creel, banker, of Mexico, was elected a director to succeed Richard Olney, of Boston, resigned. There was no further change in the board.

MAY CHANGE NAME.

Philadelphia, May 6.—The proposition to change the name of the Protestant Episcopal church was reported favorably by the committee at today's convention. Bishop Whitaker, in his address yesterday, opposed a change of name, and appointed a special committee to consider the question and submit their conclusions to the convention.

CONFERENCE OF MOTHERS DISCUSSES CHILD LABOR

Report of Committee Shows That Not a State In the Union Has Adequate Laws to Prevent Employment of Children at Night.

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—At the first session today of the conference of the National Congress of Mothers, reports were presented and Miss Florence Kelly read the report of the committee on child labor. The reports of the state presidents and organizers covered the condition of the state congress and the work accomplished in the past year.

In her report of the committee on child labor, Miss Kelly handled very completely the question of employing child labor at night. She said: "I wish every mother to realize that there is no state in the union that has a safe law covering this phase of the question. The strongest clause invariably says that no child will be required to perform night labor but," she continued, "what employer will admit that he compels his juvenile employes to perform night labor. The state of Pennsylvania in particular, the cities of Philadelphia and Scranton, are the worst in the Union in this regard."

In her report of the employment of children on the streets, such as newsboys and bootblacks of the large cities, Mrs. Kelly said these little folks were practically outlaws so far as any assistance they received from the newsboys and bootblacks homes. These institutions she said, devoted much time to looking after the transient foreign element and the newsboys, bootblacks and telegraph messengers only found relief in the juvenile courts and the Catholic protectorate.

SITUATION UNCHANGED AT OMAHA

Omaha, May 6.—The strike situation in Omaha was little changed today, each side resting with a hope that a settlement may be reached. Chief of Police Donahue personally took charge of his force today and was on the streets all the forenoon directing the movements of his men. Several of the delivery companies began operations this morning with part of their wagons, which were driven either by their owners or foremen. Each wagon was accompanied by from one to four policemen, who prevented any violence to drivers. They experienced no trouble with the striking teamsters, who stated that the drivers would not be molested so long as they did not handle goods for unfair houses. There was no change in the restaurant situation and no disturbances were reported. Every saloon in the city is closed, in accordance with the order of Mayor Moores.

A SHOCKING AFFAIR IN NEW JERSEY

Cedar Grove, N. J., May 6.—Needing a temporary hitching place for a cow, James Stein made use of an electric light pole intending then to drive a stake in the ground to hold the cow's tether chain. The pole held a lightning arrester and had a wire running from it to the ground. The pole was charged with electricity and the chain carried a shock to Stein which hurled him seven feet. The cow was shocked at the same time, jumped and jerked the chain out of Stein's hands. This probably saved his life. He had a large bulldog with him and the dog's chain touched the cow's chain. So the dog was in that manner shocked. After a few seconds Stein tried to get up. He was almost mad with pain. Five men ran from a factory across the way and tried to restrain his writhings. They say Stein's body was still so charged with electricity that they were all shocked. A physician worked over Stein for almost an hour before he recovered. The doctor said it was astonishing that Stein was not killed.

NICARAGUAN REVOLUTION STILL ON

New Orleans, May 6.—News reached here yesterday by mail from a thoroughly reliable source that the Nicaraguan revolution is not at an end and that the government forces are so situated that they are unable to cross Lake Nicaragua to attack the points where the revolutionary forces are fortified. Fort San Carlos, one of the points captured by the revolutionary forces is situated at the mouth of the San Juan river. It is this river which is used to carry all the exports from the interior of the republic, and without the use of the river it is impossible to move large forces of troops. Fort Castillo, midway down the river, is also in the hands of the revolutionary body, and the gunboat owned by the Zelaya government has also been captured.

DR. STUART BATES DIES FROM LAUDANUM DOSE

READY FOR JURY

Former Mayor A. A. Ames Will Soon Know His Fate.

County Attorney Says Insanity Plea Is Confession of Guilt.

Minneapolis, May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of Former Mayor A. A. Ames, charged with bribery and extortion, will go to the jury tonight. This morning County Attorney Boardman made his closing argument to the jury, reviewing the evidence submitted by the state. He predicted that the defense would attack the character of Gardner, the go-between, who had been once convicted of bribery, and of Norbeck, the ex-detective, who is serving a term in the penitentiary for the same offense, but he asked the jury to remember that the crimes of which both had been convicted had been committed at the instigation of Ames, who organized the system. The insanity plea he characterized as a confession of guilt and the last resort of a guilty man.

A MODEL GOVERNMENT

Will Be Conducted By Governor of Chihuahua.

Denver, May 6.—A special to the News from El Paso, Tex., says: It is learned from absolutely reliable authority that Don Luis Terazas, the new governor of the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, will not only refuse consent for prize fights to be held in his state, but will also endeavor to suppress all forms of gambling. The stand taken by Governor Terazas necessarily puts an end to the movement to hold prize fights in Juarez, Mexico, just across the border from this city.

Said He Did Not Intend to Commit Suicide.

Swallowed the Drug In Mistake for Whisky.

Virginia, Minn., May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Stuart Bates, one of the most prominent physicians in St. Louis county and well known throughout Minnesota and Northern Michigan, died here early this morning under the most peculiar circumstances.

He drank a large dose of laudanum last evening, but whether it was with suicidal intent or an accident cannot be determined. He swallowed the poison in his drug store shortly after 9 o'clock in the evening.

Leaving the store immediately afterward, he walked down street a short distance to meet his bride. Just before they met, the doctor reeled and would have fallen had it not been for the support of Mrs. Bates.

He was suffering intense pain and was taken back to the drug store, where three or four physicians worked over him for four hours in a futile effort to save his life.

It is reported that Dr. Bates told his wife and the physicians that he swallowed the laudanum by mistake, thinking that he was taking a drink of whisky.

He had been drinking quite heavily for some time past, and it is currently reported here that he became despondent and took the laudanum purposely, though there is nothing to substantiate this street gossip, and his friends are firm in the belief that he drank the poison down hurriedly, thinking it was liquor.

His death has created a big sensation throughout the county, and all morning anxious inquiries have been coming in by telegraph and telephone as to the particulars.

A pathetic feature of the tragedy is the prostrated condition of his wife. She was a Miss Jacobson, and was a nurse in the Virginia hospital until a few weeks ago, when she and Dr. Bates were quietly married and took an extended honeymoon trip through the South.

Dr. Bates also leaves a daughter by a former marriage, who is now about 13 years of age and attending school in Faribault, Minn. He was 38 years of age and came to Virginia from Ironwood, Mich., his family being one of the oldest and most prominent in that state. His brother, Col. R. J. Bates, is prominent in Michigan politics and National Guard circles.

Although the funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, it is probable that the body will be forwarded to Duluth for burial, his first wife having been buried there in 1894.

Dr. Bates was formerly president of the village of Virginia and served several terms as postmaster of this city, retiring from that office just a year ago.

Of recent years he had not given much attention to his medical practice, devoting his time to the postmastership and superintending the Virginia hospital, and his drug store.

The news of Dr. Bates' tragic death was received in Duluth early this morning and created a profound sensation. He enjoyed an exceptionally wide circle of friends here and it was only a short time ago that he and his bride were tendered quite a large, though informal reception, as they passed through here on their way home from their Southern honeymoon.

TURKEY GROWS MORE ANGRY WITH BULGARIA EVERY DAY

The Sultan Has Decided to Mobilize the Entire Second and Third Army Corps Stationed at Adrianople and Salonica Respectively.

Constantinople, May 6.—The irritation in Turkish official circles against Bulgaria is constantly growing more acute and the government of that principality has been formally notified in rigorous language that the porte holds it responsible for the outrages arising from the freedom of action which the Macedonian agitators living in Bulgaria have been allowed.

It is reported that the porte has decided to mobilize the whole of the second and third army corps, stationed at Adrianople and Salonica respectively.

The police of Constantinople have arrested about sixty Bulgarians and have made numerous visits to houses including one to the residence of the secretary of the Bulgarian diplomatic agency whose papers were seized. They were, however, subsequently restored, as nothing compromising was discovered therein.

Alarming reports are in circulation regaring outrages which are said to be projected here for today. The military and police guards in this city and its suburbs have been considerably strengthened.

In the district of Prisind, Albania, twenty-two Albanian chiefs, leaders of the opposition to the reforms, have been arrested. The sultan's reform commission is still at Ipeka, Albania, on which place Turkish troops are advancing with the object of dispersing the hostile Albanians in that vicinity.

Vienna, May 6.—Advices received here from Salonica say that notwithstanding the fact that hundreds of Bulgarians have been arrested street fights are constantly taking place. Women and children, especially young girls, take a prominent part in these disturbances. It is asserted that bomb outrages have been planned in all the towns of Macedonia. Bombs have been discovered in houses at Uskub, European Turkey, where the Turkish population is greatly excited, fearing a massacre.

GREAT BRITAIN ADOPTS THE MONROE DOCTRINE IN PERSIA

Has Practically Notified the Powers That Any Attempt on Their Part to Intrude In the Persian Gulf Would Mean War.

London, May 6.—Foreign Secretary Lansdowne has proclaimed a British Monroe doctrine in the Persian gulf and has practically notified the competing powers that any attempt on their part to establish a naval base or fortified post in those waters means war with Great Britain. "I say without hesitation," said the foreign secretary, dealing with the subject in the house of lords yesterday evening, "that we should regard the establishment of a naval base or a fortified port in the Persian gulf by any other power, as a very grave menace to British interests and we should certainly resist it with all the means at our disposal."

Lord Lansdowne preceded this explicit enunciation of British policy by a review of the situation there, as it affected British interests, contending that so far as the navigation of the Persian gulf was concerned, Great Britain held a position different to that of other powers, both because it was owing to British enterprise and expenditure of life and money that the gulf was now open to the commerce of the world and because the protection of the searoute to India necessitated British predominance in the gulf.

Lord Lansdowne's attitude thereto of the other powers interested in the gulf are awaited with some anxiety.

The newspapers here comment on the analogy of the present proceeding, which Captain Mahan so strongly recommended to the United States policy of Monroeism. The Westminster Gazette holds that the British motive, namely the protection of the sea route to India, corresponds exactly with the American motive in excluding European powers from American waters, because their territory is thereby threatened.

TWO MIDDIES HAVE A FIST FIGHT

New York, May 6.—Midshipmen Wygant and Wallace of the battleship Kearsarge, who had been at odds ever since their ship left the Southern drill grounds for this port, have settled their differences by a pugilistic encounter. Shortly after the Kearsarge dropped anchor off Tompkinsville the midshipmen got shore leave, it is stated, and clad in their civilian clothes, called a closed carriage and drove to a secluded spot on Staten island. There were no seconds, the battle was fought in the darkness, with bare fists, and it is not known which was victorious.

On their return they both exhibited faces badly bruised. They appeared to have reached an amicable settlement, and as a result of the fight the "middies" are confined to their rooms. According to the brother officers they are on the sick list, but it is asserted that "sick list" is a mild term for compulsory confinement.

BUCKMAN AT THE CAPITAL

Arranging For Extension of Rural Free Delivery Service.

Washington, May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Buckman is in Washington for a few days to arrange for the extension of the free delivery service in his district. He had a talk with Superintendent Machen today and was promised that a special agent would be sent to the district to investigate and lay out the new routes at an early day. Mr. Buckman also wanted to see Land Commissioner Richards about the building in which the land office at Cass Lake is to be located and other matters, but as that official is in Minnesota he will try to see him when he reaches home early next week. Mr. Buckman had no comments to make on the rejection of the Red Lake treatry by the Indians.

ANNUAL MEETING

Of Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway.

Cleveland, May 6.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad company for the election of directors, etc., was held at the headquarters of the company here today. The entire capital stock of the company is $50,000,000 out of which about $47,500,000 was voted upon. The board of directors is classified so that there were but four vacancies to fill at this election, and the following were elected for a term of three years:

William K. Vanderbilt, New York; Samuel Rayger, H. McK. Twombly, William Rockefeller, New York. These were all re-elections except that Mr. Rockefeller takes the place of Charles M. Reed, of Erie, Pa. Except for a few matters of ordinary formality no business other than the election of directors was transacted.

FOR NEXT YEAR

Normal School Issuing Catalogue and Planning Larger Things.

The Commencement Exercises to Begin Sunday, May 31.

The appropriation for the normal school having been made the manuscript for the catalogue, which has been ready for some time and waiting for the act of the legislature, was sent to the printer today. The appropriation for the next two years for the Duluth school is $42,000, $21,250 for the year '03 to '04 and $21,750 for the next year. In addition the school has been given something over $7000 for the deficiencies of this year, making in all an appropriation of something over $70,000.

The money will be spent for supplies, improvements and the support of the school. During the first year $1000 will be spent in the improvement of the grounds, $2000 in the equipment of the labatories and $1000 for the library.

The courses of study as they will appear in the catalogue have been revised from those of this year and one of the present courses will be displaced by one for the benefit of the country teachers. This will be a three years' course and will be particularly for the benefit of the country teachers who wish to review a course of study. Departments in manual training and domestic science will be formed for both the normal and model departments. The catalogue will be ready for distribution within the next few weeks and will be sent to those interested in the work of the school.

The attendance at the school is expected to be greatly increased next year in all departments. Three-fourths of the pupils in the normal department are entered on a two years course and will continue their work next year and with the probable enrollment from the high school graduates of this year the attendance in the normal school department will be 175 or 200.

The commencement exercises at the school will occur the week beginning Sunday, May 31. On the afternoon of that day Dr. Robert Forbes will speak to the graduates who are six in number. The following Wednesday morning an address will be delivered to the graduates and their friends and with the exception of an informal entertainment by the class will constitute the exercises. The graduates are, Bessie Bowman, Willena Marshall, Amanda Ellefsen, Esther Lacy, Elizabeth Merritt, Agnes R. Holt and Helen Bowyer.

Applications have already been sent to Mr. Bohannan for teachers and four of these graduates have been recommended by the president of the school.

Last week Judge Torrance of the state normal board visited the school and H. V. Richardson, of the local weather bureau, visited the school and spoke to the pupils. Dr. Klein, of the faculty is giving a series of talks to the pupils on distinguished men and women who have accomplished something worthy of note in the realm of science.

E. W. Bohannan will visit within the next two weeks in behalf of the local school, the county and city schools in the territory adjacent to Duluth.

TWELFTH YEAR.

The Big West End Department Store Celebrates.

Johnson & Moe tomrorow celebrate the twelfth anniversary of their opening business, and as a means of making the occasion long to be remembered are offering some of the greatest bargains in seasonable merchandise ever presented by the store. From a small beginning the business of this firm has grown to be one of the most important in the city, its gratifying success having been attained by straightforward business methods and enterprise. The big store will tomorrow be crowded to the limit of its capacity. Fiatato's orchestra will render one of its popular concerts from 3 to 5 p. m., and every lady visiting the store between 2 and 3 o'clock will be presented with a fresh cut rose or carnation.

A Quiet Wedding.

Miss Agnes Rand, of St. Paul, and M. W. Sanford, priveate secretary of Dick Ferris, of the Ferris stock company, which is still playing on its long engagement at the Metropolitan Opera house, were quietly married at the parsonage of the First Methodist church by Dr. S. P. Long, about 11 o'clock this morning. Mr. Sanford has been in the city for some days taking charge of the company here during the temporary absence of the regular manager on account of sickness.

WIRELESS FOR LINERS.

Vessels of American Company to Be Fitted.

New York, May 6.—The Tribune says that the American line, which has had for some time the Marconi wireless telegraph system on the Philadelphia, has issued a circular announcing its determination to equip the St. Louis, the St. Paul, and the New York at once with the system. In addition to the facilities offered to passengers in the way of sending or receiving telegrams while at sea, arrangements have been made with news companies for supplying current news, which will be sent by wireless telegraphy to east bound steamers from the Poldhu station, on the coast of England, and to west bound steamers from the Sisconset station, Nantucket. The steamers of the line, when fitted with the wireless telegraph apparatus, should be practically in continuous communication with either shore stations or with passing steamers.

AT WEST DULUTH

The appointment of Dr. Robert Forbes to the position of assistant secretary of the Methodist extension board is a very popular one in West Duluth, where Dr. Forbes has made his home for the past few years.

His many friends in this section of the city are discussing the feasibility of tendering him a farewell benefit banquet. No definite plans have yet been made, as the co-operation of Duluth friends of Dr. Forbes is desired. Several of the most prominent citizens in this part of the city are interested in the plan, and it is likely that a committee will be appointed to take in charge the arrangements for the dinner.

"No one deserves it more than Dr. Forbes," said M. M. Clark, president of the West Duluth Commercial club. "Certainly something should be done to show him our appreciation of his disinterested labors in West Duluth."

"There is no more popular man at the head of the lakes than Dr. Forbes," said H. R. Patterson, in speaking of the plan for tendering him a banquet. "His charity and his earnest work for the betterment of all classes in the city and throughout the state should not go unrecognized when he is about to leave us permanently."

"We want the Duluth friends of Dr. Forbes to meet with us," said a prominent West Duluth citizen who is largely responsible for the idea of a farewell banquet, "and appoint a committee to take charge of the arrangements and make this farewell worthy of the man."

Dr. Forbes is at present out of the city making a tour of his circuit and is not expected to return for several days.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Much comment has been caused in West Duluth over the dismissal of the men at work excavating for the new coke ovens in connection with the plant of the Zenith Furnace company, and many expressed fears that the work was to be delayed.

Such is not the case, however. Engineers who have recently taken charge of the building of the ovens decided that the ovens might be built at a lower level than was originally intended, and the bay front will be filled in to make a site for the ovens. The excavation was therefore found to be unnecessary and the work was stopped.

STENOGRAPHER

Gets the Estate of a Racine Manufacturer.

Racine, Wis., May 6.—Because she was kind to him while he was ill and in trouble and because his children sided with their mother when she brought suit for divorce, Frank Pallca, the manufacturer who committed suicide while insane on Wednesday, bequeathed his entire estate to Anna Larsen, his stenographer and confidential secretary, and disowned and disinherited his four children. In his will he said:

"The children with their mother attempted to secure all of their father's property, and they must look for their bequests to her and not the one they assailed in such a shameful way."

The estate is valued at $15,000 and $1000 life insurance is carried in Bohemian societies, but there is a clause in the policies that the money can only be paid to relatives of the insured. The children will contest the will.

VACANCIES OCCUR

Ten Places In the Fire Department Now Open.

Competitive Examination to Be Held During the Month.

Promotions and changes in the Duluth fire department have caused ten vacancies in the city's fire fighting force and opened up ten opportunities for desirable men on the lookout for steady work at good pay.

All these vacancies are to be filled in competitive examination under the direction of the board of civil service commissioners, but as this examination is not held until late in the month, the vacancies will be filled temporarily by Chief Black when suitable men apply to him.

It is claimed in some sources that the civil service examinations have caused fewer applications for all municipal jobs, including the fire department service, the term "civil service" creating a sort of reluctant feeling on the part of very desirable men that apparently imagine only college graduates would stand a show of passing.

Men that have gone through the examinations, however, say they are not to be feared and much prefer getting permanent city positions in that way to the old system of working in by political pull and forever afterward being under obligation to the person or persons that backed him for the place.

Since the inauguration of the classified service promotions in the department have been more frequent, making this branch of the city service much more desirable to men with ambition to better their condition and finances.

Skilled mechanics and men having some trade are especially desired in the fire department and general competency of applicants is said to go a long way with the civil service commission in filling vacancies.

Another feature of the fire department service that seems to appeal strongly to the average workingman is the insurance and sick benefits derived from a membership in the Firemen's Relief association, which is partially supported by the state in recognition of the valuable service that fire fighters render society in general.

HORSEWHIPPED BY HIS WIFE

Mr. Earles and a Woman Attacked By Mrs. Earles.

New York, May 6.—An angry wife who knew how to wield a horsewhip, her husband, and a woman who accompanied him, were the center of an excited crowd at the Morristown (N. J.) railway station last evening, says the World.

Mrs. Albert Earles was the vengeful wife, and the woman who was with her husband was Mrs. John Edwards. Mrs. Earles spied the two as they stood outside the waiting room.

"So, you're here, you villain," shouted Mrs. Earles as she came upon them in a secluded corner. "Well, take that, and that," and she lashed her husband across the face with the big whip. Mrs. Edwards started to run, but received a cut on the face and a command to halt. Then the crowd began to gather.

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Mrs. Earles. "This is just what I wanted—to disgrace you both in public. Don't either of you stir or I'll flog you until you can't stand."

The man and woman cowered together in the corner while Mrs. Earles continued to fongue-lash them, every now and then bringing down the whip in a way that made them wince. At last she drove them out of the corner and into the street, saying that she was going to drive them to the police station. When they reached the street, however, Mrs. Edwards and the man ran. Mrs. Earles went to find a justice to get out a warrant for them.

TO BUY FISHER TRACT.

Washington, May 6.—Secretary Root has decided to accept the offer of what is known as the Fisher tract for the military post at Columbus, Ohio. The site is about twelve miles north of Columbus and contains about 2000 acres. The purchase price is $90 an acre.

TO FLOAT MEXICAN LOAN.

New York, May 6.—It is stated on high authority that negotiations have been almost completed to float a Mexican loan, ostensibly in this country, but readdy abroad. The amount of the loan will be less than $25,000,000, and will, it is thought, take the form of a 5 per cent bond. The money will be used for public improvements.

SPOTTER DISCHARGED.

Topeka, May 6.—Advices received here from Horson state that the Rock Island company discharged the alleged spotter, George Bell, last night, and that the eighty striking machinists returned to work this morning. All of the 600 shopmen had threatened to go out unless Bell was discharged.

ROBBERY AND ARSON.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 6.—Burglars raided the store of J. E. Olson, at Superior, Iowa, this morning, rifled its contents, and then fired the building. The fire loss of $10,000 is total. The postoffice was in the store. No clue.

CHICKEN BONE CAUSED DEATH.

Charlotte, N. C., May 6.—Mrs. W. Lee, of Buffalo, died at the Buford hotel here this morning, from the effects of a chicken bone in her throat. She was on her way home from Florida, accompanied by her husband. The bone became lodged in her throat yesterday on a dining car.

Women, Consult Dr. Hartman.

Advice Free.

Miss Florence Miller, 422 Alabama street, Buffalo, N. Y., "I am proud and happy that I am able to praise Peruna as it deserves, as the best medicine for the ills so many women suffer from and do not know which way to turn for help. If all women who suffer as I did with periodical backache, headache, and that all worn-out feeling would take Peruna, they would soon find that it put new life into the body and took away all the aches and pains and weariness."—Miss Florence Miller.

Perfect Health Regained.

Mrs. E. Von Stienau, 32 Fifth street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I feel it my duty to write and tell you how much good Peruna has done for me. I have been a sufferer for years with female trouble, causing backache and at times terrible headaches. I had also complications from indigestion and heart trouble, so that I often had to lie down. A friend advised me try Peruna. I had little faith in any medicine, as I had tried so much without getting any relief, but to please her I gave it a trial. After three days' use I felt so much better that I decided to continue its use and by the time I had taken six bottles, I was in perfect health, was regular, had no more headaches, in fact my health is now all that I could wish. Peruna is certainly an estimable medicine and well worthy of praise."—Mrs. E. Von Steinau.

Women are subject to pelvic catarrh. This condition has been called all sorts of names and is often referred to under the general phrase, female diseases.

Peruna cures these cases.

Peruna cures them because it cures catarrh wherever located.

The nature of most of these ailments is catarrhal.

Catarrh is liable to attack any organ of the body.

It is especially liable to attack one or more organs of the female pelvis.

No wonder women talk about Peruna.

No wonder they think it is the greatest medicine in the world.

Peruna cures the catarrh wherever located.

Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty.

Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

CAPTAIN WAS BADLY INJURED

Saginaw's Commander Not Yet Able to Tell Story.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Capt. James I. Tunnel, of the Clyde liner Saginaw, which was sunk yesterday by the steamer Hamilton of the Dominion line off the Virginia coast, was brought here today from Norfolk. He was accompanied by Chief Engineer J. N. Selzer, Assistant Engineer Murray and Second Mate W. I. Morris. Capt. Tunnel is severely injured. Two of his ribs are fractured and his head is badly lacerated. He is also internally injured and suffers greatly from the shock. He was removed to his home. Chief Engineer Selzer reported at the office of the company, but the officials say they will have no statement to make until Capt. Tunnel is able to give an official announcement of the disaster.

ELECTION AT BALTIMORE.

Democratic Candidate For Mayor Evidently Elected.

Baltimore, May 6.—The ballots in 304 of the election precincts cast at yesterday's municipal election in this city gave Robert M. McLane, Democratic candidate for mayor, a plurality over Frank M. Wachter, Republican, of 520. The ballots in the remaining four precincts are still uncounted, owing to disputes among the judges of election. They may be counted tomorrow. It is not thought probable that the count of these ballots will materially change the result in favor of McLane.

The Republican candidate for city comptroller and president of the second branch of the city council were elected.

The Democrats will have a majority on joint ballot of both branches of the city council and thus will be able to elect the city register, who is virtually the municipal treasurer.

MAXINE ELLIOTT

Drives a Golf Ball Through a Window.

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 6.—Nat Goodwin and Maxine Elliott visited the Wanlkin golf links here on Saturday and Miss Elliott put a golf ball through a plate glass window in the second story of the home of Bentley E. Pierce. The shattered glass was showered over Baby Pierce, who was getting his bath inside the window. Miss Elliott and Goodwin rushed into the house to determine the damage. Mr. Goodwin picked the pieces of glass off the baby and soothed its cries while Miss Elliott paid for the window. Mrs. Pierce did not know who her visitors were until she saw them at the theater Saturday night, their last appearance as joint stars.

A GIFT FOR PRESIDENT.

Butte, Mont., May 6.—The committee having in charge the reception to President Roosevelt, has selected the souvenir to be given the executive when he visits Butte May 27. The one selected is a silver and gold loving cup, with three handles, standing 13½ inches high. It will cost $450 and from $50 to $100 for etching and engraving, bringing the cost up to from $500 to $550.

TO TEST NEW GOLF SYSTEM.

Chicago, May 6—In orde to afford an opportunity to test the all-match-play system, the Glenview club will give a golf tourney, open to all members of clubs in the Western Golf association, over 25 years of age, beginning Saturday afternoon, May 23, and continuing on the afternoons during the week following. The regular open annual event of the club is to be held Sept. 17, 18 and 19.

DUEL ON THE HIGHWAY.

London, Ky., May 6.—News was received here of the death Monday in Clay county of Sid Baker, brother-in-law of James Howard, recently tried for the death was the result of a duel on the highway with William McCullom. As soon as they met Baker slipped from his horse and fired at McCullom twice without hurting him. McCullom then shot baker in the abdomen. Baker's grudge against McCullom is supposed to have arisen from the fact that McCullom had been summoned as a witness against Howard, though he had not been put on the stand.

Mystery Surrounding Shooting of Patterson Not Cleared.

Muncie, Ind., May 6.—The mystery surrounding the shooting of William Patterson, a wealthy business man early yesterday, has not been cleared up. The family persists in the story that he was shot by a burglar who was in the Patterson home. The police say that ten or fifteen minutes before they were called to the Patterson house, two pistol shots were heard in South Walnut street about six squares from the home.

The police cannot understand how, if a burglar did the shooting, he left the house, as all doors and windows were securely locked when they reached the home. Patterson is still alive.

PARENTS ARE INDIGNANT

The Principal of a High School Has Scholars Searched.

New York, May 6.—Parents of thirty-one Wadleigh high school misses, indignant because of the accusation of theft made against them and the subsequent searching to which they were subjected, are preparing, the World says, to call on the board of education to demand the removal of Dr. John G. Wight as principal of the school in One Hundred and Fourteenth street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues.

The revelations made when thirty-one girls told the story of how they had collectively been accused of stealing the purse containing 50 cents, and how each had been stripped of her clothing by the teachers and searched for the booty, have bought to light much which has transpired in this high school, which is attended by about 2700 young women.

About a year ago the second year class was searched similarly, and the pupils say that it has been the practice to handle the pupils, many of them belonging to the best known families in the city, much as though they were prisoners with suspicious reputations.

The cause of the search was the announcement of Miss Celia Carabine, of 324 East One Hundred and Seventh street, that she had lost her purse. Miss Carobine is the daughter of Mrs. Teresa Carobine, who keeps the largest fruit market in Harlem. The young girl, who is studying to be a teacher, told an Evening World reporter that she was searched as well as the classmates.

Dr. Wight informed the class that all would be considered guilty until proved innocent.

Following the search, Dr. Wight and his assistants refused to remove the suspicion they had cast upon all the members of the class, and would not say if they had found the stolen property.

In the last few months four minor thefts have been reported by members of the first year division, known as "class D, sub. 3," and when Miss Carobine reported to her teacher, Miss Bugbe, the loss of 50 cents, the teacher reported the matter at once to Dr. Wight.

MRS. CLEVELAND OPPOSED

To Grover Entering the Presidential Race.

New York, May 6.—Should Mr. Cleveland be nominated by the Democrats next year it would be against the wishes of Mrs. Cleveland, says A. Maurice Low, of the Boston Globe. A man who was in Washington recently, and who has for many years been on terms of intimacy with Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, told Mr. Low that a few weeks ago he was the guest of the Clevelands at Princeton when, in the course of conversation the probability of Mr. Cleveland being nominated came up.

With a great deal of earnestness Mrs. Cleveland said she hoped Mr. Cleveland would not be nominated. Mr. Cleveland, who appeared to be much interested in what Mrs. Cleveland said, quietly turned to his caller and laughingly remarked that in deference to his wife's wishes it would be impossible for him to accept the nomination, even if it should be tendered to him.

MAY TERM OPENS

Call of Calendar Indicates a Fairly Busy Session.

Grand Jury Is Charged—Thirteen Divorce Cases.

The May term of district court opened this morning with Judge Dibell in charge of the calendar. The calling and disposition of the cases on the calendar did not occupy very much time this morning, the entire number of civil cases, 111 in all, being gone over in less than an hour.

There was not the usual amount of continuances and striking from the calendar and the number of cases set for trial indicate that this term of court will be a very busy one. Only four cases were continued and but six were struck from the calendar.

Of the 111 civil cases nineteen were continued over from last term and the rest are new cases.

The trial of the divorce cases, of which there are about thirteen, will begin in all three court rooms tomorrow morning.

The grand jury met at 11 o'clock, there being eighteen present out of the twenty-two summoned to appear. The charge to the grand jury was delivered by Judge Ensign, who quoted and explained the statutes outlining the duties and jurisdiction of that body, and impressing on the jurors the necessity of secrecy in all of their actions. Frank A. Brewer was appointed foreman of the jury.

The petit jury will meet next Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

MACHINISTS

Make Several Changes In Their Constitution.

Milwaukee, May 6.—The International Machinists' convention today decided to abolish the referendum clause in its constitution with respect to conventions, and decided to meet biennially in the month of September. Representation of lodges in the biennial convention was changed from one for every 100 members to one for 200 members. The convention resolved to extend jurisdiction to "specials" in such opportunities. While the "specials" are not machinists they compose a large factor in the shops and will be taken in under certain conditions, the membership being of an auxiliary character.

President James O'Connell is still indisposed but expects to be able to attend the convention tomorrow. There was no evidence of spotters at today's meeting.

INSURGENTS SENTENCED.

Manila, May 6.—Col. Aurado Santos and Col. Marcelo Delacring, leaders of th recent insurrection in Rizal province, have been convicted of brigandage and conspiracy and have been sentenced to death. The date for their execution is not fixed, as the supreme court must review the case.

HAS PLANTED MANY TREES

Park Board Sets Out a Couple Thousand of Them.

Two thousand trees have been set out by the park board within the past few days.

About 1000 of these are small hedge trees which were planted around the Boulevard, replacing an old broken-down fence which was about the only offensive sight that has greeted the eye of citizens and visitors on the famous driveway.

Soft maple and elm trees were planted throughout the city and among the most notable improvements in this line will be seen on Twenty-first avenue east between London road and Fourth street and on Woodland avenue.

PAVING IN THE LAKE.

Cedar Blocks Are Carried Down Chester Creek.

Lake Superior, between Second and Tenth avenues East, has been paved with cedar blocks.

Gulls and fish are apparently of the opinion that it is the best street paving ever used on the lake.

Thousands of blocks taken off East Superior street between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues East were hauled to a lot in the East End through which Chester Creek runs.

The waters of the creek overflowed its banks as a result of the recent melting of snow and washed the paving out into the lake.

Unlike the cedar blocks taken from Superior street between Third avenue East and Eighth avenue West, the blocks from the East End district are unfit for fuel or other purposes, despite the fact that they have not been used as long as the paving through the down town business district was.

The cedar taken up east of Eighth avenue has been thoroughly rotten, while the blocks taken up West of Third avenue East were still sound although worn from six inches to one inch in thickness. Engineers explain this by saying that the down town paving was preserved by a tar filler while the paving further east on Superior street merely had a sand filler.

THOUGHT TO BE JIM CUMMINS

Denver Police on Track of Man Called Mark Smith.

Denver, May 6.—The police of Denver are investigating a case of mysterious disappearance that rumor has it involves a man who, while in Denver called himself as Mark Smith, but who in reality is believed to be none other than Jim Cummins, whose name was associated with the Jesse James band of outlaws. M. S. Cunningham came to Denver several weeks ago and purchased a saloon. A few days later Smith appeared on the scene and made Cunningham's place his headquarters. The two men were much together and when Cunningham disappeared about a week ago investigation brought to light the fact that he had told his bartender that Smith was really Jim Cummins. Cunningham had a considerable sum of money when last seen and the police fear that he met with foul play. They are trying to locate Smith. Cunningham came from Booneville, Mo., and several letters from there await him in this city.

AMERICANS ARE HISSED

By Nicaraguans on Account of Feeling Against President.

San Francisco, May 6.—Reports received by the Pacific Mail steamer, Colon, from Panama, indicate that Gen. Emilieo Chamorro, the Conservative leader of Nicaragua, is making great progress against the forces of President Zelaya.

Passengers on the Colon refute the statement that the government forces have retaken the vessels captured by Gen. Chamorro on Lake Nicaragua. Gen. Ortiz, the newly proclaimed president, was at the last accounts on the march from Honduras with a large force to attack the government forces at Leon.

The report is brought that Americans are openly hissed on account of the feeling against President Roosevelt, who is blamed for "not enforcing the Monroe doctrine" by preventing Great Britain and Germany from collecting their debt from Salvador and Nicaragua. Outrages on the part of President Zelaya against certain prominent citizens of Nicaragua, who are of different political faith from himself are said to have become common and the result of it has been to paralyze trade. Many Colombians are expected to assist the revolutionists in the fight against Zelaya.

MEETING OF CREDITORS.

New York, May 6.—A meeting of creditors of the Edward Walter Stein Co., manufacturers of shirts at Ionia, Mich., and Albany, N. Y., with an office in this city has been held here. The statement presented showed liabilities of $246,000. Actual assets are $115,200 in merchandise, accounts and cash and machinery and fixtures of the nominal values of $60,000. An offer of settlement was made at 50 cents on three, six and nine months, endorsed. A committee of creditors has been appointed.

PRINCE AND QUEEN AT PARIS.

Paris, May 6.—Prince Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, and Queen Amelia, of Portugal, arrived here yesterday, but neither visit has any political significance. The prince, who is traveling incognito, came here from Mentone to consult a physician. A member of the suite of the prince denied the reports of the systematic manufacture of dynamite in Bulgaria for the use of the revolutionists in Macedonia.

FATAL FIGHT AT A HOTEL DANCE

One Man Killed; One Fatally Stabbed, Another Seriously.

Bay City, Mich., May 6.—During a fight last night, at a hotel dance in Big Creek, just across the line in Tuscola county, Dave Trombly, aged 35, of West Bay City, was shot dead. In the fight Harry Schindehette, aged 30, of this city, was fatally stabbed with a knife, and Frank De Foe, aged 28, single, was seriously cut. All three are fishermen. Schindehette and De Foe were brought to the hospital in this city today. An inquest will be held over Trombly's body in Unionville today. The participants in the fight tell conflicting stories and no arrests will be made until after the inquest.

BREAD AND BEER

Given Free to All By English Church.

New York, May 6.—Robert Bruce in Leslie's Weekly says that connected with the Church of the Holy Cross, near Winchester, England, is a charity hospital where "a manchet of bread and a measure of beel" have been given without question or price to everyone who has asked for it for nearly 800 years. The endowment which makes this possible is in better shape than ever today, and the building used for the purpose will no doubt last as long as the old Norman and transition architecture of the times of the conquest and later builders.

Legend tells us that on the site of the hospital there existed a religious fraternity which perished after the Danish ravages. But the earliest records of the place are its mentions in two papal bulls, dated 1137 and 1144 respectively, confirming the endowments, the actual foundation having been made in 1136. The founder was Henry de Blois, bishop of Winchester, brother of King Stephen, their father being Stephen, count of Blois.

In making the grant De Bois wrote: "For the health of the souls of myself, my predecessors, and the kings of England. I have newly instituted without the walls of Winchester, and forever to sustain thirteen poor, impotent men to be lodged, cared for, fed and nursed, and properly so, another to be introduced as soon as any one shall be sufficiently recovered as to be dismissed with comfort and respect. Over and above these thirteen, corresponding to the number of Christ and his apostles, a hundred men shall be provided with dinner in the hall daily; and a manchet of bread and a measure of beer shall be given to all wayfarers presenting themselves at the hospital gate to the end of time."

LORENZ AT WORK.

New Orleans, May 6.—Dr. Lorenz, the Vienna surgeon, performed two operations today in the charity hospital. Both were cases of club feet. The amphitheater of the hospital was crowded with local physicians and visiting delegates to the American Medical association.

HOWSE MAKES REPLY.

CONGREGATIONALISTS

Are Holding Their Triennial Convention at Chicago.

Chicago, May 6.—The sixteenth triennial convention of the Congregational churches of the interior began today with 100 ministers and laymen present. The following officers were elected: Moderator, R. E. Jenkins, Chicago; assistant moderator, Rev. C. Rogers, Mason City, Iowa; secretary, Rev. E. F. Lyman, Milbank, S. D.; assistant secretary, Rev. F. R. Bush, Bangor, Mich.

President George read a report reviewing the work done by the Chicago theological seminary. The visiting delegates will be given a dinner this evening by the Congregational ministers of Chicago at the First Congregational church. The graduating exercises of the Chicago theological seminary will be held this evening at the Union Park Congregational church.

MANY ON STRIKE.

Gloversville, N. Y., May 6.—The lockout of the International Table Cutters' union by the glove manufacturers occurred today. About 3200 operatives are idle. The employes of all branches of the heavy and fine goods trade are now out except in two factories and within a few days about 7000 people will be out of work.

THE FIRST GAME

League Players to Appear on Duluth Diamond Saturday.

Exhibition Game With High School—Three Pitchers Will Work.

Everyone connected with the event is conspiring to make the Duluth League baseball team's first appearance in public, which will take place next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the driving park, a great success.

The game will be played for the benefit of the High School Athletic association and the high school team will be the first bunch to line up against the league players. Manager Van Praagh donated the services of his men to play the game with the high school, and all of the receipts will go to pull the high school boys out of the financial difficulty which has been harrassing them since last fall.

Secretary Peachey, of the Fair association, has offered the grounds to the boys free of charge, and everyone is lending a hand to help the students along.

The high school men have been practicing hard for the contest for the last two weeks and while they do not expect to win the game and will feel that they are lucky if they get in a couple of runs against the professionals, they are in good form, and with Cummings in the box and Potter to catch for him they intend to hold the league players down to a low score.

Cummings is the fastest school pitcher in the state and in matter of ability he is believed to rank well with any of the league men, so he will be able to give them some very good batting practice. They will be doing good work if they pound out many long ones.

Manager Van Praagh announces that in this game each of the three cracker-jack pitchers whom he has secured to do his twirling will be tried. Each will pitch three innings. All of the men are new to Duluth fans and beside the interest that will be shown by the fans in the first public work of the team the pitching exhibition will attract considerable attention.

Dellar, Martin and Volz are the twirlers who will probably be in the game. Dellar lead the Northern league in pitching average last year, Martin was second and so far this year he has been connected with the Kansas City squad of the American association. Volz is a whirlwind from the New England league, where he was the principal cause of Manchester bagging the pennant last season. All are high pressure men and their stunt for three innings each will be of great interest to the fans.

The game will be called at 2 o'clock so that the warmer part of the afternoon may be used for the contest.

The Ins and Outs of Soda Crackers

Soda crackers fresh from the oven are good—delicious
—if exposed to the air they quickly lose that goodness—much of it in a few minutes—most of it in an hour—
all of it in a day.
—That's why the common kind, the paper-bag kind,
have lost their flavor before you get them.
—In Uneeda Biscuit
there's a difference—a big difference because they are packed at the oven door identified by the famous red and white trade mark design—which preserves the goodness of biscuit; is airtight and germ proof and holds within the oven-fresh flavor of Uneeda Biscuit

the undesirable flavors of all other things
—that's one reason why
millions buy Uneeda Biscuit
Another reason is the price—

Father Walser Is Discharged From Charge of Murder.

No Evidence Obtainable to Connect Him With Crime.

Lorain, Ohio, May 6.—Father Ferdinand Walser, arrested last Saturday morning, in connection with the murder of Agatha Reichlin, was brought to this city yesterday from the jail at Elyria and discharged of the charge of murder, which was placed against him at that time.

Mayor King went through the formality of reading the warrant for Walser's arrest and his attorney, J. J. Hingston, entered a plea of not guilty. Prosecuting Attorney Stroup, addressing his honr, said in substance:

"After having listened to the evidence at the inquest today, I can only say there is not sufficient evidence to hold the defendant. The action taken on the part of the police in arresting Father Walser was in accordance with their duty. A terrible crime had been committed and if the suspicion of guilt had been placed against any other person, I can assure you that he would have been treated as the defendant has."

Mayor King then stated that as the prosecuting attorney had held that there was not sufficient evidence to hold the prisoner, "I have nothing to do but discharge him from custody.. The crime that was committed on May 1 was the most atrocious crime committed in the city of Lorain. When Father Walser was arrested on Saturday morning public feeling ran high against him in the city, and on this account the prosecuting attorney and myself thought the removal of the priest was necessary to secure his safety from attack. Who killed Agatha Reichlin is known only to the murderer and God. No one is more pleased than myself that there is no evidence on which to hold the priest. I hope the murderer will be punished. The city officials will not relax in their duty, but will continue until the murderer of Agatha Reichlin is captured and convicted."

Father Walser, with moistened eyes, said: "You cannot say a word against me. You have hurt me a great deal. Agatha Reichlin was the last person I would kill. I could not kill anything. I could not kill a chicken. I thank the officials for the courtesies extended to me and especially thank Sheriff Salisbury as he alone treated me as a noble gentleman could have done. I thank all Catholics in general and the people of St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches in particular. I wish to express my heartfelt thanks for liberation from the dreadful charges which hung over me for the past four days."

Notwithstanding the bringing of Father Walser here from Elyria was very quietly done, a large crowd gathered in the mayor's office during the progress of the hearing. Father Reichlin, brother of the murdered girl, listened attentively to the proceeding and on the adjournment of the court was the first to approach Father Walser with a hearty handshake, after which the handshaking became general and the freed priest was the recipient of congratulations from all sides, after which he left the city on a late train.

At the end of the investigation into the cause of the death of Agatha Reichlin, Coroner French, of this county, gave as his conclusion the verdict: "That Agatha Reichlin came to her death from wounds inflicted by a stone in the hands of a person unknown."

INSTRUMENT HE LOVED

Placed In His Casket By Sorrowing Friends.

Wilmington, Ohio, May 6.—Unique rates were performed at the funeral of Amos T. Sowell, a man of considerable wealth, who for some unknown reason had elected to make his home at the county infirmary here for many years. He was 85 years of age, and in his second childhood had developed a penchant for collecting musical instruments, the French harp being the one he delighted in the most.

While funeral services were being held at Taylor's undertaking establishment, Addison P. Russell, formerly secretary of state of Ohio, asked permission of those in charge to place a French harp in the dead man's hands. On this request being granted many of the prominent men of the town who were present walked up to the casket and reverently laid similar instruments on the body. The casket was then closed, and the remains borne to the cemetery here, where they were interred.

"UNLUCKY THIRTEEN"

Figured Prominently In a Moonshine Distillery.

Evansville, Ind., May 6.—Unlucky 13 and unpropitious Friday have figured prominently in the moonshine distillery recently established here and which passed into the hands of a receiver a few days ago. When the distillery was established here the government gave it No. 13. The plant began operations February 13 last. When the government inspectors went to measure the still used in the plant they found it had a capacity of 13 bushels.

This day was also on Friday. The local telephone arranged to put a phone in the plant on Friday, and the number given the factory was 1313. Friday afternoon a cat that had made her home in the distillery gave birth to 13 kittens. Late that afternoon Captain A. J. Goodson, special revenue collector, accompanied by John Chewning, the local collector, went to the plant on business and the mother of the kittens attacked Captain Goodson in a rage and severely bit him in the leg. From the day the plant started the stockholders had nothing but bad luck. The plant went into bankruptcy a few days ago.

RAILROADS

Should Be Nationalized, Says Andrew Carnegie.

London, May 6.—Having completed a trans-Atlantic voyage on the Cedric, and having had as a fellow passenger Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, who is in many respects the most interested man in railroads in the world, it was with rather a stalwart significance that one of Andrew Carnegie's first remarks on landing was:

"You can say for me that I am thoroughly in favor of Keir Hardie's suggestion that all railways should be nationalized. It would be an excellent thing for the people if that were done. Look at the economy that would be effected. If all of the railways were under state control, fares would be lowered and the comfort of the passengers would be better looken after."

The correspondent then informed Mr. Carnegie that Liverpool was preparing to transform its first steam railway into an electric line.

"Well, well," said Mr. Carnegie. "The Mersey railway is not too soon in this for sure; anyway the English railways are ten years behind Baltimore, where a steam road was electrified a decade ago. We shall indeed have advanced when all of the railways of the United States and England shall be run by electricity."

Just before getting into his carriage Mr. Morgan said:

"I have nothing to say about the United States, which, I suppose, is going on as usual. You can say, however, that I have had a splendid voyage, and that the Cedric is a great ship."

COLUMBIA THE FASTER

Old Cup Defender Outsails the New Yacht Reliance.

Glen Cove, L. I., May 6.—It required just twenty minutes yesterday for the peerless cup defender, Columbia, to demonstrate that in a light wind and beating to windward she is a better boat than the new Herreshoff cup yacht Reliance. Starting from a position to leeward and slightly astern of the Reliance, the Columbia sailed through the new boat's lee, tacked across her bow, and in the next leg of a mile and a half increased her lead to nearly a quarter of a mile. The Reliance then withdrew. When the Columbia went through her lee the Reliance kept off and voluntarily gave up the advantage of her windward position, but she was none the less decisively and emphatically outsailed. This was the first brush between the rivals. The sea was as smooth as a pond and both boats carried mainsail, staysail, working jib and small club topsail. At the start of the race the Reliance was a little ahead and to windward of the Columbia. The Reliance held her position only a few minutes, for as the breeze freshened the Columbia drew up on her rival in an astonishing fashion, ran by her to leeward, and in ten minutes was leading the new boat by several lengths. The Columbia heeled easily, while the Reliance stood up much more stiffly, though carrying more canvas.

The Columbia went ahead and steadily drew away, seeming to foot faster and sail closer to the wind.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS

Being Asked By the War Department of the Militia.

Columbus, Ohio, May 6.—If there were a war cloud on the horizon that promised to involve the United States there would be no better evidence that troops were to be soon demanded than the circular just sent throughout the state from the office of the adjutant general.

Officers of the United States army are inspecting Ohio troops, with the object in view of seeing which companies are intitled to modern equipment under the Dick bill.

In connection with the inspection the regular army officers are making some pertinent questions. Some significant ones follow:

"Would the organization as a body be willing to respond to a call by the president for duty for any period not to exceed nine months, in case their services were needed?

"State whether the enlisted men understand that they are now subject to the call of the president of the United States, as well as the governor of Ohio, and whether they are aware of the penalty prescribed for failure to respond to such call.

"State what percentage of enlisted men would be willing to subscribe to an additional oath, covering the balance of their present enlistment, to respond to a call of the president for a period not exceeding nine months.

"State whether your organization could be maintained at a minimum strength of fifty-five enlisted men."

POSTUM COFFEE

THE BREAKFAST CUP

Can Bring Joy or Trouble

Change in food and drink will sometimes make over even elderly people and restore them to natural health.

A man of 70 writes that at the age of 60 he began to break down and was a partial invalid until 67, when he concluded that coffee was one of the prime causes of his sickness and began using Postum Food Coffee in its place with Grape-Nuts Breakfast food and some fruit at his meals.

He says: "Now, at the age of 70, I am as strong and hearty as I was at 50. I would not go back to my old mode of living for a hundred thousand dollars." This man was a pioneer in Illinois in 1837, later on was an early settler in North Dakota. He requests that his name shall not appear in print. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

VERY HARD LIFE

Is That of Chorus Girl In New York Theaters.

Poorly Paid, It Offers Splendid Chances For Starvation.

New York, May 6.—Like the famous ballet where the dancers are dressed to represent marquises in front and beggars behind, the real life of the chorus girl is one of vivid contrasts and of savage diversity. Behind the footlights she is a thing of beauty, smiling, dimpling, flashing, fascinating. But poorly paid, ill advised, without natural protectors, her whole career from the moment she accepts an engagement is one of battle with hard luck, adversity and temptation.

Almost every girl has a desire at some period of her early life to go on the stage. Some of them really do go, and of that some probably 99 per cent are sick of the bargain before the end of the first season. But generally it is too late then.

"Yes," said a chorus girl, when I asked her about her life, "it is a hard one, a fearful one, but——".

There she stoped, and the "but" said volumes. For always just ahead of the chorus girl, with her $12 or $15 a week salary, is the post of "show girl," with $10 a week more and a name on the bill. That is the goal for which they strive and sacrifice and work. But it is when they return home late at night to the cheap lodgings they are the prey of remorse, repentance or despair.

It was only recently that a beautiful and talented girl was found in her room starving. She had lost her position, and the small sum saved from her previous engagement had rapidly disappeared. Then she had gone from agency to agency, again and again, with her plea for work. She failed. Then she turned to that Mecca of despair, the pawnbroker. Her few trinkets, her small stock of clothes, her poor little possessions, went one by one. She ate crusts of bread and drank water. Yet all the time she reserved her best dress, for it was her stock in trade to look well when she presented herself before the agents to ask for a place. One agent told her that she looked too glum to make a good chorus girl. She must smile and smile, even though hunger was wasting her.

At last the day came when she was too ill from want of food to rise from her bed, dress and go around to the agencies. That day passed without food. The next day was worse. The third day the landlady, not hearing her, went to her room and found her dying. Then a hue and cry was raised among the players, she had asked for work and had been refused. Now that she was nearly dead, a relief committee was organized. Actors and managers fell over each other in their eagerness to be of use. A handsome sum was raised for the girl, and, broken in health and with terrible memories behind her, she took the train for her Western home, a wreck of her former self, after just eighteen months of battle with fame, as it is known in the chorus.

From the moment that a girl enters the chorus of a musical comedy her life ceases to be her own. First she must attend rehearsals. These are sometimes held all day long and until late in the evening. So her spare time is well filled with work. When she arises in the morning she makes her own breakfast by cooking some tea and perhaps an egg or two on the little gas stove that she has in her room.

The chorus girl's room is generally a small hall room. On the bureau are various articles of toilet scattered. Rabbits' feet and grease paint are mingling with old gloves, torn socks, bits of ribbon, empty candy boxes and a greasy plate that held a couple of ham sandwiches the night before. The walls are decorated with cheap chromos, the property of the landlady, for chorus girls are too much birds of passage to be burdened with baggage of that description.

Clothes everywhere. It is a morning that a girl has to herself, and she is making use of it to darn the holes in her stockings and mend the rents in her gowns. She tells of her home down in the quiet Pennsylvania town where she was born, how she sang well at a church festival, how some of her admirers told her that she could make her fortune on the stage, how she read novels of girls who had actually won fame by their beauty and their voices; how she studied and worked and at last had a chance to go in the chorus and work her way up.

"And that is all there was to it," she said, with a grimace. "I went on in the chorus and am still 'working my way up.'

"What can a girl save from the salary that is paid to her for her work in the chorus? She is lucky if she gets $17 a week, and out of that must come her expenses of living. Her room rent is first. Then come her meals. She cannot do as others in this regard, as she is compelled to get her meals when and where she can so as to suit her work. Then she must be nicely gowned. A dowdy chorus girl gets the 'grand bounce' quicker than any other kind, except the glum ones.

"Say that her room and meals cost her $9 and $10 a week. That will leave her $5 or $6 to provide her own gowns and her shoes. This footgear proposition is an expensive one, for we must wear the best and prettiest shoes that money can buy. Then with car fares, medicines and the other necessaries of life, we are lucky if we are not in debt at the end of the week.

"Then, unless she knows that she stands high in the graces of the manager or some other high official in the company, her first glance at her pay envelope is to see whether the dreaded two weeks' notice is inclosed. If it is, that means another weary hunt for work, and with starvation, perhaps, staring her in the face."

But, bad as the life of a chorus girl in a big city like New York, it is far better than the one that confronts them when the company starts upon "the road." There all semblance of private life ends. The girl can have no home. She floats from one hotel to another, generally rooming with some other girl in the company, and constantly packing up and unpacking for "the road" and for rehearsal. She goes into towns where she has no friends, where there is not a familiar nook or corner in the place, where she must eat at a hotel table, sleep in a mean, cheap room, be stared at, insulted and abused. Then should she chance to incur the displeasure of the manager, back to New York she goes.

One out of ten dozen girls who enter the chorus reach the post of "show girl," the aristocracy of the chorus. One out of every ten dozen "show girls" reach a secondary position in the cast, and every now and then some girl breaks into the ranks of the stars.

MURDER AT ST. PAUL.

St. Paul, May 6.—Joseph Carr, 18 years old, was murdered last night while walking along the street with two friends. Joseph Kohler has been arrested charged with committing the crime. Kohler denies that he is guilty and will not talk of the affair. No motive is apparent for the crime. One of Carr's companions states that as they were walking along the street they met and spoke to Kohler. Shortly after they passed him a shot was heard and Carr dropped dead. All of the men were plumbers.

MURDERER SEEMS SAFE

The Assassin of Marcum Will Never Be Known.

Lexington, Ky., May 6.—Specials from Jackson after 1 o'clock a. m. say that the murderer of James B. Marcum probably will never be known. With the exception of a brief search made about five minutes after the shooting, there has been no pronounced effort to discover the assassin. The town is quiet, and it is next to impossible to get anyone to talk. The correspondent has been advised by a friend that it would be more than well for him to leave on the first train.

The only words uttered by Marcum after he was shot were, "My God, they have killed me!" The entire side of his face was badly powder-burned. The assassin stood immediately over him in firing the last shot. The peculiar feature about the murder is that no man has, or will, advance a theory about the shooting, nor as to the probable identity of the assassin.

Deputy Sheriff B. J. Ewen, who was standing beside Marcum, said that he ran at the sound of the first shot and did not see the person who fired the shot. Another gentleman, who would not permit the use of his name, says that Ewen told him he saw the man and knew who it was, but would not tell because his life would pay the forfeit.

The funeral of Marcum took place yesterday afternoon at the Presbyterian church, Rev. A. C. Dorris officiating. A great many women but few men were present. The burial took place in Mr. Marcum's private burial ground.

RE-ELECTED MAYOR OF OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., May 6.—Frank E. Moore, Republican, was yesterday elected mayor of Omaha for the third time, having beaten his three opponents out by about ten plurality. Notwithstanding there was a split in his party, the mayor's friends have made a most aggressive campaign. Erastus Benton, who was nominated by the bolting wing of the Republicans, came in second. Howell, the Democratic candidate, was third, while the Socialist candidate, W. E. Moore, received about 2000 votes. The campaign has probably been the most bitterly fought of any in the history of the city.

TAXES TOO HIGH

Northern Pacific Thinks It Is Paying County Too Much.

Tells What Improvements Are to Be Made In Duluth.

The Northern Pacific Railway company is to increase its terminal and yard facilities on Rice's Point to about three times the present size, and has already begun the work looking toward the end in view. The new improvements will be made at an enormous expense.

This announcement was made yesterday afternoon in a petition which the company presented to the county commissioners asking for the abatement of its taxes on certain property within the city limits which is not now actually used for railroad purposes. The petition was signed by G. S. Ferneld, of St. Paul, commissioner of real estate, right-of-way and taxes for the company. That part of the petition which referred to the proposed improvements was as follows:

"The company has perfected plans for very much enlarged facilities and terminals on Rice's Point, and is now engaged preparing ground and putting in tracks, filling in submerged lands. When the work is completed it will have terminal and yard facilities about three times the size of its present large terminal yards on Rice's Point, all of which is being done at an enormous expense, greatly to the advantage of the city, the county and the people thereof."

The railway company claims that a considerable portion of its lands in the city not used for railroad purposes was assessed in 1902 at a valuation which the petitioner believes is greater than it should bear, and which is a higher ratio than other property, generally, in the city; that another considerable portion of its property, while assessed fully as high as it should be, is not so excessive that the company will ask any abatement thereof.

The petition goes on at some length giving a schedule of parcels of lands in Bay Front division, Portland division and Rice's Point division, showing the assessed valuation in 1900, 1902 and the taxes for 1902, and setting forth the increase in its taxes. It is argued that the figures show certain lots in Rice's Point have been increased over the 1900 valuation all the way from 10 to 100 per cent. It is claimed that an examination of the tax roll will show that an occasional lot has been reduced below the assessed valuation of 1900, but the entire assessment on the company's property on Rice's Point for 1902 is at very heavy increase over 1900 or any other assessment heretofore made. The railway company asserts that some of the lots on Rice's Point have been assessed in many instances more than their value.

Attention is called to a tract of five acres in Banning & Rays' subdivision, near Chester creek, which the company claims was assessed at $2000 per acre in 1900 and increased in 1902 to $18,000, with a tax of $619.20. It is claimed by the petitioner that this is more than double the value that the property could be sold for at the present time. The company asks that the board of county commissioners abate the taxes on this property at least 40 per cent.

Another tract of 65,986 square feet, occupied by the Pioneer fuel company, in Portland division, is claimed to have been increased in assessed valuation from $9750 in 1900 to $13,500, with taxes at $464.40, in 1902. A 40 per cent abatement of the taxes in this case is asked.

The petitioner says that the property occupied as a dock by the Northwestern Fuel company was assessed in 1900 at $112,760, which the county board reduced to $50,000, but which last year was again raised to $136,700 and the taxes extended to $4702.48. An abatement is also asked.

The assessed valuation in 1900 of the property occupied by the Pabst Brewing company near Lake avenue was $1710, and it is claimed the valuation was increased to $2160 in 1902, which is $200 higher than the same was equalized by the county board in 1900. A 25 per cent abatement of the taxes in this case is asked.

In another paragraph the petitioner says that a certain tract of land containing 33,465 square feet near the corner of Lake avenue and Railroad street was equalized by the county board in 1900 at $13,385, by the state board at $12,046, but which has been increased in 1902 to $15,060, with a tax of $515. An abatement of 20 per cent in this tax is asked.

The company further claims that lots in blocks 1 and 2 and lots 1 and 3 in block 6, Bay Front division, are assessed at very nearly if not their actual cash value, and it is informed that real property in the city of Duluth is not assessed to exceed 40 per cent of its real value, wherefore it is asked that the taxes on Bay Front lots be abated at least 23 1-3 per cent. An abatement of 25 per cent in taxes on lots in block 3, Portland division, is asked.

In the matter of its Rice's Point property the company claims that some of its lands are submerged and can only be made valuable after great expense; that the property has been acquired for the purpose of establishing yards and terminals out of the residence portion of the city where the traffic would annoy people. It is alleged that the 1902 assessment on the Rice's Point property is anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent in excess of its actual value, and petitioner asks that the county commissioners abate the taxes there at least 33 1-3 per cent.

The petition has been referred to the county board committee on taxes and assessments, and the commissioners will have a hearing in the matter at the adjourned meeting to be held May 14.

Clan to Celebrate.

The fifteenth anniversary of the organization of Clan Stewart will fall on May 19 and the clan at the meeting last evening decided tocelebrate the event. The program has not yet been arranged.

Four of the original members numbering sixty-three still ily here. They are Simon Clark, James Dingwall, Samuel Shearer and R. J. McKenzie.

The clan is soon to have a bagpipe band of ten members. They will make their appearance on July 4.

LIKE THEIR JOBS

Assertion Made That Special Police Agitate the Strikers.

Mayor Hugo Does Not Believe This Is Possible.

Considerable antagonism to the city's policy of employing special police during the current strike difficulties has developed.

It is claimed that these citizen officers have a tendency to create trouble and it is openly charged that some of them hope to prolong their jobs as police officers by agitating the strikers when ever an opportunity presents itself.

However, there is a misapprehension as to the "specials" recently appointed and Mayor Hugo says that not one of the extra officers now on duty is permitted to be on duty in the strike districts.

The idea in appointing the special officers, according to the mayor, was simply to let them take the places of regular officers who would be taken off uptown beats and placed on a reserve detail to be kept in constant readiness for an emergency, such as the Garfield avenue disturbance of last Friday.

The mayor is somewhat indignant that charges should be made against these men to the effect that they were stirring up trouble along the harbor front, and says that not one of them is permitted near the docks or any place else where police protection is demanded on account of any strike.

The reserve detail is carefully picked by Chief Troyer from old officers of experience, who will do nothing rash in an emergency and who have been carefully instructed to act conservatively.

The only strike now existing where a request has been made for police protection is that of the freight handlers and the situation along the docks is now so quiet that it is not likely that specials will be needed much longer to replace the regulars detached for strike duty.

If there has been any police agitation of the strikers it has been by special policemen appointed by the Northern Pacific Railway company and these men when sworn in are cautioned to attend strictly to their business.

THE STAGE.

"The Carpet Bagger fits Tim Murphy so well and is withal so charming a comedy that he has wandered back to it after he had apparently given it up. The "Carpet bag" governor of Mississippi as pictured in this Opie Read-Frank Pixley collaboration is a delightful character, even in the first act where his shameless corruption is brought out so vividly. As his nobler nature is awakened by a woman who has touched his heart, the character becomes strongly sympathetic and the audience cannot but wish that victory might be his in the election which is at hand as the final scene is played. Mr. Murphy's dry humor is delicious and the part gives him much play for it. He does not fail either in bringing out the quiet strength and courage that belongs to the carpet bagger.

Mr. Murphy was of course called before the curtain and told some stories in his own inimitable way.

The support is not as good as could be desired. Miss Sherrod is a charming little woman and a pleasing actress, but she is not happily cast in the role of Lucy Linford, the female lobbyist. There is hardly enough boldness and rather more sweet womanliness than on looks for in such a character.

Nobody objects very seriously to the practice of offering bon bons, etc., for sale in the theater during the progress of a performance, but the management should see that the youngsters offer their wares in a quiet and unobtrusive way and with as little disturbance to the audience as possible. To allow a boy to shout "chocolate, bon bons, chewing gum and candy" so loud as to drown the orchestra, and to hawk his wares up and down the same aisle four and five times during one intermission is going a little beyond the reasonable.

In his new play "A Prince of Tatters," which comes to the Lyceum theater Thursday and Friday, Al H. Wilson, the popular German dialect comedian, is said to be meeting with great success. Mr. Wilson who is a graceful and talented actor, is also a mellow baritone singer, and his songs, charming as ballads, are full of romance and pathos. They are features of the performance and each one is a hit. They are soft and sweet and full of sympathy. By a happy utilization of diversified talents he also combines drollery and dignit and makes of the part of "Hugo," the hero of the play, a memorable picture.

Last evening the Ferris comedians presented thee "Lady of Lyons" to another appreciative audience. The mountings and costuming of this play is noteworthy, and the production one of the best the company has given. The specialities of Lane and Lane and Bandy and Walsh are very clever.

The last opportunity to witness "Lady of Lyons" will be this evening at the Metropolitan.

Commencing Thursday evening the Ferris comedians will offer "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This version, it is said, will be entirely different from any other ever presented in Duluth.

MANUFACTURERS VS. THE UNIONS

Workingmen Can Accomplish More By Ballot Than Strikes.

New York, May 6.—At a meeting held under the auspices of the Socialist Literary society, Walter Thomas Mills, of Kansas City, principal of the International School of Social Economy, speaking on the "Manufactures vs. the Trades Unions," declared the working men would never be able to resist the power of the Manufacturers' association by strike and boycott. It boasted that it would go to Washington and the workingman would have to go there too. If the New York workingmen, however, would vote for themselves at home, they would not have to send any lobbyists to Washington. One of these days a workingman would be president and they would have their own mayor and governor. Mr. Mills continued: "The Manufacturers' association has come none too soon. It represents, as it claims to do, the greatest combination of employers the world has ever known. It has pledged to the destruction of the power of trade unions and to the complete control of the powers of the state for the private benefit of the employers of labor. It boasts that it is open and defiant, secret when that method is most effective, and at all times relentless in its warfare.

"The Manufacturers' association claims to favor the liberty of the individual workman, but the fact is that the worker is utterly without economic liberty except as secured by his organization and in spite of—not with the help of—his employer. It claims to object to coercion, but it uses the courts, the police force and the militia and has revised the military laws of the nation for the sole purpose of destroying the peaceable organization of the workers by force, and by force alone."

WAS FOUND HANGING

And Mrs. Small's Life May Be Saved.

Redwood Falls, Minn., May 6.—Mrs. Alvin Small, wife of former Sheriff Small of this county, attempted to commit suicide while laboring under a fit of mental depression, at her home in Delhi. After sending a note by her daughter to Mr. Small, who was in his barber shop a block away, Mrs. Small went to the barn and hanged herself. Her husband hurried home after receiving the note which apprised him of her intentions, and going to the barn, found his wife hanging from a rafter. He cut her down, and after working some time, succeeded in getting signs of life.

SHORTAGE CHARGED.

A Montana Official Is Placed Under Arrest.

Helena, Mont., May 6.—In default of $1000 bail Herman Lattimer, public administrator of Flathead county, was placed in jail at Kalispell on a charge of being short in his accounts. The particular instance was that of $250 belonging to the estate of Robert Savage, of which he was administrator.

Lattimer, it is charged, is also short with several other trust funds in his charge. County officials assert that he deposited thousands to his credit in a local bank and drew on them for his personal use instead of placing them with the county treasurer as required by the statutes.

DR. FORBES' PROMOTION.

The many friends and admirers of Rev. Robert Forbes, D D., who has been the presiding elder of the Duluth district of the Methodist Episcopal church, will join with The Herald in tendering congratulations upon his selection as assistant secretary of the board of extension of the church of which he is one of the most distinguished members. This is one of the leading positions in the Methodist Episcopal church, and the honor thus conferred upon Dr. Forbes is a recognition of his high ability as a business man as well as a persuasive and eloquent speaker—two qualities that are required in his new office.

The board of extension is vested with the important duty of providing and handling the money used for building new churches and in aiding established societies to meet their debts and pay off mortgages, and the members of the board attend the annual district conferences throughout the country as well as the general conference to present the claims of this important work to the prominent men of the Methodist church and to consult with the leading religious workers as to the needs of the denomination. No abler man for this work than Dr. Forbes could have been selected, and his appointment by the board of bishops over the heads of a number of able candidates in the East, is a recognition of his rare qualifications for the position. While Dr. Forbes' friends are pleased that he has been thus honored, they cannot prevent a feeling of regret that his new duties will necessitate his removal from Duluth, where he has endeared himself to all the people, both inside and outside the Methodist church.

COLOMBIA AND THE CANAL.

Senor Carbonell, of Colombia, who has been in Washington lately looking up the status of canal matters, is of the opinion that the canal treaty will not be ratified by Colombia in its present form. Senor Carbonell says that the Colombians have the strongest aversion to any proposition that takes from them the control or supervision of any portion of their territory. "The people are not opposed to the construction of the canal," said he; "not by any means, but they do not believe that they are getting a fair share of the bargain under the terms of the treaty which has been ratified by the American congress. The Colombians want a new treaty that will make Colombia a partner with the United States in the ownership of the canal in return for the territory, materials and partly constructed canal which she contributes to the project." The senor also insists that there was no warrant for the statement, generally published in the United States, that President Marroquin of Colombia has any power, constitutional or delegated, to ratify the treaty without the action of the Colombian congress. "It would not be safe," he said, "for the Colombian president to attempt to exercise such power."

There is one thing that Colombia must soon realize, and that is that the canal is going through her territory, and the quicker she makes reasonable terms in the matter the better she will be off.

IRRIGATION IS COSTLY.

The irrigation scheme of the government for the arid portions of the West has received quite a serious setback owing to the fact that the original estimates of the cost of the system were far too low. When the irrigation law was being urged before congress it was estimated that 7,000,000 acres of arid and semi-arid lands might be reclaimed and sold to homesteaders at about $5 per acre. The interior department has been securing figures, based on preliminary investigations by its expert irrigation engineers, which makes it probable that the actual first cost to place these lands under water will be about $10 or $11 per acre. The occasion for the discrepancy between the estimates made when the law was under consideration and those now made by the government experts is said to be attributable to three causes: (1) The cost of $5 was arrived at by averaging the expense incurred by private corporations which had performed similar work, but it is now discovered that the private companies have secured possession of all the sites where cheap irrigation can be practiced, and those which the government will have to improve are all of a more expensive and difficult character; (2) the economical showing made by private companies is due in many instances to the temporary character of the work, which it has been intended to replace with more permanent and expensive plants when the profits began to accumulate; (3) when congress passed the irrigation law it incorporated therein a provision that all work should be done under an 8-hour labor contract, and that no Mongolian labor should be employed.

This condition may result in some delay at first in selling the lands to homesteaders, but as soon as it is demonstration that the reclamation of the arid lands is a success beyond question, they will go fast enough at the higher price.

Basketball, boxing and bowling cease to excite interest, while baseball comes to the front. But they are nothing but sports; baseball is a game.

The St. Louis exposition is to have no Midway. It will be called the Pike, and those who go down the Pike will find as many surprising things as were seen on the Midway at Chicago.

Paris gave a royal welcome to King Edward, but it is pretty certain that he did not have as good a time as on some other occasions when he has visited the city.

LIFE INSURANCE'S GROWTH.

The growth of the life insurance business in this country and Canada is marvellous. According to statistical tables compiled by the Insurance Press, the total life insurance payments in 1902 to policyholders and their beneficiaries was in excess of $320,000,000. Of this vast amount $4,000,000 was distributed in the state of Minnesota. By the tables it appears that 176 cities received more than $100,000 each. New York continues to be away ahead of other cities, $22,945,475 having been distributed in the metropolis in 1902 by life insurance organizations, against $20,508,742 in 1901. Philadelphia maintains its hold on second place, its citizens having received $8,026,098 in 1902, a slight gain over the figures for 1901. Chicago takes the third place this year with $6,922,457, changing places with Brooklyn, which, third last year, occupies the fourth place this year, with a record of $6,805,277. Boston ranks fifth, as hitherto, with $6,024,582 for 1902, against $5,488,705 in 1901. St. Louis, which ranked eighth among the cities last year, has sixth place this year. Baltimore was sixth last year and is seventh this year. Cincinnati was seventh last year and is eighth this year. Pittsburg has held the ninth place both years. Minneapolis rises to tenth place this year, owing to the Peavey payments; it was twenty-second last year. San Francisco is eleventh this year; it was sixteenth last year. The payments to policyholders and beneficiaries in Duluth amounted to $114,736.

Life insurance is making rapid progress in every section. In the New England states the payments in 1902 were nearly $1,000,000 greater than in 1901; in the Middle states, nearly $7,000,000 greater than in 1901; in the Southern states the increase in one year has been nearly $3,000,000; in the Central states, nearly $3,000,000; in the Western states, more than $3,000,000; in the Pacific states, nearly $1,000,000. The marked pre-eminence of the six Middle states, in the aggregate amount received, indicates that the insured population is much denser there than in other sections of the country. The states comprising the Central West come next in gross amount received, and the New England states rank third. The Southern states take the fourth place, the Western states the fifth place and the Pacific states the sixth place. New York is far ahead of any other commonwealth in its purchase of life insurance. Pennsylvania is a well-insured state, although its citizens receive little more than one-half the amount of insurance money that New Yorkers get. Massachusetts, with $16,600,000 received last year, outranks Ohio and Illinois, which received between $12,000,000 and $13,000,000 each. The fact continues to emphasize itself that, other things being equal, the state having the largest percentage of urban population is the best customer of life insurance companies.

Equally interesting is the table showing the estimated amounts of life insurance in force in leading cities. The figures include standard life insurance and the assessment and fraternal societies. The insurance in force in New York city is estimated at $2,050,000,000; in Brooklyn, $633,000,000; in Chicago, $632,000,000; in Philadelphia, $830,000,000; in Boston, $553,000,000. These are the big leaders. Coming to the Northwest, it is found that the insurance in force in Minneapolis amounts to $126,000,000; in St. Paul, $74,000,000; in Duluth, $10,000,000. These figures show how the productive industry of the nation has voluntarily placed itself under contribution, for the purpose of the common welfare and the protection of individuals and their families, to accumulate and distribute a vast sum of money. While it cannot be contended that the life insurance interest is the creator of the wealth distributed, it is a safe statement that the resulting benefit to the community could not have been produced by any other means.

THE VALUE OF PASSPORTS.

Judging from the number of passports already issued to American citizens going abroad, this year will prove a record-breaker in that line. Nearly everyone who crosses the ocean wants to be armed with the state department parchment, that insures the lawful aid and protection of the government of the United States. In the months of January, February and March of this year the state department issued nearly 4000 passports. If this record keeps up for the balance of the year a total of about 16,000 passports will have been issued by January next, which will beat the output for many a year, with the exception of 1900, when thousands went over to see the Paris exposition. Passports are issued to native citizens of the United States and to naturalized citizens upon the presentation of proof of citizenship. The charge for the paper is $1, and the funds resulting from the sales are turned into the treasury. Passports are numbered consecutively, each new administration starting off with No. 1. Up to date Secretary Hay has issued 69,973 of them.

At present there are two kinds of passports, one for the ordinary applicant and one for officials. The only difference in the two is that the description is left out of the passports for officials and their titles are included. Occasionally passports are put to illegal use through stupidity or rascality. A green goods dealer once made a big killing in the rural districts of Alabama through the medium of a passport. He interlined this document so as to make it appear that he was representative of the secretary of state in the sale of wornout United States bills, which were still good for their face value But as he and the secretary of state had formed a syndicate he was in a position to dispose of them to a select few at 25 cents on a dollar. The green goods artist was getting rich at a rate that would make 500 per cent promoters green with envy when news of the matter reached the ears of officials at Washington. A secret service man put an end to his operations and he spent ten years in jail.

Many people have an erroneous idea of the use and value of a passport. Some think it gives them special rights in varied directions, while others have an idea that with one of the documents the holder can do as he pleases in a foreign country. The principal value of the passport is to establish the identity of the traveler as an American citizen, and to insure fair treatment as long as the holder behaves himself and conforms to the laws of the land he is in.

The re-election of Charles M. Schwab as president of the United States Steel corporation sets at rest all the rumors regarding a change in the head of that great corporation. When Mr. Schwab was forced to quit work and seek rest by a European trip, having broken down under the tremendous strain imposed upon him by the duties of president, the story was started that he would never return to the position. There probably was considerable foundation for the report, inasmuch as Mr. Schwab was in a very serious condition at that time. But his trip abroad worked wonders in restoring him to health, and it is stated that he is now in excellent condition. Mr. Schwab's many friends will rejoice that he is to continue at the head of the Steel corporation.

Alluding to the report that the prince of Wales is coming to the St. Louis exposition, the Portland, Ore., Telegram promises to hunt up something "equally as good" for its fair.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

G. M. Campbell, Indian agent at Ashland, accompanied by his private secretary, R. G. Rodman, have registered at the St. Louis hotel, and left this morning on one of the Booth boats for North shore points.

"We expect to be gone on the trip only a few days, and will probably be back to Duluth by next Monday sometime. "There are about three hundred Indians who will receive their annuity at this payment, mostly all of the Chippewa tribe.

"The Indians on this shore are acting splendidly and never do anything out of the way, to speak of. They have to be good; we make 'em be good," said Mr. Campbell with a good natured laugh, "Don't we, Bob?"

Mr. Campbell and his secretary will carry the several thousand dollars up to the North shore wilderness in a hand bag, and will deal it all out before returning.

• • •

Senator C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, registered at the St. Louis hotel yesterday.

His visit this time to Duluth is to be rather brief, but he says that if he can get a house in Duluth for any reasonable price and without waiting for it to be built, he will come here to live.

The senator apparently has discovered the blessings of a more urban constituency since his failure to get the judgeship in the new Bemidji district, where, it was claimed, he was defeated by lumbermen for the position on account of the famous McCarthy bill in the legislature, fathered by him, which provided that in the state of Minnesota the lumbermen would be obliged to pay cash to the men in the camps and pay it every two weeks at that.

The senator has considerable business before the courts in Duluth at the coming term, and will probably be here a great deal during that session anyway. But he intends now to change his residence to the city of Duluth, and train with a new political organization, if any at all.

The judge appointed to hold office in the district over Senator McCarthy distinguished himself about two weeks ago by issuing an injunction, according to the statement of the assistant attorney general, without any return upon it, or date for hearing, or even notice of hearing.

Heinrich Hanno, of Rotterdam, registered at the Spalding hotel yesterday. He represents grain buyers of the Holland commercial center.

Attorney W. W. Browne, of Biwabik, is in the city on legal business and is stopping at the Hotel McKay.

A farewell dinner was tendered Capt. D. D. Gaillard, the United States engineer, who has been transferred from the Lake Superior district, at the Spalding yesterday at lunch time. J. H. Darling and Clarence Coleman, engineers, and J. L. Owen, chief clerk of the office, were the hosts. Capt. Gaillard leaves this afternoon for the East, with his family.

James Sullivan, who runs the principal hotel at Deer River, passed through Duluth last night, on his way to Oregon and California, where he will look over the timber lands with a view of acquiring holdings there.

Mr. Sullivan is enthusiastic over the future of Northern Minnesota, and will return here for good after a three months' trip to the coast country.

"The country around Deer River was never in such a state of prosperity as it is now. The hotels are crowded every night and have been all winter. The logging operations are opening up, in that vicinity, and when the reservation is thrown open, and the logging operations begin on reservation property there will be a great boom at Deer River. The locality will attract many people, and the western part of the reservation lands will send its logs driving down the Deer river, and into the Mississippi.

"It will be a better country than the lands west, because it will be possible to drive the logs there, while in the other locality the railroads will have to be used.

"Part of the reservation lands are excellent farm lands, and anything can be grown on them from grain to the most delicate kind of vegetables. The logging will open in full blast about next year, I think, and for two or three years it will be lively in that part of the county.

"I expect to look over timber property mostly in the southern part of Oregon. That is the coming lumber country, I think, and I feel that I won't lose anything by taking a couple of months looking it over, even if I don't invest."

Mr. Sullivan is a man of herculean frame, and is known as the best man in Itasca county. He has put more "bad" men to flight than anyone else in the county, and among his achievements was the routing of James Kildee, the man who was shot up at Two Harbors some weeks ago. Kildee formed an idea that Sullivan needed a whipping, and took it upon himself to perform the task. He lasted long enough to make his declaration, and then was carried away by his friends.

"Oh, he was a pretty bad man, and needed it," said Mr. Sullivan, talking about it last night, at the St. Louis hotel.

It is being talked around the hotels today that there is to be a new hotel built at Hibbing. Minneapolis parties are said to have put up the money and intend to build this summer, a large hotel for commercial trade. The city now has but one first-class hotel, that conducted by J. J. Stuart, and the city is growing to such an extent, that it is believed there is plenty of room for two large hotels of that character.

Mr. Stuart will build a large addition to his hotel this summer, and the capacity for guests in the city by next winter may be as large as the demand.

• • •

Arthur Porter, of Porter Bros., railroad contractors, returned from Hibbing last evening and registered at the St. Louis hotel.

The Porter Bros. did not secure the contract for the extension of the Bismarck railroad into Dakota, as was expected, and have only a few contracts on their hands at present.

"We took a contract for three spur tracks to be built for the Great Northern at Nashwauk," said Mr. Porter. "They do not amount to much, just spurs into the mines. One will be built into the Crosby mine, and one to the La Rue mine No. 1 and one to La Rue mine No. 2. The whole construction will be but a few miles all together, and the work will begin at once, to be finished by the latter part of June or early July.

"I have not heard whether there is being any arrangement completed for the letting of contracts for the construction of the logging road that the Arpin interests or Pigeon River Lumber company is to build through Lake county from Gun Flint to Lake Superior.

"There are few contracts in prospect just now, through it looks as if there would be a lot of railroad construction this summer in Minnesota."

LAUGHING LINES.

Yonkers Statesman: Church—I see a Jersey man is complaining because his wife thought more of a dog than she did of him.

Gotham—Well, perhaps the dog growled less.

Washington Star: "Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "a man will keep complainin' simply because he's got a low-down ambition to make other folks so miserable dat he feels comfortable by comparison."

Chicago Tribune: The Pastor—Have you anything new for next Sunday?

The Choirmaster—I think not. There is the same old grudge between the alto and the baritone.

Detroit Free Press: The Alien—Don't you like to stand in a great city street and feel the great pulse of humanity?

The Citizen—Yes, but I'm a physician, anyway.

Chicago News: Green—Jones came to me with a great financial scheme a few months ago and offered to let me in on the ground floor.

Brown—And of course you went in.

Green—Yes.

Brown—How did you come out?

Green—Didn't come out at all. There were no exits.

Philadelphia Press: She—I want to get a box of cigars for a present to—

Clerk—Yes, miss. Does your friend like a mild cigar or a strong one?

She—O! any kind will do, so they're cheap.

Clerk—Yes, madam. Shall I send 'em home to your husband or will you take them with you?

Philadelphia Press: He—I was thinking of speaking to your father soon.

She—Yes, papa told me he thought you would.

He—Indeed?

She—Yes, and he says if you truly love me you ought to take out an accident policy in my favor.

LIFE'S SUNNY SIDE.

Brooklyn Eagle: Have you ever noticed how much real joy of living there is manifested on all sides of life? How easily the human animal laughs and takes comfort? See those plumbers going along with their bags of heavy tools on their shoulders and swinging their gasoline furnaces! They are correctly dressed, their hands are hard and grimy and their backs are often bent, but they chat and joke as if their work was dainty and attractive. The rough motorman shouts and grins to the inspector or a fellow motor driver, and the postman, with his monotonous labor, waves his hands and smiles as if handing you your letters was a new job full of unlooked-for delights. The hardworked tenement women, whose days are a deadly grind of trying to feed and clothe and pay the rent, stop and have a bit of a merry chat on their way from the baker's or hang out of the windows and shout and laugh at each other. The little street urchins scream and play and your own boys refuse to be sad, although their young ambitions are woefully confined in this unnatural city life. And the little girls hop and skip and giggle—bless them!—and get in your way as you hurry along, each and every one bound to extract the joy of being alive out of the most adverse and trying conditions. Go thou and do likewise! Rejoice that you are alive and pass the joke along, for that way lies sanity.

Merely Following the Pace.

Boston Transcript: The groom, who at his own instance took Archie Roosevelt's pony up the White House elevator to the lad's sickroom, must be a menial after the president's own heart.

DOUBLE HEADERS.

Sioux City, Ia., Journal: As a rule, of late, railway employes, trainmen especially, have been pretty reasonable in their demands upon the employing companies. The railways have been enjoying a period of unusual prosperity and it was not inappropriate that the employes should ask a reasonable increase in wages as their share of the prosperity. For the most part, railway managers recognized the justice of the demand, and wage scales have been raised quite generally without anything serious in the way of a strike. A strike is now threatened on the Great Northern railway, which was one of the first roads to grant a liberal increase in wages. The strike is now threatened, not as a result of wage disputes, but over a matter of economy in the running of trains. As the gravamen of the dispute has been presented in the Minneapolis newspapers, the Great Northern trainmen are wholly wrong in their contention and should be able to count on little popular sympathy if they make the refusal of their demands the pretext for a strike.

The dispute is over the use of "double headers." A "double-header," in railway parlance, is a train to which two locomotives are attached. The Great Northern company desires to use two locomotives to pull over the heavy grades trains which on more level track need only a single locomotive. The trainmen contend that when two locomotives are used two complete train crews must be employed, or that the single crew shall receive double pay for the service. The company, reasonably enough, it would seem, argues that it has use for but a single train crew and has no desire to employ more men than are really needed. It argues, moreover, that as the use of the extra engine requires no extra work on the part of the crew employed, the company is not disposed to pay double wages to that crew.

It is not difficult to see what the trainmen have in mind. If they can prevent the company from using "double-headers" the company must run two trains instead of one, to get the same number of cars over a heavy grade. Thus two train crews, instead of one, will be given employment. The trainmen insist that if the "double-header" be used the crew employed shall be paid double wages, so the railway may not be able to find economy in the use of the "double-header."

This is clearly a case in which the labor organization is contending against the logical economy of things. It is the same old protest against labor-saving methods which has so often brought organized labor into disrepute. The trainmen are insisting that the railways shall handle their transportation of freight in a more expensive way than modern ingenuity has been able to devise. In so doing, the trainmen are arguing against the interest of the railway and that of the public as well. It is the right of the railway to transact its business on the most economical methods. It is to the interest of the public that the railways shall be allowed to do this. It is the obligation of the company to pay all its employes a fair wage for the service performed. It is not the right of the employe to ask that he shall be paid for more work than he actually performs, or that the railway shall employ more men than are actually needed in the running of trains.

The Great Northern trainmen are fundamentally wrong in demanding what they do. Even if their demands should be granted, nobody—not even themselves in the long run—would be benefited. What is best for the many must be best for the individual. Looking back over the long record of futile protest against labor-saving methods, we find that what at first looms like a calamity to some eventually proved to be a blessing in disguise. Facilitating production has made work easier, wages higher and in the long run has helped to make more opportunities for labor. The Great Northern trainmen should ponder a long while before they strike against a principle, the soundness of which has been proved by the record of centuries.

THINGS THAT NEVER DIE.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulses of wordless prayer,
The dreams of love and truth;
The longings after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better hopes—
These things can never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
A brother in his need,
A kindly word in grief's dark hour
That proves a friend indeed;
The pleas for mercy softly breathed,
When justice threatens nigh;
The sorrow of a contrite heart—
These things shall never die.

The memory of a clasping hand,
The pressure of a kiss,
And all the trifles, sweet and frail,
That make up love's first bliss;
If with firm, unchanging faith,
And holy trust and high,
Those hands have clasped, those lips have met—
These things shall never die.

The cruel and the bitter word,
That wounded as it fell;
The chilling want of sympathy
We feel but never tell;
The hard repulse that stills the heart,
Whose hopes were bounding high,
In an unfading record kept—
These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love—
Be firm and just and true,
So shall light that cannot fade
Beam on thee from on high,
And angel voices say to thee—
These things shall never die.

—CHARLES DICKENS.

A Resourceful Campaigner.

Judge: The invading army plodded wearily through the devastated land. Starvation stared them in the face and glared at them from the rear as well.

"There is absolutely nothing to feed the troops," announced the commissary general.

"Nothing?" asked the commander.

"Nothing. And," adds the commissary general, "I might say, if it were not for the fear of being accused of plagiarism, there is mighty little of that."

"Hum-m-m!" mused the commander. "The men shall be fed."

"But on what, sir?"

"Sausage."

"Sausage? We have nothing of which to make it.

The commander towers above him then, his eyes gleaming with that flash of inspiration which indicates the eternal influence of genius.

"Have you forgotten," he cries; "have you forgotten the dogs of war?"

His Wonderful Sacrifice.

Atlanta Constitution: "John," said the wife, "you'll admit that you're a bright, brainy man and have leading qualities?"

"I certainly will," was the modest reply.

"Then why don't you run for president of these United States?"

And as he clasped her to his bosom, he said:

"Molly, I can't bear to leave home.

A song for you, my pretty maid,
While Cupid lends his willing aid!

No sweeter task has man essayed;
Romeo 'neath the balustrade
Felt not the thraldom of love's chain
As I, who trill in Hesper's shade
A song for you, my pretty maid.

Eve's skirts are decked with starry braid,
And streams send up a soft refrain;
In dusky coat of mail arrayed
The cricket calls his dark brigade;
The signal runs along the lane,
And underneath this cool arcade,
Where still I wait, a love-lorn swain,
While Cupid lends his loving aid.

The dew has decked each grassy blade,
But dampens not the strings that fain
Would sound, like those in far-off Spain,
A song for you, my pretty maid.

As one by one day's glories fade,
The twilight knits a silver skein
Of stars in skies which not a stain
Of cloud obscures; so long delayed
Longing now a glance to gain
(No fairer sight has man surveyed)
Of casements with fair roses twain
That gleam beyond the darkling glade,

Across the miles of dark champaign
Where lingers still one loaded wain,
And fireflies speed in endless train,
I see upon an eastern vane
Fair Dian sails the azure main;
In her clear orb I see betrayed
The form of some belated crane,
And thoughts of love such scenes pervade,
While Cupid lends his loving aid.

The call of peace I have obeyed
And bid adieu to fields of slain.
The down-pour of the iron rain
And thunder of the cannonade;
No spirit of the ancient Dane
Controls me now or tires my brain;
I feel the touch of love's crusade;
For I would slum the hoard of Golden,
And woo all themes that appertain
To plying of the plow and spade,
And furrowed fields of golden grain,
Imploring help from friends so staid;
For even flags of peace are frayed.
Here cups of joy to her I drain;
I listen to the winds complain,
And sing beneath the lanky shade
A song for you, my pretty maid.

Before God's altar I have prayed
For blessed guidance of my "calm
True love." One smile! My toil's repaid!
While Cupid lends his loving aid,
A song for you, my pretty maid!

Could Do Better.

New York Times: Harold had received his first five-dollar bill. He was told that it was to be deposited in the bank, and the details were explained to him. Harold accompanied his mother to the bank, and when ready the book was handed to him. He looked at it a moment, and then, throwing the book across the room, exclaimed:

"Such a small book for five dollars! Why, I can get a bigger one than that for five cents."

Grover and Theodore.

Cincinnati Enquirer: There was a great deal of "hollering" for Grover Cleveland—more, frequently, than for Theodore Roosevelt—at the dedication ceremonies at St. Louis. Perhaps Dave Francis packs the crowd with a claque. Grover is too old a hand to attach much consequence to the acclaim, but Theodore lives on it and believes he is a man of destiny. If either of them is really alive to his possibilities in 1904 he will think more of political management and manipulation in the State of New York than the hoarse yells of the Western crowds out for a good time on a show day. Either one of them will have a rather rocky road in the Empire state.

ASK FOR ROADS

County Board Gets Several Petitions and Hears Arguments.

School District Division Petitions Presented—Road Foremen.

Petitions for new county roads, the improvement of old roads, new school districts and town divisions occupied the greater part of time during the session of the board of county commissioners yesterday afternoon. Quite a large delegation of the farmers and settlers from the districts that would be benefited by the improvements or changes petitioned for were present at the meeting and urged their claims to the board.

Yesterday was the day set for the hearing on the petition of C. C. Miller and others for the formation of a new school district in the town of Solway, and Mr. Miller and others were present to argue for the new district. Commissioner Kauppi claimed that the people of Midway were not aware of the proposed division, even though notices of the hearing had been made according to law, and he succeeded in having the hearing postponed until the next regular meeting of the county board. Mr. Kauppi said the proposed division would hit district No. 6 pretty hard, that it would leave district No. 7 only twenty-four sections, while the new district would have forty sections.

The petition for the division of the town of Kelsey was referred to the committee and to the county attorney, as was a petition for a new school district in the Little Fork valley.

Two petitions asking for a division of the town of Stuntz and for a new school district in the town were presented. The petition for the new school district came before the board a month ago, but action was deferred until Commissioner Connor could investigate. Mr. Connor said that he believed there would be no opposition to the proposed division and formation of a new district if it would include section 29. A hearing on both the town and the school district matter was set for June 5, at the county auditor's office.

The proposed change is to make the division so that Hibbing will be in one town and district and Chisholm will be in the other. At the present time they are both in the town of Stuntz and both in school district No. 27.

A committee was appointed to investigate the petition of Axel Zimmerman and others for a new road in 51-16, and another petition for a new road in 49-15 and 50-16, May 27. Other committees will examine a proposed new road from Payne's siding, May 26, and one in 62 and 63-12, May 28.

Improvement of the old St. Louis river road in 50-16 was asked for by some of the people living in its vicinity. They claimed that some of the settlers were moving into town because they could not get their children to school with the road in an impassable condition. Another petition for road improvement in the town of Industrial stated that high water had taken away the bridges and that the mail carrier as compelled to swim the river on every trip.

A communication was read from Sheriff Butchart stating that the city has not paid the county for the care of its prisoners since last January. The matter was referred to the county attorney. Several of the commissioners expressed their belief that the city would have to pay 50 cents per prisoner in any event, and suggested that the municipality be "given a little jar" if it does not pay up soon.

Commissioner Kugler secured the passage of a resolution making an appropiation of $2000 for the improvement of the Calvary cemetery road. He stated that a project is underway for establishment of a street railway line from the city to the cemetery with a view of having a funeral car to run over the line on occasions when it is needed, thus saving expense to people of moderate circumstances who bury their dead at Calvary. Some of the commissioners demurred to making any appropiation if it was with the understanding that a street railway track was to be established on the county road, but as the new railway idea has not yet taken a definite form, and the road improvement is really needed, the appropriation was made.

An appropriation of $5100 was made from the county road fund for the improvement of roads in Commissioner Connor's district; $2000 for roads in Commissioner Morcom's district; $3500 for roads in Commissioner McInnis' district.

Commissioner Kugler uged the commissioners to use caution in expending the amounts, for the reason that some of the roads that have been improved in the past with county money have not been legalized, although they have appeared on the road books.

Commissioner Kauppi secured the passage of a resolution fixing the wages of laborers on the county roads at $2 per day. The road foreman will receive $2.50 per day, except in cases where the road appropriation exceeds $500 and an average of ten men are employed per day on the work.

Commissioner Berglin resolution that the county board appoint all road foremen was defeated. The commissioners did not care to share the responsibility in the matter of an inefficient foreman in any commissioner district. Each commissioner, as heretofore, will appoint the road foreman in his district, and if his work is not satisfactory the board will discharge him.

Sheriff Butchart requested a number of improvements in the county jail in the way of locks, plumbing and papering. The jail committee was instructed to investigate and advertise for bids.

The board adjourned until May 14, when it will take up some assessment and tax matters.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Expert Cracksmen Are Again Working In South Dakota.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The United States authorities are fully convinced that expert cracksmen have again selected South Dakota as a field of operations, and that unless the men who recently robbed the postoffice at Humboldt, this county, are soon captured it is probable that other and similar robberies will occur during the next few weeks.

The manner in which the robbery at Humboldt was committed proves that it was the work of expert cracksmen. A hole was drilled into the door of the safe and an explosive tore the door off its hinges, enabling the robbers to secure the contents, amounting to about $61 in cash and a watch belonging to Postmaster Lockwood. Several mail sacks were wrapped around the safe to deaden the sound of the explosion. Such tools as the robbers needed were stolen from a local blacksmith shop, and were found on the floor of the postoffice.

Pierre—The supreme court, by Judge Corson, handed down a decision in the case of the state vs. Jacob Mulch for a writ of error and stay of sentence by a certificate of probable cause. The writ was granted and the certificate refused. Mulet was sentenced from Lawrence county on a criminal assault charge and Judge Moore, his attorney, attempted to secure the stay of sentence and a new hearing on a writ of error. The new hearing has been granted, but Mulch remains in the penitentiary pending the hearing.

Bryant—Bryant voted for no license by 65 to 63. At the last election license carried by 24 majority. Trustees E. J. Dunne, H. C. Rice and E. L. Smith; clerk, J. W. Waldron; treasurer, W. A. McNulty; assessor, Carl Erickson; justice, M. McNulty; marshal, P. S. O'Connor. Board of education, member at large, E. A. Fisher; treasurer, J. B. Fairchild; members from first ward, J. E. Davidson and Mrs. Nellie Pipley; second, James Erickson and Mrs. Alice Rowe; third, G. G. Ostroot and Mrs. Camilla Hauge.

Whitewood—Rev. William McCreary of Camp Crook has been selected to represent this presbytery at the general assembly. During the early eighties he was a presiding elder of the Methodist church. Upon his removal to the Black Hills, fifteen years ago, he became a minister of the Congregational church, and eight years later accepted a pastorate in the Presbyterian church.

Elkton—At a meeting of the young ladies of Elkton it was decided to organize a Young Women's Christian Temperance union. The following officers were elected: President, Miss Ada M. Pratt; vice president, Mrs. W. F. Belling; secretary, Miss Gertrude Stedman; corresponding secretary, Miss Mabel Plank; treasurer, Miss Vernie Hodge.

Belle Fourche—The city outfit, owned by J. M. Carey and brother, of Cheyenne, Wyo., has received thirty carloads of cattle from Cheyenne and North Platte. Twenty more cars are expected in a few days.

Hitchcock—A local grain buyer has shipped to Eastern markets about $60,000 worth of corn purchased from farmers in this vicinity. A few years ago no corn was grown in this part of the state.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Professor H. L. Bolley, of the North Dakota Agricultural college, left for Washington to receive his instructions from the department of agriculture relative to his work in Europe, as a special government representative, to investigate flax diseases and possible immune flax. The professor has attracted world wide attention as the result of his investigations, and his work gained him so much attention that he was selected by the government as the ablest man to send to Europe.

Cando—Injunctions were served on the ten "moose joints" several weeks ago and they have since been closed. The fixtures and contents were removed by Sheriff Carmichael.

John Ritchey and Paul Reid were each sentenced to ninety days in jail and to pay a fine of $200 and costs for selling intoxicants.

Peel Burgess, who has been in jail for three weeks charged with criminal assault, gave bonds in the sum of $1200 and will be tried May 25.

A new steam laundry will be built by E. E. Drake. A new and complete steam plant has been purchased.

The Catholics have decided they want a resident instead of a visiting priest, and will build a residence for Father Bernard.

The newly elected mayor and councilmen have decided to enforce the ordinances pertaining to street cleaning. The city is now in a better condition than it has been for years.

Grand Forks—At a meeting of the city council after a most exciting session, C. C. Gowran was granted a telephone franchise. Mr. Gowran represents the Twin City Telephone company. The Northwestern company has been fighting the granting of the franchise tooth and nail. The Twin City company will at once start work on the construction of a $10,000 plant.

Minnewaukan—O. Gilbertson, of Decorah, Iowa, has bought the 2000-acre farm, with stock and machinery, of Z. Davidson, for $25,000.

H. Wirtz, of Northfield, Minn., has bought the fine section farm of Charles Bailey, at $16,000.

W. E. C. Ross, of Blue Earth, Minn., has bought for speculation the tract postoffice at Humboldt, this county, are soon captured it is probable that other and similar robberies will occur during the next few weeks.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

War of Extermination to Be Waged Against Cats.

Baraga—A year ago the Nestor estate declared war on the rats which infested the loggings camps on the north shore of Lake Superior, near Gooseberry river. There were thousands of the rodents which had multiplied so as to become an unbearable pest. Cats were advertised for to assist in the campaign and fifty or more were collected and sent to the camps. Now the rats are gone, but the cats are causing much trouble and the estate has another problem on its hands. The cats have in many cases become wild and seldom frequent the camps. They are raising young in the woods and it is certain that these will grow up wilder than those now causing trouble. Just what is to be done has not been determined, but it is the expectation that a war will shortly be proclaimed.

Houghton—The increasing value of lands in the upper peninsula, especially timber and mineral-bearing tracts and lands suitable for agriculture, is well illustrated by the growing inclination of owners to pay back taxes. This has been especially noticeable in the past year.

Ewen—The big dam built by the Diamond Match company across the Ontonagon river near here, gave way and about one-half of its 350-foot length was torn out. Had it held out a week longer the company would have had no further use for it, as it is used only to drive the logs down the stream.

Matchwood—Plans have been made by W. F. Bemis, of Floate, Corey & Bemis, Spencer, Iowa, to colonize about 35,000 acres of burned over lands in the south part of Ontonagon county. The property was bought at a tax sale last year.

Negaunee—A party of twenty mining students from McGill university, at Montreal, will spend two weeks in the Ishpeming-Negaunee iron district. They are accompanied by two instructors and have as their headquarters a private Canadian Pacific sleeping and dining car.

Trimountain—Harry T. Mercer, son of James Mercer, of Ontonagon, was appointed to succeed John Knox as mining engineer and assistant superintendent of the Trimountain mine. He is a graduate of the Michigan college of mines.

Ontonago—The forest fire that raged near Ontonagon recently destroyed 250,000 feet of logs owned by C. V. McMillan & Bro.

Menominee—August Spies, a prominent lumberman and paper manufacturer of this city, offered the city council last night to give Menominee a public library and grounds to cost $30,000 providing the city appropriates yearly $2000 for its support. The offer will be accepted at once and the building erected this summer.

Ishpeming—One of the most interesting celebrations in the history of the peninsula will take place at Ishpeming on June 24. It will be in observance of the fifteenth anniversary of the Lake Superior Mining company, a corporation launched when the Marquette iron range and the Lake Superior district generally were in their infancy. Several addresses will be made, a leading one being by Peter White, a pioneer in the early days in the Michigan mining field. There will be a unique and historical parade, much music and in the afternoon a great barbecue. Another feature will be an old-fashioned Cornish drilling contest. There will also be a long array of sports of various kinds, and at night the celebration will close with fireworks and an invitation ball to the company's principal guests. The day will be observed as a general holiday.

BIG ROLL OF MONEY

Was Carried By Farmer Who Is Missing.

La Crosse, Wis., May 6.—Friends of Jacob Hammerstad, one of the richest farmers in Trempealeau county, residing in the town of Hale, are convinced he has been murdered and his body concealed by the assassins.

Hammerstad started from his home April 25 in a wagon for the nearest railway station bound for Chicago. He has not been seen or heard of since and searching parties which are scouring the vicinity have failed to secure the slightest clue.

He carried a large amount of money and it is believed he was murdered, robbed and his body thrown into the river.

GIRL IS DYING.

Accidentally Shot During Scuffle Over Revolver.

Marshalltown, Iowa, May 6.—Thomas Ross, aged 16, is under arrest for the shooting of Minnie Allen, a girl about 12 years old. The girl is in a critical condition and the doctors say she will die. The shooting was done with a 32-calibre revolver and the bullet entered the abdomen.

Ross protests that he did not intend to shoot the girl and that the gun was accidentally discharged while he was attempting to take it from the girl. In this he was partially substantiated by the girl.

CHERRIES AT $5 PER POUND.

New York, May 6.—Three pounds of California cherries, the first consignment of the season, have been sold here at auction for five dollars a pound, the highest price ever paid in New York.

SKIN-TORTURED BABIES

And Tired, Fretted Mothers

Find Comfort in Cuticura Soap and Ointment

When All Other Remedies and Physicians Fail.

Instant relief and refreshing sleep for skin-tortured babies and rest for tired, worried mothers in warm baths with Cuticura Soap, and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, purest of emollient skin cures, to be followed in severe cases by mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent. This is the purest, sweetest, most speedy, permanent and economical treatment for torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, crusted and pimply skin and scalp humours, with loss of hair, of infants and children, as well as adults, and is sure to succeed when all other remedies and the best physicians fail.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in acne and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Sold throughout the world. Cuticura Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60). Ointment, 50c., Soap, 25c. Depots: London, 27 Charterhouse Sq.; Paris, 5 Rue de la Paix; Boston, 137 Columbus Ave. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Proprietors.

What a Doctor says of Brockton Shoes:

Duluth, Minn., May 2, 1903.
Brockton Shoe Co.:

Sirs—While I have always been in the habit of paying $4 and $5 for my shoes, I had just about decided it did not pay, and was going to buy more expensive ones. Then I tried Brockton $3.50 Shoes and have been better pleased with them than with ANY of the others.

Yours, for success,
Dr. C. W. McFADDEN,
Lonsdale Building.

Watch for the next one!

COLD WEATHER IN NORTHWEST

Temperature So Low That Farm Work Had to Be Stopped.

Reports from the crop service stations of the government of the Northwest for the week ending Monday tell of cold weather, the ground freezing so deep in some places that work had to be stopped. The North Dakota report is as follows:

The weather during the past week was unusually cold in all sections, the thermometer registering from 16 to 24 degrees on two or three mornings. In most places the ground froze so deep that all work had to be suspended, and but little was done from Tuesday to Friday, while in some places nothing at all was done. But very little vegetation was sufficiently advanced to be harmed, and aside from the delay, it is not thought that any material damage resulted.

What seeding has not advanced much during the past week, although in some few sections considerable progress was made. In the eastern and southern sections about all the wheat has been sown, and some oats, barley and flax. Early sown wheat that was up was, as a rule, frozen down to the ground.

Plowing for flax and corn is beginning to be general, and if good weather prevails this week, most of the small grain except flax will be in the ground.

The Minnesota report says:

The week as cold and wet. The minimum temperatures were below the freezing point for the morning of April 26 to the morning of May 1 in nearly all parts of the state, and in some portions till the morning of the 4th. On the 26th the minimum temperatures in western and north central counties were below 20 degrees, and in the same region the highest temperatures of the 26th and 30th were below the freezing point. There were general rains on the 28th, except in middle western and southern portions, which turned to snow late in the day, or on the 29th, with a fall of snow which ranged from a trace to from 4 to 6 inches, and which in some places was piled into deep drifts. The snow soon melted. There were rains late in the week also. In the southwest corner of the state a severe sleet storm on the 28th covered the ground, trees, wires, etc., with a thick coating of ice. The soil was frozen on the coldest days to a considerable depth, and it remained frozen till late in the day, or all day, so that very little work in the soil could be done. The heavy soils in southeastern counties are saturated with water; farther west a little plowing has been done during the week for corn and flax on high and light soils, but in the whole state the amount of work done this week is very little. The early sown grains are coming up and growing slowly.

QUICK ARREST.

J. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, Ala., was twice in the hospital from a severe case of piles causing 24 tumors. After doctoring and all remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly arrested further inflammation and cured him. It conquers aches and kills pain. 25c at all druggists.

SONG STYLED OFFENSIVE

Cut Out By Faculty Censors of Students' Opera.

Chicago, May 6.—Euchre is a better Methodist game than poker, according to a ruling made by a member of the faculty of Northwestern university in considering an offensive lyric in a student opera.

"The Queen of the Quezarre" is the name of a comic opera the words, music and lyrics of which have been written by students. It was placed in the hands of a censorship committee of the faculty consisting of Mrs. Martha Foote Crow, dean of the women, and Professors Clark, Thorndyke, Hatfield and Cummock. In the course of the play appears the following song:

"Now and then, in a poker game, my coin I'll sacrifice,
Or even shake, for a trifling stake, a wicked pair of dice."

"I do not know just what poker is," said Mrs. Crow, "but I am sure that it is bad. We must have this song cut out."

No spontaneous burst of approval of the sentiment came from the other members of the committee, and appeal was made to Professor Hatfield.

"Under the circumstances I do not know that——" began the professor, in a conciliatory tone, but his half-hearted defense of the song was lost.

"It is all wrong for a song about poker to be sung on the stage of a Methodist hall," Mrs. Crow repeated, and the rest of the committee agreed with her. W. Herbert Blake, author of the song, was told of the decision of the committee by Professor J. Scott Clark.

"It seems that you will have to cut out the poker," Professor Clark said, "but you can substitute euchre and let the rest of the song run. Euchre is certainly a better Methodist game than poker."

COPPER IS LOWER

Metal Market a Trifle Weaker During the Past Week.

Copper Shares Still Dull But Sentiment Is Bullish.

George L. Walker in his copper letter for the past week says: Copper is a trifle lower than a week ago. Lake is selling at 15 cents, and electrolytic at 14¾ cents per pound. There have been very few sales, however. In the London market transactions have been heavy, and there have been sharp fluctuations. At one time the price of Standard broke below £60, but recovered quickly. The net change for the week is a loss of about 15 shillings. "Best refined," the equivalent of our electrolytic copper, is reported to have recently sold in London at 14¼ cents per pound. The trade both in Great Britain and Europe, is very bearish, and has fought the rise in prices depressing the market. Foreign consumption of copper is very heavy, however, and there has lately been a considerable increase in copper exports as well as a decrease in imports.

It is stated on excellent authority that there are practically no considerable lots of copper offering in the market, and there is no pressure to sell. Consumers' stocks are running short, and they must enter the market as buyers within another month. The United Metals Selling company is in working harmony with the independents, and is not offering copper down. Consumption continues on a tremendous scale. All of the big brass foundries in the Connecticut valley are said to be running night and day with their odrers unfilled for weeks ahead.

Though it has not been given out publicly, it is a fact that the leading New England railroad companies are making a more earnest study of the question of electric power now than they ever made before. The reason is that the higher prices of coal during the past year have seriously cut into their profits. If the roads can be equipped with electric power there will be not only the advantage of larger central plants that will make for economy in fuel, but the opportunity will be presented to secure a considerable portion of the needed power from the numerous unused water-falls on New England rivers. There is little question that the locomotive must eventually go.

COPPER SHARES.

The coppers have passed through another week of dullness. There has been at no time any apparent pressure to sell, and a good volume of buying orders have been encountered on all reactions. Local trading sentiment is bullish on the coppers. It is consensus of opinion that liquidation is over for the present in the New York market, and that as soon as the effects of the fright that the public has had from that source is over the coppers will be given the attention that they deserve. The extreme dullness of the railroad and industrial shares is expected to help the coppers, as they are practically the only stocks now in a position to encourage bull speculation. There is no longer any apprehension felt concerning the health of H. H. Rogers.

Coppers have really been depressed by the same influences that have dominated the railroad and industrial share markets. The panicky or bullish temper in speculation, the strained condition of the money market and the natural aftermath of the recent heavy liquidation and declining prices in the New York list, have all played their part in keeping the coppers down. The strongest interests in coppers have to all appearances been more pleased with the lower range of prices than they would have been had prices been maintained at the higher level. That a strong effort has been made to depress Amalgamated and buy it has been plain to all who have followed the market closely. Despite current dullness the situation continues extremely satisfactory, and the prospect is that copper stocks bought at this level will very soon show substantial profits.

HEIRESS TO MILLIONS

Are Girls of "The Sighing Dutchman" Company.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Mercantile hall seats 1200 persons, but the "S. R. O." sign will surely be up before the curtain rises upon "The Sighing Dutchman," a melodramatic comic opera, which is to be produced under the auspices of the Mercantile club. The libretto was written by Charles Bloomingdale, Jr., and Howard M. Githens composed the music.

Behind "The Sighing Dutchman" there is backing sufficient to finance any number of stage productions. There are twenty pretty girls in the cast and most of them are daughters of millionaires. In the audience will be a trainload of well known New Yorkers.

"The Sighing Dutchman" is merely a travesty on comic opera and melodrama. In all comic operas the soprano is forced to marry the tenor. In all melodramas the villain is punished. In "The Sighing Dutchman" the soprano never meets the tenor, while the pirate chief, after a life of crime, has absolutely no punishment meted out to him but marriage. Another innovation consists in the supplying of each chorus girl with two lines to sing.

CATARRH CURED BY DRY AIR

Hyomei Medicates the Air You Breathe, Kills the Germs and Cures the Disease.

Hyomei cures catarrh thoroughly and permanently, because it reaches the smallest air cells in the head, throat and lungs, kills the germs causing the disease, destroys the cause, and makes permanent cures which can be effected in no other way. Breathe it for a few minutes four times a day and benefit will be seen at once. Continue this treatment for a few weeks and Hyomei will have cured you.

The Hyomei in the inhaler furnished with the outfit dries and sterilizes the air you breathe. It is a local and direct treatment for eradicating all catarrh germs in the mucous membrane and tissues and in this way cures catarrh in any part of the system. Used in connection with Hyomei Balm it has been successful in curing the worst and most deep-seated cases of catarrhal deafness.

A. W. Clark, of Everett, Mass., writes: "I have spent a fortune on different treatments for catarrh and could not hear across the table. After using Hyomei and Hyomei Balm for eight days, I can hear as well as ever."

Stronger than any claims that can be made in an advertisement, is the fact that S. F. Boyce will give his personal guarantee with every Hyomei outfit he sells to refund the money if the purchaser can say that Hyomei has not given satisfaction.

CHINESE FOR TRANSVAAL

Johannesburg Chamber of Mines Men In British Columbia.

Vancouver, B. C., May 6.—Messrs. Skinners and Noyes, of Johannesburg, representing the Transvaal chamber of mines, are in the province on their way to China, where they go in quest of Mongolian labor for the gold mines of the Rand. They mean while in British Columbia to ascertain how Chinese labor does in the collieries of the Dunsmuer company, on Vancouver island, as this will afford them some clue as to its adaptability to South Africa. They find, of course, strong popular hostility to Chinese labor here and they will discover the Chinese employed on Vancouver island earn from $1.25 to $1.50 a day, a much higher wage than that paid the Kaffir mine workers of the Transvaal.

Whether they can import Chinese for South Africa to work at a lower figure than the British Columbia rate would seem to be the crux of the question, apart from the larger issue involved of the social advisability of the introduction of the Chinese to South Africa.

The Transvaal delegates say that they want to get in Chinese on a short term agreement system, afterwards deporting them. But this might easily become veiled slavery. Evidently Mr. Chamberlain has a difficult problem yet to meet in dealing with the Transvaal's mine princes.

KILLED HERSELF.

Young Montana Woman Shot Herself With Rifle.

Glendive, Mont., May 6.—Coroner Foster and Deputy Sheriff Larson has returned from Beef Slough, near Tokus, where the yheld an inquest on the body of Mrs. G. E. Reed, who shot herself Saturday. The verdict is that Mrs. Reed came to her death from a gunshot wound from a 32-calibre rifle, inflicted by her own hands.

Mr. Reed brought his wife's remains to Glendive and said he could give no reason for her rash act. He was away when the deed was committed. Relatives of the family were visiting at the ranch and went out to the barn. Mrs. Reed then sent her boy, 2 years old, to join them. She sat down in a rocking chair, placed the muzzle of the rifle in her mouth and pulled the trigger, the bullet embedding itself in her brain. The relatives and little boy returned to the house and found her dead.

Mrs. Reed was from Iowa and was 22 years of age. Despondency and ill-health caused the deed.

RUSSELL SAGE'S ONLY SMOKE

And He Has Not Touched the Filthy Weed Since.

New York, May 6.—The Tribune says that one woman, who more clearly represents the Puritan school of women, who object to the so-called new ideas as regards woman's personal liberty in the small vices than any other, is Mrs. Russell Sage.

Mrs. Sage comes of a school that does not tolerate smoking by women. She believes, as a majority of women of a generation ago were taught to believe, that the real gentleman never permits himself to smoke in the presence of a lady, and that even though he is a smoker, there is a room in the house which is his to smoke in, and the rest of the house is sacred to the wife and other members of the family who do not like the fumes to tobacco.

"I am glad," said Mrs. Sage, "that the place opened as a tea room and a smoking parlor for women is to be closed. (This is the one opened up by Mrs. Vanderbilt.) I heard some comment when the papers published the story of the start of the place that the publication would only increase its popularity, and the remark was made that the place would die if let alone. But I think the papers did a good act in making the facts public. That is what killed it.

"I can't for the life of me understand the desire to smoke. Mr. Sage never has smoked. I believe he tried it once. I sometimes wonder what they did before Sir Walter Raleigh took tobacco to England. We got the habit from the savage, and in return our frontiersmen taught him how to drink vile whisky.

"Do I think the habit of smoking among women in this country is on the increase? I can speak only for New York, and where the foreign population has gone into society and has money, the women smoke a great deal."

GOTHAM'S BIG DRINK BILL

In the Aggregate It Amounts to Over $120,000,000.

New York, May 6.—The Press statistician has been figuring: There are 11,000 rumsellers in New York—no, I mean there are 11,000 licensed rumselling places in New York. A big difference. They do not include drug stores, which sell warm whisky, and, by that mark, poison. Each groggery has its proprietor and from one to seven "gin-slingers" behind the bar serving brain-killers. Putting the average at three men at the bar, we have an army of no less than 33,000 valiant men assisting Satan in his raids on gray matter. Eleven thousand of these are proprietors, clearing annually from $2000 to $100,000. Let us average their incomes at $2500. That would give a total of $27,500,000 a year. Of course, the bar patrons pay the wages of the hired "gin-slingers," which, at an average of $900 a year—22,000 multiplied by 900—gives $19,800,000. The present licenses bring in $7,500,000, which sum also is paid by the patrons. Rent amounts to $11,000,000. Assuming that the proprietor of the groggery makes an average profit of only 50 per cent, patrons must pay the wholesalers $75,000,000. The grand total, therefore, not including gas, water and other incidentals, amounts to over $120,050,000. That's what we pay for rum! It is over $31 for every man, woman and child of our population.

SAVED BY DEACON

"City Fellers" Were Sure They Had "Ole Prophet."

But Result Was the Whole Party Buried Their Clothes.

Pittsfield, Vt., May 6.—Deacon Jediah Billings of Beaver Meadows is chuckling audibly and his neighbors are laughing silently up their shirt sleeves at the way the deacon saved the pelt of Prophet, his mascot fox, a few days ago and at the same time brought discomfort to a couple of "city fellers" who have been rusticating here for a few days. Elder Mose Winslow, who was in cahoots with the young men, is not so joyous.

"Them boys may be all-fired smart down t' N' York," said the deacon, after it was all over, "but I calc'late they'd better larn t' handle a pole-cat without gittin' parfumed b'fore they undertake t' skin ye're Uncle Jediah. I've allus allowed thet a feller thet hitches his name to'gether tandem hain't got no great business with a muskit."

The deacon referred to J. Wilberforce-Jones, who, with a pal from London named Barden Downes, came to inspect an artificial lake Mose had created at one end of the meadows with the idea of selling the adjacent property to Wilberforce-Jones, Sr. The Joneses said they would buy the property for a summer residence if the lake proved satisfactory, and the elder has been nursing dreams of untold wealth ever since last fall.

When he found out what his prospective purchasers wanted he hit upon the idea of making a dam of spiles and mud and getting rid of the property before the dam gave way.

"If it's a pond thet's a-stickin' in their crops, I'll make 'em one," he had confided to the deacon.

Later on he was sorry that he had spoken, for ill-feeling came about through a local election and the men became enemies. Jones, himself, had a misunderstanding with the pillar of Beaver Meadow's church over the good accomplished by foreign missions and the present whereabouts of the departed souls of the unbaptized.

A few days after their arrival the visitors met Mose in front of the village inn, and inquired the best fox-hunting ground in the locality. Their city-bred hound was to come by stage that night, and they were impatient for sport.

The elder meditated a moment, peered into the apparently vacant office of the inn, and motioned them to come inside. Lowering his voice, he spoke rapidly, gesticulated excitedly, and then, slapping his thigh, gurgled exultantly.

"By jove! old man, it would be bully fun, all right!" said Downes, after listening to a lengthy explanation, "but it would hardly be fair to the old fellah, don't y' know."

"It's fair enough," interrupted Jones. "He has no right to protect any animal on which the state has placed a bounty."

"That's what I say," put in the elder. "B'sides, th' critter's wild an' th' deacon don't own him. I reckon I'm 's fair 's they make 'em, but sense th' deacon skinned me fer th' job 'f rud commissioner I've been sorter sot against him."

"Well," said Downes, "I'm in, old chap, but it does seem beastly mean. We'll try it tomorrow."

The door had hardly closed on the three conspirators when the lengthy and gaunt form of Pete Underwood, innkeeper and general village factotum, arose from behind the office counter and stretched a score of rheumatic joints.

"I dunno 's I'd orter listened tu 'em, bein' 's they're guests 'f mine," he mused, "but I cal'lated there was suthin' uncommon int'restin' a-goin' on when I seen 'em sneakin' in s' soft-like. I guess I'll git a spell 'f rheumatics for evesnoppin', but I guess it'll be worth it. I'll jest leave word t' th' postoffice fer th' deacon t' drop 'round when he comes fer th' mail."

Out in the barn later in the day Pete and the deacon conversed in excited undertones. Any one knowing Jediah Billings would have discovered without delay that he was "mighty riled."

"Th' ole cuss!" he exclaimed angrily, referring to the elder. "An' he's s' durned pious thet he won't play ole maid or drive a hoss on Sunday! I be most moved t' profanity! Why, I wouldn't lost thet fox fer an acre 'f p'tatoes. I hain't much 'f a believer in signs and sich, but I'll admit t' ye, Pete, that I've been sorter sup'stitious regardin' ole Prophet sense he hoied up more'n two year ago an th' frill 'cross th' medder frum th' house."

"Sorter lets ye know when t' expect a storm, they say?" interrogated Pete.

"Sutten 's ye're alive," responded the deacon. "He's saved th' hay crop more'n once, settin' up b' his hole and a-hollerin' most a whole day b'forc th' rain. I wouldn't think 't mowin' 't th' leetle yeller critter sh'd bark th' night b'fore and more'n I'd refuse t' subscribe t' th' missions."

"Waal, Mose knows just where his hole is," said Pete, "an' ye won't hev no fox tomorrer by this time onless ye' kin sarconvent 'em."

The deacon ran his fingers nervously through his whiskers in deep meditation. Then he suddenly exclaimed:

"I'll sarconvent 'em. Jest ye watch Deacon Jediah Billin's a' ye'll see thet th' hull mess 't 'em gits suthin' they ain't lookin' fer. Now., don't ye ask no questions, Peter, fer 't might incrimin ate ye 't they shud make a fuss. Jest watch th' deacon. I guess ye won't want 'em fer boarders when they git back."

The sun had hardly begun to rub its eyes the next morning before Antoine Laporte, a trapper of local renown, turned into Jediah's driveway carrying a small black and white animal by the nape of the neck. He occasionally addressed remarks to it in a mixture of bad French and worse English.

"Ah ketch heem las' night," he explained to the deacon, who appeared in response to a long-drawn out whistle. "He'll do the beesness, ain't it?"

"Be kinder carefil how ye handle th' critter, Antoine," nervously admonished the deacon, keeping at a respectful distance. "Th' wimmen folks 's goin' 't churn."

"Oh, don't you fear it, Mester Billin'," replied the Canuck. "Ah knew heem fellah vat' well. She all right so long you hold heem like ah got it." And he hoisted the animal out in proof.

"I've skeered out th' prophet," went on the deacon, "an' he's gone up between th' sugar house an' th' ole pile 'f lawgs jest 's I told ye he would. Ye kin put ye're finger on th' trail, I reckon, an' he'd better be a-moggin' long."

Half an hour later the deep notes of a baying hound floated over the fields and through the woods and distinctly reached the farmer and the trapper, who peered from beneath a cluster of mulberry bushes and glued their eyes on one end of an old pile of logs near a sugar house twenty rods away. Fastened to one of the logs by a short chain was the black and white animal Antoine had carried so carefully a short time before.

"It's jest where th' Prophet went," declared the deacon, pointing toward the log. "I seen him when he skinned by."

The voice of the hound grew stronger and presently he broke excitedly into the sugar house clearing, his nose to the ground and running the trail as straight as a die. In another instant he was up to the log. A black and white back arched suddenly, a strong scent smote the air and with a wail of surprise the dog came to a sudden stop and groveled in the leaves. Then, crying like a whipped puppy, he spun around in a circle, batting his nose with his paws, and disappeared in the direction of the inn.

"They'll be up in a minute t' see what's th' matter with th' haound," exultantly chuckled the deacon. "Lay's low 's ye kin, Antoine."

There was a profound silence of several minutes. Then came the calls of the men and finally the crackling of the undergrowth as they burst into the clearing and came to a stop a few feet from the log and the chained black and white animal.

"By jove, old man, don't ye smell something?" inquired Downes suddenly, clapping his handkerchief to his nose. "I say, old chap," he added suddenly, "Look at this poor old cat chained to this log."

"Lord Almighty," shrieked Mose, clearing the logs at one bound. "Don't ye tech it, it's a skunk."

"Drop it, drop it!" yelled Jones, who had spent several summers in the country, and he dove for the sugar house door.

But the warning came too late. An all-pervading odor that smarted the eyes, parched the throat and dulled the senses arose to the tops of the highest trees and followed the hunters in their flight. Every garment that they wore was saturated, their hair was filled and their skins partook of the stench.

"Th' deacon done it," wailed Mose, as the trio rushed through the woods. "Consarn him! I'll git even 'f it takes 's long 's it does t' git th' smell outer my clothes."

His companions not being church members expressed themselves more potently when they heard shouts of laughter following in their wake.

"They'll hev t' buy new duds," gasped the deacon as soon as he could gather enough breath to speak. "An' 's fer th' ole haound—well, I calklate he won't smell much but skunk fer th' rest 'f th' season."

WANTS OF GUARDS

State Militia to Ask Several Laws of Congress.

Resolutions Passed By Interstate National Guard Association.

Columbus, O., May 6.—The Interstate National Guard association finished its sessions yesterday afternoon and adjourned to meet at St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 27, 1904. The following officers were elected: President, Gen. Charles Dick, Ohio; vice presidents, Gen. P. H. Barry, Nebraska; Gen. M. H. Byers, Iowa, Gen. R. T. Wickersham, Delaware, Gen. E. S. Roysterer, North Carolina; Gen. John D. Frost, South Carolina; Gen. S. J. Conklin, South Dakota; Gen. Thomas J. Stewart, Pennsylvania; Gen. Nelson H. Henry, New York; Gen. J. C. Gantbein, Oregon; Gen. J. B. Foster, Florida; Gen. J. C. Bowman, Wisconsin; Gen. J. C. Henry, Mississippi; secretary-treasurer, Col. C. E. Bieyer, New York.

The executive committee will be appointed later.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

"Resolved, that the following subjects of legislation are approved and the executive committee is directed to prepare and submit to congress suitable bills covering the same:

"First, to prohibit the wearing of the uniform of the army and navy by persons not in the military or naval services of the United States or o a state.

"Second, to protect the flag from use for advertising purposes.

"Third, to amend section 18 of the military act, approved Jan. 21, 1895, by inserting the word 'calendar' before the word 'year,' wherever the same occurs in that section.

"Fourth, to extend to the officers of the organized militia of the United States the use of penalty envelopes for all official business connected with the military service.

"Fifth, that the strength of each company, battery, troop and signal corps be fixed at not less than forty-five men and three officers.

"Resolved, that we endorse the policy of the war department in inaugurating joint maneuvers and camps of inspection, embracing mobilization of the national army and national guard of the several states and territories, and we recommend that as far as possible this policy be continued and a number of permanent camps be so increased as to afford reasonable opportunity for all who may desire to participate therein.

"Resolved, by the Interstate National Guard association, that we express our sincere appreciation for the efforts of Hon. Elihu Root, secretary of war, for promoting the efficiency of the national guard and for promoting closer relations between the regular army and national guard, and we also thank the officials and officers of the regular army and navy who have honored us with their presence, and express thanks for their co-operation and assistance.

"Resolved, that the war department be requested to provide for a military camp at St. Louis exposition, the national guards to consist of picked troops of the state in proportion to the number of guards in the state.

"That congress be asked to provide shooting ranges for paetice, which shall be open to the national guard and regular amy.

"That congress be asked to increase the annual allotment for the national guard to $2,000,000."

IS FALSE, SAYS BADEN-POWELL

English General Never Made Statements About American Cavalry.

New York, May 6.—Gen. Baden-Powell, who was among the passengers on the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II, which arrived at Plymouth yesterday, when questioned regarding the criticism of the American cavalry he is alleged to have made on the eve of his sailing for his home, replied:

"The statement is entirely false. My position would prevent me from giving any opinion as to the efficiency of foreign troops. I went to America on a purely private visit, and mainly for the sea trip. Our stay was very brief, only fourteen days. I hope to visit America again and spend more time there."

On being informed that one American paper stated he traveled under an assumed name to Washington to propose to one of the belles of the capitol with whom he had fallen in love at Cairo, the general laughed heartily and said he did not know the lady and was sorry he had never been in Cairo.

MAY EXPLAIN HIS DEATH

Broker Simonds Connected With Get-Rich-Quick Concern.

New York, May 6.—Startling discoveries have been made in the effort to discover the murderers of Broker Edward M. Simonds, of New York, who was slain in Chicago on April 28. The mystery is now complicated by the unearthing of the fact that Simonds was one of the central figures in the get-rich-quick concern of C. E. Mackey & Co., which was exposed in November, 1901.

The head of the firm of C. E. Mackey & Co. was Oliver Francis Malcolin, who is now in Chicago.

Actions against Malcolm and others interested begun in the United States courts of this city and are rapidly approaching a climax.

A confession has already been obtained from one prominent member of the swindling band, and as a result it was predicted that the man who made it would pay the penalty with his life.

Information had been obtained that Simonds also would confess his part in the Mackey swindles, and a firm of Brooklyn lawyers had already begun efforts to obtain from him a statement that would have cost his associates every penny of the vast fortune they had wrongfully amassed. Simonds believed that these men, who have used him as their tool, had defrauded him of his rightful share of the proceeds.

A short time ago he went to Chicago, and through a peculiar coincidence registered at the Great Northern, a hotel near the Auditorium annex, where Malcolm is stopping, as E. C. Summers. It is believed Simonds went to Chicago to try to wrest some of the Mackey & Co. plunder from the men who fled with it.

After the tragedy Malcolm, who identified the body as that of Simonds, declared that he had known him, but had not seen him for several years.

Alan M. Simonds, son of the murdered man, admitted that his father was the same man who had figured in the Mackey concern, but declared bitterly that Malcolm had not treated his father right, and protested the elder Simonds' innocence of any wrong-doing.

"Any facts," he added, "the Chicago officials get they are welcome to, but we will tell nothing."

A STARTLING TEST.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. 4, Melrose Park, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles, so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c at all druggists.

THE INQUIRY IS EXTENDED

More Cases of Alleged Bribery Brought Out In Missouri.

St. Louis, May 6.—Speaker Whitecotton, of the house of representatives, told the grand jury of a piece of paper said to be in the possession of a sewing machine agent in Columbia, Mo., on which are written the figures "2500," these figures said to be in the handwriting of Senator Frank E. Farris, who gave it in response to a request to kill a bill compelling chattel mortgages to be recorded at length. The bill was regarded with suspicion when it was introduced. Representatives of time payment and installment houses went to Jefferson City ti lobby against the measure. When appeals were made to Farris to kill the bill he demurred.

According to the statement of Speaker Whitecotton, Farris' appeal was continued in a demand for $2500, the figures being written on the slip if paper. Speaker Whitecotton told the grand jury he saw the paper with the figures written thereon a month ago, and he believed it still is in existence.

A subpoena has been issued for the man who is said to have the slip of paper, and he probably will appear before the grand jury tomorrow.

Subpoenas have been issued by the local grand jury for witnesses wanted in connection with Whitecotton's testimony, not only in relation to the $2500 slip of paper, but also on the matter of text books. While the speaker could tell little or nothing of expenditures to kill the Davidson text-book bill, he had some theories which Mr. Folk will attempt to develop. Whitecotton thinks that at least $2,000 were spent to kill the bill.

PACIFIC RAILROADS

Said to Be Delaying Panama Canal Treaty.

Washington, May 6.—Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, who persistently fought the Panama canal project to the extent of forcing an extra session of the United States senate last March, is watching with great interest the progress that is being made with the treaty by the government of Colombia at Colon. Or more correctly speaking, he is viewing with satisfaction the long delay by Colombia.

The speeches of Senator Morgan on the canal project made during the last ten years would fill three volumes of the size of Webster's unabridged dictionary. He was the original champion for the Nicaragua route, and never had any faith in the old Panama canal company. Last session Mr. Morgan made a most bitter speech arraigning that company and intimating that it had lobbied successfully to unload the dead weight of a usufruct company on to the United States.

Mr. Morgan's speech intimated that the promoters of the Panama project would be very minutely and carefully examined by the Central American governments.

The fact that this government, under the provisions of the treaty, agreed to pay Colombia a round $10,000,000 for concessions when the treaty was ratified by the Colombian congress, caused Senator Morgan to remark that it was an outright purchase of ratification.

This veiled charge of being bought up has nettled President Marroquin, of Colombia, and he has not called congress in special session, and nothing has been done toward ratifying the treaty.

Meanwhile the Panama canal people in Washington are intimating that the delay on the part of Colombia to act is the result of a carefully prepared scheme of the Pacific railroads to defeat the great canal treaty.

INSURANCE PAYMENTS

Over Three Hundred Million Dollars Distributed Last Year.

New York, May 6.—Interesting figures have been prepared here concerning the payments by companies and associations on life insurance policies during 1902. The total distribution to policy holders and their beneficiaries was $320,169,382 in 9333 cities and towns. The total includes death claims, dividends, surrender values, annuities and so forth.

In the statement showing the leading cities where the payments were made, New York heads the list with $22,945,475; Philadelphia $8,926,908; Chicago, $6,922,457; Brooklyn, $6,805,277; Boston, $6,024,582; St. Louis, $3,727,695; Baltimore, $3,690,099; Cincinnati, $2,511,582; Pittsburg, $2,290,371 and Minneapolis $2,151,385.

By states the amount were: New York, $47,996,241; Pennsylvania, $24,453,445; Massachusetts, $16,636,527; Illinois, $12,769,705; Ohio, $12,237,969; New Jersey, $11,055,155, and Missouri, $7,152,286.

The payments in the Philippines were $20,034, and in Alaska $32,982. The amount paid in Canada was $14,718,069.

FIRE AT LAKESIDE.

One Home Destroyed and Another Damaged.

One Lakeside home was destroyed by fire last night and another was considerably damaged.

The house totally destroyed was located at 5019 Oneida street and was owned by Cooley & Underhill and occupied by Capt. George E. Brooks and family.

Fifteen hundred dollars represents the loss on the building, and it is said that about $500 additional will repesent the loss on contents though the exact amount of damage was not ascertained. Much of the household furniture was taken out by Capt. Brooks' family and neighbors.

The adjoining house, occupied by John Hennebery, caught from the burning Brooks' house and before the firemen extinguished the flames damage estimated at $200 resulted.

All losses were partially covered by insuance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

SKELETON FOUND.

A Little Child Had Been Brutally Murdered.

Middletown, N. Y., May 6.—The mystery surrounding the strange disappearance four years ago of 5-year-old Lucy Conkling from her home in the mountains near Guymard, this county, was solved Sunday when her skeleton, which has been identified by the clothing, was discovered by Benjamin C. Henion, the village blacksmith, while strolling through the woods with his 8-year-old son.

An examination of the remains disclosed what appeared to be two bullet holes in the child's skull. At the time of the disappearance she was in the company of her mother on the mountains near her home gathering huckleberries.

It was believed that gypsies who were in the neighborhood had kidnaped the child, and many clues were followed up by the police authorities from near-by places, but unsuccessfully.

HART THE BETTER MAN.

Philadelphia, May 6.—Marvin Hart, of Louisville, had the better of a six-round fight with "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien here tonight. O'Brien put up a wonderful fight against Hart, who was 24 pounds heavier than O'Brien. The Philadelphian had the better of the bout up to the fifth round, when he was almost knocked out by the Louisville man. In the sixth round O'Brien received severe punishment, and was all but out when the bell sounded. Because Hart failed to weigh in at 170 pounds, O'Brien received Hart's weight forfeit of $250.

SENT FREE TO MEN

A Most Remarkable Remedy That Quickly Restores Lost Vigor to Men.

A Free Trial Package Sent By Mail to All Who Write.

Free trial packages of a most remarkable remedy are being mailed to all who will write the State Medical Institute. They cured so many men who had battled for years against the mental and physical suffering of lost manhood, that the Institute has decided to distribute free trial packages to all who write. It is a home treatment and all men who suffer with any form of sexual weakness, resulting from youthful folly, premature loss of strength and memory, weak back, varicocele, or emaciation of parts can now cure themselves at home.

"No Man Is Lost—There Is a Cure for Ever y Man."—Dr. Robinson.

The remedy has a peculiarly grateful effect of warmth and seems to act direct to the desired location, giving strength and development just where it is needed. It cures all the ills and troubles that come from years of misuse of the natural functions and has been an absolute success in all cases. A request to the State Medical Institute, 2739 Elektron Building, Ft. Wayne, Ind., stating that you desire one of their free trial packages will be complied with promptly. The Institute is desirous of reaching that great class of men who are unable to leave home to be treated and the free sample will enable them to see how easy it is to be cured of sexual weakness when the proper remedies are employed. The Institute makes no restrictions. Any man who writes will be sent a free sample, carefully sealed in a plain package so that its recipient need have no fear of embarrassment or publicity. Readers are requested to write without delay.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF St. Louis. District Court, Eleventh Judicial District.
In the matter of the receivership of the Duluth Manufacturing company, Insolvent.

The above entitled matter having come on for hearing before the court at a special term thereof held at the court house in the city of Duluth in said county, on Saturday, the 25th day of April, 1903, before the undersigned, one of the judges of said court, upon the report and account of Omar H. Simonds, receiver, on file, from which report and account it appears that said receiver has converted all of the assigned property into money and that there remain no funds in his hands for distribution among the general creditors of said insolvent and that as such receiver he has incurred in the management of his said trust under orders of the court certain indebtedness for moneys advanced and material furnished for the payment of which indebtedness the remaining moneys in his hands are insufficient;

Now, therefore, it is ordered, that a hearing be had upon said report and account before said court at a special term thereof to be held at the court house in the city of Duluth in said county on Saturday, the 23rd day of May, 1903, at 9:30 a. m., or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard;

It is further ordered, that notice of said hearing shall be given by publication of this order in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper of said county, once in each week for at least three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing and shall be served by mail upon the insolvent and upon all creditors entitled to participate in the distribution of said estate at least twenty days before said day of hearing.

VOLUME OF TRAFFIC

Decreasing But Railroads Still Have Plenty of Business.

There Are Liberal Movements of Ore, Lumber and Coal.

Chicago, May 6.—The volume of traffic on all Western lines is gradually decreasing. It is larger than a year ago, but compared with a month or six weeks past there has been a decided falling off. On some lines, especially those in the Northwest, there is reported no surplus of cars, but this is accounted for as due to the fact that many cars have not been returned from connecting lines. When they are it is believed there will be an excess. General business conditions are good, but there appears to be a hesitancy on the part of manufacturers toward further expansion until there is a change in the labor situation. The quite general unrest among the vast army of the employed is having the inevitable effect of curtailing manufacturing. This is true, more especially with regard to the iron and steel trade, and some large consumers have requested that shipments of material on contracts be withheld until the critical period has passed.

This is all having its effect on the general business and on the traffic of the railroads. Of course, the latter have recently added greatly to their equipment, and the number of empty cars now going into side tracks mostly represents the newly acquired equipment temporarily out of commission. There is still a large volume of general merchandise pouring into all sections of the West, but for the reasons noted it is not up to the high-water mark of a few months ago. Railroad officials look upon the present situation as a temporary one, and are going ahead and making preparations for another big rush later on.

A Burlington official says a good way to look at things now is in the light that the surplus cars do not quite represent the additions the railroads have made and are constantly making. All of the roads will have plenty to do all summer, and will in all probability keep ahead of last year's record most of the time.

When the farm work is over, he said, traffic on the so-called grain lines ought to pick up a good deal. The official is of the opinion that soft corn will begin to improve before July, and that it ought to furnish a big traffic during the balance of the summer.

The Northern roads are having a very liberal movement of ore, lumber and coal, which is offsetting the loss of other commodities to a considerable extent, and is giving the road the appearance of having as much to do as ever.

Railroad men are generally an optimistic, good-natured set, and hard to convince that we will not always have good times. Thus, in the present reaction they profess to find general business conditions healthful and crop prospects very bright in most localities. The recent cold snap, as near as can be learned, did not do the damage reported, although it is stated that the winter wheat crop is not looking as well as it did a week ago. The unseasonable weather, insects and too rapid growth has taken the healthy color out of the plant in some localities where it heretofore displayed the greatest promise. This is not causing the freight traffic men to worry, as it is yet too early to put much dependence in crop damage reports.

At present prices there is more money for the farmer to feed what little hard corn he has to his livestock, and this accounts for the comparative light movement of that class of grain to market.

The problem of how to keep the Canadian lines from putting into effect the practices which the recently enacted Elkins law prohibits is the latest thing bothering the American roads' officials. While it has not been definitely charged that the Canadian lines have made an effort to divert business to their routes, it is pointed out that the way is easily seen and may be seized by the traffic men of the lines in question.

In this respect it is said there is nothing to prevent the Grand Trunk, for example, from making two billings of shipments, one billing to end and another to begin at the Canadian border. By so doing any shrinkage or rebate which was desired could be absorbed by the Canadian end of the road. That the law places within the grasp of the above-mentioned road or the Canadian Pacific a tremendous advantage over the other roads extending from Chicago and elsewhere to the seaboard is very readily seen, and the paying of rebates in the manner mentioned would easily divert the business. The fact that an opportunity of this kind exists makes these roads extremely important factors in the Eastern situation.

A SURE THING.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. PASSING OF SOCIETY

Of Communists Who Have Amassed Great Wealth Near Economy, Pa.

Six Surviving Members Are to Divide Nearly $3,000,000.

Pittsburg, May 6.—One of the strangest religious communities ever organized will have passed out of existence when the 2600 acres of land near Economy, Pa., are transferred to owners, according to a sale agreement that the society has just signed.

The community was organized just a century ago and was patterned after no other one in existence. After it had been proved successful another society was formed at Zoar, Ohio, where descendants of its members still live.

The Economites, as they are known, and the Zoarites have many things in common with the Amish or River Brethren, who are the most numerous and prosperous element of the population of Holmes county, Ohio.

The Amish, however, do not labor for the benefit of a common fund, although their readiness to help one another invests the less prosperous with many of the benefits of communism. The hospitality of the Amish, too, is in marked contrast to the open hostility of the members of the other two societies toward strangers.

Practical celibacy every year, except one in seven, was the strangest practice of the Economites. The biblical exemption of men from war during a year after marriage they extended so that it applied also to labor.

No social pew was set apart, but when a young couple married their year or privilege began at once. At its end there was no separation, but the married state was practically annulled until the next seventh year.

Until the last decade no resident of the Economy community ever applied to the courts to decide a dispute. Supreme authority was vested in the patriarch, who, all other things being equal, was the oldest man in the community. At times, however, where the senior member was incapacitated, the one ranking next in point of age was chosen patriarch. This official had no special privileges, although he could have arrogated to himself any right he chose and none would dare to question his authority.

All told, there have been perhaps 1000 persons who owed allegiance to the doctrines taught in Economy. One of the representatives of the community was educated at Yale, yet he returned home to labor in the fields.

No one knows how many desertions there have been from the community. It was the practice to keep such things secret.

It was known, however, that the Pittsburg police once found a young woman, handsome, yet clothed in homespun, and unsophisticated as a child, wandering in the city streets. Her garb identified her as a member of the Harmony society, as the Economy community called itself.

She admitted she had no relatives nor friends outside of the community, yet, when preparations were made to send her back, she steadfastly refused to go. She had been banished, she said, but she would not tell why. She was given employment at housework by a woman who became interested in her, but the duties were so new and odd she was of no assistance to the other servants.

While deliberating on what could be done with her, her new friends happened to recall the fact that at Economy a cream cheese, unrivalled in excellence, is made. They asked her if she could make cheese, and, for the first time, she exhibited enthusiasm.

A few months afterward a Pittsburg cheese manufacturer was paying her a fine salary for superintending his cheese manufactury, and, for the first time in three-quarters of a century, a cheese commanding as high a price as that made at Economy was placed on the market.

In a short time afterward she married and went to the far West, but the secrets she had taught to her coworkers are being utilized at this day in making cream cheese.

Economy people became very wealthy. The revenue from the cheese industry was great long before the war. Like the Quakers, their men had conscientious scruples against fighting, and while the civil conflict raged, all was peace in the little village nestling among the hills. They had no newspapers. No couriers from the outside world brought news, and all they learned of the great battles was an occasional scrap of information volunteered by some one to whom they sold cheese.

Notwithstanding their simple modes of living, the population did not increase. They accepted no converts from the outside and the births and deaths were about equal. There were no doctors nor lawyers. Every man and woman was employed at some producing occupation. They spent no money, except occasionally for machinery or materials.

The women tended to the great herds of cattle and made cheese. The men chopped and hauled and performed the heavier labor. The combined capital of the community had reached $1,000,000 by the time the war closed. What has become of it is a mystery, for no member of the Harmony society ever cherished a want which could be supplied by dollars.

There are only a half dozen of the members left and that tract of land owned by the society has been sold to a syndicate. For an entire century, money has been rolling into that little community and never a cent is known to have come out, except limited for the purchase of machinery and material. As a result, nearly $3,000,000 is now in the treasury.

The defaulting treasurer of the Zoar society wrecked the community as such. Simultaneously with his departure with many thousands of dollars, the younger members began demanding a share of the community funds.

The first few rebels were given a good start in life and sent on their way.

It is said that the first Zoarite to become dissatisfied was one who fell in love with a farmer's daughter who lived just outside the Zoar community.

It is a fact that nearly all the younger element of the Zoarites have moved. Many have married outside of their society and no longer recognize the bonds their fathers revered. The lands and funds have all been partitioned and visitors are now encouraged to view the departed glories of Zoar. The big brewery still brews the famous beer of the patriarchs and none of the individual owners will tolerate whisky, but the strange pageants and peculiar customs that once prevailed have been abrogated.

The place is much like any other staid farming community, although it has fewer lawsuits and fewer crimes than any other township adjoining it.

The Amish are the only people whose modes of life have not undergone a great change. Stand around the public square at Millersburg, Holmes county, Ohio, any day, and patriarchal farmers with great beards, but smooth upper lips, will be seen driving the sleekest and fattest of horses. The Amish are proud of their horses, and better masters than the Arabians.

The Amish have no locks on their houses. One who knows their customs does not knock. It is their theory that honest people are never ashamed of what they may happen to be doing; hence, there is no necessity for their neighbors to give warning.

Meetings are held every Sunday, although there are no meeting houses. They meet in the capacious house of a farmer or, if it be in summer time, perhaps the barn serves as a church. Their barns are always bigger and often more expensive than their houses.

A farmer, who has made no preparation, delivers the sermon. The regular St. James translation of the Bible is used, but it is interpreted literally. Every word is gospel to be constructed in the plainest manner possible.

These Sunday meetings afford the young persons almost their only opportunities for courting, for the Amish begin work at daylight and do not quit until after dark.

Church days the married woman wears a cap that is easily distinguished from the unmarried woman's headgear. Girls, who are engaged, can be told also by their caps, being tilted to one side, while the demure miss, who has no lover, wears her cap in a prim and formal manner that cannot be mistaken by those who know the customs.

The women are very particular about the observance of these customs, and the gravest breach of etiquette possible is for a young man to accost a young woman whose headgear indicates she is not free to receive advances. It happens, but not often.

The Amish do not take their disputes into court. A board of arbitration is appointed and its decree is final. All the Amish are prosperous, but few are very rich. The stranger, who comes to stay over night, no matter what he may seem, is an honored guest. The second night he is tolerated and the next morning, if he shows a disposition to linger, he is told to go. The Amish seldom ask for credit and invariably get it. They are thriving in numbers, and in time all of Holmes county will belong to them.

THE FATHER OF MOLINEUX

Intimates Divorce Suit of Son's Wife Will Be Fought.

New York, May 6.—"Do you know that, all stories to the contrary notwithstanding, my son has not spoken a word to his wife since he was acquitted? This is true," said Gen. Molineux.

On the 14th instant Mrs. Blanche Chesebrough Molineux will have completed the six months' residence at Sioux Falls necessary to enable her to begin the suit for divorce from her husband, Roland B. Molineux, which it is believed she went there to secure.

That the suit, when brought, will not be all plain sailing is evident from a statement which Gen. Molineux, father of the central figure in the great unsolved poison mystery, breaking a long silence, has made.

"My son's wife," said Gen. Molineux, "is still at Sioux Falls, and on May 14 she will have been there the six months required by law to establish a legal residence. I suppose she will apply for a divorce from Roland."

"Do you know on what grounds?" was asked.

"Oh, I suppose she is tired of him," he replied.

Gen. Molineux, up to the time of the acquittal of his son, was a staunch defender of Mrs. Molineux. In several interviews he denounced insinuations made against her, and spoke of the woman as one who had been hounded and persecuted. He announced his intention of standing by her.

On the day that Mrs. Molineux left for Sioux Falls, Judge Olcott, one of the counsel for the defense at the last Molineux trial, said that he had paid her a sum of money on order by telephone from Gen. Molineux, and it was stated at the home of the Molineuxs on the night of the acquittal, and by counsel the next day, that Roland and his wife had been reunited and were happy.

Reverting to the siege through which he passed during the four years in which the fate of his son hung in the balance, Gen. Molineux said:

"I am not the quiet, patient man that I was. Now if anyone makes a false statement about me or my son I shall make him suffer. There has been too much misrepresentation already, and I will not stand any more of it. We have lived quietly ever since Roland's troubles ceased, and we have many warm friends to whom we owe deep gratitude. Many others have been harsh, but we pass that by. Hereafter we will be ready for fight upon the first misrepresentation."

A little life may be sacrificed to a sudden attack of croup, if you don't have Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on hand for the emergency.

SSS THE OLDEST AND BEST BLOOD PURIFIER

THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS.

A Spring Medicine that adds vigor and strength to the system, purifies and enriches the Blood, and lays the foundation for a strong constitution and good health during the hot sultry summer.

Most everybody feels bad in the spring. Some have no particular ailment but are just tired, worn out and totally unfit for work or anything else that requires energy or effort. They mope around upon the border-land of invalidism, irritable, peevish, hysterical and unreasonable.

A good appetite in the spring is a rarity, and we sicken at the sight of food, or thought of eating, and what little we do eat is a burden to the stomach and a tax upon the digestion.

Warm weather is sure to bring out the hidden poisons, germs and seeds of disease that have been collecting in the blood and system during winter, and you may look for some old chronic trouble to make its appearance. It is a time, too, when boils and carbuncles, and pustular or scaly skin eruptions like eczema and tetter, pay their annual visits and make life miserable by their intense pains and intolerable itching and burning.

The fight for health should begin before any warning symptoms of physical collapse are felt, or before the seeds of disease have time to germinate if we would avoid the usual spring sickness; and with S. S. S., the acknowledged king of blood purifiers and greatest of all tonics, you can put your blood and system in such perfect condition and so strengthen the constitution that one may be as free from sickness and as vigorous and strong during the trying months of spring and depressing summer season as at any other time.

S. S. S. not only builds you up, but searches out and destroys any poisonous germs or impurities that may be lurking in the blood. The benefits derived from the use of S. S. S. are permanent because it acts directly on the blood and purifies and cleanses it of all impure matter, leaving nothing to cause fermentation and deterioration of this life-giving fluid.

In selecting your blood purifier and spring tonic get one that long experience and thorough test have proven the best. In S. S. S. you will find a remedy whose purifying properties are unquestionable, and just such a tonic as your system needs. Ask your druggist for S. S. S.—there is nothing else just as good.

For the past 40 years we have had a standing offer of $1,000 for proof that S. S. S. contains the least particle of any mineral whatever, and this offer is still open.

Gentlemen: For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system, so that I was unable to attend to my household duties. I had tried other medicines, which did not relieve me. Seven years ago my cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I have been able to attend to my household duties ever since, experiencing no inconvenience whatever; in fact, I am able to work in the garden as well as my house.

I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic, feeling sure they will be benefited thereby.

Yours truly,
MRS. JOSIE A. BRITTAIN,
44 W. Ninth St., Columbia, Tenn.

BOUNTY ON WOLVES

County to Pay Same Amonnt as Given By State.

Allows Fifteen Dollars For Each Full Grown Wolf.

There have been some important changes in the wolf bounty law, and the amount which will be paid for the killing of wolves in St. Louis county the coming year will differ materially from that paid last winter.

At the last session of the state legislature a law was passed fixing the state bounty on full-grown wolves of either sex at $7.50 and $1 each for cub wolves.

At a meeting of the board of county commissioners yesterday afternoon a resolution was passed that the county shall pay a sum equal to that paid by the state for full-grown wolves, bringing the total bounty for either male or female wolves up to $15. The county will also pay $1 each for cub wolves, making the total bounty $2 for the young wolves.

Last year a full-grown female wolf brought a bounty of $25, the state paying $10 and the county paying $15. Last year a full-grown male wolf brought a bounty of $8.50, the state paying $3.82 and the county paying $4.68.

It is claimed that the bounty of $15 for either a male or female wolf will prove a sufficient inducement for an extra effort on the part of the St. Louis county settlers and trappers to exterminate the animals, for while not so much bounty is paid for female wolves as formerly, the males are worth much more and these are more frequently killed than the females.

STATE MEETING OF TEACHERS

Musical Instructors In Session This Week at St. Paul.

The second annual meeting of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week at Minneapolis. The association is composed of those interested in music all over the state and its object is "to promote the true culture of music by interchange of ideas; advance the interest of musical art and foster professional fraternity." The officers of the association are: President, Clarence A. Marshall, Minneapolis; vice president, Charles A. Fisher, St. Paul; secretary-treasurer, Miss Jennie Pinch, St. Paul, and auditor, W. A. Wheaton, St. Paul.

The program of music by the state musicians will be given morning, afternoon and evening. Among the people known in Duluth who will appear upon the programs are Carl Riedelsberger, of Minneapolis, formerly of Duluth, who will play the violin intermezzo composed by Gerard Tonning, of Duluth. Friday afternoon Mrs. James McAuliffe will sing the aria, "Casta Diva" from the opera Norma, and at the same session Marx E. Oberndorfer, of Duluth, will play a piano number. Friday evening at the Minnesota commissary program, one of Mr. Tonning's numbers, "In Venice," will be played by Carl Riedelsberger, and Mr. Tonning will be at the piano. Saturday morning, Miss Ida Griffith will sing a song cycle, "Eilland" with Mr. Oberndorfer accompanying.

The last program will be given Saturday evening when a grand orchestral concert will be given by the Boston Festival company. Among those who will go down from Duluth for the meeting are Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Tonning, Mrs. James McAuliffe, Miss Mabel Fulton, Miss Elizabeth Morton, Miss Elizabeth Kendall Bailey, Miss Antoinette West, Marx E. Oberndorfer and C. W. Weeks, George Tyler and M. E. Griffith.

CAPT. GAILLARD GOES.

Is Tendered a Banquet as a Farewell.

Capt. D. D. Gaillard, who has been relieved of the office of government engineer for the Lake Superior district, left this afternoon for Washington where he has been ordered to report as a staff officer. His family will remain here for the present, and will follow the captain when he is permanently located.

Yesterday afternoon Capt. Gaillard was tendered a very pleasing and elaborate banquet at the Spalding by some of the engineers and office force. Capt. Gaillard expressed his appreciation for the loyal and intelligent support that he received from the local corps during his two years' term of office in this district.

AMONG THE ROADS

Poll of Great Northern Employes Here to Begin Soon.

Northern Pacific Investigating Building of Freight House.

The polling of the employes of the Great Northern road on the question of a demand in increase of wages and time and the abolishment of double-headers without extra compensation will reach Duluth the latter part of the week or early next week.

General Manager F. E. Ward of the road has sent out another circular setting forth his position more clearly, in a word stating that the men are unjust and unreasonable in their demands, as they want extra pay for work on trains hauled by two small engines, when one large engine can haul the train just as well, and the work is the same to them.

The running of double-headers on that road, which does not do so habitually, it is said, will give an extra fireman and engineer employment, where if the big engines are run solely, there will be but one engine crew to a train.

No announcements are being made as to how the voting is coming out which has taken place from the Pacific coast to Dakota division points so far.

THE FREIGHT HOUSE.

Northern Pacific Is Contemplating an Enlargement.

A great deal of matter relating to the warehouse and freight house accommodations will be forwarded to the officials of the Northern Pacific railroad at St. Paul today.

The question of building a freight house about twice or three times the size of the present structure is under consideration, and the officials at St. Paul want to hear all that the Duluth shippers and the men that have to handle the work at this end have to say.

The freight house at the present time handles all the freight in and out of Duluth for all the roads excepting the Omaha and the iron range roads.

The present structure is 60 by 600 feet, and was added to largely last fall. The consolidation of the railroads' freight business, however, has made the structure somewhat small, and more must be added soon.

NEW SIGNAL SYSTEM.

Examinations of Omaha Conductors Practically Ended.

Examinations are practically over by the officials of the Omaha road, who have been testing the conductors of the road for the past few weeks on their proficiency in the knowledge of the general signals and regulations recently put into effect.

There are seventy-five or more conductors, and the new rules are those in use by the Northwestern system, and are said to be the finest in the country for railroad work.

The system has recently been changed, and the conductors are being given a test of their knowledge of the new ones after a month's study and practice of them.

It is said there were several rank failures among the older conductors, who have worked under the Omaha's regulations all their railroad lives, and it is probable that there will be additional tests later for those who failed and were given leisure time to think matters over in the shape of a lay off.

The older conductors, who have been so accustomed to the old signals, etc., that it has become second nature to them, have fared poorly at the tests.

It is rumored that a similar system will be put on the Great Northern road also.

D. M. Phillbin, assistant general superintendent of the road, said this afternoon that there would be nothing done in that direction until it was ascertained just what the men were going to do on the strike question.

"We are expecting them to strike," he said. "Now understand, we don't want any strike; we hate to see the men take such injudicious action, but we are making ready for a strike, if they so deem. We are hiring all the men we can get and holding them in readiness for work if the strike is declared. We can't afford to stop work if there is a strike. It is our hope the men won't go out, but about all we can do is to prepare for the emergency, and we haven't time to introduce new signal systems now."

TO EXTEND LINES.

Great Northern Will Build to Some Mines.

Spur tracks to the Crosby mine, and the Laflue mines Nos. 1 and 2, at Nashwauk, are to be built by the Great Northern railway immediately, and contracts were let yesterday to Porter Bros., of Duluth, for the work. It is expected that Crosby mine will be ready to ship ore by July 1 or soon afterwards, and the work will be completed by that time. The whole of the contracts amounts to but a few miles, but a great deal of ore will be taken out over them in the next few years from the mines being opened.

CONTRACT SIGNED.

Mayor Hugo has gone to Peoria, Ill., on a business trip. Before leaving the city this afternoon he signed the Zenith Furnace company ten-year-city-gas-supply contract, which will also be signed by the Zenith company within a few days.

The contract will not go into effect, however, until the coke ovens at West Duluth are constructed and manufacturing gas at a rate of 25,000,000 cubic feet annually.

PORTO RICO COMMISSIONERS.

San Juan P. R., May 6.—Governor Hunt today appointed Gustavo Preston of Boston, Mass., and Porto Rico, and David Marcial, of Ponce, to be commissioners for Porto Rico to the St. Louis exposition.

WANT HIM NOW

The St. Paul Manager Would Like to Keep Pitcher Volz.

Duluth Will Not Need Him For About Two Weeks.

A falsetto shriek of cranks in distress has been raised in St. Paul as a result of the announcement that Volz had been released to Duluth.

"Jacob the Great" pitched for the Saints against Kansas City yesterday, won his game and let the cowboy brigade down with seven hits.

Now the St. Paul management is out with a statement that they desire to have Volz remain a Saint indefinitely, or at least until Stewart is sufficiently recovered to take his turn in the box.

This does not seriously inconvenience Duluth as Volz will be getting the best of practice and is not needed in a Duluth uniform until the league season opens on May 20.

* * *

Capt. Lambert took his first squad of candidates out to Oneota park this afternoon for practice. Among those turning out were Dodge, Leonard and Carl, the latter being a new outfield candidate who reported last evening. He played with the Nebraska Indians last season.

* * *

According to reports from Ann Arbor, the Duluth management is figuring on signing Roche and Cutting of the university of Michigan team.

* * *

The Red River Valley papers are complaining of being "scooped" by The Herald, of Duluth, and Telegram, of West Superior, in the publication of the Northern league schedule several days ago, claiming that it should not have been made public until Saturday.

There was no breach of faith here though the information received since the publication referred to shows that there was either an oversight or a misunderstanding on the part of the league officer that gave the schedule out.

Fargo broke even with Keokuk, winning one game by a score of 5 to 1, and losing the other, 7 to 2.

The Lennon & Gibbons team of St. Paul was defeated at Chippewa Falls by Winnipeg, the score being 7 to 1.

* * *

Local practice, which began this afternoon at Oneota park, will probably bring out a bunch of about twenty candidates before the end of the week. The weeding out process will begin after a few practice games.

ANOTHER BOAT ARRANGED FOR

Capt. Singer to Bring a Fine One to Duluth.

Capt. W. H. Singer of the White Line Transportation company has closed a deal for the acquisition of another large passenger and freight boat to be put on the north and south shore run, formerly made by the Iroquois.

Capt. Singer was loath to give out any information when seen this afternoon, but finally concluded to say:

"I have a deal almost closed for a large new passenger boat to go into our commission about May 20 or 25. I am not in a position to give the name of the boat or any details of the transaction as yet, but will be able to do so in a few days.

"About all I can say is that the boat will come from the lower lakes, where she is in service now, and will be larger than the boats we are operating now.

"She will be put on the run formerly made by the Iroquois, which, with the Chippewa, is going on salt water to end their days."

The acquisition of the new boat will give the White Line Transportation company three boats in the Lake Superior service.

GEN. BLACK ENDORSED.

St. Louis, May 6.—Gen. John C. Black, of Chicago, was today endorsed as a candidate for the position of national commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., by the Illinois division, now holding the annual state encampment at East St. Louis. Resolutions to this effect were unanimously adopted.

FOOD IN NEED

Is a Friend Indeed.

Many times a school teacher in the middle of a heavy session requires exactly the right kind of food to rebuild the wasted nerve and brain tissues as well as to keep up the muscular energy. This is the business of Grape-Nuts, in which the starchy part of the pure cereals is turned to grape sugar and where the phosphates predominate, making it rich in food value and ready for the weakest stomach to assimilate immediately. A lady teacher of Minneapolis says:

"About four years ago I realized that I was breaking down nervously in the middle of a school year. To a school teacher this means not only loss of health, but inability to go on with her work. Nothing appeared to help me, and I was just about discouraged when a friend recommended that I look into Grape-Nuts. On reading what this food does toward rebuilding brain and nerve centers, I made up my mind to give it a trial.

"I ate Grape-Nuts food dry with cream for breakfast and enjoyed it greatly; my improvement began immediately and was so steady that I did not realize how fully I had been benefited until an extra strain came on me in my school work, through which I was able to go, continuing to improve all the time. Looking back on the trial now, I realize how this wonderful food saved me from a certain break-down.

"I have kept up the daily use of Grape-Nuts ever since and have never had a return of the trouble. I always take a package with me when traveling, and I look upon the food as essential to my health as fresh air or exercise." Name furnished by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

CUT IS NOT ENOUGH

Flour Millers Will Appeal to Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rail Rate From Buffalo to Seaboard Is Objected To.

The 2-cent cut in rates on flour per hundred pounds between the Twin Cities and Duluth and the seaboard, effective next week is not sufficient for the millers, and they are now going to the interstate commerce commission with a petition that the railroad make the same rate on flour from Buffalo to New York as they do on wheat.

The reduction of the rate, as construed by Duluth transportation men, makes the old and the new as follows:

FROM TWIN CITIES TO SEABOARD.
Old rate ..... 25½ cents 100 pounds
May 11th rate ..... 23½ cents 100 pounds

FROM DULUTH TO SEABOARD.
Old rate ..29½ cents 100 pounds, domestic
May 11th rate. 18½c 100 pounds, domestic

The export rate is 2½ cents cheaper than the domestic rate.

The rail rate to Buffalo could be attacked through the commerce commission, but the lake rate, which differs on flour and wheat, could not be, and so the millers are after the rail haul from Buffalo to the seaboard, now.

The following dispatch was sent from Chicago last night:

"The millers of the Northwest are not satisfied with the recent reduction of two cents in rates on grain and flour from the Twin Cities to the seaboard and have decided to appeal to the interstate commerce commission. This fact will not, it is said, interfere with the operation of the mills in the meantime. It is announced on behalf of the millers that the greatest complaint is regarding the discrepancy between the proportionate rate on grain and flour from Buffalo east to the seaboard. When wheat from the Northwest is delivered by the grain boats to the railroads at Buffalo, it takes a rate there to the seaboard of 5 cents. Should flour be destined to the same point the proportionate rate is much higher. In reply to this the railways say it is impossible to send flour by tramp steamers which are not built to carry it expeditiously and safely, therefore the insurance is higher. The interstate commerce commission will be asked to pass directly upon the proportionate rates on wheat and flour charged from Buffalo to the seaboard."

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Parlor theater, the wonderful Ceasar. Grand Rapids furniture, new arrivals every day. T. W. Cameron, 10 East Superior street.

Dancing at Lester tomorrow.

Fred W. Hargreaves and Joseph W. Cook have announced the formation of a partnership for the practice of law under the name of Hargreaves & Cook, with offices on the eighth floor of the Torrey building.

Work has been received at the government engineer's that the secretary of war has established the harbor line that the property owners along St. Croix petitioned for last February, and which was recommended by Captain D. D. Gaillard. The line is established on the lake front from a point 300 feet east of the line of St. Croix avenue, running parallel thereto and at the same angle, extending clear through to the government property at the canal.

Parlor theater, catchy vaudeville tonight.

John Chesser, of Virginia, has sold to David Beaudion of that place, all his interest in an option dated Aug. 14, 1901, made by John Lamont and John Costin, to John Chesser and Richard Bodof, and giving the right to purchase one-eighth interest in a contract for iron ore land in the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 25-58-8. The assignment is subject to any interest in the option that may have been assigned to James H. Pearce.

Building permits have been issued to Joseph Rosek for a dwelling on Fourth street to cost $1000 and to H. S. Holresien for a dwelling on Fifth street to cost $2000.

Coal took a big jump upward in the municipal court this morning. "Andy" Coal whose true name is believed to be "Anthracite" Coal, was arraigned before Judge Windom on a charge of drunkenness. After hearing the evidence the court decided to supply the county jail with Coal for the next thirty days, and this decision is what caused Coal to take the big jump upward.

TOO FREE WITH LIQUOR.

Now Charles Shallafoe Rests Under Serious Charge.

Charles Shallafoe who lives on the Fond du Lac Indian reservation appeared before United States Commissioner Pressnell last evening to answer to a charge of selling liquor to Indians.

The evidence showed that Shallafoe with his Indian wife, resides on the Fond du Lac reservation on allotment of Susan Posey to whom, it is claimed, he gave the liquor. He induced Susan to come to his house and they together with Shallafoe's wife communed over a social glass.

Shallafoe then went to Cloquet and secured two pints of alcohol. This he brought back to the house and diluted. The three revellers then became gloriously intoxicated. While in this state Susan said something that provoked the wrath of Shallafoe, who knocked her down and pounded her. Her appearance was strong evidence of this fact, she being truly a "black-eyed Susan."

Commissioner Pressnell decided to bind Shallafoe over to the grand jury and placed the bail at $200. This Shallafoe was unable to pay and he went to jail.

FIFTEEN LOST

Fishing Schooner Goes to Pieces at Nova Scotia.

Canso, N. S., May 6.—Reports were received here today from Thrum Cape that the fishing schooner Gloriana, from Gloucester, Mass., went ashore last night and was broken up. The captain and fourteen men comprising the crew are missing.

Later—The reports of the loss of the Gloriana have been confirmed. The vessel carried a crew of eighteen men, only three of whom were saved.

Gloucester, Mass., May 6.—Andrew Leighton, owner of the Gloucester schooner, Gloriana, received a telegram from Canso, N. S., today, notifying him of the loss of his vessel, together with Capt. George Stoddart and fourteen of his men. The dispatch gave full particulars. It stated that the schooner struck on White Point, at the entrance of Canso harbor, and went to pieces during the night. Of the entire crew of eighteen men only three were saved.

It is believed that most of the crew were natives of the British provinces.

The spring term of the district and circuit courts will open May 12, and the grand jury will sit on the same day.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Santa Barbara, Cal., May 6.—Owen A. Stafford is dead at his home in this city, aged 80 years. Just before the civil war he established the Racine, Wis., Advocate. He was a close friend of Stephen A. Douglas during the latter's presidential campaign.

Staunton, Va., May 6.—Dr. Harold H. Haas, an army surgeon, who shot himself in the head several days ago with suicidal intent and who was operated on by a Philadelphia specialist, is dead. He will be buried today at Harrisonburg.

Chipley, Fla., May 6.—Judge A. E. Maxwell, except Senator Vest, the last survivor of the Confederate state senate, died yesterday, aged 83. Judge Maxwell was a member of congress from 1862 till 1865; was appointed judge of the state supreme court in 1866, made circuit juge, 1877-85, and was chief justice of Florida 1887-91.

WOULD SAVE HUSBAND.

Milwaukee Woman Says She Killed Reul.

Milwaukee, May 6.—Mrs. Alix Schlissier, better known as Lillian Desmond, now declares that a William Reul, of Watertown, Wis., died by her hand on the night of Nov. 25, 1902.

In a letter to Henry J. Killilea, attorney for her husband, Mrs. Schlissier gives for the first time her version of the shooting of her escort. While the revolver was held in her husband's hand it was her hand that exploded the weapon, accidentally, and caused the death of the young Watertown bank clerk, she says. Schlissier was convicted of murder in the second degree on April 25, a stay of sentence being granted pending argument for a new trial.

GETS THE CHILDREN.

Provision In Burdick Will Null and Void.

Buffalo, May 6.—By a decision of the county surrogate Mrs. Alice Hull Burdick will get the custody of her three children. The surrogate today declared null and void the provision of Mr. Burdock's will, which directed that the children should be under the guardianship of his executors.

COAL CARTERS QUIT

Montreal, May 6.—A hundred coal carters have quit work since yesterday thereby tieing up the retail trade. The officers of the Longshoremen's union announce that they have received word that the wharf laborers of Boston, Portland and other United States ports have assured them that they will not handle any freight handled at this port by non-union men.

It is stated that the trackmen of the Grand Trunk road will strike tomorrow or next day.

BAD WEATHER

Glasgow, May 6.—The renewal of the trials of the Shamrock III was again postponed today owing to the inclement weather. The first set race between the two Shamrocks is expected to take place Friday and there will be a special race over a measured course in the Firth of Clyde, Saturday.

Sir Thomas Lipton was much interested in the result of the Columbia-Reliance brush on Long Island sound yesterday. He said he thought that a "quarter of a mile beating in half an hour" seemed to be a "large order," but it was "something to know the Columbia was ahead."

TO CLEAN HULL.

Glen Cove, L. I., May 6.—Any hope that Col. Oliver Iselin may have had of having a brush between the Reliance and the Constitution was deferred when the Constitution today left her moorings and started for New London, Conn. The Constitution will be hauled out there and her hull cleaned. She will probably be absent three days, returning to Glen Cove when the work has been completed. The Columbia got under way at 10:30 this morning and stood off into the sound where she became becalmed. The Reliance lay at New Rochelle all morning with sail up. Both boats apparently were waiting for a breeze.

A Snap for a Working Man.

COMMENCING THURSDAY, MAY 7th.

JUST twenty years ago on the 7th of May the Freimuth store was first introduced to a Duluth public—a small unassuming store in what is now known as the Metropolitan block—at that time one story high. Energy, push, and a careful attention to details soon increased the business to a wonderful extent and two more stories were added as time went on. Even this additional space was inadequate for the steady increase. Larger and more modern quarters were negotiated for, and in 1900 the present Daylight store, with its many pleasant features, was made the new home of this splendid business. Twenty years of modern methods—courteous treatment and fair prices have made possible this new home. Once a year we look back to this business birth with a feeling of pride and pleasure—and as a fitting celebration make liberal price reductions in every section. Thursday, May 7th, marks the twentieth mile stone in our business highway, so, as in the past, we are determined to make it the beginning of a WEEK of bargains—a celebration sale, long to be remembered by all who take advantage of it. The Twentieth Anniversary Sale starts Thursday and continues for the balance of the week.

WHEAT IS DULL

Trading Very Quiet and Prices Seek Lower Level.

Flax Trading Light But the Market Is Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 6.—The wheat market today was a very dull affair. The cables opened favorably and this caused a firm tone in the American opening and better prices soon afterward, but the market turned weaker about noon and fell off. The weather conditions were reported considerably better and this led to some selling. The export business was very slow, none in the local market and New York only reported five loads of wheat and four of rye. Eastern millers took about 25,000 bus in the local market. In Chicago Armour held the May option unchanged and supported the July considerably, but it closed lower nevertheless.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher, Antwerp unchanged, Paris unchanged to ½c lower and Buda Pest ⅝c higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 277,000 bus, last year 264,000 bus. Shipments 122,000 bus, last year 207,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 415,000 bus.

Receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis, 79 cars, and at Chicago 99, a total of 199 cars, against 192 last week and 140 last year.

In the Liverpool market corn closed unchanged to ⅛c higher and in Chicago the July option declined 1@1½c. July oats in Chicago were a shade lower. Primary receipts of corn were 444,000 bus, last year 280,000 bus. Shipments 311,000 bus, last year 124,000 bus. Clearances were 328,000 bus.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was next thing to dead this morning, but the market was firmer early, soaring off later today, opened unchanged at 78½, sold to 78⅝c at 9:50, at 78¾c at 10:20, and sagged off after noon closing at 77⅝c, a decline of ⅝c. July opened ⅛@¼c off at 75c, sold at 74¾c at 9:50, and ruled very dull after that, closing ⅝c off at 75⅜c.

In Chicago the May option was unchanged, but July fell 1½@1⅝c. In Minneapolis May was ⅛c up and July a shade lower. New York May was off ⅛c and July ½c.

Cash business was as dead as the option trade. May price was offered for No. 1 northern and July under for No. 2.

Flax was dull and the market very strong. Offerings were very light and there was a good demand. May, July and September advanced 1¼c. October and November were up ⅝c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard 78¾c; No. 1 northern 77⅝c; No. 2 northern 75⅝c; May No. 1 hard 78¼c; No. 1 northern 77⅝c; July 75⅜c; Sept. 70¼c. Flax in store $1.13½; to arrive $1.13½; on track $1.13½; May $1.13½; July $1.15; September $1.15¼, October $1.15⅝; November $1.15. Oats, on track 33½c; to arrive 32c; May 33½c; Rye on track 50c; to arrive 50c; May 50c; Barley 39@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 9; last year 36; oats 2; rye 2; barley 1; flax 12.

Receipts: Wheat 19,751; oats 6151; rye 288, flax 11,774.

Shipments: Wheat 130,835; oats, 20,397, barley 271; rye, 18,000; flax 60,390.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bearish Government Report Causes Considerable Selling.

Chicago, May 6.—Wheat opened easier with considerable selling by local traders on the bearish government report and July was a shade to ½c lower at 73c to 73@73½c. Firm cables and small receipts had a strengthening influence and commission houses bought moderately which soon resulted in a little firmer tone in the market. July selling up to 73¾c and holding steady at the slight advance. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 79 cars, which with local receipts of 40 cars, name of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 119 cars, against 152 cars last week and 140 cars a year ago.

The market held firm until late in the day and July sold up to 73¾c. During the last hour liberal commission house selling caused a reaction and the close was weak with July ¾@⅞c lower, at 72⅝@72¾c.

A bullish crop report showing considerable damage by frosts to the crop in the Southwest was responsible for the firm tone in the corn pit at the opening. There was a good demand from commission houses and shorts were fair buyers, but trading on the whole was rather small. July held firm around 45¾@46c after opening a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 45¾@45¾c. Local receipts were 251 cars, 12 of contract grade.

Weakness developed later in the day on selling on local traders due to the break in May at New York and July closed ⅛@¼c lower at 44⅝c.

Oats opened firm in sympathy with corn, July being a shade to ⅛c higher at 32c to 32@32⅛c. Small receipts and a bullish crop report tended to improve the tone, but the trading was light and mostly by scalpers. Local receipts were 79 cars.

Provisions were easier on lower prices for hogs and the early trading as exceptionally dull and without any features. July pork opened unchanged at $17.25. July lard was 2½c lower to 2½c higher, at $8.97½, while ribs were off 2½c at $8.20.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was extremely dull all day, but broke at the close. There has been enough bad crop news in the past few days to cause a good deal of covering by shorts and to accumulate some long wheat in the pit. There is not enough of it today to support the advance and on rather better weather and a poor cash position a good deal of it went overboard. As near as could be judged Armour was a buyer of July in a small way, but his operations were not large enough at this moment to control prices except in the May option. The whole situation seems a dull and waiting one. Estimated cars, 35.

Corn—It looked like wet weather through the West this morning, and the market opened strong on that. Later indications for better weather caused weakness and a good deal of scattered liquidation. There is nothing urgent in the cash situation, and the market is more affected by weather than anything else. Conditions for planting, have on the whole, not been favorable and better weather is needed from this time on. Estimated cars, 250.

Oats—Market was fairly active. It sold up early on the outlook for rain, and sold off later on prevention of better weather. Nothing in the cash situation of importance. Estimated cars, 125.

The Burlington road's crop report says: Work on corn is being done rapidly as possible in Iowa and Nebraska. It has been retarded by the cold weather of last week, but farmers are working all the harder now. The ground is in fine shape for reception of the seed. There is a lot of moisture in the ground. When that is so in the spring we usually have good crops.

Washington, D. C.: The May government crop report will be issued on Monday, May 11, and for the first time in years the report will be issued while the markets are going, at noon. The report will treat of the condition of winter wheat, of the percentage of area sown last fall that will not be harvested, and of the percentage of spring seeding already done.

Missouri crop report: Corn—Only 27 per cent of the corn crop was planted May 1, compared with 68 per cent same time year ago. Some corn is up in the southern part of the state, but on account of the poor condition of the soil and the cold weather it does not look well. There was considerable damage by frost in some sections in the last days of April and first of May. Conditions are 72 per cent compared with 90 per cent the same time last year. The acreage will be slightly less than year ago, as follows: Northeastern, northwestern and central sections four per cent less; southwestern section 1 per cent more and southeastern same. Upon this estimate the total acreage forthe state will be 7,597,000. The wheat crop has deteriorated during the month as shown by the average of correspondents five points. The northeastern sections lost two points, northwestern one point, central one point and southwestern 13 points. A number of largest wheat producing counties show lowest condition. Hence the actual deterioration is more than shown by the average. The southwestern and southeastern sections where the greatest loss is sustained have 60 per cent of the total acreage of the state.

DULLNESS ALL DAY

In the Stock Market But the Undertone Was Firm.

Strength of Foreign Exchange Causes Fears of Gold Exports.

New York, May 6.—Small changes from last night's prices were shown by opening quotations for stocks and business was on a very limited scale. St. Louis and San Francisco rose a point, International Paper ¾ and Missouri Pacific and Copper ½. Delaware & Hudson lost ½.

Buying orders were well distributed throughout the list and prices improved. The more important advances centered in the specialties, but there was a moderate fractional rise in the general railroad list. Copper, Brooklyn Transit and International Paper gained a point and St. Louis San Francisco 2. Buffalo, R. & P. preferred advanced 1 and Lead declined 1¼.

The general market was dull and almost stationary, but advances in individual stocks kept the tone firm in sympathy. The strength of foreign exchange caused fears of gold exports. St. Louis & San Francisco made a gain of 3, Pere Marquette 2¼ and St. Louis & San Francisco first preferred, Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis preferred, Illinois Central and Erie second preferred a point. The National Lead stocks were weak, the common falling 2⅛ and the preferred 1⅜. Losses of 1 to 1¾ were reported for American Telegraph and Cable, United States Reduction and Snuff. Bonds were firm at noon.

But little of interest occurred in the mid-day trading aside from a belated rise of a point in Rock Island apparently in sympathy with the strength of St. Louis & San Francisco. Other leaders were neglected, but steady. St. Louis Southwestern and New Haven fell 1.

The dullness of the market became more acute as the session drew to a close and price changes were few and unimportant. Some large blocks of Rock Island were bought without increasing its gain any, but St. Louis & San Francisco rose nearly a point. Additional Lead worked steadily lower, and sold about 3 points off.

There was a further advance in Rock Island and the pfd rose 1½, Cleveland & Pittsburg gained 5; Pere Marquette, 3¼; and Wabash pfd. 1 point. Some profit taking was done in the general list under cover of the movement and a few stocks got down to last night's level or below. St. Louis & San Francisco and Delaware & Hudson reacted a point. Ice pfd lost a point. The closing was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Rock Island and Frisco are higher and show some activity. Report is that the deal will go through as contemplated. The rest of the market is dull and unchanged. Expressions of sentiment from Wall street continues very bullish, but outsiders do not come in. There is the trouble with the whole market. It is a very tiresome market in every respect. Our chief feeling is that with the small volume of business the market is not in shape to stand any disappointments.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: As is usually the case when the subject of gold exports is up for discussion, there is considerable difference of opinion as to how much, if any, will go out. In the present instance the strength of exchange seems to foreshadow withdrawals today for shipment Thursday, though at least one prominent operator with good sources of information thinks that at the last moment bankers will sell enough finance bills to make remittances in gold unnecessary. It is evident from last night's comment, however, that the street is looking for an outward movement of metal, and on this, professionals are selling stocks, yet conservative sentiment is little affected by this new expected development in the financial horizon, representative bankers adhering to their previously expressed belief that while gold shipments may cause a set-back of a point or so, the market will soon recover and resume its upward movement. It is considered highly favorable that there is better demand for bonds, and it is thought this inquiry will, in due course, extend to railroad shares and good industrials. The government weekly weather bulletin is also regarded as encouraging because it reports no material injury to the winter wheat from recent cold weather and in spite of that the planting season is very backward. There was considerable profit taking and short selling of stocks, like Atchison and Missouri Pacific before the government report came out. There is reason to believe that on any further recession the short interest will be taken back for stocks thus sold will be taken back for stocks thus sold will be taken back for the latest railroad earnings have done much to strengthen the confidence of the buyers, particularly New York Central.

• • •

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was very tame and there was but very little interest shown. However after the first hour activity developed in St. Louis and San Francisco shares which advanced quite sharply on western crowd were not willing to show their hand, there were strong evidences that they were in the market on the buying side. Missouri Pacific reflected the large gross earnings for the month of April, the buying was considered excellent and came from the Goulds.

• • •

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: An average advance of about 3 points has been made since last Tuesday and some reaction would appear to be due. In such a market buying on a scale when weak and taking profits on a scale when strong usually produces satisfactory results. I look for a gradual improvement in values but the advance may be very slow. The reactions likewise promise to be but trifling. I do not think the present reaction will average more than a point or two. Possibly there may be nothing more than fractional recessions. Stocks are being well taken by strong people and the short interest is large. Bad news has ceased to depress prices. When activity appears it is on the up grade. In short all signs point to a moderate bull market ahead. Scale buying of the standard shares is advised. Some of the low priced industrials are also a good gamble for persons who have plenty of patience. Leather common is due to move this summer, so is hide and leather preferred. International Paper which has had a great decline, now selling below 17 might easily be moved up 10 points on dividend rumors. Buy a little paper, common.

• • •

Norton to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market early in the afternoon was somewhat dull, but very hard profit-taking failed to cause any serious recession. Professionals are bullish and their buying is better than the selling. Illinois Central advances helped by revival of rumors of increased dividend. Great Western issues showed more strength than for some time. People in touch with the property say some improvement due on excellent earnings and are particularly bullish on the "A" and "B" stocks.

• • •

Boston to Coe Commission Co.: The recent rise in the Lake Superior stocks is attributed to an extent to New York buying, possibly on the expectation of developments in the near future confirmatory of the close relations between the company and section thirty iron deposits, supposed to be controlled by the Consolidated Lake Superior company's new director, McHarg. The preferred before the slump sold at 72. It dropped to 16 and is now selling around 29.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers advanced 1@1¼ point and led to an improvement of half a point in Amalgamated and some better buying of other coppers. As a whole, however, the market continued extremely dull. Local sentiment is decidedly bullish on coppers and we are told that the New York interests, who were large buyers of Boston coppers in January and February, are again active on the bull side. With the present condition of the metal and money markets the coppers ought to sell higher.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Surplus of Tonnage Complained of By Vesselmen.

Shorter Season Expected to Give Better Chance For Profits.

Vessel owners on the lakes are complaining of a surplus of tonnage. "Too many ships" is the cry heard at many ports on the lakes and it is claimed that the surplus tonnage will have a strong tendency to cut down the profits for the coming season.

Many complains of the same nature were made at the commencement of last season which, however, was not by any means an unprofitable one. On the whole the outlook is thought to be better than at this time last year. The season is considerably shorter on account of the labor troubles which marked the opening and in many commodities, notably coal and ore the shipments are expected to be larger than last year. Of the Gilchrist fleet, sixty-nine vessels in all, only one delivered a cargo in April and a large number of them are not yet fitted out.

The increased operating expenses are in many cases met by a small increase in the rates. Many vessels have secured season contracts for ore on the 85 cent basis and it is hoped that the wild rates will be kept up to the contract figures.

Considerable new tonnage is in the field, but it is thought that this will be offset by the late opening and the large amount of coal which must be moved to the Northwest and the increased amount of grain to be moved from Chicago.

Lower lake reports say that contracts for several new lake vessels are about to be let.

The Adams Transportation company is reported to have ordered a new 500 footer of the Craigs of Toledo. The Northern Michigan Transportation company of Chicago and the Indiana and Michigan Transportation company are also said to be planning new vessels for the lake traffic.

A Cleveland report says that a number of capitalists of that city are also planning a new vessel of the 500 foot type for the lake trade.

Coal records continue to break all records for the port of Duluth, the vessels coming in so rapidly that the docks are unable to handle them and many are compelled to anchor and await their turn. The heavy coal traffic will cut a big figure in the profits of many of the lake vessel owners as vessels which formerly came up light for grain and ore are bringing coal.

ORE DOCKS OF LAKES.

Aangst Completes List Showing Them.

R. Angst, chief engineer of the Duluth and Iron Range railway has compiled a list of the various shipping ore docks on the Great Lakes showing the size and capacity of each.

Great Northern dock number 2, at Superior is shown to have the largest storage capacity in gross tons of any dock on the lakes. In the 250 pockets a total of 87,500 tons can be stored. Duluth, Missaba and Northern dock number 2, comes second on the list, having a total capacity of 69,120 tons.

The Oneota docks number 2 and 3 are however, the longest docks on the lakes, having a total length of 2336 feet each, while the Great Northern number 1 comes third with a total length of 2100 feet.

CENSURES FIREMEN.

Marine Review Reflects on Their Actions.

The last Marine Review censures the Firemen's union for the manner in which it claims that body has attempted to dictate to vessel owners. The article states that at Cleveland the union has attempted and in part succeeded in enforcing the rule that seniority should be observed, or that a fireman who was an old member of the union should have the preference over a new member.

It also states that at Buffalo the men refused to allow a vessel to depart until an oiler had been engaged, although the articles of agreement state that nothing should be done by the men to hinder the departure of a vessel.

THE GRAIN RATE.

Shippers Think It Too High as Compared With Chicago.

Grain shipments are very light. A few cargoes are being taken by line boats, but the movement is very slow. The rate continues at 2 cents. There is some complaint among shippers at the rate. They assert that it is unfair that Chicago should have a rate of 1½ and 1⅝ cents and Duluth only 2 cents when it is as desirable for vessels to take cargoes at Duluth as for Chicago. They think Duluth should get practically as good a rate as Chicago.

The vessel men assert that the grain rate is based on the ore rate and that as Lake Michigan gets an advantage of 20 cents over this end of Lake Superior on the ore rate it also gets an advantage on the grain rate.

That explanation does not seem to appease the shippers, however. There is no grain passing for immediate shipment although there is considerable that may be shipped later.

LARGEST SHIP ORDERED.

Port Huron, May 6.—According to the terms of a contract signed yesterday, the Columbia Iron works of this city will within a few weeks lay the keel for the largest steel steamer on fresh water at its ship yard at St. Clair. The vessel is to be built for a syndicate of vessel men of Cleveland and the work will be commenced as soon as the steamer now being built for J. C. Gilchrist is launched. The dimensions of the new ship are: Length over all, 500 fee; feel, 442 feet; beam, 52 feet; depth of hold, 30 feet, with a six foot water bottom. She will be built on the three-foot frame space system, and will have 15 hatches each 9 feet long. Power will be furnished by triple expansion engines and three Scotch boilers. The steamer will be ready for service at the opening of navigation next year.

FREIGHT RATES EASY.

Chicago, May 6.—(Special to The Herald.) — Yesterday's lively chartering cleaned up the ready boats, and rates were easy today at 1½ cents on wheat and 1⅝ cents on corn. There seems to be no particular desire by shippers to break these rates under general conditions now prevailing in lake traffic.

THE LEONARD RELEASED.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Leonard, after lightering about 800 tons of coal, was released from Vital shoal by the tugs General and Merrick at 6 o'clock this morning.

CARNEGIE EXPLAINS METHODS TO BRITONS

In Inaugural Address to Iron and Steel Institute.

Great Benefits Derived From Profit-Sharing With Men.

He Reviews the Plans of the Steel Corporation.

London, May 7.—The annual meeting of the Iron and Steel institute of Great Britain here today, was largely attended. After being formally installed in the chair, the new president, Andrew Carnegie, who remarked that he was the first president of the institute who was not a British subject, presented Sir James Kitson, a former president of the institute, with the Bessemer gold medal for 1903. Mr. Carnegie subsequently delivered his inaugural address, which was listened to with much interest.

Mr. Carnegie said:

Gentlemen: My first desire is to thank you deeply for the honor conferred by electing me to the presidency, which is to the man of iron and steel the blue ribbon of distinctions in the race of life. Beyond this he cannot go, for there is nothing higher, and he must perforce be content hereafter—from the sublime height—to survey the plains below.

More and more our institute becomes cosmopolitan and confirms its sway over the world wherever iron or steel is produced. It marches forward with the times. Indeed its mission has been to lead in advance of the times, only now and then following, but oftener making precedents. He who stands before you today does so through one of those precedents as the first president, not a British subject. You have sought by his elevation to the highest office to emphasize the fact that this, the pioneer institution in iron and steel, knows no petty lines of separation among nations. Gentlemen, if international politics were only as harmonizing a force as international education, industry or science, what a wonderful and beneficient change would result. The alarming race among men divided into hostile nations, for improved weapons of destruction to be used not against outside foes but against each other, would promptly cease. It is gratifying to remember that there are many educational, industrial and scientific societies like our own, in which Frenchmen, German, Russian, American, Briton and men of other lands meet as friends, co-operating in a common cause. If the parliaments of these countries would only remit to the Iron and Steel Institute the whole subject of international relations, including armies and navies, you could readily appoint a committee of distinguished citizens of each of these countries members of this institute, who would have little difficulty in laying the foundation of international peace and good-will such as prevails among us in this cosmopolitan institute, which knows no warring divisions, and whose members are engaged laboring in unison side by side, guiltless of hostile intent and therefore free from ignoble suspicion of evil to each other.

As we have to mourn the death of its first president, citizen, on late member, Hon. Alexander L. Holley, Bessemer medalist, a man foremost in good work, engineered to all who knew him and to many of us our meeting, whose loss is irreparable. Looking over the list of your presidents, their success is struck by the value of the services they have rendered. Great names are they, among them the chief inventors and pioneers in iron and steel—Bessemer, Siemens, Bell and others, whose names are household words. There is scarcely one who has filled the office who has not been able in his inaugural address to deal with a branch of the subject, as perhaps the recognized first living authority upon it. What a contrast the present occupant presents, who has no show of a claim to rank either as inventor, chemist, investigator or mechanician. None know so well as you fellow members, that his attention has been centered upon the business department, and that it is experience in this alone which entitles him to address you. It is the department which differs most, perhaps, from any other—at least an American humorist gives it as his opinion that the business instinct can no more be instilled in men by teachers than the homing instinct could be developed by feeding them upon pigeon pie. I invite your attention this morning, therefore, to the important question of the organization and management of that most complicated of all pieces of machinery—Man—which has been my province.

Speaking from experience, we had not gone very far in manufacturing before discovering that perfect management in every department was needed, and that this depended upon the men in charge. Thus began the practice of interesting the young geniuses around us, as they proved their ability to achieve unusual results, the source of big dividends. These received small percentages in the firm, which were credited to them at the actual cost invested, no charge being made for good will. Upon this they were charged interest, and the surplus earned each year beyond this was credited to their account. By the terms of the agreement three-quarters of their colleagues had the right to cancel it, paying the party the sum then to his credit. This provision was meant to meet possible extreme cases of incompatibility of temper, or if the recipient should prove incapable of development, or of enduring prosperity. At death the interest reverted to the firm at its book value. The young men were not permitted to assume any financial obligation, and not until their shares was fully paid by the profits and there was no further liability upon it was it transferred to them. Thus thoughts of possible loss never prevented concentration upon their daily duties. They were not absorbed in the daily quotations, for the shares were not upon the stock exchange or transferable. This policy resulted in making some forty odd young partners, a number which was increased at the beginning of each year.

By this plan they were rapidly paying for their interests and promising to become the millionaires of the then seemingly somewhat distant future, which, however, proved not so very distant. They are now rich men. You will not fail, however, to note that the plan kept them all in excellent training, as poor men still living upon their salaries, millionaires in posse, indeed, but not in esse—quite a difference, for millionaires seem liable to develop when still very young so many hitherto unsuspected weak spots in their constitutions requiring careful nursing, and many absences and short hours, and

AMERICAN ASKS $50,000 FROM GOVERNMENT OF VENEZUELA

Was Sent to the Penitentiary For Doing the Republic a Good Turn and Could Not Secure Release Until Pardoned By Castro.

Haverstraw, N. Y., May 7.—Harry Bullis, of this place, has made a formal claim for $50,000 against the government of Venezuela for false imprisonment and detention at Maracaibo. He laid the matter before the department of state, in Washington, and assumed that his case would be presented with the others that have been placed in the hands of the special agent appointed to represent the United States in effecting a settlement of American claims, but was surprised to learn that there was a question about the presentation of his claim with the others, owing to a technical objection, which will be remedied.

Mr. Bullis was in charge of the electric light station at Maracaibo at the time that he got into trouble, in May, 1900.

There was an active revolution on foot and persons associated with the Electric Light company had stored ammunition and explosives in the stations. He says he wished to turn over the stuff to the government, but he was afraid to have it known that he had given the information. He accordingly suggested to the president of the state that the ammunition should be seized, and that, as a blind, he should be arrested and then promptly released. His plans were carried out with the exception of his release.

He says he communicated with the United States consul, H. Plumacher, who was living outside of the city. Mr. Plumacher pleaded illness and disinclination to come to town for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Bullis says he was bundled off to the penitentiary, where everything was taken from his pockets except a tiny silk American flag. He was thrust into a badly ventilated room. In one respect he was fortunate, as the proprietor of the hotel where he had been boarding continued to send him food.

After a month's incarceration he was informed that a lawyer had been appointed by the government to defend him. This man called on him and promised to call again. He never reappeared.

When the hearing finally occurred, Mr. Bullis pleaded not guilty, but gave no testimony and was sent home. He was informed afterward that he had been convicted. He wrote several letters to the American minister in Caracas, but was able to smuggle only one of them out of his prison. He then saw Mr. Plumacher, who said a personal appeal might be made to President Castro, but that the best plan would be for Mr. Bullis to serve out his full term and then to put in a claim against Venezuela.

As a result of the appeal to the minister this telegram was sent to the president of Maracaibo by the president of the republic:

"Having adjusted the political matters of the North American, H. C. Bullis, proceed to place him at liberty as conveniently as possible.

"CIPRAINO CASTRO."

Upon being released Mr. Bullis says a native tried to kill him, and when he complained to the local authorities he was himself placed under bonds to keep the peace. All his papers and money had been stolen in his absence.

NO TRACE IS FOUND OF THE MISSING HARVARD STUDENT

William Whitehall Left Cambridge For New York on Feb. 26, and Since That Time He Has Not Been Seen or Heard From.

New York, May 7.—Nothing has been heard by his family of William S. Whitewell, the young Harvard football player who left Cambridge on Feb. 26 last, and told his room mate, Hale, that he was going straight to his home in New York.

Since then he has not been seen by anyone who can positively identify him. Whitewell was to graduate next June. A year and a half ago he left Harvard and went to the University of Munich to study architecture and music. After his return to Cambridge he studied so hard to make up extra work that he had to come home to New York for rest.

Then his father, Dr. William S. Whitewell, became ill and the young man told Hale, his room mate, that he was going to see him. He left Cambridge on a Thursday. He was seen next morning at the Fall Rive line pier, in this city.

After Whitewell's disappearance his father died. The family believed that either his mind gave way from overstudy or that some injury in the Yale game may have affected his brain. He had never complained of any injuries. Whitewell's family used to live in San Francisco, and there is a theory that he may have gone there. Mr. Borastel, the young man's grandfather, said last night: "I don't believe that the boy has committed suicide, or that he has gone to California. He had not more than $25, and that would not have taken him far. I believe that he will turn up soon."

MRS. POLK DIES FROM HER BURNS

New York, May 7.—The wife of James K. Polk, nephew of former President Polk, is dead as the result of burns recently received at her home here. Mrs. Polk a few nights ago carried a candle into the bathroom and in some manner set fire to the window curtains. In her efforts to extinguish the flames her bath robe caught fire. She turned on the water in the bathtub and jumped in, but did not succeed in putting the fire out until she had been terribly burned. Mrs. Polk had been ailing recently, and was making preparations to go to Hampton, Va. She was a member of a prominent family of Stockholm, Sweden. For eighteen years her husband has been an inmate of a sanitarium of Hartford, Conn.

LIGHT WIND SPOILS YACHT TRIAL

Gourock, Scotland, May 7.—The Shamrock III went out today on her first trial spin since she had been refitted after having been dismasted off Weymouth. A light northeasterly wind was blowing. The cup challenger's new mainsail, which is cross-cut, like the old one, did not set satisfactorily. Her after top sail which is of enormous size sets high above the masthead. The bicycle wheel previously used in steering the challenger has been discarded in favor of an ordinary wooden wheel. The trial today was chiefly for rail-stretching and to practice the crew. The Shamrock I only carried a working topsail. The new boat drifted slowly out of Gourock but but once in the open she slipped smartly through the water and reached down channel at a great pace. Soon after the wind fell and a calm set in. This lasted throughout the rest of the trial, thus robbing it of all interest or value for comparative purposes.

SACKVILLE-WEST SCORES A POINT

London, May 7.—Another chapter in the sensational claim of Henry Sackville-West to be the legitimate heir of Lord Sackville, former British minister at Washington, was heard today in the chancery court. The claimant, whose full name is Ernest Henri Jean Baptiste Sackville-West, applied for the appointment of a commission to examine witnesses in France and Spain in support of his claim. Counsel for the plaintiff explained that the action was for the purpose of perpetuating testimony in support of his claims to the title and estate, as while Lord Sackville was alive the plaintiff could not bring action to establish his rights. Henry Sackville-West, counsel continued, claims to be the eldest son of Lord Sackville by his marriage with Josephine Duran De Ortaga. The defendants denied the marriage, alleging that Josephine De Ortaga had previously been married to Antonio De La Oliyla, who was then and still is alive and is not divorced from her. The court granted the application.

DIRTY LINEN WASHED AT KENOSHA

Chicago, May 7.—There is one hotel in Chicago today which has clean linen. It has a tug load of it in spite of the fact that strikers assert no washing is being done. The manager of the hostelry chartered a tug, loaded it down with a week's washing, and started it northward with instructions to bring back the cargo cleansed and ironed, even if it were necessary to go to Canada. The lake captain steamed into Kenosha, Wis., yesterday and sent word to a laundry that there was a package of soiled clothes which he wished done up in a hurry. The proprietor of the laundry was dumbfounded when his driver brought back several wagon loads of clothes, but the work was done quickly. When it was delivered, notification was made that no more work would be accepted from Chicago.

TEN FORTS TAKEN

Captain Pershing's Forces Defeat the Sultan of Amparaugano.

Over One Hundred Moros Killed and Two Americans.

Manila, May 7.—Capt. Pershing's column has defeated the sultan of Amparaugano's strong force of Moros, in the Taraca country, on the east shore of Lake Lanao, island of Mindanao. The Americans captured ten forts. One hundred and fifteen Moros were killed, thirteen wounded and sixty were made prisoners. The Moros captured included the sultan. Two Americans were killed and seven were wounded.

The ten forts constituted serious and strong positions on the banks of the Taraca river, and from them the Moros vigorously resisted Capt. Pershing's advance. The American troops attacked the forts Monday and captured eight of them without suffering any losses, though the thirty-six obsolete cannon mounted on the forts were served with the best of the enemy's ability. The garrison of the ninth fort resisted fiercely and Capt. Pershing ordered the fort to be shelled and captured by assault, which was done. Lieuts. Shaw and Gracie, leading two companies of the Twenty-seventh infantry and a detachment of cavalry, surrounded the tenth fort, where the sultan had sought refuge, and it surrendered Tuesday. The forts have been dismantled.

Capt. Pershing moved north Tuesday to complete the exploration of the east shore of the lake. No further resistance is expected.

The Spanish gunboat Velasco, sunk by the ships of Dewey off Cavite, has been raised. Her hull is not injured, but her upper works show the effect of the American shots.

THE IRISH LAND BILL

Regarded By Timothy Healy as a Measure of Peace.

London, May 7.—The adjourned debate on the Irish land bill in the house of commons was resumed today. Several unimportant speakers were followed by Timothy M. Healy (Nationalist), who commented on the "curious fact that the only two absolutely ignorant speeches against the bill came from the Liberal side of the house."

Referring to the question whether the bill would make for home rule, Mr. Healy pointed out that the measure was supported by the Ulster members who, he said, ought to know its effect better than "English amateur politicians, however respectable."

Mr. Healy said he did not grudge the terms which the landlords were getting. He would not incite the tenants to accept them and ridiculed the idea of a campaign of repudiation. It was impossible with the present system of government. If he wanted to convict the speaker of the house of murder, he would have no diculty in so doing with the Irish government machinery in his hands. Mr. Healy said he regarded the bill as being a measure of peace, which he hoped would infuse a new spirit into the hearts of Ireland and England.

MENACE TO NAVIGATION.

Saginaw Wreck In Track of Coasting Trade.

Baltimore, May 7.—Capt. Chares, of the steamer Mann Hatta, from New York, which arrived today, reports that he examined the wreck of the steamer Saginaw, which was sunk in collision with the Hamilton on Monday night and that it is very dangerous to navigation. The wreck lies in thirteen fathoms of water and two of her masts protect twenty feet above the water. The Saginaw lies in the track of the coasting trade.

DEAD WOMAN'S CASH

Drawn From a Bank By Another Woman.

Helena, Mont., May 7.—If the facts are as they seem to be, Mrs. Mary Nicholson, formerly of Helena, will be called upon to explain why she impersonated a dead woman and secured money from the receiver of the First National bank, of Helena, while going under a name not her own.

It is alleged that Mrs. Nicholson secured $87.57 from the receiver of the First National upon representing herself to be Mrs. John McLeod, of Helena. Mrs. McLeod is dead.

Mrs. Nicholson is being held in Spokane and Sheriff O'Connell or a deputy will leave shortly for her. An information has been filed in the district court charging her with obtaining money by impersonating another.

J. D. McLeod, representing the estate of his wife, who died about three years ago, went to the bank and presented the certificate. To his surprise he was told by William Muth that the checks had already been paid out. Mr. McLeod at once commenced an investigation, as the result of which the matter came to light.

A GREEN GOODS MAN.

Philadelphia, May 7.—Edward Heiser, whom the postal authorities charge with being a member of the green goods gang, with headquarters in New York, and who was arrested at Allentown, Pa., yesterday after a desperate struggle, was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Craig, in this city, and committed to prison in default of $5000 bail.

DISAGREEMENT SEEMS LIKELY IN AMES CASE

GOVERNOR ASKS ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE TO WAIT A BIT

Does Not Want It to Adjourn Until He Looks Up Legality of Some Bills Which He May Send Back to the Lawmakers.

Springfield, Ill., May 7.—Governor Yates today sent a letter to the house and senate leaders asking them to use their influence to have the contemplated adjournment of the legislature for today postponed seven days. He intimates that certain bills now before him for his signature may be sent back to the legislature with a veto or for correction, and he asks that the legislature act on them now to avoid a special session. The governor has also asked the attorney general for an immediate opinion on the legality of each section of the Muller street railway bill.

The communication of the governor came as a surprise to the members of both houses and there was a manifest disinclination to delay final adjournment. At the suggestion of Lieutenant Governor Northcott, the Republican steering committees of the two houses, will hold a joint meeting early this afternoon, to consider the question. The general impression is that both houses will adjourn sine die this evening.

DETAILS OF THE TRANSVAAL LOAN ANNOUNCED IN LONDON

The Price Will Be at Par With Interest at Three Per Cent and the Loan Is Made Redeemable In 1953, or Before.

London, May 7.—The issue of the prospectus of the Transvaal loan was awaited with the greatest interest in financial circles here and there was a scene of considerable excitement at the Bank of England today, where thousands of people congregated hours before it was finally given out that the prospectus announced the issue of $150,000,000 of the $175,000,000 authorized, and that the price would be at par with interest at 4 per cent. The loan is redeemable in 1953. A sinking fund of 1 per cent will be applied to the purchase of stock when below par. The government of the Transvaal reserves the right to pay off stock at any time after May 1, 1923, subject to six months' notice. The installments on stock are payable as follows:

Three per cent payable on application, 7 per cent May 22, and the balance to be distributed from June to December. The installments may be paid in full. The May 22, under a discount of 2 per cent. The list closes on or before May 12.

Through various London houses applications in behalf of American clients were made this afternoon for allotments of the Transvaal loan. These, however, were not very large, and as they must take their chance with the other applications, American money will not figure to any great extent in the present issue. The bankers expect that applicants will only receive about 5 per cent of the amounts asked for, as the over subscription of the loan is assured.

TEN FILIPINOS TAKE OUT FIRST CITIZENSHIP PAPERS

University Graduates Who Are Traveling With a Show Renounce Allegiance to the King of Spain Who Was Their Last Sovereign.

Pittsburg, May 7.—Ten Filipinos appeared in the United States district court today and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. The Filipinos are connected with a traveling show and were in charge of Capt. T. W. Griffith, the recruiting officer of the United States army, stationed here. They were all university graduates in their own country and their ages ranged from 18 to 35 years.

There was some difficulty in deciding on just what oath they should take and finally it was arranged for them to take out first papers or declare their intention of becoming citizens of the United States, in the oath they renounced all allegiance and fidelity to the king of Spain, the last sovereign of which they were subjects, "if any allegiance they may owe him."

After administering of the oath the Filipinos were by invitation of Judge Buffington taken into the court room where they were given an opportunity to see the workings of a court of justice of the United States, which created a profound impression on them.

BULGARIANS RETURN PORTE'S NOTE

Constantinople, May 7.—The Bulgarian government has returned the porte's note on the subject of incursion of Bulgarian bands into Macedonia and the importation of explosives into Turkey from Bulgaria, to the Ottoman commissioner at Sofia, in consequence of what the government of Bulgaria describes as "its offensive terms." The mustering of Turkish troops continues in Macedonia and Albania, where some 165 battalions will be distributed.

BOILERS NOT ADAPTED FOR NAVY

Washington, May 7.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has received the final report of the expert board appointed some time ago to investigate the boilers of the battleship Maine, which developed defects on her recent cruise in the West Indies. The details of the report will not be made public until tomorrow. The board finds that the boilers, which are of the Niklausse type, are not adapted to naval purposes, but expresses the opinion that as those of the Maine were tried only on one cruise, they should be repaired and given further trial. A number of battleships under construction call for these boilers. But before authorizing a change to the navy's regular boilers, Mr. Darling will secure the opinion of the construction board.

INJURED IN STREET CAR COLLISION

Chicago, May 7.—Twenty persons were injured, a few seriously, in a collision between two south-bound Halsted street electric cars at Forty-third street early today. One woman was taken from the wreck and carried into an adjoining store. It is believed her injuries are fatal. The conductor on the rear car, H. S. Lockwood, was thrown through the window and sustained serious injuries. Patrol wagons and ambulances were hurried to the scene and removed the injured. The collision was due to an accident to the running gear of the forward car.

MOST POWERFUL RIFLE IN WORLD

Washington, May 7.—The army board which has been for months past considering the merits of the new service rifle or musket, has finally declared in favor of a weapon with a barrel only twenty-four inches in length, using a .30 ball. The new gun is a remarkable weapon, according to the ordnance officers, for while it is four inches shorter than the Krag, and only two inches longer than the carbine, it is more powerful than either, with a higher initial velocity and flatter trajectory. It can easily penetrate twenty-four one-inch planks. It is a pound lighter than the service rifle, which is a consideration in the tropics. A new feature is a complete encasement of the barrel in wood to prevent burning the hands of the marksmen, when the gun is rapidly discharged. The weapon was evolved by United States army officers and is not patented. It is asserted to be the most powerful musket in the world.

The Jury Has Been Out Since Wednesday Afternoon.

Came In and Received Further Instructions From Judge.

Judge Will Keep Jury Out Until Friday Morning.

Minneapolis, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Ames jury retired at 5:25 last evening. The jury is still out. The liveliest interest is being manifested in the outcome, and this morning, at 10 o'clock, there was a large crowd of people around the court house at Minneapolis. There was no sign from the jury room. Judge Elliot reported at his chambers and is in readiness to receive the jury whenever notified. At 10:30 o'clock word was sent to Judge Elliot that the jury desired further instructions on a certain point.

The judge proceeded to the court room and the jurors resumed their place in the jury box. Judge Elliot was asked to elucidate a question of law, which he promptly did. The jury again retired.

The jury is still deliberating at 3 p. m. The court will keep the jury together at least until tomorrow morning if no agreement is reached sooner.

RACING SEASON AT NEW YORK

Formally Opens With Spring Meet of Westchester Club.

New York, May 7.—The real racing season opened today with the spring meeting of the Westchester Jockey club at Morris park. True there has been racing at the Aqueduct and Jamaica tracks, but to the race-goer these are merely preliminary to the Westchester meeting. The day broke fine, the track was fast and a big crowd which went from the city all tended to make the opening day a successful one. The stellar attraction, of course, was the Metropolitan handicap, worth this year an even $15,000, $12,000 of which goes to the winner. The W. C. Whitney entries, Gunfire, with Burns up, and Leonora Loring, with Fuller in the saddle, were strong favorites, carrying the bulk of the public money. L. V. Bell's entries, Col. Bell and Francesco, G. B. Morris' Old England and Slave, the former ridden by Hicks, were looked upon as dangerous rivals of the favorites and Yellow Tail, in view of his performances at Jamaica, also received some backing.

BETTER PROGRESS

Is Being Made In Disbanding Religious Orders.

Paris, May 7.—The energetic course adopted by the civil and military authorities is rapidly breaking up the congregations which refused to disband. The Capuchins are offering the strongest resistance and are barricading their monasteries at a number of points. Their establishment at Carassone was taken today by the police, assisted by a squadron of dragoons and a detachment of infantry after two hours' resistance. A crowd of about 5000 persons made a demonstration against or in support of the authorities. The Capuchins were arrested.

OPPOSED TO CHANGE.

Adverse Report From Committee on Name.

Washington, May 7.—The committee of the Washington diocese of the Episcopal church appointed yesterday to consider the advisability of changing the name of the church in the United States, reported today adversely to the proposition. The report was made by Dr. Randolph H. McKim, chairman, and took positive ground in support of the retention of the present name. A minority report favorable to a course that would leave open the discussion was made by Dr. Harding. Bishop Satterlee, who presided, stated that while he did not consider the present name entirely adequate, he was of the opinion that a change at this time would be inadvisable. The report was debated at length by the convention.

CUNNINGHAM HEARD FROM.

Denver, May 7.—M. S. Cunningham, a saloonkeeeper, whose mysterious disappearance gave rise to suspicions of foul play, has been heard from. He reported to his former home in Greenville, Mo., without informing anybody here of his plans.

WOODMEN UNINSTRUCTED.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 7.—The Modern Woodmen of South Dakota were in session until an early hour this morning discussing the question of readjustment. A resolution finally was passed sending South Dakota's nine delegates to Indianapolis uninstructed on the readjustment matter. W. F. Bannecraft, of Wessington Springs, was elected head consul, and S. T. Voorhees, of Sturgis, secretary. The next meeting of the state camp will be held at Leadville.

IT IS NOW BINDING

Gas Contract Signed By Both City and Company.

Assures Cheaper Gas and Continued Operation of Furnace.

Rumors to the effect that the city's ten year gas contract with the Zenith Furnace company, involving an expenditure of several hundred thousand in improving the West Duluth blast furnace property, was likely to fall through, are without the slightest foundation.

President Wolvin and other officers of the Zenith company signed the contract last evening. Mayor Ungo signed on behalf of the city earlier in the day.

This concludes the deal and under a heavy penalty makes it positively incumbent on the Zenith company to furnish the city with gas during the next ten years at prices much lower than it would be possible to sell gas under the present municipal ownership system.

This price is also a great deal lower than gas is furnished for household, house-heating and manufacturing purposes in any other city in the United States.

Incidentally the signing of this contract virtually means that the blast furnace in West Duluth which has been idle most of the time since it was built, will be steadily operated for the next decade furnishing employment to many men and adding greatly to the industrial standing of Duluth.

Coke will be manufactured here for the purpose of reducing the cost of manufacturing pig iron and by selling the gas product of the coke oven system it will be possible for the Zenith Furnace company to put Duluth made pig iron on the market at prices that will enable favorable competition with other furnaces of the East and West.

The final signing of the contract caused much favorable comment throughout the city and the consensus of opinion among business men is that it is one of the best things that has happened to the city in its history.

Although the gas service of the Zenith company may not be ready before January 1 of next year, there are already many inquiries about it at the water and light department from people that have not patronized the city's gas business before.

CONTEST IN DECLAMATION

High School Students to Meet on the Platform.

Preliminaries for the declamatory contest of high school students were held at the high school yesterday afternoon. The contest will take place tomorrow evening.

Four boys and four girls will take part. This division in sexes was made because of the difficulty of comparing the feminine style of work with the masculine. The winner in each class will receive a gold medal.

The young women who will take part are: Miss Margaret Denfeld, '04, "The Chariot Race from Ben Hur;" Miss Luelle Aiken, '04, "The Soul of the Violin;" Miss Lelia Sparks, '06, "The Swan Song;" Miss Leonora Matteson, '05, "Mabel Martin."

The following young men will compete: Arthur Fitzgerald, '04, "Prentiss' First Flight;" Stanley Strand, '05, "The Unknown Rebel;" Albert G. Evans, '04, "Grady's 'Consolidation of Independence.'"

Superintendent Denfeld, Principal Smith and Mrs. Emogene Leetch will judge the contestants. Those who will take part have been long in the process of preparation and they will do some very good work.

The public is invited and the authorities are particularly anxious that a good crowd attend the affair. No admission will be charged.

On May 28 an oratorical contest will be held among the students. The declamations on that occasion will be written by high school students who give them.

Hit By a Car.

Carl Johnson, of 503 West Superior street, was struck by an east-bound interstate car, while riding a bicycle on Superior street between Fifth and Sixth avenues West yesterday afternoon. Fortunately he escaped with a few slight scratches. Johnson has a new wheel and was trying it at the time of the accident. He lost control of it and the machine wabbled on to the street car tracks in front of car No. 16. The motorman reversed the motors, but the car could not be stopped in time and the fender struck the wheel, throwing it nearly to the curbing. Johnson went down alongside the wheels of the front truck.

ITS CONDITION IS FLOURISHING

St. Luke's Hospital Association Holds Its Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Hospital association was held in the parlors of St. Luke's hospital yesterday afternoon. The treasurer's report showed the hospital to be generally in a flourishing condition. Last year $91,000 was expended in building, this sum not including $25,000 which was expended but not actually paid over. The association has no encumbrance, therefore, except the last named sum.

The maintenance fund, on which there has been a steady drain, shows a deficit of $1200, but it is expected that this will ultimately be made up from the earnings of the institution.

Consideration was given to the matter of an endowment fund to provide a permanent cot for destitute Indians and the hope was expressed that charitably disposed persons would not overlook St. Luke's hospital relative to the matter.

Last, out of 850 patients treated at the hospital there were but forty-nine deaths and of this number a score were seriously injured by accident or were subjects for dangerous operations. At the present time there are sixty patients in the hospital and the staff of nurses has been increased to twenty-four. The policy at the hospital is to have at least one nurse for every three patients and if possible one nurse for every two or even one patient.

G. G. Hartley and J. W. Lyder, Jr., were elected directors. The other board members are Dr. A. W. Ryan, W. J. Olcott, R. B. Knox, T. T. Hudson, J. H. Dight, Mrs. W. R. Stone and Mrs. F. W. Paine.

At the meeting of the board of directors the following officers were chosen: President, Dr. A. W. Ryan; secretary, J. W. Lyder, Jr.; treasurer, J. H. Dight. The president's term of office is three years.

CATHOLIC NEWSPAPER.

Roger Vail to Establish One In Duluth.

The Minneapolis Journal says: "Roger Vail, formerly editor of the Irish Standard, of Minneapolis, is about to remove to Duluth, where he will start a Catholic weekly. A committee of prominent Roman Catholics of the diocese of Duluth have decided to assist Mr. Vail and a gentleman associated with him, and are now considering what way to extend help. Bishop McGolrick is heartily in favor of the new paper and it will be the official publication of the diocese. There are 50,000 Catholics in the diocese of Duluth alone and the new journal will undertake to serve other dioceses. Mr. Vail has been very cordially received in Duluth."

Mr. Vail was in Duluth last week working up the matter of establishing a Catholic newspaper here, and said then that he considered the outlook excellent, but at that time he had not fully determined upon his plans.

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED.

Peter Fjersted Dies In a Rochester Hospital.

Rochester, Minn., May 7.—Peter Fjersted, of Hayfield, 30 years of age, was brought here in a very critical condition, the result of injuries about the shoulder and head, and he died yesterday at St. Mary's hospital. Foul play is suspected.

Louis Kittleson, also of that village, is in the county jail here, serving a sentence for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and he is suspected of having assaulted Fjersted. Although in a delirious condition, Fjersted kept saying that Kittleson had struck him with a 2x4 plank.

Kittleson asserts his innocence and says he did not see the injured man at or near the time the accident is said to have taken place. The men were well acquainted and had drunk together many times. Fjersted had a family and was well to do. Kittleson is unmarried and has worked at bartending.

PRINCE IS "BUGHOUSE."

Berlin, May 7.—Prince Prosper Von Arenberg, who was sentenced in 1900 to fifteen years imprisonment for savage cruelty while serving as an officer in German Southwest Africa, has been declared to be mentally disordered and will be transferred to a private asylum for insane. This statement was made today in denial of a report that Emperor William had pardoned the prince.

GRAU THROUGH WITH OPERA.

New York, May 7.—Maurice Grau, accompanied by his wife and Miss Louise Grau, sailed for Europe today on the French liner La Savoie. He did not know when he would return to the United States States. He said he was through with opera.

CHARGE IS MURDER

First Degree Killing Is the Bill Against John Tanko.

Shooting Occurred Near Hibbing—Other Indictments Found.

John Tanko must stand trial on the charge of murder in the first degree. An indictment was returned against him in district court this morning by the grand jury. The information against Tanko is that he shot and killed George Bollich near Hibbing, on the evening of March 8 last. It is alleged that Bollich ejected Tanko from his house and the latter returned later with a shot gun, firing three shots at the house and then shooting Bollich when he went to the door to investigate.

Two indictments were returned against Martin Brosius, one for grand larceny in the first degree and another for grand larceny in the second degree. The information in the first case is that Brosius took $50 from the person of Joseph Stewart and in the second case that he took a gold watch from the Keystone Loan and Mercantile company, which was valued at $35 and which was recovered from a safety vault in one of the local banks, where the defendant is said to have put it.

John Ponder is indicted of grand larceny in the first degree. Ponder is charged with taking $10 in money and a certificate of deposit for $104 from the person of Joseph Herdke, at the Columbia hotel, in the West End, in the night time.

One other indictment was returned by the grand jury this morning, but its nature is not made public as not all the parties are in custody. The grand jury will return another batch of indictments when court convenes tomorrow morning.

GILMORE IS MUCH WANTED

Has Many Victims and Appears to Be Dangerous Swindler.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 7.—H. C. Gilmore, alias Hargrave, and several other names, was brought up from Granite Falls yesterday and will answer to some serious charges here. Gilmore is wanted all over the state and in some other states for various offenses, but it is believed that Otter Tail county has the most serious charges to prefer against him. The warrant which Sheriff Sawyer took with him accuses him of swindling Mrs. Berg, a Battle Lake woman, out of $1013. He is a prosperous looking individual, smooth of tongue, and represented himself as her long lost cousin. She is conducting a small business in Battle Lake, and he proposed to secure a stock of goods for her at just half what ordinary people charge, a $2000 stock for $1000, and having won her confidence, he induced her to part with the money. She is still awaiting the stock. While this was the charge on which the sheriff went after him, it is believed that he is guilty of a still more serious crime against a young girl named Emily Anderson, of Parkers Prairie, this county.

The authorities are convinced that he is the man who, giving the name of Harry Penrose, appeared at Parkers Prairie several weeks ago and represented himself as a postoffice inspector. He made Miss Anderson's acquaintance and induced her to accompany him, stating that he would marry her on reaching St. Paul. He stopped off at two or three towns en route on one pretext or another and finally told her business called him to a village on a branch line. He also happened to recollect that there was a jeweler there who did very fine engraving, and induced her to give him her watch and some other jewelry on which he proposed to have her initials engraved. He then succeeded in extracting her money, something over $150 from her satchel, and she heard nothing more from him. It is said that a Grand Forks girl was deceived by him under similar circumstances, and at the time of his arrest at Granite Falls there were two or three women in the village that had been lured there by letters which he had sent them.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 7.—H. C. Gilmore, with many aliases, who broke jail at Vermillion eight months ago, operated all over the country, promising to marry women with the abandon of the sultan of Turkey. He sold dress patterns, but didn't deliver them. His graft was one of the most successful and novel worked in this section for many years. He made love to all his customers, and when arrested here was engaged to six different women, who made known this fact. While being held for prosecution at Vermillion, S. D., he broke jail. Sheriff Gunderson has gone for the smooth swindler.

WOODMEN OF THE STATE

Hold Camp For the Election of National Delegates.

St. Paul, May 7.—The state camp of the Modern Woodmen met in this city yesterday.

Chairman Monroe appointed the following committees:

Auditing committee—F. A. Noble, Eighth district; S. H. McGuire, Sixth district; George L. Evans, Seventh district.

Credentials—J. A. Stone, First; H. E. Hanson, Second; H. B. Grees, Third; C. H. Pringle, Fourth; A. D. Gratte, Fifth; J. J. Cummings, Sixth; C. J. Berden, Seventh; Frank Hart, Eighth; L. Shodduch, Ninth.

Order of business—C. L. Todd, Second; Sylvester Bell, First; H. L. Stark, Third; R. L. Bonham Fourth; Robert Megow, Fifth; A. D. Deane, Sixth; N. B. Carlson, Seventh; W. L. Harnard, Eighth; I. C. Richardson, Ninth.

Resolutions—D. D. Devine, First; Edgar Small, Second; H. E. Conley, Third; R. L. Bonham, Fourth; L. Both, Fifth; W. H. Smith, Sixth; A. W. Welch, Seventh; G. A. Kennett, Eighth; H. B. Bjorge, Ninth.

It was given to the committee on resolutions to decide in the first place, the question of assessments, which has been disputed among state and national Woodmen organizations this year.

The state delegates have been divided into two strong factions over the various plans suggested for raising the benefit funds.

It is probable that the Minnesota delegates will go to Indianapolis, instructed to vote both against the Nebraska plan and the plan proposed by the head camp. They are to ask for something entirely new or for the continuance of the present plan.

If this party succeeds, the success of H. A. Monroe for head director is practically assured, but if the advocates of either of the above named plans win out, then B. A. Smith, the present head director, and a strong factor in the administration party will undoubtedly be re-elected.

There is a strong fight on, and both sides are using every possible means to win out.

The administration party has all the state deputies in attendance at the convention, and, although the opposition claims a majority, the result is in doubt, still awaiting the stock. While this was the charge on which the sheriff went after him, it is believed that he is guilty of a still more serious crime against a young girl named Emily Anderson, of Parkers Prairie, this county.

THE CLEVELAND BOOM.

Boston Herald Now In Line For Grover.

Washington, May 7.—The Boston Herald, which for months has been booming Olney for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, has come out strongly for Cleveland. Here is a characteristic paragraph from a Herald editorial:

"The proposition of Grover Cleveland as candidate for the presidency after he has been three times a nominee for that office, twice elected to it and eight years in retirement, is something so extraordinary as to call for explanation. If there be any serious and widespread desire that he shall take the office again, and we think there is, it is a tribute to the man in recognition of his ability and fidelity in the position such as could have possibly been accorded to few of his predecessors in the presidency.

"The Democrats have been chastened and sobered by the result of their wild chases after possession of power in the country under the leadership of a man altogether his antipode, and though advocacy of measures directly the reverse of those he has counseled. The Republicans have been led to reflect that it was to Cleveland's conservatism that they owed the genuine service done to the country in the repeal of a mistaken currency law during his administration. They have been brought to see that Cleveland was patriot and statesman as well as Democrat and partisan, and that in the latter capacity he never followed ignes fatui or forgot his duty to his country as being paramount to that to his party."

BOTH IN JAIL.

John Field Prosecutes His Wife and Paramour.

Cherokee, Iowa, May 7.—William Whaelan and Mrs. Anna Field were arrested here by Sheriff J. T. Hogan. The husband, John Field, living on a farm not far from Minneapolis, tracked them to this city, where he found them working in a restaurant and living together as husband and wife. They were lodged in jail and are having a hearing.

Mr. Field says he was married in January of the present year, and the second day after the marriage he let his wife go on a visit. While she was away it seems she met Whaelan, and became infatuated with him. After living with him a few weeks they went to Sioux City and were married.

AT WEST DULUTH

The alleged theft of a house and barn is the latest case to come before the justice's court in West Duluth.

Chris Wallin, an employe of the National Iron works, has appeared before Judge Stone and sworn out a warrant for Peter Norden, accusing him of tearing down and removing a house and barn situated in the western portion of the town, which belonged to the plaintiff. The buildings were in a portion of the town which is but thinly settled, and it is claimed the buildings were removed one evening after nightfall. The barn was a small frame structure and the house contained but two or three rooms and was built of logs.

It is likely that the case will be settled out of court.

LEG INJURED.

THE STAGE.

At the Lyceum this evening and tomorrow evening Al H. Wilson will be seen in "The Prince of Tatters." He will appear in the role of Prince Hugo Von Reppert, who is an impoverished and exiled Austrian, who comes to America in search of his wife who came over with her uncle and guardian, Earl Richard Bellomont, who is the governor of Fort George, where the action of the play occurs. The scene is laid in old New York in 1700, and it is amid these romantic surroundings the drama is enacted.

* * *

"The Darkest Hour," Lincoln J. Carter's latest play, which will be presented at the Lyceum Saturday afternoon and evening, is said to be a sensational comedy drama of the better class, possessing a strong story of deep heart interest, plenty of bright, up-to-date comedy, startling situations and sensational climaxes, while the scenic, mechanical and electrical effects surpass anything previously attempted by this popular author and producer. "Charles A." (Karl) Gardner heads the list of those engaged to interpret the various roles, and he will sing some of his sweet ballads that have made him famous all over the country.

Beginning tonight the Ferris comedians at the Metropolitan will give their great dramatic production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This immortal play will be given the W. A. Brady version played by his all-star cast production in a few of the larger cities.

There will be an entire change of specialties of Lane and Lane and Danby and Wilson, the two clever teams who have made such a great hit during their previous appearance.

TO COUNT BALLOTS.

Election Supervisors of Baltimore to Settle Dispute.

Baltimore, May 7.—The board of supervisors began today the official examination of the election tally sheets returned from Tuesday's election as required by law. Boxes containing the ballots from four precincts over which there was a dispute between the registers of election, will also be opened and the votes counted. Not counting these precincts Robert M. McLane, the Democratic candidate for mayor, has a plurality of 580 and it is now believed that the four to be counted will materially change the result.

The Republican committee appointed for that purpose, is preparing to take legal steps to file a contest in behalf of Frank C. Wachter, Republican candidate.

DIVORCE DAY

Judges of District Court Hear the Woes of the Mismated.

Only One Case In Which There Is a Contest.

This is divorce day in district court and many are the tales of woe that are being told in court.

In Judge Dibell's room this morning there were six divorce actions heard, and but one of them, that of Josephine Miner, of West Duluth, against Ernest Miner, was contested. This action is still on trial this afternoon. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant was married before he wedded her, but that he denied it when she asked him previous to their wedding. She says his first wife got a divorce from him because he was so unreasonably jealous that she could not live with him. She had brought action for a legal separation on the same grounds, and also alleges desertion.

Rosanna A. McLay was granted a decree of divorce from Kenneth McLay on the grounds of desertion.

In the action of Wilhelmina Lange against George F. Lange, the court held that the plaintiff did not make her case strong enough, so a decree was refused and the action was dismissed. The divorce cases of David Froshmer against Margaret Froshmer, of Ellen Fortier against Isador Fortier, and of Marie Fleuting against William Fleuting were submitted.

In Judge Ensign's room another West Duluth case, that of G. Leonard against Zella Leonard, on grounds somewhat sensational and unusual, was partially submitted, the plaintiff being given further time to secure additional testimony.

Amanda Dahl was granted a divorce from Charles J. Dahl on the grounds of cruelty.

In Judge Cant's room Charlotte E. Clement was granted a decree of divorce from George L. Clement on the grounds of desertion, and Andrew Halgrom was given a legal separation from Mathilda Halgren. The actions of Marcelline Garet against John Anton Gleret and of Cora R. Kennedy against Donald Kennedy were partially submitted.

SPECTACULAR ROUGH HOUSE

Fighting Bob Fitzgerald Tears Things Loose on Bowery.

"Fighting Bob" Fitzgerald, champion long-distance riot promoter, visited all the trouble shops on the Bowery last evening seeking excitement.

When he pulled a gun on H. H. Bonstad in the Saratoga bar room he initially found what he was looking for and is now in the Red Cross hospital with a broken foot, a sensationally black optic and a lovely job lot of slightly damaged good looks.

Incidentally Ernest Gustafson, bartender at the Saratoga, has two bullet holes in him, one in his right leg and the other in his left hand. H. H. Bonstad's personal property was increased to the extent of a partially eaten thumb badly frayed around the edges.

It was one of the most spectacular tunedions ever pulled off in the Bowery district and had it not been for the nerve of bartender Gustafson the shooting might have resulted more seriously.

Fitzgerald will probably have to answer to a charge of shooting with intent to kill, when he gets out of the hospital.

Three or four times yesterday he threatened to shoot some person, not being particular who it was—just had a tremendous yearning to stop the action of anybody's heart that was unfortunate enough to occupy a position perpendicular to the path of his bullet.

His revolver was taken away from him on one occasion and the cartridges removed from the chambers. Finally Fitzgerald said he was going to bed, and the gun was returned to him, but they kept the cartridges.

Instead of retiring Fitzgerald purchased other ammunition and returning to the saloon announced that he would open the services by shooting Bonstad. The latter demurred and the bartender and he sought to take the gun away from Fitzgerald. During the struggle Gustafson was shot twice and Fitzgerald succeeded in getting Bonstad's thumb in his mouth and started eating it, when his feet caught under the barrailing and was twisted till the bones were broken. The pain caused Fitzgerald to give up the fight.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Houghton, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Phillip R. McKernan, prosecuting attorney of Baraga county and for years a prominent member of Houghton county bar, died at his home in Baraga yesterday, aged 40 years. Members of the bar will attend the funeral in a body tomorrow afternoon at Forest Hill cemetery at Houghton.

St. Paul, May 7.—An Eau Claire, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Asa Fletcher, sheriff of Eau Claire county, elected last fall, died this morning after a long illness of valvular lesion of the heart. He leaves a widow, a daughter, two sons and a stepdaughter. He was born in Maine. The governor will appoint a man to fill the vacancy.

Chicago, May 7.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Elgin, Ill., says: Hannah A. Anderson, a former nurse to Queen Victoria and later to Edward 7., now king of England, is dead here at the age of 5 years. She was born in Nordkapsena, Sweden, and at an early age was graduated from a nurses' school in Sweden. Skill in her profession aroused the interest of persons in court circles and she was called to England, where for years she ministered to members of the royal family. Prior to her immigration to this country she was a nurse in South Africa, where she served under the British flag for 11 years.

Baltimore, May 7.—Alexander Frank, aged 90, senior member of the banking firm of Frank, Rosenberg & Co., of this city, died here today from a complication of diseases.

FIREMAN A. L. RANNEY, St. Albans.

Injured: Fireman Henry Willets, Engineer Jack Ryan and Brakeman Robert Farr.

Heavy damage was done to rolling stock and freight.

GRAVE ROBBER SENTENCED.

Indianapolis, May 7.—Isom Donnell, another of the grave robbers, pleaded guilty today and received a sentence of from one to three years in the state prison at Michigan City.

RICHARDS HERE

General Land Commissioner Passes Through the City.

Talks of Reservation Opening and Land District Change.

W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office at Washington; Gifford Pinchot, head of the forestry department of the agricultural department, and E. S. Bruce and R. G. Griffin, of the forestry department, arrived in Duluth early this morning and left at 9:30 o'clock for Cass Lake, on the Great Northern, without visiting anyone in the city.

The party arrived at 6 o'clock and took breakfast at the Spalding hotel, and then spent two hours looking over the government work on the canal piers.

"This is simply a tour of inspection," said Commissioner Richards. "We want to see how the land lies. It will not be until late next fall that the logging operations on the Chippewa reservation can commence, and perhaps longer, though we are making an effort to have the property cleared up as soon as possible.

"The Indians have not agreed upon the allotments, I see, and until they do we cannot make the segregation of the 200,000 acres of timber land. Because we might segregate a piece of land and the Indians would come and claim it afterwards.

"I understand, though, that the allotments will be finished in a short time, perhaps in a few weeks. After that we will have to parcel out the timber lands for segregation and then advertise for six months for bids for the standing timber.

"If we can't get it off our hands it is likely the timber will be removed by contract, for in some places the wood is scarce, and it will be difficult to get rid of it. We want to get it cut as soon as possible.

"The provision is that 95 per cent of the timber be cut off and 5 per cent of it remain, and with that the government is to make experiments in the reforestration of the lands, and that is what Mr. Pinchot is here for. He will make expert observations and plan the method of reforestration.

"We are here on this trip then, in look into the conditions and examine the lands with a view of preparing them for the sale. As soon as the lists are agreed upon and the allotments have all been made, the advertising will commence. And we wish to be familiar with the lay of the land before the final stage is reached. Mr. Bruce will have charge of the selection of property for the segregation."

Mr. Richards did not call upon the officers of the Duluth land office, as he had expected to leave Duluth at 7 o'clock, but found the train had been taken off. Regarding the change in the boundary of the Duluth land district Mr. Richards said:

"The boundaries for the Duluth land district were changed because the change makes it easier for many people who are after lands in what used to be the western part of the district.

"The matter had been open for months and some decision was necessary. There was a meeting of all the congressmen of the state and the two senators in my office, and it was agreed that the change of boundary would be most desirable and advisable, and for the best interests of the community to be opened and ont a serious blow to Duluth and vicinity.

"After the decision had been arrived at there were several protests made, but it was too late then, and the decision of the department was issued. There was no change to give the protests a long hearing when they came, and the matter had been open so long that it was thought advisable to close it then and there."

The party of officials came almost directly from Washington, and were in St. Paul last evening. They will be gone in the Cass Lake country for four or five days and will return directly to Washington. The party will not linger in Duluth, but will pass through this city on their way home.

AUSTRIANS ARE SWINDLED

A clever swindling game was discovered by the police this afternoon.

A robust-looking Austrian was arrested for begging and when taken before Judge Windom he was fined $10 and costs.

He then produced a book containing what he supposed was a license to beg, and for which he claims to have paid a former saloon keeper of his own nationality $25.

What he mistook for a license was simply a sworn statement by himself to the effect that he had been disabled in a logging camp near Highland, Minn., and was soliciting money with which to pay his passage back to his Austrian home.

The statement was sworn to before a local attorney, whose flaring gilt notary seal gave the document an official appearance.

The man arrested gave his name as Jacob Sammrzia, paid his fine and left the city hall, vowing vengeance on the man that sold him the begging book for $25.

In a fierce mixture of Austrian and English he announced that the book with which he had collected less than $1 and already cost him $25 and he intended seeing if something could not be done to recover damages.

The police are informed that there are other Austrians taken in by the same game.

POLL IS AT HAND

Great Northern Men Here to Vote Within a Few Days.

Wisconsin Central Officials Make Short Visit to Duluth.

Assistant Grand Master Newman of the Railway Trainmen and Vice Grand Conductor Garretson of the Railway Conductors have reached St. Paul and are making the poll of that city among the Great Northern employes to ascertain the feeling existing regarding the double-header system on the road, and the pay that should be given to the train hands for the use of them.

The officials of the organizations are expected here tomorrow afternoon or Saturday, and when the Duluth end of the road is all polled, the count will be all in.

Saturday and Sunday will be spent in making a canvass of the results secured, and the result of the vote will be rendered General Manager Ward Sunday evening.

If the men will stand for double-headers, some sort of compromise will be fixed up; but if they will not, the strike will probably begin early next week.

OFFICIALS HERE.

Heads of Wisconsin Central Visit In Duluth.

President Henry Whitcomb of the Wisconsin Central railroad and General Superintendent Potter, both of Milwaukee, were in Duluth for a few hours yesterday afternoon and night.

Their errand was one of inspection and to look over the interests of the Wisconsin Central in Duluth under the traffic arrangements existing between it and the Northern Pacific road.

Neither official was talking publicly regarding the business of the road. They were given a drive around the boulevard yesterday afternoon.

The supposition is, however, that the heads of the two principal departments of the railroad were here to look over the situation in connection with the persistently rumored extension from the vicinity of Hayward to this city.

Within the past few weeks there have been surveyors at work for the Wisconsin Central line in the vicinity of Hayward, and it has been said their levels were directed toward Duluth.

The officials could not be viewed at a close enough range to ascertain what their sentiments were regarding such rumors.

WILL NOT APPEAL.

Minneapolis Millers to Take No Further Action.

Minneapolis millers have denied that they were about to present a petition to the inter-state commerce commission, asking a further reduction or readjustment of rates on flour between the Twin Cities and the seaboard, specifically the division of the transportation route between Buffalo and New York. A Minneapolis dispatch says:

When shown the dispatches from Chicago stating that the millers were dissatisfied with the 2 cents reduction in flour rates, and would ask the inter-state commerce commission to investigate the discrepancy between wheat and flour rates, James S. Bell, president of the Washburn-Crosby company, at Minneapolis said:

"There is not a word of truth in the report that the Minneapolis millers will appeal to the inter-state commerce commission for an adjustment of the rates on wheat and flour from Buffalo to the seaboard.

"Statements that the millers are dissatisfied with the action taken by the traffic managers in reducing the rate on flour 2 cents are wrong. As stated at the time the reduction was made, we were disappointed that it was not a 3-cent reduction, but we are highly pleased that we have gained something, and there will be no more demands for a reduction or for an investigation."

Rolling Stock Coming.

Four of the six new engines ordered by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway have been received, and the delivery of cars for ore carrying, which has been in progress for the past four weeks has progressed until 150 are here.

The Iron Range road has been receiving the first shipments of the ore cars, and nearly the whole consignment has been delivered to that road by the manufacturers.

William Orr Dead.

William Orr, formerly general freight agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic road, died in London yesterday, according to a cable dispatch received here. Mr. Orr held the position for some years when the line was first constructed, and was succeeded by the present general freight agent, W. W. Walker.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT

Presents List of Soldiers In Revolutionary War.

Washington, May 7.—The French ambassador today presented to Secretary Hay on behalf of his government a volume containing the names of all the French soldiers and sailors who served in the American revolutionary war under Rochambeau and De Grasse. Another volume will be presented to President Roosevelt upon his return, with the compliments of the French government. The complete list of names of soldiers and sailors, together with the names of the towns from which they came, were preserved in the French archives, and, upon the suggestion of Gen. Porter, the United States ambassador to France, they were printed in book form.

PAYMASTER ARRESTED.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Best Authorities in Medicine Declare It the Only True Spring Remedy.

The sleeplessness, nervous prostration, weakness, general debility, functional irregularities and despondency from which thousands of women, young and old, suffer, can be quickly removed by properly feeding the nerves and replacing the unhealthy blood by a fresher and more highly vitalized third. The happy change from ill-health and misery, to true womanhood and happiness, can only be effected by the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

The present spring demand for Paine's Celery Compound, woman's friend and life giver, is enormous in every state of the Union. This fact alone, simply proves that the great Compound possesses virtues and powers unknown to other remedies. Dear wife and mother, do not procrastinate: listen today to the voice of reason, and the pleading and testimony of the thousands of your sex who have been made well and strong. Mrs. Jennie Harris, Marlow, Indian Ter., joyfully writes about the medicine that makes women well. She says:

"I have used one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and am satisfied that one bottle of the medicine has done me more real good than any other medicine that I have ever taken. I had rheumatism of long standing, kidney disease and female troubles, but since taking Paine's Celery Compound I feel altogether a different person. I have used lots of other medicines, but never received any benefit until I used Paine's Celery Compound."

ORE SALES LIGHT

Are Unprecedentedly So For the Spring Months.

Conditions In the Iron Trade Are Not Satisfactory.

Cleveland, May 7.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: Current activity in the iron trade does not furnish a proper gauge of underlying conditions. The halt in buying in one important department of the foundry industry more or less colors the entire situation. The steel end of the market continues strong, but there is a general desire even in lines not directly affected to see the outcome in pig iron. Already the wait on the part of pig iron buyers, prolonged throughout April, has shown itself in the Lake Superior ore market, where sales have been almost unprecedentedly light for the spring months, the result heavy chartering of vessels being very largely for interests in making their own ore. The gradual reappearance of the unparalleled freight and fuel difficulties of months ago been taken in some quarters as an indication that reactionary tendencies were already at work, on the assumption evidently that the pinch of railroad disups rather than proper dispatch, is the normal condition. The disappearance of high prices for prompt coke, prompt pig iron and prompt finished materials of some descriptions, particularly plates, has contributed to the waiting attitude of many buyers. Meantime there is not a little difficulty in estimating the relation of production and consumption. Labor questions have introduced an element of uncertainty. Securities have declined for several months; pig iron has declined, and in finished material, with premium disappearing, the top has been seen. Yet these conditions are accompanied by demands for very considerable advances in wages with shortening of hours, making new and important increments to manufacturing costs. Generally the concessions are being made, but the consumer, who must pay it, is yet to be heard from. The disposition among pig iron producers appears to be to let the market drift. Associated Southern furnaces are not meeting the prices of outside producers, which have touched $16 at furnace for No. 2 iron, this price having been named on Central Western business. Little basis is visible, and the indications are that the contracts, when placed, will not be for long periods.

IN STATE'S CARE.

Biwabik Children Will Probably Be Taken In Charge.

Humane Officer Withrow has been asked to attend to the case of the five young children of Charles and Helen Sampson, of Biwabik. Complaints have been made to the humane officer by the council of that city and relief is asked for them. The father is said to be a Finlander Englishman who will not work and support his family and the children have been compelled to depend for their subsistence on the charity of neighbors. The children will probably be sent to the state public school. Sampson's case may be looked after by the proper authorities as the state law has some stringent clauses with reference to husbands that are able and do not support their families.

Andrew and Augusta Johnson, of McKinley, have voluntarily assigned their six children to the Duluth Humane society. The children range from 1 to 13 years of age and will be placed in better surroundings.

TO APPOINT COLTON.

Rome, May 7.—Mgr. Veccia, secretary of the propaganda, was received by the pope today and submitted the report of the congregation of the propaganda on the vacancy in the bishopric of Buffalo. The pontiff decided on the appointment of the Rev. Charles H. Colton, rector of St. Stephens church, New York.

Free Boxes to All

25,000 Boxes Given Away to All Who Apply. John A. Smith and His Remarkable Cure for Rheumatism and Gout.

The First Test and What it Led to—Cured Himself First Then His Friends and Neighbors and Now Proposes to Cure the Whole World.

Deformity of the hands in general Chronic Articular Rheumatism.

Urates of sodium and potassium in finger joints in a middle-aged person. A sufferer from both Rheumatism and Gout.

Foot of middle-aged woman. Sufferer from Rheumatism and probably Gout.

On the theory "that seeing is believing," John A. Smith, of Milwaukee wants everyone to try his remedy for the cure of rheumatism at his expense. For that reason he proposes to distribute 25,000 free boxes among all persons sending him their address. Mr Smith had suffered all the agony and torture from rheumatism, tried all the remedies known and yet utterly failed to find relief.

At times he was so helpless that he had to take morphine and after considerable doctoring he gave up in despair. He began studying into the causes of rheumatism, and after much experimenting finally hit upon a combination of drugs which completely cured him. The result was so beneficial to his entire system that he called his new found remedy "Gloria Tonic." Those of his friends, relatives and neighbors suffering from rheumatism were next cured, and Mr. Smith concluded to offer his remedy to the world. But he found the task a difficult one as nearly everybody had tried a hundred or more remedies and they couldn't be made to believe that there was such a thing as a cure for rheumatism. But an old gentleman from Seguin, Texas, wrote him saying if Mr. Smith would send him a sample he would try it, but as he had suffered forty-one years and wasted a fortune with doctors and advertised remedies, he wouldn't buy anything more until he knew it was worth something. The sample was sent, he purchased more, and the result was astonishing. He was completely cured.

This gave Mr. Smith a new idea, and ever since that time he has been sending out free sample boxes to all who apply.

The result is that thousands of people have been cured of rheumatism, gout, lumbago and Sciatica through Gloria Tonic.

It has cured people from every locality and in all stations of life.

Those cured have varied in ages from eight to eighty-four years, their suffering and afflictions varying from a few weeks and months to 58 years.

In Prosser, Neb., it cured a lady of 67 who had suffered 52 years. In Fountain City, Wis., it cured Hon. Jacob Sexauer, a gentleman of 70, who suffered for 33 years. In Perrysburg, Ohio, it cured a gentleman 70 years old. In Heron Lake, Minn., it cured a lady who had suffered for 30 years. Rev. C. Sund, of Harrisville, Wis., tested this remarkable cure on two members of his congregation, one who had suffered 15 and the other 25 years; both were completely cured. In St. Louis, Mo., it cured Mr. F. Faerber, of the Concordia Publ. House. In Vandalia, Illinois, it cured a lady, 78 years of age, who was so crippled that she could not dress herself. In Bennington, Vt., it cured an old man whom the best physicians of Worms and Frankfurt, Germany, called incurable. This old gentleman had walked for 20 years on crutches, both legs having been lame. He can now walk like a young man.

Even prominent physicians had to admit that "Gloria Tonic" is a positive success, among them Dr. Quintero, of the University of Venezuela, to whom it was recommended by the United States Consul.

In thousands of other instances the result has been the same. It cured many cases which defied Hospitals, Drugs, Electricity and Medical Skill, among them persons over 80 years old.

Mr. Smith is anxious that every sufferer should profit by this discovery. It therefore rests with you as a sufferer to send your name and address for a free trial box today. But enclose this advertisement and write him that you saw it in The Duluth Evening Herald. You will also receive an illustrated BOOK on Rheumatism, Gout and all other forms of uric acid ailments, with further proofs of the curative properties of "Gloria Tonic."

Seventy-five per cent of discouraged sufferers apparently DO NOT want to be cured! BUT sufferers who are really desirous of finding a true and tried remedy are doing an injustice by not writing immediately, no matter what form their Rheumatism is.

Mr. Smith, address in full is JOHN A. SMITH, 2381 Germania building, Milwaukee, Wis.

STRONG ON CLAIMS

Crookston Manager Suspected of Holding Lien on the Earth.

Now Trying to Get Martin From Duluth—Baseball Notes.

Well! Well! Well!

To the fan inclined to contemplate the sublime, the modest, the let-us-love-one-another in baseball, Manager Lycan of Crookston fails to inspire a confusion of lofty ideals.

By right of discovery he got Mueller, the big University of Wisconsin pitcher away from Duluth, and now he files a prior claim to Martin, the Kansas City pitcher, recently secured by Duluth.

Strange as it may seem he has not filed claims on all the other local players—but then, give him time. Martin's pitching was largely responsible for Crookston landing second place in the league race last year. He is said to be very anxious to come to Duluth.

* * *

The local management has signed Gehring, who pitched for Winnipeg last year. Up to a late hour this afternoon Manager Lycan had not put in a claim for him, and there is an unconfirmed report to the effect that the Crookston manager is getting careless.

Gehring ranked sixth in the list of Northwestern pitchers, winning ten out of eighteen games. He was the hardest hitting pitcher in the league, having a batting average of .396.

* * *

Volz, the St. Paul pitcher, who will twirl at least part of the season for Duluth, despite the general protest of St. Paul baseball cranks, is built much on the order of Roy Patterson, the former Duluth pitcher now doing such phenomenal work for the Chicago American league team. Volz depends largely on a drop ball, though he has all other pitching features down in good shape.

* * *

Marcan, the St. Paul utility man, who will come to Duluth, had two hits out of two times at the bat in Tuesday's St. Paul-Kansas City game.

* * *

W. H. McNeil, of Grand Forks, is in the city today and will practice with the Duluth team with mates.

* * *

Capt. Lambert put his players through some fast preliminary practice at Oneota park yesterday afternoon. The men that have reported are Leonard, Dodge, Shinokek, McNeil and Carl. Others are arriving each day and a full team will be on hand for the first practice game with the high school team Saturday. Dodge will probably pitch for the Duluth team and Cummings for the high school.

* * *

The local management is keeping the wires hot between here and a Nebraska town for a very fast infielder strongly recommended to President Bryan by Manager Gear of Kansas City. The only reason he has not signed today is a slight difference in pay, the player desiring more than the local management can afford to pay under the $900-a-month salary limit.

Dellar is a little slow about signing the contract forwarded him, but it is announced that he will report for duty shortly. He is anxious to get into fast company and is said to desire an unconditional release from the Northern league at the conclusion of the coming season.

If he really desires to get into fast company let him sign with Duluth, where his work will be watched closely by managers of the big league teams. Ever since Duluth turned out such famous players as Baldwin, Ely and O'Rourke, in the early days, the big leagues have considered Duluth a good training ground for promising talent—especially for pitchers. Patterson got on with the Chicago team through his good work here; Wiggs, now with Cincinnati, got his start here; Cox, with Louisville, and many others now making good in other leagues, were first discovered by outsider managers when they were wearing the Duluth uniform. If Dellar really desires an opportunity to work up a season of work with the local team would do him any amount of good. Should he fail to sign the local tract he is an outlaw, as far as all the major leagues are concerned, and will only be allowed to play with independent professional organizations.

The St. Paul Lacrosse club has organized and is seeking games with Duluth memorial day, and with Chicago on July 7 and with Port Arthur on July 14.

MIND UNBALANCED.

J. H. Laotmee of Virginia Committed to Asylum.

John H. Laotme, of Virginia, was examined for insanity before Court Commissioner T. C. Himebaugh yesterday afternoon, in the absence from the city of Judge of Probate Middlecoff, and was ordered committed to the state asylum at Fergus Falls. Laotmee came here from Virginia three weeks ago. He became suddenly insane some days ago and left his home for the woods, where he lived in the open air for some time without regard to the inclement weather. He was furnished meals by friends at Virginia, but would leave them hurriedly after eating, claiming that he was pursued by some one. He was nearly killed by the exposure he underwent and his friends finally took him into custody and secured his committment to the asylum.

CLUE TO RANKINE

Given By Mrs. A. Clark of Chisholm.

St. Paul, May 7.—James C. Rankine, missing cashier of the Wisconsin Central frieght department, may be in the neighborhood of Chisholm, Minn.

Mrs. A. Clark of that place writes that she gave food and shelter to a young man answering Rankine's description Monday, April 27. She says the stranger looked much like Rankine's picture printed in the newspapers. He told her he was endeavoring to reach Hibbing, Minn. Rankine's relatives are now investigating this clew.

CARNEGIE EXPLAINS METHODS TO BRITONS.

a dozen other impediments to hard continuous exertion, that it does not seem good for their robust health that they should be unduly burdened before reaching middle age. The zest of the chase is over too soon. It will be found the exception when a millionaire employe strains himself unduly by over-exertion to some leisure for self-improvement. When a man has achieved a competence, new duties to his family and to himself arise. Money is properly only the means to an end.

We did not fall to see, as the works enlarged, how much success depended upon the mechanical men, the superintendents and foremen, yet not one of these had up to that time been admitted as a partner. The business and the mechanical men, office and mill, were still widely separated. Well do I remember the first attempt to bring these two departments into closer relations. It was made with our Captain Jones, one of your members, well known and appreciated by many of you as in the foremost rank of managers, perhaps the foremost of his day in America. He came to us as a working mechanic at eight shillings per day. I explained to the captain how several of the younger men in the business department had been made partners and were actually receiving much greater rewards than he, while his services were at least equally valuable; and informed him that we wished to make him a partner. I shall never forget his reply. "Mr. Carnegie, I am much obliged, but I know nothing about business and never wish to be troubled with it—I have plenty to trouble me here in these works. Leave me as I am and just give me a thundering salary." "Hereafter," I said, "the salary of the president of the United States is yours, Captain," and so it remained till the sad day of his death. My seniors, the presidents of the other manufacturing concerns, did not fail to take me to task for ruining the steel business by paying a mechanic more salary than any of them received. Being much the younger of these great dignitaries, I humbly confessed my wrongdoing, not however, failing to inquire if they knew where we could find two or three more Captain Jones's at double the price. We did not overpay the captain—he was worth several ordinary salaried presidents. The captain's declinature of partnership was the only one which ever came within my experience. None of the other mechanics ever preferred salary to partnership, and they were wise. Nothing can compare with that form. Let me impress that upon the younger members here who may soon have, or should have some day, the choice laid before them. From that time forward the union of the mechanical and business partners went steadily forward and the manager of a mill was without his interest in the business, as pertaining to the position, and no board of management, or important committee, was without a mechanical representative. Thereafter, mill and office conferred upon all important sales or contracts. The mechanics and the men of affairs were in constant consultation and fellow partners— one of the most profitable changes that ever we made.

There was another step taken in the same direction. Then having others under their charge were given an interest in the proceeds, or savings in cost, in their department. Where it was possible to decide the limits of a department, the managers were rewarded by handsome bonuses beyond their salary, based upon the general profits of the business. Thus, as a rule, every man in authority became more than mere wage-earner. He felt himself on the first step of the ladder which led to partnership sooner or later, and was worth any two mere employes paid only a daily or monthly wage and denied special recognition.

This plan of reward according to results, for heads of departments, has already become so general and is spreading so fast we may be sure it has improved its efficiency. There are few large department stores or important houses in retail trade which have not been forced to adopt it.

This plan is probably bound to prevail to greater or less degree in manufacturing concerns, and the sooner the better, for the greater number of workers capital can compensate, and in one sense reward, by sharing its gains, the more harmonious and therefore more profitable for both must the relationship become.

I never see a fishing fleet set sail without pleasure, thinking this is based upon the true form which in some shape will generally. Not a man in the boats is paid fixed wages. Each gets his share of the profits. That seems to me the ideal. It would be most interesting if we could compare the results of a fleet so manned and operated with one in which men were paid fixed wages, but I question whether such a fleet as the latter exists. From my experience, I should say a crew of employes, vs. a crew of partners, would not be in the race.

The great secret of success in business of all kinds, and especially in manufacturing, where a small saving in each process means fortune, is a liberal division of profits among the men who help to make them, and the wider distribution the better. There lie latent unexpected powers in willing men around us which only need appreciation and development to produce surprising results. Money awards alone will not, however, secure these, for to the most sensitive and ambitious natures there must be the note of sympathy, appreciation, friendship. Genius is sensitive in all its forms, and it is only the rare, not ordinary ability that tells even in practical affairs. You must capture and keep the heart of the original and supremely able man before his brain can do its best. Indeed this law has no limits. Even the mere laborer becomes more efficient as regard for his employer grows beyond service, or hand service, it is heart service that counts.

One of the chief sources of whatever success may have attended the Carnegie Steel company was undoubtedly its policy of making numerous partners from among the ablest of its men, and interesting so many others of ability in results. I strongly recommend this plan to the members of the Institute engaged in business, believing that in these days of threatened exhausting competition it will be the concerns which adopt this plan, other things being equal, which will survive and flourish.

In no field is the wise saying more amply verified than in manufacturing. "There be those who gather, yet scatter-eth abroad, and there be those who scatter-eth abroad, yet put into barns."

Disputes of some kind between capital and labor are always in evidence, but it must never be forgotten that in the wide fields of domestic service and in that of the few employes with a working master, which embraces by far the greater number of wage earners, all is, upon the whole, satisfactory—there reigns peace, with the inevitable individual exceptions.

We see in this encouraging fact the potent and salutary influence of the personal element. The employer knows his men and the men know their employer, there is a mutual respect, sympathy, kindly interest and good feeling, hence peace. In the extensive field of domestic service we best see how true it is "like master, like man—like mistress, like Nan." Here we have the relation of employer and employed in its closest form, and innumerable households testify to the harmonizing effect of personal relations. The trusty servant becomes practically a member of the family, deeply attached to it, and the family reciprocates the feeling.

If the managing owners and officials of great corporations could only be known to their men and, equally important, their men known to their employers, and the hearts of each exposed to the other, as well as their difficulties, we should have in that troublesome field such harmony as delights us in the domestic. It is mainly the ignorance of contending parties of each other's virtues that breeds quarrels everywhere throughout the world, between individuals, between corporations and their men and between nations. 'We only hate those we do not know,' is a sound maxim upon which we do well ever to bear in mind. In the progress toward more harmonious conditions between employer and employed we see that the system of payment by fixed wages has been largely supplanted by payment according to value of service rendered by workmen in positions of authority over others, and by recognition not only in money, but in position, which often counts quite as much as coin, and not seldom much more with the ablest. There remains still receiving the fixed wage the great mass of ordinary workmen—but we see in the history of relations of employer and employed that these have not failed to raise greatly also. The movement tending to improve the position of the worker has not passed over even the humblest, but has reached and benefited all.

But the inevitable pressure which has forced change after change in the relations of capital and labor still operates unchecked a sure indication that the final stage has not yet been reached. Of late evidence of this in another important advance, the sliding scale, which provides not a fixed wage but in some degree settles by natural laws increased demand brings higher prices and profits to the employer, which in turn bring workmen higher returns, so that as the employer's profits rise and fall, so do the workman's rewards. If I were asked what was the best service the Carnegie company was ever able to render the wage-earner, next to giving him steady employment at wages equal to any, should answer, By persuading them to adopt the sliding scale, with a minimum insuring living wages, at its Edgar Thomson Braddock fourteen years ago, which has given perfect satisfaction from that day to this, and is still in force, and has produced undisturbed harmony between capital and labor.

Gentlemen, while, as you have seen, the Carnegie Steel company interested its young men as partners and was always anxious to reward exceptional services, and carried the bonus system to an extent, perhaps, unknown in any similar organization, the masses of the ordinary workmen were not embraced under the limited partnership form, even it it had been thought desirable that then savings should be so invested. The objection to this plan, from the point of view of the workman, which always arose in our minds and which we were never able to surmount, was the sad and instructive history of the largest manufacturing concerns, especially those of iron and steel.

More than once in the history of the Carnegie Steel company, leading partners have been so doubtful of its future as to beg their more optimistic senior partners to buy large amounts of their interests at actual cost.

It is an instructive fact that the majority of the principal of these in the United States have, at some period in their career, either been in the hands of receivers, been mortgaged, re-organized, or sold by the sheriff to the great loss of their original owners. Indeed, those who have escaped financial trouble are the exceptions. There was no over-capitalization in any of these companies. Only actual cash counted. Our experience in America has not been peculiar. The year before last the iron and steel works of Germany were generally in depressed conditions, and their shares suffered heavily. I read a list of these losses at the time which impressed me deeply. If I remember rightly, many declined one-half or more. Several important works were reported in financial trouble. Your own experience in Britain is similar.

You know too well, gentlemen, how the path of iron and steel is strewn with financial loss in all countries, and that all forms of business must encounter great risks. Scarcely a week passes without news of embarrassment or failure in the industrial world. This is has ever been and ever must be, while human nature remains unchanged.

Bearing all this in mind, the thought of asking the workingman to risk his precious savings in the manufacturing or any form of business was always repellant to him. This may mean little to the man of affairs familiar with the ups and downs of the mercurial stock exchange. But what must be the effect upon the unin-formed workman? of this I am well assured, the workman whose thoughts are upon the speculative surprise of the exchange will not prove desirable. Speculation is the parasite of business, feeding upon values, creating none, and is wholly incompatible with the satisfactory performance of other regular work requiring constant care and caution. The workman's investment should never be at risk, for if his thoughts are upon the stock exchange they cannot be upon the machinery, and machinery, like iron, is a jealous mistress, brooking no rival claimant to its absorbing demands. In the interest of the employer, therefore, as well as that of the workman, the savings of the latter should be secure. Here, as in other respects, their interest is mutual, and hence I believe the proposed change will be made by the Steel Corporation in the near future. I cannot speak too highly of this experiment nor give the Steel Corporation too much credit for making it, since it is declared to be in the experimental stage, and which provides not a fixed wage but in some degree settles by natural laws increased demand brings higher prices and profits to the employer, which in turn bring workmen higher returns, so that as the employer's profits rise and fall, so do the workman's rewards. If I were asked what was the best service the Carnegie company was ever able to render the wage-earner, next to giving him steady employment at wages equal to any, should answer, By persuading them to adopt the sliding scale, with a minimum insuring living wages, at its Edgar Thomson Braddock fourteen years ago, which has given perfect satisfaction from that day to this, and is still in force, and has produced undisturbed harmony between capital and labor.

FORESTRY LAWS

Considerably Enlarged By Legislature at Last Session.

Can Buy to Extent of One-Eighth of Each Township.

In reviewing the things accomplished by the last legislature, as well as the things left undone, the lumber interests of the Northwest are expressing themselves as fairly satisfied. Seven new laws were passed at the recent session of the legislature that have a direct bearing on the lumber and timber interests of the state.

One of these was the act to enable the Minnesota state forestry board to purchase land for forestry purposes. The act gives the board authority to purchase for the state any land adapted for forestry purposes, at not to exceed $2.50 per acre, and preferably at the mouths of rivers. In any one congressional township the purchase is not to exceed one-eighth part of the area of the township. Provision is also made that one-quarter part of the net forest reserve from such lands shall always be paid to the respective towns in which the lands are located.

Another act passed that has a bearing on the subject of forestry is an amendment to the previously enacted forestry law of the state which makes the state auditor the forest commissioner of the state, and his orders are supreme in all matters relating to the preservation of the forest and the prevention of fires. It vests in the state auditor the authority to appoint a chief fire warden of the state. The chief firewarden is to have general charal charge of the fire warden force throughout the state. The rest of the act deals with the powers and duties of the fire warden and his assistants, their compensation, the penalties to be inflicted on violators of the forestry laws of the state and what constitutes a violation.

Another act adds a few quarter sections to the area of the Itasca state park.

Another act that deals with forestry is designed to protect state property included within the confines of the Itasca state park. Generally speaking, it prohibits the hauling or moving of any logs or timber over or upon lands situated within the outer limits of the state park, or the placing of any logs or timber in Elk lake, Itasca lake or any stream running into or out of them, within park limits, without procuring a license signed by the governor, the state auditor and the president of the Minnesota State Historical society. Violation of this act is punishable by imprisonment of not less than three months or more than one year, or by a fine of not less than $1000 or more than $5000, or both.

Another act gives authority for the building and maintenance of dams in streams not navigable for steamboats. Provision is made that the person building the dam shall provide a sluiceway for logs and a runway for fish, the former in such a manner as not to be a hindrance or delay to the passage of logs, timber and lumber. In building and maintaining a dam the owner is given the right of eminent domain and may condemn, take and use or damage private property after having made just compensation therefor.

The grading rules of the Northwestern Cedarmen's association are given official recognition by another act passed. This act provides for the inspection and survey of cedar posts and poles, the surveyor general of each Minnesota district being obliged to inspect and survey cedar posts, poles, farm poles, electric light, telephone and telegraph poles and make out a true and corrected bill or inventory, on the request of the owner, sheriff, coroner or constable who has replevened, attached or levied upon them.

Still another act provides for the filing and recording in the office of the register of deeds or the register of titles, of titles or instruments relating to timber, stone, ores, minerals or similar property, in place or upon the earth, and making the record for registration thereof, notice of the contents of such instruments, after as well as before, the severance of such property from the land.

General satisfaction is expressed among the local lumbermen that the act compelling loggers to clean up and burn all chips and tree tops on lands cleared of timber did not become a law. Much opposition was developed to this measure on account of the alleged heavy expense it would mean to the loggers and the danger it would mean to adjoining timber tracts.

There was a strong sentiment throughout the state among the lumbermen and loggers for the repeal of the McCarthy act, which compels employers to pay for work done in the woods, on demand of employes, but there was no legislation during the last session looking toward relief for the lumbermen along that line.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

WHITES AND BLACKS MEET

Alabama Republicans Establish a Precedent at Convention.

Montgomery, Ala., May 7.—For the first time in the history of the Republican party in Alabama at the conference of the Republicans held yesterday, the whites took seats on one side of the hall and the negroes on the other. Referees W. F. Aldrich, Charles H. Scott and Joseph Thompson organized the conference. Mr. Aldrich explained the object of the meeting. The referees had been appointed without solicitation and they were appointed to correct the mistakes and right the wrongs of the Birmingham convention.

Mr. Handley, in assuming the chair, said that he desired to refute certain charges. He assailed the Birmingham convention for denying the rigat of the negro to participate in that convention. He said he had rather trust this country in the hands of the negro with a hoe and a plow than the white man with the torch and the bomb.

The conference also adopted a plan advanced by the referees, which in effect is a repudiation of the action of the Birmingham convention in barring qualified negro voters from participation. The negroes urged that recognition of the present state executive committee be withheld, but this proposition was voted down.

A meeting of the state executive committee called by Chairman W. I. Willman, chief of the "Lily Whites," will convene at Birmingham May 12, and at this meeting the new amalgamation of negroes and administration Republicans will attempt to capture the party machinery.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH.

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with a healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and is today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe the Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membane of the air passages, prevents irritation and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance Company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In Duluth there are scores of well-known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, S. F. Boyce will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered as to his faith in the remedy.

MINISTER HAS BEEN INDICTED

For Imprisoning Squirrel Contrary to Laws of Indiana.

Louisville, Ky., May 7.—Dr. Ephriam W. Hammon, of Bethlehem, Ind., was before Judge Marsh in Jeersonville to answer to an indictment charging him with keeping a squirrel in confinement, contrary to the laws of Indiana. He pleaded not guilty, and was allowed to go on his own recognizance, bond being fixed at $100. Besides being a physician, Dr. Hammon is a licensed minister, and was admitted to the practice of law before the Clark circuit court on a certificate from Martin county, where he formerly lived. He first practiced the profession in Huntington county, Ind., in 1875. Dr. Hammon owns a good farm near Bethlehem, and came there from Indianapolis during the latter part of 1901. The prosecution, Dr. Hammon asserts, had its outgrowth through spitework, it being the belief of several young men around Bethlehem that he had been the cause of an indictment for gambling being found against them. This he denies. To get even with him the doctor was indicted for keeping the squirrel at his home. He asserts the animal has not been restrained for an hour since it has been at his house, but it has such a fondness for his daughter, Miss Lenna Hammon, that it will not leave the place.

During the day the little pet gambols at will in the trees that surround the Hammon home, but at night it makes its way to the house and goes direct to the room of Miss Hammon and remains in her bed until morning, when it again seeks the trees. The squirrel knows Miss Hammon's voice and will hurry to her side when called, climb upon her shoulder and there remain.

Miss Hammon, who is a remarkably handsome young woman of 20, has a peculiar power over dumb animals, and they become her friends as soon as they hear her voice. It was to gratify her wish more than anything else to be among her little friends of the field and wood, that Dr. Hammon located near Bethlehem, but he says he is going to leave there and locate in Jeffersonville on account of the unfriendly disposition of the people who are trying to persecute him.

The power of Miss Hammon over horses is considered a remarkable gift by the people around Bethlehem. Her father is a lover of horseflesh, and has several high-bred youngsters on his farm. One of these, a beautiful black, is of a fiery temperament, and few dare to go near him, but under the eye of Miss Hammon she is as docile as a kitten. The beast has repeatedly come from his stable rearing and ready to deal destruction to any one in his way, but at the sight of the girl he quiets down, trots to her side and puts his head on her shoulder.

GROWING IN FAVOR

Saturday Half Holiday Will Be More Popular Than Ever.

Jobbing Houses, Freight Offices and Many Others to Close.

The Saturday half holiday promises to become more popular among the employers of labor in Duluth during the coming summer than ever before.

Last summer a few of the jobbing houses closed at 1 o'clock on Saturday, giving their employes the benefit of a full half holiday each week with but little loss of time. The employers that tried it last year say that the few hours lost interfered but little with the work, as the noon hour was not taken on Saturday and the employes seemed to wish that the firm should not lose anything from the half holiday, and put a little extra vigor into their work. In nearly every case the firms that granted the half holiday last year are doing so this summer.

Commencing Saturday, May 16, the jobbing houses of the city will establish their usual summer early closing hour on Saturdays, giving managers and employes the benefit of the half holiday.

The coal offices of the city have already commenced closing at 1 o'clock on Saturdays.

The freight departments of the different railroad offices will establish the early closing rule during the summer months. The ticket departments, however, will remain open until the usual hour.

Several of the large insurance and real estate offices are contemplating adopting the early closing rule, and it is likely that a number of the mining companies will do likewise.

Baseball and other attractions which have been added to Duluth's list of summer amusements will tend to make the weekly half holiday even more appreciated by the recipients than in former years.

WHAT GROVER CAME WEST FOR

Willing to Run But Would Be Sought By Party.

Washington, May 7.—Eastern Democrats are anxiously awaiting reports of the political effect of Mr. Cleveland's visit to St. Louis. It is known in Washington that one object of his visit was to obtain, if possible, an inkling of the sentiment of the Bryan Democracy toward himself, to learn whether they regarded him as impossible. It was assumed by Mr. Cleveland's friends that the Bryan wing would be represented in St. Louis by some one of prominence with whom the ex-President's advisers could confer.

Thus far no intimation has come East of the result of the inquiries in that direction. The reports of the ovation given Mr. Cleveland indicate that he had reason to be gratified with the outburst of public sentiment toward him, but whether he received the assurance he sought is not disclosed.

There is no doubt of Mr. Bryan's attitude toward Mr. Cleveland any more than there is of Mr. Watterson's. They are against him from start to finish. But there might be question whether these two leaders could hold the Western wing of the party in that position of hostility.

Mr. Cleveland's friends have figured on the possibility of the Western Democrats being ready to bury the hatchet, to let bygones be bygones, and come together in the light of favorable Democratic prospects which they think are waxing strong. They have felt that the hostile leaders might be swept off their feet by a wave of popular demonstration, which they expected to have its inception at St. Louis.

From one source information is at hand that the ex-president is not seeking the nomination. One of his closest friends stated very recently that Mr. Cleveland was not after the presidency and made that statement upon the authority of Mr. Cleveland.

Democratic politicians who have discussed that statement say that Mr. Cleveland may not be seeking the nomination, but that he undoubtedly will encourage its seeking him. Mr. Cleveland's ambition, it is said, is to have the party come to him as to a Moses to lead it out of the desert. He has suffered revilement from the western wing such as no public man since the days of Andrew Johnson as received from his former political allies. Mr. Cleveland is popularly supposed to be thick-skinned and not sensitive to such attacks, but his friends know that, on the contrary, he has been deeply wounded. He now feels that it is for the party which spurned him to come to him with overtures rather than for him to expose himself to a possibility of a snub.

That is the explanation of his "not seeking the nomination." The next few weeks should develop whether the West is ready to make such overtures.

CONDITIONS OF CONVICTS

Are to Be Bettered By Governor Peabody of Colorado.

Denver, Colo., May 7.—Governor Peabody will lead in an effort to in some manner provide employment for the prisoners in the penitentiary and to place in that institution a complete staff of instructors for the purpose of fitting the men for useful lives after they have served their time.

With the conditions as they are at present, the men confined in the prison are in danger of becoming insane, and are certain to come out in much worse condition than when they went in. To provide them with employment the governor and the board of control will be compelled to overcome the opposition of the labor unions.

Behind the governor in this movement are hundreds of persons interested in bettering the condition of the prison. These have urged upon him some action for relief. Many have called in person. Others have sent letters. All urge the executive to attempt some change.

From the prisoners themselves the governor has received scores of letters. Many of them plead for work, for anything that will occupy their minds. Through the warden, John Cleghorn, the governor has received many similar appears. The warden also favors the action.

When the governor assumed office he was determined to relieve this condition. Through his long residence in Canon City the executive had obtained personal knowledge of the conditions. He has told members of the board and others that something must be done or the prisoners will be merely an adjunct to the asylum.

Those who have heard the governor on this subject say that the details of the conditions created by the lack of employment are such that inhumanity is the only term appropriate. A movesis the only term appropriate. A movement to effect a change was at once instituted and results are expected soon after the return of the executive.

By passing the bill requiring a label on all convict-made goods the last legislature clinched the already strict enforcement of idleness. The bill was aimed at products of penitentiaries of other states, but it has a terrible effect in Colorado.

Warden Cleghorn's assertion that the penitentiary has 200,000 bricks that can not be used is cited by those interested in the reform as only one example of the conditions. There are dozens of examples of the same kind, it is said, but the prisoners themselves are the best illustrations of the faults of the present system.

Proper instruction has never been given the prisoners in the penitentiary of Colorado. If the plans are carried out, a staff of competent persons will be employed, and the unfortunates who are restrained of their liberty will be given an opportunity to learn some trade or perfect themselves in any thing for which they shown an aptitude.

ROBBED AT PONCE, P. R.

New York Salesman Chloroformed While In Bed.

San Juan, May 7.—A dispatch from Ponce says Charles Jacobs, a shoe salesman, representing A. J. Bates & Co., of New York, was chloroformed in his bed at the Hotel Francis, Ponce, Monday night and was robbed of $1000, clothes and jewelry by a man who was hidden in his bedroom. The sum of $800 in checks was subsequently found in the street, but $200 in gold and other property is missing with the thief. Mr. Jacobs retired at 10 o'clock Monday night and awoke on Tuesday dazed and suffering from a heavy headache. He then discovered his loss. The entire police force of this island has been notified to look out for the thief.

SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY.

It is gratifying to notice the extension of the Saturday half-holiday movement in Duluth. For two or three years past some of the wholesale business houses have given their employes a half holiday on each Saturday during the summer months and they have been satisfied with the plan, finding that it did not interfere with their business in any way, while it resulted in better work on the part of the employes. This year not only the firms that previously adopted the arrangement, but many others will grant the half-holiday. Of course, in some lines of business, such as the retail dry goods, grocery and clothing establishments, it is hardly possible to adopt this plan, but wherever it is practicable it should be adopted, as it is certain to result in mutual benefit to both employers and employes.

In many of the larger cities in the East the Saturday half-holiday in the summer months is a permanent feature, and no one would think of abandoning it. It enables the employes to take part in amusements and recreations from which they are debarred when compelled to work on Saturday afternoons. One of the strong arguments in favor of Sunday baseball and other sports on that day is that so many people are unable to witness the sports on other days of the week because compelled to remain at their work. This argument would be greatly weakened by the extension of the Saturday half-holiday movement. Those who wish to spend Sunday at suburban points which can be reached only by trains leaving on Saturday afternoon, will also appreciate the half-holiday idea.

THE PORTO RICAN SCANDAL.

The conduct of affairs in Porto Rico is to be regretted. The exposure of the smuggling cases against the officers of the United States navy has caused a feeling of resentment among the natives of the island, and with it should. Our naval officers are no better than the humblest servant in the land and to release those who were implicated in the smuggling on the payment of a nominal sum has established a precedent that causes the American name to fall greatly in the estimation of the people. Porto Rican citizen. The highest feeling that has prevailed in Porto Rico since the American invasion has been caused by the arbitrary measures adopted in Washington and by the insular government to secure immunity for the smugglers. This feeling has been increased during the last few days by the resignation of John S. Hord, chief of the internal revenue bureau, who had been ordered by the insular government ordered the prosecution of Capt. Dunlap, Robert Giles and Capt. Mentz, while Treasurer Willoughby was out of town, investigating the charges of fraud in Mayaguez. Chief Hord said he was ordered by Mr. Willoughby's orders. This Mr. Willoughby has positively denied. The treasurer is a Roosevelt appointee and primarily stands with the insular and federal governments. Mr. Hord, who has a splendid record for honest, fearless work, promptly offered his resignation, which was promptly accepted. The people and the press are siding with Mr. Hord and against Treasurer Willoughby. The press dispatch stating that Secretary Moody had declared that if San Juan did not cease prosecuting the accused army and navy officials its chances of getting the naval station would be very much impaired, and also that all officers may be withdrawn from San Juan, was generally accepted as a threat and caused another outburst of feeling. Even federal officials criticised the retaliation tone of the dispatch and called the message ill-timed. The smugglers also objected because the secretary gave away the fact that they had "atoned for their indiscretion by paying double the duties they should have paid."

On the same day United States District Attorney Pettigrew moved in the United States district court the dismissal of the indictments against ex-Supervisor of Elections Butler, Robert Giles, Capt. Mentz, Capt. Lowndes and Capt. Crabbs. Judge Holt took under advisement the motion to nolle prosequi the cases, and then followed long speculation as to what he would do, thus keeping up the excitement and suspense. The policy of suppression, so rigorously enforced by the administration at Washington and San Juan has worked havoc with the confidence Porto Ricans had reposed in Americans. A prominent Porto Rican voiced the native sentiment, shared by many Americans there, when he said, pointing at the flag on the building in which the United States district court is held: "That flag does not mean what it did before this. It does not assure justice at all. It protects the man with a 'pull' and has been disgraced. These men accused of smuggling have laughed and sneered and openly predicted acquittal. They were sure of their strength at Washington. Their only excuse has been that army and navy officers have always been permitted to smuggle. As to the insular government it has compelled its revenue agents to be vigorous in prosecution. Now because some Americans have been caught and they happen to be in swell society the throat of the insular courts is clutched and orders are given that friends of the insular government must not be touched. It will be different when some poor, ignorant Porto Rican defrauds the treasury out of a few cents or dollars. He will be punished as a horrible example. This is not justice. It is rank favoritism." Too true are the comments of the Porto Ricans. The United States has been disgraced in that territory.

PROSPEROUS NEBRASKA.

According to all reports the Nebraska farmer should be able to reign as a monarch among the agricultural moguls of the country. From the reports of Professor Davisson of the state university of Nebraska, the value of the 121,525 farms of the state represents a total of $722,010,406. The value of farm products, exclusive of live stock, put on the market last year was $150,000,000; the profit on the investment was not less than 25 per cent. The value of live stock on the ranges in 1902 was $180,000,000; agricultural implements are worth $31,000,000. The amount of money on deposit in national and state banks was not less than $90,000,000. Last year Nebraska produced 46,000,000 bushels of winter wheat and 8,000,000 bushels of spring wheat. The corn crop was 279,000,000 bushels, that of oats 52,000,000, rye 7,000,000, and barley 2,000,000. There were 11,102 acres of sugar beets, averaging not less than ten tons to the acre. In twenty-seven counties there were produced 32,000 tons of clover, 74,000 tons of timothy, 809,000 tons of wild hay and 347,000 tons of alfalfa.

The census of 1900 shows that, of $140,000,000 worth of commodities produced on Nebraska farms, nearly $75,000,000 represented live stock shipped and slaughtered, and the raising of alfalfa, which ten years ago hardly existed in Nebraska, means that every county will engage in the raising of live stock. Last year 100,000 acres of alfalfa were planted, and in a few years 1,000,000 acres will be under cultivation. In some parts of the state this crop annually produces more than the value of the land. In 1900, $45,000,000 represented the value of the grain crops; poultry was represented by $3,000,000, butter by $2,000,000, hides and pelts by $3,000,000. With these figures in view Nebraska can well claim to be one of the banner states of the West.

HAWAII'S DEBTS.

The United States recently sent W. F. MacLennan, a Washington treasury agent, to Honolulu to settle up finally all the obligations assumed by the United States upon the annexation of the republic of Hawaii. Under instructions from the treasury department he will pay the claims beside the balance assumed by this country. The last £100-note of what was known as the "London loan" has just been paid in Washington. Altogether there was a total of $980,000 owing to English bondholders who took up the Hawaiian loan of 1886. The United States had been paying the Hawaiian bondholders, when it was discovered that England wanted her loan settled first, and she was given the preference. There is still a balance owing by the United States on the $4,000,000 debt she assumed, and this will be paid while MacLennan is in Honolulu, as Secretary Shaw has requested that all obligations assumed by the United States be finally settled. Hawaii still has a bonded debt of $9,350,000 which remains from the republic. All of the bonds issued under the monarchy have now been taken up, and only 5 per cent bonds are outstanding.

The county bill has been signed by Governor Dole, and it would not be a wonder if the territory was bankrupt when the measure becomes operative. The law provides that on Jan. 1, 1904, $720,000 shall be paid to the various counties, while on that date there will be less than $300,000 in the territorial treasury, if the other appropriations made are expended. Another difficulty is in the matter of municipalities. At present there are no cities in the islands, but a general municipal bill has been passed and will be signed by the governor, which permits the incorporation of cities with 1000 voters. Honolulu and Hilo are the only places where the law will be effective just at present. An extra session of the legislature will be called by the governor within a few weeks for the purpose of considering the appropriation bills. Though the senate has passed all the appropriation bills the house has not considered one of them, secure in the belief that the governor would have to convene them in extra session, and they would therefore get the added salary of $200 for the extra work.

The conditions in Hawaii are amusing although somewhat serious, and just how the territory will get out of its difficulties remains a mystery. There is an ample opportunity to bring about good government in the Hawaiian islands yet, but who will do it does not appear at present.

GOOD ADVICE.

Baron Von Sternburg, in his recent speech in New York, spoke most aptly when he said that the United States and Germany, in working out their great problems, should use all their power to foster a clearer understanding between the two nations. He said further:

"This is the surest safeguard against future friction. We both have gone through similar trials in peace and in war, and it is owing to these trials that the great qualities which we possess in common have been fully developed. You already understand 15,000,000 of us as well as you understand yourselves; they have become your kin. I hope the day will come when you will understand all of us just as well. Is it not worth while for us to strive to attain this end, to withhold the pin-pricks and to display a spirit of mutual conciliation; to work together for the larger understanding which the interests of the two nations demand? I leave you to consider the beneficent result that would follow. Our future rivalry, be it ever so keen, should never let us forget that our work is directed toward the same object—the perfection of civilization. If we keep this well in mind, nothing will mar our peaceful progress."

Baron Sternburg's words are worthy of deep consideration.

Missouri produces much more coal than the general public is aware. Thirty-six counties in the state, more than a third of the whole number, are coal-producing. Last year's output was the largest on record, reaching a total of 4,061,231 tons, which sold for $5,321,741, an average of $1.31 per ton. The increase in amount over 1901 was 247,704 tons, and $605,410 in value. Macon county continues to head the list, with an output for 1902 of 1,198,133 tons, which sold for $1,330,107, an increase in value of $287,780 over 1901, when the production was less by 172,290 tons. The counties next in rank in coal mining are Lafayette, Randolph, Bates and Adair, the latter having moved up from fifteenth place since 1900. This large supply of coal within the state offers to St. Louis advantages unsurpassed by other cities. The price of soft coal is lower in that city than in any other in the country, and the manufacturers are not slow in taking advantage of the condition.

The Boston Herald, which has for some time past been booming Mr. Olney for the Democratic presidential nomination, has come out strongly for Mr. Cleveland. Does the Boston paper think he can carry Massachusetts?

The Savannah, Ga., News says it would be as much of a mistake to nominate Mr. Cleveland as it would be to nominate Mr. Bryan, because neither could be elected. That, if correct, is a conclusive reason.

The rummage sale season is at hand.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Col. Robert J. Bates, of Sault Ste. Marie, a brother of Dr. Stuart R. Bates, of Virginia, who died yesterday from the effects of an overdose of laudanum, arrived here from his home this morning and is at the St. Louis hotel.

"I haven't any details of the affair in my possession," said Col. Bates. "It was a severe shock to us, and we are confident he took the laudanum by mistake. It is very probable, as I know myself, as the arrangements of the bottles on the shelves in the drug store are such that it would be mighty easy for the mistake to be made if a person were not paying particular attention.

"The doctor carried between $12,000 and $15,000 of insurance, though the exact amount I do not know.

"Laura, his daughter, is his only kin through his first marriage.

"The first I had heard of the doctor's second marriage was when I read it in The Herald last evening. It was a great surprise to me, and to all of the family, for we had never been apprised of the fact before.

"Laura and Mrs. W. C. Cory, the doctor's mother-in-law, will be here today. Mrs. Bates died about eight years ago, and Laura has been with her grandmother at Faribault since, attending an Episcopalian school in that city.

"They will arrive this afternoon over the Northern Pacific road, and will go straight through to Virginia with me on the afternoon train.

"The remains will be brought to Duluth, and it is likely they will be shipped down tomorrow afternoon. The funeral will be held Saturday in Duluth, and the Knights Templar, of which he was one, will have charge of the funeral."

Col. Bates is of the most firm belief that the death was the result of an accident, though there have been some rumors to the effect that he might have taken the poison with suicidal intent. The latter conjecture is all theory, however, and from statements made by the doctor before he died, it seems improbable that he took the poison knowingly, or that after he did take it he believed he had taken a fatal dose.

Edward Kelly, a Canadian government cruiser, and John Sumold, an assistant, from Quebec, are in the city, and will go up the north shore to inspect timber lands on the Canadian side, from which timber is being sent in to the United States. The cut is being made by McArthur Bros., of Quebec, and the Canadian government sends estimators to secure the amount taken out, upon which to base the government levies. The timber coming out of that territory is what is called square pine.

"There have been some newspaper changes at the Soo," said Col. Bates, of that place, at the St. Louis hotel this morning, "and our duties are now out one. We formerly had the News-Record and the Journal, but a couple of weeks ago the Journal purchased the other paper and now we have only the News.

"It is rather peculiar, too, there being a population of about 20,000 in the two cities, which ought to be enough to support at least two papers."

Mr. Bates says the transaction is not in any way a reflection on the progress of the cities, and does not go to show anything whatever, excepting that there has been a transaction.

A copy of a seed concern's catalogue around the house caused the partial destruction of some potted plants belonging to John M. Finkbone, at the Spalding hotel this week.

Besides telling you how much money you can spend for seeds and bulbs the book is said to also have contained some instructions for the care of plants, and when a rosy-cheeked maid from Fond of It, she forthought herself of the beautiful posies in the apartments of Mr. Finkbone.

She had discovered that plants needed watering every so often, and armed with the discovery and a pitcher of water she followed the instructions she had read.

Now Mr. Finkbone, who is a fastidious person, has been in the habit of living a large bunch of flowers brought to his room every day, until recently, when he saw some of the most natural appearing flowers made of paper, and in little pots just like all house plants, and he had them taken to his room for decorative purposes and stopped the influx of cut flowers.

It was not until someone wanted to use some of the potted plants for a little banquet or lunch, that the discovery was made.

They had been watered and watered, and when the maid was told of it she was dumbfounded and inquired in feeling. Of course, having been brought up in a city, she didn't have a clear idea of what real flowers looked like, and she had made a terrible mistake.

There were tears shed—tears of injured pride by the maid, and tears of laughter by the housekeeper and Mr. Finkbone.

POINTED PLEASANTRIES.

New Orleans Times: Von Quizz—What does your friend write? Verse? Novels? Tragedies?

H. Kashe—Great Scott, what do you take him for? An amateur? No, sir: He writes advertisements, of course.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Have you an improvement association in this town?" asked the stranger.

"Well, we don't call it that," replied the old inhabitant, "but a lot of us git together every little while and hangs somebody."

Chicago News: Mayme—I hear you are going to be married again.

Jollyboy—Why, I've never been tied up as yet.

Mayme—No, but I can't recall the number of times you were "going to be."

Philadelphia Press: "Of course," said the funny man, "when you die you'll leave a will."

"Yes," replied Henpeck, "there's one will I'll leave with a will, but it won't be my own."

"No?"

"No. My wife's."

Chicago Tribune: The Doctor—Do you know that when a question is printed in Spanish the interrogation mark is put at the beginning instead of the end of it?

The Professor—Yes; that's the previous question you hear of so often.

Washington Star: "How is your youngest daughter getting on with her music?"

"Splendidly," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Her instructor says that she plays Mozart in a way that Mozart himself would never have dreamed of."

Philadelphia Ledger: Cheepley—I gave you one of my cigars the other day, didn't I?

Bitter—Yes.

Cheepley—How would you like to have one now?

Bitter—I think I'd like to have it balled. They don't seem to be quite the thing raw.

TOO MUCH PROSPERITY.

Chicago Record-Herald: Sad news comes from Oklahoma, where an investigation of the condition of Lo! the poor Indian has recently been made by a representative of the government. It appears that the Indians of Oklahoma are suffering from too much prosperity. Ten or twelve years ago they were busy and happy. They owned land, earned bread of a family had a pony or two, a few dogs, pigs, chickens and other necessities of life, and the days came and went with a pleasing, if somewhat monotonous regularity.

Today the noble red men of Oklahoma appear to be rapidly going to the bad. Their land has turned out to be valuable and they are leasing it to white men at high prices. The result is that the Indians are no longer forced to work for a living and they are rapidly falling into habits of idleness and vice. The report of the commissioner who has been looking into the matter says:

"From habits of industry and thrift these Indians, or most of them, have become idlers and vagrants on the face of the earth. The best friends of the Indians are those who are in favor of compelling them to work. Work is the salvation of these Indians and their only salvation. The leasing of lands has proved to be a great calamity for a majority of them. It would be a thousand times better for them if the leasing of lands was prevented and the proposition presented to them flatly to work or starve."

This will probably be discouraging to people who have longed to raise the Indian up to nobler and better things; but does it, after all, indicate that the red man is essentially different from his white brother? Is the Indian the only one who can't broaden out and progress in idleness?

Didn't Mind Black Flies.

New York Sun: A guide in the Maine woods was bragging the other day about his indifference to the attacks of the black flies, from which those in his party were suffering greatly. A $10 bet was made that he couldn't let the flies settle for five minutes on his bare back. The guide stripped, and the insects came in good numbers and began to bite. He did not wince. Then one of the party got behind him, took a turning glass out of his pocket, and, the sun being out, focused it on the guide's shoulder. The guide squirmed and wriggled. He stood it for some seconds, then he blurted out:

"I can stand all the black flies in Maine, but brush away that durned bee."

He won the bet.

He May Win Out Yet.

THE OLD RELIABLE

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

Prof. Vanderhoff's Conversion

By Ada Marie Peck.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

That a pretty young woman like Pamela should care for the elderly professor was one of the anomalies of life. It was another that he should be so totally indifferent to her evident infatuation.

When remonstrated with, she declared that she adored him; that his blue eyes behind their glasses were mild and kind; that his slightly bent form stood for just so much erudition; that she positively loved the little bald spot which shone out from his fair, curly hair just touched with silver, and that it would be Heaven upon earth to be permitted to copy his manuscripts.

As for Professor Vanderhoff, he was not only indifferent to, but serenely oblivious of her too potent devotion, and was a scoffer regarding her love as well.

What was love in the abstract, the silly emotion young men and women professed to entertain for each other, compared to love in the concrete, as embodied in some statue of love to which a sculptor had put the touch of his genius a thousand years before? The professor would scrape the dirt off the unearthed marble and gloat over it, but would not wipe the dust from his glasses to see Eros hovering close at hand.

The custodian of the Museum of Art regarded him as a fixture, for when the closing hour came he was rarely ready to go, but would present a card, which would be received obsequiously with a "certainly, sir," when Prof. Vanderhaff would linger until the setting sun shone in the sculptors and tinted the marbles with a touch of rose that seemed to warm them into a semblance of life.

He noticed this vivifying effect at the close of an afternoon, and raised his weak alongside the shelves of small figures to look at the center cases. He even dropped his precious note-book in his surprise. "How strange!" he exclaimed. "Number 328 might be a head of flesh and blood, there is almost a lifting of the eyelids, almost a smile on the lips."

He stooped to pick up the book and as he rose saw that the afterglow had died away and the moon had come up and was looking at him with a most human face, so very human, in fact, that it gave him a nervous start. Its mellow glow shone through the windows and reached out radiant fingers which touched the marbles, investing them with an unreality of aspect. He could have sworn that one of the heads moved; that he heard low whisperings. He assured himself that his strange fancy was the result of too close application to his notes, that he was overtired; but notwithstanding his reasoning, felt a thrill of superstitious fear which made his hand tremble as he adjusted the rubber band around his papers and prepared to take one more look at the figure before going.

The marble was not in its place; instead his fascinated gaze saw, clearly defined in the flood of moonlight, a tall youth with the finely cut features, grand brow and noble head he had admired in the bust. The youth remained standing for a moment, long enough for the professor to see the look of adoration and longing in his eyes, then, with stately steps and outstretched arms, hastened to meet and embrace a beautiful girl who glided toward him with radiant face. He held her close with rapturous kisses.

"It has been so long," she murmured.

"Two thousand years is not long to wait for this," he answered. Then with his arm around her waist and her head resting on his shoulder they passed on, the silver rays of the moon lighting up his robes of richest crimson and snowy white, and his companion's draperies of azure and gold making a beautiful picture at which the professor looked with dazed eyes.

"That was Number 328 with him," he mused. "A madonna face that has always seemed to me of the passionless type." Then he took off his glasses and rubbed them clear. "My head is getting confused. Of course I saw nothing. It is just a freak of imagination. It is purely imaginary," he added firmly, trying to be philosophical, and giving a hurried glance back as he hastened to leave the gallery, but pausing and sinking into a seat when he saw the figures returning and heard the distant, multifarious tones of the youth, who was saying to his companion:

"Such a moon shone centuries ago in Cyprus, and then as now the wedded colors of flower and leaf and shrub floated in the window and myriads of insects filled the air with their soft complaints."

"I remember," she returned. "It was the day of the feast of the Catachesimos, and when twilight came we left the palace and wandered in the gardens, where there was the music of fountains and a languorous fragrance which stirred my heart with unrest. Is this love, of which I have read, and the poets sing? I asked."

"And I answered," said the youth, "even so, dearest. It has wedded our hearts so closely that neither time nor eternity can sever them."

"How well I recall the sweet surprise I felt at your words!" exclaimed his companion, looking fondly in his face. "And that just then a swift, straight shaft with baleful eyes fled down the path and I shivered, as if a cold wind had struck me."

"A premonition of the chill to come. That night when you were proclaimed Queen of Beauty, your contestant, Alethea, bore the chaplet of queen leaves and white berries, praying you to wear it when you slept, as a talisman, that the gift of beauty might never fade."

"And did I wear it? I seem not to remember."

"Alas, yes; and the next morning was found with closed eyes and stiffened limbs, while the palace was filled with subdued voices and hurrying footsteps. 'Some venomous insect, some subtle, unknown substance in the food,' the court physician said, and I, alone, guessed, but could not prove, that Alethea had injected an insidious poison in each waxen berry."

"And then?"

"With breaking heart I prostrated myself before Venus, who, ever indulgent to lovers, decreed thus: 'Carve her similitude, oh sculptor, with such genius that it shall have all but the glow of life. After death your statue also shall be chiseled, and twice in a century touched by the rays of the moon at the full you shall both live and love.'

"Then I wrought what people called the wonderful statue of Stephana and laid my life at its feet. Together we, insensate marbles, were placed in the great hall of the palace, but where no ray of moonlight reached our carved shapes, and half and whole centuries passed with our divine gift wasted. Then, slowly but surely, the ages laid Paphos in ruins; we were cold and impassive beneath the sands, until the discoverer found us and brought us over the seas—here—where the vivifying rays of the moon touch us, and where, twice in a century, we shall—live—and—love."

The last words died away in a whisper. The figures glided with rhythmic grace past where Cleopatra reclined and proud Semiramis sat in white silence, and on and on, until they were lost in the purple shadows.

The professor hurried from the museum. That night there was a banquet to be given in his honor. He feared the hour had gone by, and was amazed to find that it was still early, but was in a dazed, contemplative state from which even the clamor of the street railway failed to arouse him, and before he handed his ticket to the conductor he looked at it with careful scrutiny, saying, absently, "Incredible, incredible that it should last so long."

He dressed in the same preoccupied mood and was still preoccupied at the banquet. "Is it not strange?" he asked, in the course of his response to the toast 'Buried Treasures,' that love should last 2000 years?" Then he drew a handkerchief from his pocket and with it a card of invitation.

He wiped his glasses to examine it. It was as if he cleared the dust of ages from them, for in sooth, immediately the vision of Pamela, seductive, winning, winsome, with soft dark hair glowing cheeks and eyes that kindled when he talked of the ingrimes. She was in perfect sympathy with him, and he had never before appreciated their oneness! The reception was that night; he would be sure to find her there, and was impatient to leave the banquet.

He went straight to the tall, brilliant girl who was the center of the social scene, taking both of her hands in a firm grasp, with an almost overwhelming impulse to kiss her as the youth did the maiden. Fortunately the balcony was not far away, and the moonlight an ostensible excuse.

"Love is divine," said he, as they stood looking at the beauty of the night.

"They say it is," Pamela slightly asserted, "it is a beautiful, absorbing passion."

"Yes," sighed Pamela.

"It is worth offering for I have had positive proof that it is a permanent emotion. Will you accept it from me?"

"Yes," softly murmured Pamela, availing herself of the proffered shelter of the professor's encircling arms.

IN MAY.

When grosbeaks show a damask rose
Amid the cherry blossoms white,
And early robins' nests disclose
To loving eyes a joyous sight;

When columbines like living coals
Are gleaming 'gainst the lichened rocks,
And at the foot of mossy holes
Are young anemones in flocks;

When ginger-root beneath twin leaves
Conceal its dusky floral bell,
And showy orchid shyly weaves
In humid nook its fragrant spell;

When dandelion's coin of gold
Anew is minted on the lawn,
And maple trees their fringe unfold,
While warblers storm the groves at dawn;

When these and more greet eye and ear,
Then strike thy tasks and come away;
It is the joy-month of the year,
And onward sweeps the tide of May.
—JOHN BURROUGHS, in the May Century.

Silence Best Becomes Him.

Indianapolis Journal: Gen. Tyner expresses astonishment that the postmaster general and other high officials should have acted as they did in his case, and thinks they have lost their heads. This is probably because he has lost his—a humiliation he might have avoided if he had not acted on bad advice and permitted members of his family to compromise him before the public.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Man Killed Who Was to Be Married Monday.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Devils Lake—Samuel McSherry, a farm laborer working for James Hartman, northeast of this city, was accidentally shot and killed yesterday afternoon. He was dismounting from a bicycle with a loaded shotgun in his hand. The gun was accidentally discharged, the charge entering the left side of the neck and tearing away the left side of the face. He lived but a short time. He was engaged to be married to Hartman's daughter next Monday and Miss Hartman was in the city purchasing her wedding outfit when the accident occurred.

Leeds—A man about 50 years old, giving the name of Jack Grady, in trying to jump off a through west-bound Great Northern freight, fell under the wheels and had his right leg almost severed below the knee. He dragged himself to a schoolhouse about half a mile from the place when the accident occurred. He was brought to this city and his leg amputed. He says he was pushed off the train by trainmen.

Minot—The jury in the case of Mary Frank, proprietor of the Montgomery hotel, charged with a nameless crime, returned a verdict after being out twenty-two hours. She was pronounced guilty.

Edward Kelly, a business man, was held up by thugs on the outskirts of the city. He put up such a strenuous fight, however, that his assailants fled.

A prairie fire broke out near the city and burned over a large area, including Rosehill cemetery. The pesthouse and county jail were threatened and the sheriff and a force of deputies had fifteen or twenty prisoners fighting the fire for a great part of the day.

Olaf Jonnson, of Olga, Minn., was found by the police in a demented condition, his face and hands being badly hurt where he had cut himself. He is in the county jail awaiting the action of the board of insanity.

Milnor—The following city ticket was elected: Aldermen—H. Fricke, Ole Hanson and P. Dietzler; recorder, Ole Senn; treasurer, Anton Berger; justice, Roy Fyles; marshal, H. Landls.

Fargo—Tim Nolan was held to the district court under $800 bonds on the charge of robbing the residence of William Johnson. He was arrested in Moorhead.

Larimore—The 10-year-old son of Mike Shanpurle, a well-to-do farmer, died suddenly. It is presumed he ate some poisonous weed.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Watertown—The 6-year-old daughter of Frank Schmaeling died of diphtheria. The infant son is not likely to live and the mother has been in the hospital in the city for six weeks and probably will not recover.

Huron—The inquest over Michael Burns, who committed suicide, resulted in a verdict that he was temporarily insane.

J. M. Stiver's large barn was destroyed by fire, the result of children playing with matches. The loss is about $700. No insurance.

The board of county commissioners let the contract for the construction of an iron bridge across the James river at the foot of Third street, to the Iowa Bridge company.

Bonesteel—The barn and five tons of hay belonging to William Hamm burned. One man was slightly burned on the hand. The loss is $200; no insurance.

Wessington Springs—The proposition to tax the town to aid the railroad carried by a large majority. License was defeated by 81 to 15.

Webster—Pat Glaser, of Andover, charged with robbery, escaped from the Day county jail by twisting off a lock.

Mitchell—At the session of the city council one of the important features was the acceptance of the plans and specifications for Mitchell's new city hall that will cost $25,000. The auditor was authorized to advertise for bids and the will be opened and the contract let June 1. The council decided that concrete blocks will be used instead of stone.

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high grade mats as is shown in the Northwest.

OPPOSITION IS GAINING

Special Session of Colombian Congress May Not Be Called.

Washington, May 7.—The latest advices received here indicate that President Marroquin, of Colombia, has almost decided not to call a special session of the Colombian congress to act upon the Panama canal treaty. In the election in progress in Colombia the opposition continues to gain and the prospects for a government majority are so doubtful that President Marroquin seems indisposed to act.

The Colombian congress will, however, assemble July 20 in regular session. At that session the canal treaty might be taken up, but in view of the sentiment existing much doubt is felt here as to whether it will be acted upon. This outlook, however, does not discourage the officials here. The United States government has gone so far in its negotiations with Colombia that confidence is felt here that President Marroquin will feel himself bound to carry out the engagements into which he has entered. The Colombian constitution contains a provision enlarging the powers of the executive in case of disturbed conditions, and allows the president to arrogate to himself dictatorial power and go to the length of ratifying the canal treaty without assent of congress. If he does so the United States government will sustain the title thus acquired.

AFTER REPTILIAN REMAINS.

University of California, May 7.—Prof. J. C. Merriam, of the department of geology, will go to the southeastern part of Idaho this summer to search for reptilian remains in a portion of the Triassic formation lower than any of those in which such remains have previously been found. Herbert M. Vans will assist Prof. Merriam. They will be accompanied by Prof. James Perrin Smith, of Stanford university.

VAGRANCY RELIEF

One Subject Discussed at Charities and Correction Conference.

The Giver Should Be Reclaimed, Not the Beggar.

Atlanta, Ga., May 7.—The second day's session of the national conference of charities and corrections today discussed "County and Municipal Institutions" and "Outdoor Relief and Vagrancy," and the committee upon this branch of the work, through its chairman, C. L. Stonaker, of Denver, presented the following report:

In the broad field of public charities there is no distinct line of separation between state, county and municipal charities. The nearest approach to a line of separation between county and municipality on the one hand, and the state on the other, is in the public corrections. Yet even here it is not uniformly observed.

The rapid growth of American cities and great changes in social conditions relative thereto has given rise to the present demand for municipal lodging houses separate and apart from jails and police stations, while the new methods of treating juvenile delinquents by probationary regulations has become so popular that rapid changes in former systems in municipal and county corrections are at this time readily accepted.

Uniformity in the states relative to public charities does not exist. Each state has evolved its own system or rather lack of system by slow process. The student who undertakes to investigate the subject will readily discover that state care has slowly developed from the old colonial town care. The old town almshouse remains and becomes the county poor farm throughout the land, while the development of our urban civilization has brought with it hospitals, infirmaries and municipal almshouses.

Our present day problem is best how to aid this work of separation and elimination of undesirable and unsuitable members of our almshouse population.

The great evil of the county and municipal management for public lack of intelligent administration.

The centralized board of control management for public charities, now so prominently discussed, may well and in the development of municipal and county charities at this time, although the future must show if these boards of control shall eventually discover the necessity of fostering public sentiment favorable to a better administration of county institutions. So far these boards of control have not displayed any great interest or zeal in improving conditions.

Your committee believes that at this time there should be advocated the provision by law, in each state, for an inspector of county and municipal institutions, whether under the authority of a board of control or of a state board of charities or by appointment by the governor is immaterial. The inspector of county and municipal charities under state pay and endorsement, and with sufficient length of term to warrant him in preparing himself properly for his duties, by personal visitation, publication of reports, suggestions and advice, could give the proper impetus to reforms that result in great improvement in a very short time.

The development of public interest can likewise be advanced through the establishment of a state board of charities with advisory power, or by volunteer societies such as the State and Charities Aid societies of New York and New Jersey. The results of this volunteer society work of the State Charities Aid associations of New York and New Jersey are of such a character and value that your committee is disposed to recommend the organization of such societies in all states regardless of whether such states have an advisory board of charities of a central board of control.

A review of the condition of the states of the various states on the subject of municipal and county charities and outdoor relief shows that in very few states has much thought or attention been given in recent years to the important features the acceptance of the plans and specifications for Mitchell's new city hall that will cost $25,000. The auditor was authorized to advertise for bids and the will be opened and the contract let June 1. The council decided that concrete blocks will be used instead of stone.

William H. Allen, general agent of the New York mission for improving the condition if the poor, delivered an address on "Social Parasite or Social Product.' The salient portion of his address follows:

One phase of vagrancy infects a great number of people and represents a great menace to social welfare, the source and support of the individual vagrant and the stronghold of the disease. I refer to the vagrancy of giving, that tramp philanthropy, that superficial Samaritanism, that vagrant interest in one's fellow men, which purchases self complacency, relief from annoyance, reputation for generosity and spurious mortgages on mansions in the skies, from venders of hard luck stories, inventors of mutilated limbs and exhibitors of moral and physical deformities. The real vagrancy is the vagrancy of intellect and sympathy, whether the gift me a mite or a million, which attempts to obtain satisfaction entirely out of proportion to the thought and time expended in giving which confuses alms with justice and relief. It is the recipient who is wronged, not the giver. It is most uncharitable and unresponsible for an individual unlicensed citizen on the street to prescribe for vagrancy as for hydrophobia or typhoid fever. Our problem is primarily to convince and correct this citizen giver, rather than to convict and reclaim the tramp. We shall never be rid of the man who would rather beg than saw wood. We may hope to be rid of the man who would rather give a nickle to a beggar than send him to an agency which can make him self-supporting."

Other addresses upon the general subject of vagrancy were given by Miss Alice C. Willard, of Chicago; James F. Jackson, of Minneapolis, Joseph Forbes, of New York, and Livingston Mims, of Atlanta. During the afternoon sectional meetings were held devoted to the various phases of the general sectional problem.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Republican Member of Soo Council Elects Democrat Officials.

Saulte Ste. Marie—The politicians of the Soo, particularly Republican politicians, as well as some other people, are stirred up just now on account of the action of the council. The meeting, which was the second one of the new board, was a lively one. The result of the last election left the aldermanic body standing five Republicans and three Democrats, with a Democratic mayor. Under ordinary circumstances the Democrats would not have had a look in at the municipal pie, but one of the Republican aldermen became disgruntled and elected to be the whole thing and the outcome is that a solid Democratic board of public works was elected, the members being Mayor J. L. Lipsett, H. D. Rahs and John F. Arnott. This means that all the Republicans in that department will receive their walking papers just as soon as they can be made out. Alderman Forest of the fourth ward was the man that caused the turn-over. Last year he wanted the saloon limits extended to include his property. He failed in his efforts. This spring he still wished legislation to that end. He was sore at some of his Republican confreres and entered into a deal with the Democrats who promised him assistance in accomplishing his desire, provided he would help them out on the appointments. The deal stuck and Forest made out his slate. The Republican aldermen attempted to break up the quorum at the meeting. One of them left the hall and another tried to follow, but was ordered by the mayor to remain. He kept on going out, however, whereupon the mayor ordered the chief of police to bring him back by force if necessary. The alderman then returned under a police escort, and the business proceeded with Forest back of the walk. The meeting, throughout was a warm one. The Democrats are wearing satisfied smiles for the first time locally in several years. Erick Beck, a woodsman, who for the past two months has been in the employ of the Manistique Hardwood company near Alexander, Chippewa county, lies at the point of death at the Soo General hospital suffering from a shot from a revolver in the hands of Robert Bell, who keeps a boarding house for some of the men employed at the camp. The ball entered the left side of Beck's body and has not as yet been extracted. The shooting was the result of jealousy and a drunken quarrel. It appears that Bell suspected that Beck had become intimate with his wife and accused him of it. The shooting followed. All the parties concerned are Finlanders.

Menominee—Lying in the hot ashes, among which were burning coals, of a furnace with his legs sticking out of the furnace door, an intoxicated man was found in the basement of the Turner opera house by the janitor.

The ashes were scraped from the man's face and clothes after he was pulled out and it was then found his face, hair, hands and head had been badly scorched and blistered by the hot iron of the furnace and the live coals and ashes. His identity could not be learned. It is said he crawled into the furnace to sleep.

Escanaba—Mrs. A. Cody, who resides on Oak street, at Escanaba, came near losing her life from an overdose of morphine taken by mistake. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Cody was seized with severe pain in the region of the heart. She called a child to hand her a morphine tablet and the child gave her three which had become stuck together in the box. Without noticing that there were more than one, Mrs. Cody hastily swallowed them and went to sleep. It required the combined efforts of family and physician to overcome the poison by administering antidotes and trying to keep her moving in the fresh air.

St. Ignace—Some time last summer Adolphus Jennessee came to St. Ignace and opened up an agency for the Singer Manufacturing company. He seemed to be kept fairly busy and to have a good trade. Lately he was missed, and last week two representatives of the Singer company arrived to investigate his books. As a result of their inquiry, it is reported, a shortage of $400 to $600 has been found in Jennesse's accounts. The whereabouts of the missing agent is unknown.

IRISH SERVANT GIRLS

Coming In Droves to United States.

New York, May 7.—All records for Irish immigration have been broken during the past four months, the number of arrivals via Ellis Island during that period being nearly 50 per cent greater than in the corresponding period last year. About 75 per cent of the total were women and 60 per cent are between the ages of 17 and 25 years.

Another odd thing is that the immigration authorities have been unable to find any one of the women who has not come here under prearrangement with relatives or friends to take a position as domestic or the like.

The arrival of so many Irish girls was responsible for the opinion that it would be possible to get any number of desirable servants, but those who have gone to Ellis Island or to the Mission of Our Lady of the Rosary have been told that all the girls had positions guaranteed them before they left the old country.

KEPT CLOSE PRISONER.

Mrs. Costello Allowed to See No One.

Buffalo, May 7.—Mrs. John H. Costello, who shot and seriously wounded her husband in the lobby on the fourth floor of the Prudential building on Monday afternoon, is still a prisoner at police headquarters, and is permitted to see no one, except her lawyer. As yet no charge has been preferred against her. At the general hospital the suregons report that Mr. Costello's condition is gradually improved, but it would not be known for several days whether his recovery was positively assured.

What happened between Mr. Costello and his wife immediately before the shooting is still a mystery. It is generally believed that if Mr. Costello recovers, Mrs. Costello will not be prosecuted.

AMERICA IS DOOMED

An Order Given to Break Up the Famous Yacht.

Pieces to Be Sent to Yachtsmen All Over World.

Boston, May 7.—A calamity is about to befall the yachting world—the gallant old America, which won the America's cup in 1851, is to be broken up. She is no longer seaworthy and her owner, Congressman Butler Ames, will have the boat taken to pieces. The different parts will be distributed to yachtsmen all over the world. The last time the old boat was in commission was the day the Defender won the deciding race of the series of 1895 and sent the Valkyrie III, a defeated boat, back across the Atlantic.

For more than half a century the brave old hulk has fought battles with the sea. She was built in 1851 by Governer Steers for John C. Stevens. Stevens had a very fast yacht, which he believed was the finest afloat, called the Maria. The Maria had a long hollow bow, and Steers fell in love with its model, but believed he could improve on it. So he offered to build the America for Stevens, and Stevens offered to buy the America from Steers at his own price, if it was better than the Maria. Nothing could be fairer than this, and Steers set to work on this arrangement. The America was built and was a beauty, but she was, nevertheless, at first a failure; for she was expressly built to beat the Maria, but instead of this, the Maria beat her, and so Stevens would not take her.

The America was sold to five men, two of whom were members of Mr. Stevens's family, and they took her to England and across the Atlantic. The party arrived in the Solent in 1851, "Exhibition year."

A cup had been offered, valued at $500 for the winner of a race around the Isle of Wight, open to any vessel, of any rig, of any nation, without time allowance. The America was entered. Pitted against her were fourteen yachts, the flower of the British yachting navy, the choicest products of transatlantic shipbuilding skill. The starting gun was fired at 10 o'clock, August 22. All the others were away in an instant except the America. She hung in the water as though anchored. Just why the American yacht should have been the last away has never been explained, but in a few minutes the long black hull began to creep up. The America was sacrificing speed to secure the windward berth. When only three yachts remained between the Yankee boat and the lead, the skipper eased the tiller and bore down upon the leaders like a hawk. In half an hour after a bad start the America had shaken loose the last Britisher and was in the lead. Off Sandown bay, the wind freshened to a light gale and carried away her jibboom, but the competitors gained only a few hundred yards. When she finally crossed the line there was no other yacht in sight. Queen Victoria had the news of the race brought to her by a special messenger.

"Who was second?" she asked.

"Your Majesty, there is no second," answered the messenger.

Twenty minutes after the America won, the British yacht, Aurora, arrived at the stake boat and was awarded second prize. For years the "old timers" at Southampton could not be made to believe that the America had been sailed fairly. It was alleged that she carried a small wheel in the keel and she was actually examined by several British yachtmen.

After the race in 1851, the America was sold to an Englishman, and for several years was lost to sight almost entirely. Her hulk lay high and dry on the bank of one of the English rivers. The next that was heard of her was as a blockade runner in Southern waters in the Civil war. She was captured by the United States, and remained government property for many years. At one time she was sunk in a few feet of water to prevent her capture by federal gunboats.

When the second race for the America's cup was sailed, in 1870, it was proposed that the America, which was at the Brooklyn navy yard, should be entered in the race. There was no appropriation available for putting her in condition, she was in need of a thorough over-hauling. There were certain funds, accumulated balances from appropriations made for other purposes, which were used for extraordinary occasions, and the preparation of the America for the international race of 1870 was made an extraordinary occasion. The pretext was made that the vessel was to be gotten ready for a three months' cruise.

The America was copper-bottomed, and new sails were made for her. The latter were of heavy duck, and were never properly stretched, so that they fitted very poorly and drew badly. The America came in third in the race, twenty-five minutes, twenty-five seconds, corrected time, behind the Magic, the winner, and thirteen minutes, forty-seven seconds, corrected time, ahead of the Cambria, the English boat. There were fifteen yachts entered. The America was sailed by a son of "Dick" Brown, the Sandy Hook pilot who sailed the America in the memorable race of 1851.

In the race of 1870 the America was handicapped in several ways. Besides having badly fitting sails, she carried many passengers, who got aboard through their influence with naval officers. When rounding the stake boat an accident occurred to her jib, and this caused some delay. She was not in racing shape at the start, and many yachtmen believe that under favorable conditions she would have shown herself the best yacht of her class in that race, and would hold her own with yachts of her class today.

George Steers, who modeled the America, was killed by a horse in 1853. The America is 83 feet long at the water line. She cost $30,000. As an illustration of the advance made in yachting, it may be said that the Reliance was insured recently for $100,000, which is much less than her cost. At the time of the race the America carried two masts and rigged as a two-masted schooner. It was not until after the Civil War that she was converted into a single masted boat. Several innovations were made in the America. Her ballast was of iron and was placed amidships, which was severely condemned until after the race.

It is safe to say that no other boat has had so much influence in the yachting world as this old hulk about to be destroyed. Not only has the influence been felt in the sporting navy, but one of the highest naval officials in the United States recently said that without the intense competition in designing caused by the frequent attempts of the British to regain the America's cup, the present high speed of smaller types of naval vessels would be impossible.

One part of the America was removed while the boat was in England before the Civil War. It was the American eagle which decorated the yacht's stern. It now hangs over the door of the Royal Eagle hotel at Ryde, Isle of Wight.

HEALTHY HAVANA.

Death Rate Now Lower Than Ever Before.

Washington, May 7.—Havana is now healthier than the capital of the United States, judging by the death rate, as shown by a report received by the state department from Minister Squiers. This excellent condition is due directly to American occupation, the death rate being lower than ever before in the history of the island. Since Jan. 1, 1899, the beginning of American occupation, there has been a great decrease in the Cuban death rate, and for the year just closed it was 21.13 per 1000, while that of Washington was 21.21 per 1000.

The highest death rate in Havana, 91.03, was shown in 1898, when Spanish reconcentration camps were maintained and many persons starved to death. Under Spanish rule the lowest rate even known was 29.30 per 1000, in 1885, and the average rate for thirty years, ending with 1900, was 41.95 per 1000. During the first year of American occupation, in 1899, the death rate dropped to 33.67, while the previous year it was 91.03. In 1900 it fell to 26.40, and in 1901 to 22.11. Yellow fever has been eliminated from the island, and if good sanitary conditions prevail, it is believed the present low rate will be maintained.

COLLEGE EDUCATION

Not Believed In By a Chicago Manufacturer.

Chicago, May 7.—"I take the ground that a young man who goes to college not only is not benefited by it, after spending seven years in time and $10,000 to $12,000 in money, but is most decidedly and positively injured by the college, since he comes out so conceited that he is at a great disadvantage in getting into business, and it takes years, and sometimes a lifetime, to get his head back to a normal size."

Such is the thesis elaborated by R. T. Crane, the Chicago manufacturer, in a booklet of 110 pages, entitled "The Utility of an Academic or Classical Education for Young Men Who Have to Earn Their Own Living and Who Expect to Pursue a Commercial Life," of which a second and enlarged edition has just appeared.

Mr. Crane denies that the college man is a more useful citizen than the man trained in a business house. "The whole tendency of the so-called higher education," he says, "is to puff the young man up with vanity, causing him to look with contempt upon labor."

These conclusions have been reached by Mr. Crane after collecting and sifting a large amount of original data. First, he submitted a series of questions to nineteen college presidents. The replies of those who answered are printed, but this whole mass of testimony is rejected by Mr. Crane as scientifically worthless. Then he wrote 1952 college graduates, of whom 555 replied, largely in favor of a college education. But this testimony also is impeached by Mr. Crane, who thinks the graduates have "stretched their consciences" out of loyalty to their colleges.

BABY QUIRK'S CURE

Of a Torturing Disfiguring Eczema by the Cuticura Remedies when all else failed.

"My baby, Owen Herbert Quirk, was afflicted from the age of six weeks with a loathsome running eczema, almost covering his face. I took him to Doctors ——— and ——— of Victoria Road, Aldershot, and he was treated by them for three months, but got much worse and was a sickening sight to look at. I saw an advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies, and got the Soap, Ointment and Resolvent.

"We noticed an improvement at once, and within a fortnight the running had ceased and the scales were nearly all dried off, and in a month his face was perfectly clear, not a spot left. I have enclosed photograph of him when he was thirteen months old. He is now two years and four months and has never had the slightest return of it. I am very grateful for the benefits derived from your remedies, and shall feel it a pleasure to make their value known. For corroboration of this statement you may refer any one to Mrs. Williams, 45 Michaels Road, Aldershot, or Mr. Gunstane, 40 Victoria Road, Aldershot, to whom we recommended the remedies for a skin humour which they also cured. RESTRAINS MEN

On Strike at Omaha From Interfering With Commerce.

A Temporary Order Issued By the Federal Court.

Omaha, Neb., May 7.—On petition of a number of complainants, including the principal transfer and delivery companies involved in the teamsters' strike, Judge Munger of the federal court last night granted a temporary restraining order enjoining the officers of Team Drivers' International union, local 71, J. E. Crows, president; R. S. Wilcox, treasurer, and Edward Sumner, secretary, together with all members of the union, from doing certain acts calculated to interfere with interstate commerce, and commanding them to appear in court May 20 to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted.

The petition was filed by attorneys representing seven delivery companies, five coal dealers, one lumber company, one jobber and a department store.

In their petition the complainants recite the terms of the contract the Team Drivers' union asked them to sign and their particular objection to that clause therein which provides that "no teamster shall be discharged, laid off or docked in his time or pay for refusing to haul goods to or from any house for a firm, corporation or contractor declared to be 'unfair' by the labor unions," and then goes on to relate particular instances in which, by threats, intimidation and violence, the strikers have interfered with their lawful business.

It is alleged that a threat was made by one of the strikers that if Walter Jardine undertook to do business with non-union drivers, he would be assaulted and killed. It is further alleged that interstate commerce was interfered with when the strikers stopped goods in transit from Omaha to Council Bluffs, and from one freight depot to another in Omaha.

The order issued by Judge Munger is of a most sweeping nature. More than 300 members of the Teamsters' union are named in the order which restrains the men, in part as follows:

First—From in any manner posting or causing posted at or about the places of business of your orators or any of them, pickets instructed or directed to challenge, stop, threaten or intimidate any of the employes of your orators, or all or any of them from proceeding with their work and service as such employes, and from in any manner interfering with any of the employes by violence, threats of personal injury, calling of vile names or offensive epithets, or any other conduct calculated or intended by intimidation or humiliation to prevent all of the employes of your orators, or any of them, from continuing in said employment, or performing the services for which they are employed.

Second—From congregating about the teams, wagons or employes of your orators and demanding and commanding that the employes shall desist from their employment.

Third—From ordering, directing or inciting any other persons to threaten, assault or by the use of profane or vile epithets to intimidate any employe, or to seek in any way by violence or threats of violence or injury to property, or to persons to prevent the employes from continuing in the service of their employers.

The action of the federal court practically takes the strike out of the hands of the local and state authorities, and a violation of the order, it is believed, will result in the calling out of federal troops, if necessary, to preserve the peace and enforce the order of the court.

Large crowds of strikers gathered in different parts of the city during the day and jeered the owners of wagons who were themselves driving teams.

The entire police force is doing double duty, but no violence was reported during the day, and no arrests were made.

Forty horseshoers were locked out during the day because they refused to shoe horses of firms whose drivers are on strike. About fifty of the package handlers went on strike in obedience to an order issued by their president, and fifty teamsters in the employ of ice companies were ordered out today.

The Standard Oil company last night notified its city customers that the company would deliver no more oil until quiet is restored and the strike is over, fearing to allow its oil and gasoline wagons to be driven on the streets while the trouble lasted.

It is estimated that over 3,000 men are now out, and labor leaders claim they will be able to call out several hundred others should such action become necessary to gain their point.

OPERATORS FILE ANSWER

Coal Men Deny That Unlawful Combination Has Existed.

Chicago, May 6.—In an answer filed in the United States circuit court today, Indiana and Illinois coal operators who were recently made defendants in a case started by the government, admitted that they had been acting for a time under an agreement, but denied that there was any lawful combination to fix prices of their product. They declared that the agreement was abandoned before the court proceedings were begun, and that even while it was in force they sold coal at prices below those prevailing in the markets where sales took place. There are ten companies named in the government's bill of complaint and the answer was filed on behalf of all except the Wabash Coal company and Max Eichberg.

The defendants presented figures to show that their product was so small in proportion to the general output of bituminous coal of the country that their agreement could not have had any serious effect on the market. The object of their agreement, they declared, was to increase the production of the mines embraced in the contract, and these mines were operated at their full capacity, while the agreement was in force, exceeding the output of any previous year. At the same time they maintained the Coal Bluff Mining company, one of the defendants, was producing over 70,000 tons per month from mines outside the territory covered by the agreement and that this was in competition with the product of other mines. The defendants say that they are not doing and will not do what the government seeks to enjoin.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to all women sent free. Address

ABRUZZI'S PLAN

To Reach the North Pole Is Certainly a New One.

Will Use Heated Clothes, Heated Sledges and Heated Tents.

Rome, May 7.—The duke of Abruzzi, so far the most successful of polar explorers, has hit upon a new plan to reach the pole. Himself and companion will defy the awful cold by heated clothes; heated sledges, ditto tents, etc., and the problem of transportation will be solved by using chemical food only on the final dash; that is, after the ship had been abandoned, for the time being, and the explorers proceed by sledge and on foot to the end of the journey.

A number of people attended the exhibition of his royal highness' new north pole togs at the naval office. Instead of seal-skin suits weighing twenty pounds or more, woolen undergarments of half an inch thick and boots that feel like a ball and chain on one's feet, they saw elegant clothes of fashionable cut, selected from an exquisite's wardrobe only in as much as vests and coats buttoned to the chin and sleeves fitted snugly at the wrists. Then, too, the topcoat was of silk, the thickest and softest navy blue imaginable. The naval experts and newspaper men looked at each other in astonishment. Carnival was in fact, and besides the duke is a most serious-minded young man.

"I would be obliged if you paid particular attention to the material, cut and make-up of my new polar outfit," said the duke. "Examine the quality of the cloth more carefully, turn the things inside out, if you please."

They did. No jury of tailors ever eyed a lot of disputed clothes more critically, but the mystery remained. How can any man in his senses propose to face winter in the most northernmost parts of the world in garments that, in January and February, would look out of place in Chicago or Manitoba?

Finally the duke put on his new-fangled Arctic overcoat and asked several men in the audience, to place a hand against different parts of his anatomy—shoulders, sleeves, back, etc.—while others took hold of portions of the skirts, lapels, etc. They remained in this position three or four minutes, the duke talking interestingly on the third journey he hoped to undertake with his majesty's permission. Suddenly one man felt a decided sensation in his hand that rested on his royal highness' upper arm. He looked at his neighbor. Secretary of the Navy Morin; the gentleman was regarding his untold hand intently and looked puzzled. A similar expression dominated the faces of the editors, admirals and captains engaged in the mysterious test.

"What ails you, gentlemen?" asked the duke.

The puzzled aspect of the official physiognomies deepened, but no one ventured a word. When the duke repeated the question a correspondent replied: "My hand is getting hot and itches, your highness."

"Animal warmth," laughed Abruzzi, "I have the reputation of being hot stuff you know."

The correspondent kept close watch of the duke, and now saw him push his right foot hard on the carpet. At that moment the dozen hands holding the arctic top coat let go with howls of pain, and the released duke quickly threw off the garment. There was an odor of burning silk and wool in the air.

"Now look at my new design," cried the duke, somewhat peremptorily, "and pay special attention to the inside, if you please." Directions were followed with more zest than formerly, but nothing "suspicious" turned up until some one espied a thin silk cord attached to one of the coat tails. He followed it up; it ended at the wall in an electric button.

Seeing that his secret was out, the duke called in a tailor to rip open the coat. The silk cloth was found to be lined with down, interlaced by a network of infinitesimal copper wires, perfectly isolated by asbestos.

"With a storage battery near I can heat this or any other garment to such an extent as to ward off any degree of cold," explained the duke. "Incidentally, the process might also set it afire, provided the batteries are powerful enough, as I showed you when I melted the two coils that threw you gentlemen into confusion a minute ago.

"Owing to the same method, no more frostbitten feet and hands," continued the duke, exhibiting boots and gloves similarly prepared by electricity; "or if that should be too much of a good thing, there is foot-rug to keep the extremities at an even and agreeable temperature, no matter what the wild winds and Jack Frost are saying."

Furthermore, the duke exhibited a heatable upholstered North Pole sledge, ditto eiderdown quilts, laprobes and every other sore of covering imaginable so prepared.

"And here is our new tent cloth," said Abruzzi, "with a heated carpet on the floor and a tent impregnated with electric fire all around and above. One may sleep on the sledge of an iceberg as snugly as in Adam's lap."

"The heated canvas warms the interior and throws off the cold without. And if there are Polar bears about, why we can shock them electrically before they get near enough to harm us, and have steak for breakfast besides."

The heat needed for the purposes described is carried by each man on his back in a storage battery not unlike a miner's lamp and no bigger than an ordinary lantern. For the sledges primary batteries are used. Nothing simpler can be imagined.

"If the Pole can not be reached by aid of this cold-eradicating system," said the duke, "that region will probably remain a mystery for all time. As the records of my last journey show, we might have eventually overcome the difficulties of navigation and sledge travel if unhampered by the dreadful frost which necessitated the carrying along of great, heavy apparatus, delaying our onward march and exhausting the strength of ourselves and dogs without benefiting us to any considerable extent.

"I reckon that electrically-heated clothes, tents, etc., will allow me to get along with half the number of dogs formerly employed, or, perhaps, with one-third; that means an enormous saving. Then, again, accidents will lose some of their terrors when frost does not increase the discomfort and danger.

"Our hospital facilities, too, will be enormously benefited with heated mattresses, blankets, etc., that may dislodge one particular Polar disease, rheumatism, at short order. However, of the most lasting benefit will be the invention, as stated, after the ship has been abandoned for the time being; that is, in the final dash for the pole. Heretofore, these sledge journeys always resulted disastrously for the reason that, with the ship, was left behind all and every degree of comfort, everything tending to prop up man in the hour of danger, everything to sustain his vital and moral energy. Heat is life everywhere, on the road to the pole. It is three times life; it spells success.

"Here is another novel equipment," continued the duke, exhibiting boots and gloves similarly prepared by electricity; "or if that should be too much of a good thing, there is foot-rug to keep the extremities at an even and agreeable temperature, no matter what the wild winds and Jack Frost are saying."

"Here is another novel equipment," continued the duke. "I have already alluded to one of the difficulties of sledge travel—excess baggage. Heretofore, we carried no end of provisions, heating material, stoves, cumbersome extra clothes, blankets, and tents. Of the last five items little will be needed, as you may judge from not the grocer, butcher, packer and provision problem will likewise be solved most satisfactorily. During our final dash, oil foods in such infinitesimal doses that your dealer will sustain us—everything necessary to keep life in our bodies, and everything desirable for increasing pleasures of living will be furnished by chemistry. Joseph Trepani, the alleged head of a gang of Italians who defrauded insurance companies by bogus deaths, was sentenced to not less than two years and not more than four years and eight months in state's prison at hard labor.

The forest fires that have prevalled in the Adirondacks for several weeks have caused losses aggregating several hundred thousand of dollars and several thousand acres of forest lands have been more or less damaged. The fires are said to be practically under control, although the danger will not be past until a heavy rain has drenched the forests.

DIVERS LOCKED OUT.

New York, May 6.—All the brick yards today began a lockout of drivers, and the lumber yards announced similar action tonight because of the efforts to unionize the drivers. If continued, the lockouts will throw thousands of men out of work in all parts of the city.

YOUNG WOMAN MURDERED

Received Robber's Bullet, Intended For Her Father.

Medford, Mass., May 7.—Miss Nellie Sturtevant, aged 25, daughter of James Sturtevant, of the Medford Co-operative bank, was shot and killed at her home late last night by an unknown man who attempted to rob her father as he was returning from a bank meeting with a satchel filled with checks and money. The assassin then jumped upon his bicycle and escaped. An Italian who answered the description of the murderer was arrested two hours later on suspicion. Mr. Sturtevant reached his home about 11:30 last night, having with him a satchel well filled with money and checks belonging to the bank, of which he was treasurer. As he stepped upon the piazza of his home his wife and daughter opened the door and a few words of greeting passed between them. At that moment a rough-looking stranger appeared around the end of the piazza and, revolver in hand, ordered Mr. Sturtevant to throw up his hands.

The order was not immediately obeyed, and Miss Sturtevant stepped in front of her father to shield him from harm just as the intruder fired, the bullet entering her body with fatal result. The intruder then snatched a chatelaine bag from Miss Sturtevant's grasp and mounting his bicycle rode away.

At first the police understood that the murderer had secured Mr. Sturtevant's bag, but this has been found intact in the Sturtevant home on High street.

Some time elapsed before word was given to the police, but after that the alarm was spread.

At 1:20 this morning Boston officers intercepted a bicycle rider in Commercial street, who looked as though he had ridden a considerable distance, his clothing being mud-splashed. He is an Italian and corresponds with a description Mr. and Mrs. Sturtevant gave of the man who confronted them.

Miss Sturtevant was shot through the right temple and fell dead at the feet of her parents.

Mr. Sturtevant was prostrated by the shock, but this morning he was able to tell the police some particulars of the murder. He says that when the stranger ordered him to throw up his hands, Miss Sturtevant rushed at the man and struck him with her umbrella. With one hand the man grasped at Miss Sturtevant's umbrella and shot with the other hand. The bag at the young woman's waist was seized, containing about $11 in cash, and was probably taken in mistake for Mr. Sturtevant's cash bag.

TO EXTEND THE INVESTIGATION

In Postoffice Department to the Larger Offices.

Washington, May 6.—A far-reaching extension of the present investigation of the affairs of the postoffice department to include the overhauling of most of the large postoffices in the country is in contemplation. This statement was made today by Postmaster General Payne. Mr. Payne said that the increase of $5000 of the appropriation of the contingent expenses of his own office had been made for the purpose of investigating the affairs of the department along these lines. But he admitted that it was not at that time anticipated that the investigation would prove so sensational.

The details of the proposed general investigation, he said, have not yet been formulated, owing to the fact that all efforts are now being concentrated on the investigation low in hand.

WATER CURE IN ASYLUM

Was Administered to Refractory Patients at Topeka Institution.

Topeka, Kans., May 7.—It has been customary to administer the "water cure" to refractory patients at the Topeka asylum for the insane, according to the testimony of Miss Knox, of Topeka, given before the legislative investigation committee yesterday. Miss Knox said that the water cure frequently was administered while she was an attendant at the asylum. She was employed there during Governor Stanley's first term and the head attendant of the ward in which she worked was Miss Houston, who left the institution to be married. It was by the orders of Miss Houston, according to the testimony of Miss Knox, that the water cure was administered.

"How was the water cure administered to the patients?" inquired M. S. Jenks, of the committee.

"When a patient refused to obey the orders given by Miss Houston," said Miss Knox, "the attendants were ordered by Miss Houston to throw a sheet over the patient's head and draw her to the floor. While the attendants held the patient, Miss Houston poured water out of a pan into the patient's face. The water was poured fast and the pouring continued until the patient agreed to obey orders."

"Was this done very ofen?" asked Mr. Jenks.

"Yes," was the reply. "It occurred very often during the time Miss Houston was attendant, which was the first year I was there."

"Did the patient struggle to get away?"

"Of course. But there were always enough around to hold the patient."

CAUGHT FALLING CHILD.

New York, May 6.—A 3-year-old child fell from its mother's arms yesterday through a window of an elevated train on the lofty structure in Second avenue. The mother's screams were heard by two men who were crossing the street below and who glanced up in time to see the child falling and to catch it in their arms. The child was restored to its frantic mother with no more serious result of its thrilling experience than a slight bruise caused by grazing the edge of the elevated structure.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by Michael Sullivan, bachelor, mortgager, to William G. Hinman, mortgagee, bearing date November fourth (4th), 1899, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, on November fifth (5th), 1898, at four (4) o'clock p. m., in book sixty-seven (67), of Mortgages, on page one hundred ten (110) thereof; which mortgage, and the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said William G. Hinman to William Joseph Corcoran, by an instrument of assignment which was duly recorded in said register of deeds' office on July twenty-fourth (24th), 1901, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., in book seventy-three (73), of mortgages, on page four hundred eighty-four (484) thereof; said William Joseph Corcoran having thereafter died, and the undersigned having been, by his last will and testament, duly appointed as executors of his estate, and a duly authenticated copy of the letters testamentary issued to the undersigned, as executors of his last will, upon the probate thereof, by the Judge of Probate of Suffolk county, Massachusetts, having been thereafter, and prior to the date of this notice, duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum thereby secured, with interest thereon from November 4th, 1899, and also in the non-payment of taxes upon the premises described in said mortgage for the year 1899, and subsequent years, which said mortgagor had covenanted to pay in said mortgage, but which became delinquent and which said assignee of said mortgage was compelled to pay, and did pay, as follows: On February 20th, 1899, the sum of $6.46; on October 29th, 1899, the sum of $25.39; on August 1st, 1900, the sum of $41.15; on December 22nd, 1900, the sum of $10.71; on December 26th, 1901, the sum of $10.88; and on February 10th, 1902, the sum of $12.22; no part of which has ever been paid.

And whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of five hundred ten and 99-100ths ($510.99) dollars, principal, taxes paid, and interest;

And whereas, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis county, Minnesota, described as follows, towit: Lots numbered three (3), four (4) and five (5), in section two (2), township fifty-four (54) north of range twelve (12), west of the fourth principal meridian, containing one hundred twenty-five (125) acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-third (23rd) day of May, A. D. 1903, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and said taxes and interest thereon, and $25 attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

MONEY OF NEELEY

Taken When He Was Arrested Burdens Its Many Custodians.

Neeley and the Cuban Government Demand Its Possession.

Washington, May 7.—No decision has been reached as to what disposition shall be made of the money taken from Charles F. W. Neeley when he was arrested in Rochester on a charge of looting the postal revenues of Cuba. Four departments of the government are now wrestling with the interesting problem of what shall be done with the $6234.15 taken from Neeley. This amount, in the original package, now reposes in a big safe in the office of Postmaster General Payne. It was turned over to the postmaster general last week by Secretary Root. It came under the custody of the secretary of war by its having been turned over to him by Gen. Leonard Wood when the latter wound up his military governorship of Cuba.

Chief Inspector Cochran of the postoffice department receipted to the chief of police of Rochester for the money and carried the lucre to Cuba as evidence of Neeley's wrongful there. Gen. Wood, in turn, receipted to Mr. Cochran for the money. When Secretary Root induced Postmaster General Payne to receive the money the latter reluctantly gave the secretary of war a receipt for it—reluctantly because the postmaster general, like everybody who had to handle this bunch of money, had accepted it with doubt and misgivings as to what final disposition would be made of it.

With the receipt which the Rochester chief of police gave to Neeley when the arrest was made on a New York Central train in that city three years ago, there are now five signed obligations out for the safe custody of the money which, in the theory of the law, Neeley stole from the postal revenues of Cuba when he was connected with the postal service established in that island by the postoffice department of the United States.

Soon after he was released from the penitentiary at Havana by the amnesty extended to all American prisoners by President Palma, Neeley, who is said to be engaged in business in Cuba, made a demand upon the Rochester chief of police for the money. He called on the New York official for the money, because it was the New Yorker who had taken the money from him, and he held the New York man's receipt for it. The Rochester official promptly referred the whole matter to Chief Inspector Cochran, who, in turn, referred it to Gen. Leonard Wood. When Gen. Wood exhibited the receipt of Secretary Root, Neeley then made application direct to the war department. Now that Postmaster General Payne has the money it is assumed that Neeley's attorneys will make a demand in that quarter for the cash which he claims is his.

Why Gen. Wood never turned the money into the Cuban treasury as a part of the loot recovered from Neeley is not known, though it is surmised that his legal advisers warned him to keep the money in such shape that it could be returned to Neeley in the event of his proving his rightful ownership of it.

The Cuban government, through its legation in Washington, has made formal claim to the money, and this action involves Secretary Hay and the state department in the negotiations. Months ago the department of justice was asked for an opinion as to what final disposition could be made of the $6000, and Attorney General Knox advised that nothing further could be done until a suit was brought by somebody to determine the question of ownership. Meantime Neeley is insistent for the immediate return of the money to him, intimating his intention to make trouble for somebody unless he gets the cash. His attorneys set up that he was not convicted by the courts in Cuba of stealing this money, and that it is his private property.

As a solution of the bothersome question, it is intimated that Postmaster General Payne will advise Secretary Hay to induce Senor Quesada to bring suit in the courts of this country in the name of the Cuban government for the recovery of the money.

Largest Ship In the World.

The new steamer Cedric, recently built, is the largest and probably the strongest vessel of its kind ever built. When she recently set sail from Liverpool for New York a large crowd saw it start on its first long journey. There is also a large crowd of people throughout our country who are daily witnesses to the facat that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters positively cures stomach, liver and kidney complaints, because it cured them. It will do us much for you, too, if you will only give it a trial. It positively cures headache, belching, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, nervousness, insomnia and malaria, fever and ague. Be sure to try it at once. The genuine is for sale by all druggists and general dealers. Don't accept any other.

GENERAL STAFF

Is Sort of Board of Directors For War Department.

Subject Only to Authority of Secretary and President.

Washington, May 17.—The public at large is puzzled to know the meaning of Uncle Sam's latest military departure. What, it asks, is the newly appointed general staff, anyway? How are it duties to be defined, and what will be its powers? What, finally, will be its relation to the secretary of war, and to the men in khaki who fight the country's battles?

The simplest way to answer these questions is to say that the general staff will be a sort of board of directors for the department, having control over all its affairs, subject only to the authority of the secretary and the president. It will relieve the secretary of all details of business management, and, beyond this, will have for its special duty the laying out of plans in times of peace for use in the always possible event of war.

The war department is an enormous business establishment, through which hundreds of millions of dollars are expended annually. It comprises many bureaus, each with a chief, who must devote his attention exclusively to the work of his own office. All of the thinking, so far as the devising of plans for the management of the department goes, has had to be done hitherto by the secretary of war. It is a job too big for one man. "There must be a directing brain, in order that the army may work successfully," said Secretary Root, the other day, "and it cannot be furnished by any single man without assistants. It requires a body of officers entirely separate from the administrative staff (adjutants, quartermasters, commissaries, etc.), which may be called the general staff."

This staff, which has just been created, consists of forty-three officers. At the head of it will be Maj. Gen. Samuel B. M. Young, who will have associated with him two general officers, Maj. Gen. Henry C. Corbin and Brig. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss. Four colonels, six lieutenant colonels, twelve majors and twenty captains complete the personnel of the new corps.

The head of the corps will be chief of staff to the president. He will act as adviser to the president, to the secretary of war, and also to the chiefs of the various bureaus in the war department. Hitherto the bureaus have worked, to a great extent, independently, often conflicting, with much waste of energy and money; henceforth they will be harmonized under the direction of the general staff and will all work together.

In time of peace the general staff will prepare for war. It will arrange in advance of war the mass of details having reference to the transportation and mobilization of armies and the establishment of supply depots, so as to effect a vast saving in men and material. Such work requires time and consideration that can not be given by men burdened with the current official business of the department. Its value is obvious, inasmuch as experience has shown that previous preparation for war shortens the period of actual hostilities, and thereby accomplishes immense economies of money and life.

The general staff will prepare all information desirable for a military commander undertaking a campaign. Its officers will be assigned to serve with commanders of troops, to furnish them with information, to help in the preparation of plans and orders, and to relieve them of as much labor as possible in order that the generals may be enabled to devote their attention exclusively to matters of the highest importance.

The work of the general staff will include the preparation of maps, the drawing up of schemes for the organization and concentration of troops, and the formation of plans for national defense. It will make a study of military science, in order to keep the army up to date in all respects, and if possible a little ahead of foreign armies. In short, it will put the American army on a proper basis for the successful conduct of any war, so that there may be none of the bungling which made so much scandal in the Spanish war and the civil war.

There has been no favoritism whatever in the selection of officers for the general staff. They are chosen for ability and efficiency only. Furthermore, they will not be permitted to degenerate into bureau machines, through long retention of such duties as those here described. At the end of four years they will go back to service with the line. Thus all possibility of jealousy will be avoided, and there can be no danger of criticism in congress directed against a system which picks only the best men, and which is constantly offering vacancies to capable candidates.

With the creation of the general staff the office of commanding general of the army passes out of existence. There will still be a lieutenant general, who may or may not be chief of staff, the assignment being optional with the president, but he will be a bird of an entirely different feather. He may be placed in command of a part of the army. The president, it should be explained, appoints the chief and the other two general officers; other vacancies in the staff will be filled by the staff itself.

The position of commanding general of the army has always been an anomalous one, the incumbent having a high-sounding title and wearing a gorgeous uniform, but possessing little real authority. He has had no control whatever over the funds, and it has been almost impossible for him to escape friction with the secretary of war. When George Washington was appointed to the place he came almost immediately into conflict with the war secretary, Mr. McHenry. Every commanding general since then has had the same sort of troubles, and Gen. Sherman found his situation so exasperating that he moved the headquarters of the army to St. Louis. As for Gen. Miles, he has hardly been on speaking terms with either Alger or Root, and has been practically ignored.

The project for a general staff was vehemently opposed in congress in members who claimed that it was an attempt to Germanize our army. But the fact is that German military methods are up to date, while ours, so far as administrative arrangements are concerned, is behind the times. The system we have had hitherto did very well for the war of 1812, but military methods have altered somewhat since then, and it was high time that we did something to wipe out an outworn and obsolete condition of affairs.

SHAKING OF THE PULPITS

Is Not to Be Tolerated In the Chicago Schools.

Chicago, May 7.—Chicago school children will hereafter be exempt from discipline by shaking, the board of education casting this mode of punishment into the category of corporal castigation by adopting a recommendation from Superintendent Cooley instructing teachers and principals to discontinue such practices. The action that relegates the strong arm to the pedagogical museum along with the ferule, the birch rod and other cupios was taken in connection with the Sisson case, in which it was charged that a principal had kicked and cuffed pupils at the Ryerson school.

Fred M. Sisson was head of the school and the charges were made by Mrs. P. Gurrel, mother of John Gurrel, a 9-year-old boy, who alleged that he had been kicked by Sisson. The case was heard by the school management committee, which reported that Sisson was not guilty. The report was accompanied with the following recommendation from Superintendent Cooley, which will be built-tined in every school house in the city within the week:

"Any form of physical punishment of a pupil must be discontinued. Shaking is included in corporal punishment."

During the hearing of the Sisson charges it was learned that in many schools refractory pupils are picked from their seats by muscular teachers, who entwine their fingers in the victim's coat collar and then use a physical culture apparatus. Some of the instructors are said to wear rings on their fingers the sharp edges of which sometimes lacerate the necks of the pupils they are shaking. These discoveries are the basis of the new bulletin regarding corporal punishment. The further matter of the discipline of pupils is left in the hands of the superintendent, who is to devise some method of taming obstreperous boys who can not be reached by moral suasion.

The closing of the Sisson incident was marked by letters of protest from the mother of the boy and her friends. Mrs. Gurrel alleged in a lengthy communication that the charges had not been sufficiently investigated, while Bessie F. Spencer said the mothers of three different children had told her of doctors' bills which they had paid for injuries inflicted on their children by Mr. Sisson as principal. All the communications were placed on file without discussion.

PREACHER AND DASHING WIDOW

Elope, He Leaving Aged Companion and Family Behind.

Harrisburg, Ill., May 7.—For three successive years Rev. J. Richard Gulledge was the chosen pastor of the Social Brethren church here, and every Sunday and nearly every day in the week would find him laboring with his congregation. No minister ever appeared more earnest nor labored so untiringly. But this is all changed. Among the most devout members of the church were Mr. and Mrs. James Howe—he a man of some 50 odd years, while she was yet on the sunny side of 20. About three months ago Mr. Howe died, and as is customary in such cases the pastor of thee hurch is looked to for consolation, consequently nothing was thought of it when the widow and her pastor were seen together frequently. The shock came when one night about a month ago the preacher and the widow were found missing, but it was some time before the members of the flock could bring themselves to believe that the two had gone together.

Nothing was heard from them until a few days ago, when Gulledge returned to the city.

His mission was to get his wife to consent to a divorce.

He told her that though he had lived for thirty years and reared a family with her, he had just feund out that he did not love her, that he never had had that feeling for her that man should have for a wife, that his married life had been entirely devoid of love, and not until he met the widow did he know what love was. Mrs. Gulledge refused to grant him the release asked for and he left. A day or two ago Mrs. Gulledge was served with a notice from the Franklin county, Ill., circuit court to appear in court at the present May term as defendant in divorce proceedings brought by Rev. J. Richard Gulledge, and from the officer who served the notice Mrs. Gulledge learned that her liege lord was living at Benton, in Franklin county, with the widow, whom he passes off as his widowed daughter. The affair has been brought to the attention of the G. A. R. post of this city, of which he is a member, who will assist Mrs. Gulledge in fighting the divorce suit and at the same time try to have his pension transferred to her. Former members of his church will also aid in setting the suit aside, and if possible bring them to justice.

CHAMBERLAIN IS OPTIMISTIC

Delivers Speech on Future of South African Colonies.

London, May 6.—In the house of commons today on a formal resolution guaranteeing the Transvaal loan of $75,000,000, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain delivered a lengthy, optimistic speech on the future of the new South African colonies. His remarks were mostly a reiteration of former statements. Mr. Chamberlain declined to give the price or the time of issue of the new loan but said the prospectus would shortly be issued. He explained that it had been decided to purchase all the existing railroads which would absorb $65,000,000 of the new loan and $25,000,000 more would be expended as quickly as possible on development of railroads, $12,500,000 would be spent on land settlement, and $10,000,000 on public works.

The security for the loan was excellent. It would be a charge on the common fund for the two new colonies, the Transvaal and Orange river colonies, whose finances would be administered by the new intercolonial council which was about to be created for the purpose of dealing with the constabulary and other matters where the colonies were jointly interested. This would be a commencement of the policy leading to the federation of South Africa which he believed was nearer than any persons thought. The chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Ritchie, declined to reveal the rate of interest in advance of the issuing of the prospectus. He said the interest and sinking fund would total four per cent, but it would be his hands were he to announce the interest rate alone.

EMPEROR LEAVES ROME.

Several Ladies Were Presented to the Kaiser.

Rome, May 6.—Several ladies were presented to Emperor William today, including Mrs. Meyer, wife of the United States ambassador, to whom the emperor spoke lengthily, showing his familiarity with and interest in American affairs. The emperor also received Adelaide Ristori, whom he saluted at the "queen of tragedy."

The emperor during the morning, visited the site of the Goethe statue and the basilica of St. Agnes, where Cardinal Kopp, bishop of Breslau, a German, is the titular head. The emperor lunched with the queen mother, at the palace and left Rome later in the afternoon. There was a brilliant scene at the railroad station when he left. He was loudly cheered by the assembled crowds.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and catharties, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon for breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

Paris Gowns for the Races

FASHION DEMANDS LIGHT COLORS.

Fine clothes and fine horses are generally seen together, and at the races are always to be noticed the very latest fashions; in fact, the races, spring and fall, are the dates when the new styles make their appearance. All the accessories of dress are requisite to a fine appearance at the race course, and no woman is thought well gowned who has not every detail of her dress correct. The wraps, the hat, the parasol, the shoes, the gloves and the petticoat must be of the latest cut and color or the costume is not thought smart and rarely receives a second glance. No matter how expensive and elaborate the materials used, or how original the design, if all minor details are not carried out a much plainer gown worth only half the price will be given the palm.

This season white gowns are more fashionable than black or colored, and when the colored are worn the lightest possible shades are preferred. There is an endless variety in the white gowns, a wonderful variety—cloth, silk, veiling, canvas, linen, pique, mohair, batiste, etc. For the cooler days the white cloth gown is by far the smartest of all, and in any shade of cream ivory and blue white, and trimmed with lace embroidery and passementerie or elaborate hand braiding. White serge gowns, with fancy passementerie, white and silver, or white and gold braid, are among the newest models, and an exceedingly smart design has perfectly white passementerie, with rosettes and tassels to match.

An astonishing variety of laces are in style this season, the heavy guipure and Cluny, the filet laces, the Irish and Venetian point, real and imitation, and the embroidered laces as well. The straight band down the front of the waist and skirt, shaped to be narrower at the belt and then widening toward the hem, is always smart and becoming, and for the moment the flat embroidered pieces that hang like the fur stoles in straight lines from the shoulders are immensely popular. Blouse waists, plaited or plain, with deep yoke or lace, or with lines of lace between the plaits, have these flat ends of the lace finished with ball fringe, or the old-fashioned Tom Thumb fringe is worn on these waists, as well as on the deep cape collars of lace.

And fringe is becoming more and more fashionable. It is used in all widths, from the very narrow to the very wide, trims skirts and waists, coats and wraps indoor and outdoor, day and evening gowns, and looks delightfully "old thny," especially when headed with but three lines of narrow velvet ribbon. The drooping shoulder being exceedingly popular at the moment, it is requisite to have all shoulder seams made as long as possible. The fashion is one that easily can be exaggerated, and now one sees the sleeves beginning below the top of the arm, giving a most curious effect anatomically, but anatomy and fashion can rarely be satisfactorily combined, and so the fichu, the shirred shoulder yoke and the long shoulder seam must needs be accepted if one wishes to be in the height of the fashion this spring. The white cloth gowns are given the desired long shoulder effect by the yoke or collar, or by folds of the cloth placed below the true shoulder seams, or if folds are unbecoming, the braid is so arranged. With veiling or any of the lighter materials it is comparatively easy to obtain this effect, for the lace or shirred yoke will give it. If not, one of the new shirred stoles made of chiffon will accomplish it.

At the races is a capital opportunity to see all the smart wraps, but no matter how heavy the gown the wrap seems to give the finishing touch. Both street and long coats are fashionable, but for the moment the loose white coat that reaches below the knees is the favorite. The dust cloaks (so called), in reality the smartest, of silk or pongee, are most fascinating. Half fitting, they are so designed as not to give the ugly, shapeless appearance that many of the evening cloaks possess, but while half disguising the figure, in reality accentuate any graceful lines. Two, three and sometimes four capes are seen on these coats, while other styles again have no capes, but instead the shawl collar, which joins in the revers and is faced with silk on which is a heavy embroidery in either silk or cotton, or on one style the collar and revers are faced with figured foulard, the same as is used in lining the coat.

Picturesque hats for the races, and now we see once more the old-fashioned Gainsborough shape, with nodding ostrich tips, flaring brim and high crown, a most becoming style of hat for some women, but emphatically a dress hat to be worn with an elaborate costume and one that calls for the smartest of lace wraps, big cloaks, and which when worn with a simple frock is quite out of keeping and as a rule unbecoming. Large hats of fine neapolitan straw, so called in former days, now known as "crin," and trimmed with ostrich tips, are on the order of the picture hat, and are large and graceful and can be strikingly individual, as the wide brim can be caught up to suit the wearer.

White hats of lace tulle and lace crin and white chip are also dainty and attractive in the extreme, and are also large and on the picture hat type. A hat of white crin, with plaitings of tulle, is as light as thistledown, which, by the way, it strongly resembles, while a white lace and tulle hat, with pale pink roses, looks quite too dainty for any one but a fairy princess to wear. And the parasols of lace, chiffon and silk, with bejeweled and enameled handles, the embroidered bead reticules, for they are like nothing else, the jewels and jewelry, all combine to form a total of luxury and elegance which was surely never seen before this year and which must certainly interfere with the entire attention being paid to the horseflesh.

A. T. ASHMORE.

Motor Hoods And Coats.

Automobiling, like all other sports, calls for a distinctive style of dress. As in skating or in bicycling, there must be no loose, fluttering ends of boas or feathers, but everything must be neat and trim and more or less on the riding habit order and appropriate the exercise that is being taken, for, while the automobile does the work, the people in it get the full force of the elements. A short skirt, but not too short, is a necessity, so as to enable the wearer to alight quickly, and with no unnecessary fullness to get in the way and to be cumbersome and awkward. The coat should be long enough to sit on and full enough to allow of an extra jacket being worn underneath, with big sleeves gathered in at the wrist or made so they can be held down—a comfortable, loose garment in every particular, and yet one that can be made trim and neat in appearance. A small, close-fitting hat should be chosen, over which can be worn a hood, a silk muffler, a small shawl of India silk, or, if it be cold, one of heavy veiling. If very cold, one of knitted wool is requisite. This shawl wrap is supposed almost entirely to envelop the head and upper part of the shoulders. There are also many smart-looking automobile hoods and hats and caps. Gloves should be of heavy kid, of a larger size than those that are worn with a walking gown, more on the lines of riding and driving gloves, and, in fact, anything that is more or less disfiguring can be included in the automobiling outfit.

Motor Dust Cloak.

A shower proof hood of gloria silk in fawn or gray is one of the new things for the chauffeuse. Dust cloaks are made of silk with a soft, satin surface, impervious to dust and shower proof. They come in different shades of blue and tan. Pony skin is an excellent material for motor coats and jackets, being light in weight and supple in quality. It defies the dust and is comfortable even in hot weather.

Even in summer while flying through the air at a rate of speed which is forbidden by law, but always indulged in wherever possible, the draught of air is so great as to make a warm style of clothing requisite.

A point to be taken into consideration is the fact that the amount of dust that the exercise produces soon makes a dark garment look fearfully shabby. So ingrained into the material does the dust become that it is almost impossible to get it out, and for this reason light colors are better than dark ones. Tan covert and even the lighter colored cloths are far better than the dark browns or blacks or blues.

EASILY PREPARED FOR SUNDAY TEA.

Many housekeepers are confronted with the problem of how to provide a Sunday evening tea that will be palatable and not troublesome. Perhaps these recipes may help the hostess who has to be her own cook when the maid is out. Have the tea table completely set for dinner, the butter balls on the butter dish and put in the refrigerator; cold meat sliced and put on the dish it is to be served on and covered with a damp cloth; grind the coffee, put the salad dressing in the refrigerator and have jams and jellies in their respective dishes and set away. Do not try to have hot biscuits, unless you have Parker House rolls, which only require heating in the oven. The pleasure of eating hot cakes never repays your guest for the loss of your society. It spoils the flavor of the nicest dish to feel that you have given extra labor to your hostess, and the thought is often "Give me but a crust of bread and your charming self and I will be satisfied." Of course, a hostess wishes her guest to be honored by some attention, and there are so many things that can be prepared beforehand and take only a quarter of an hour to cook that it seems a pity one so often has to sit down to cold meat, bread and butter, cake and preserves. These dishes can be prepared the day before or in the morning:

MENUS.

Cold Sliced Meat. Lobster Cutlets.
Orange Quarters. Hot Parker House Rolls.
Cake. Coffee.
Deviled Crab. Beet Salad.
Compote of Prunes. Cake.
Coffee.
Lobster Croquettes. Lettuce Salad.
Lemon Pie. Vienna Bread.
Tea and Coffee.
Shrimp and Cucumber Salad. Cold Tongue.
Sliced Oranges. English Muffins.
Coffee.

Lobster Cutlets.

Two lobsters. Reserve part of the coral and pound the remainder with a little butter, little salt, red and white pepper, dessert spoonful of anchovy sauce, a blade of mace and a very little sprinkling of nutmeg. When well pounded add beaten yolks of two eggs, beaten white of one. Roll out with a little flour until one inch thick, cut into small squares, brush over with egg beaten up, dip in bread crumbs and set away until before supper, when fry a light brown. Use butter to fry. Mix the coral with a little melted butter and anchovy sauce. Pour sauce into middle of dish, arrange cutlets around it, cut the horns into pieces about an inch and a half long and scatter them between each cutlet, to give a pretty color to the dish.

Deviled Crab

Drain liquor from a two pound can, make dressing of two hard boiled eggs, rubbing the yolks in two tablespoons of melted butter and three of vinegar, dash cayenne, mustard and salt to taste, using salt carefully. Stir in yolks of raw egg, beaten, and the white beaten, then add whites of hard boiled eggs chopped. Mix with the crab meat. Wash the shells (which come with the crab meat) and fill lightly with the mixture and bake a delicate brown. Baste with melted butter while baking. These require a hot oven.

Lobster Croquettes.

Two cups finely chopped lobster, one saltspoon salt, one of mustard, pinch cayenne. Mix with one cup cream sauce, shape, roll in egg, then in bread crumbs and fry.

Orange Quarters.

Peel and quarter the oranges. Make syrup of one pound of sugar to pint of water. Let boil until at the candying point, or until it will jelly in cord water. Dip oranges in the syrup, holding them with a sugar tongs or a hat pin; put on a sieve to drain. Let remain in warm place until the candied syrup on them is dry and crystallized. Heap on a dish. They make a pretty addition to a supper or tea table.

Spanish Eggs.

Have ready one cupful of mushrooms, peeled, trimmed and cut into small pieces, one cupful of tomato, two tablespoonfuls of tongue, cut fine, two slices of onion, minced, three raw eggs, salt, pepper and a few grains of cayenne; put a scant tablespoonful of olive oil in the frying pan. When hot, add the onion and cook a light yellow, taking care it does not blacken. As soon as the onion is ready, turn in all the other ingredients. When the eggs are set the mixture is ready to serve. This may be thickened with a little flour if desired.

The Month For Cleaning Woolens And Linens.

At this season the grass is soft and green, washed clean by April's showers, the air is full of oxygen, the sun shines clear, the water is purer and softer than at any other time in the year and all the essentials for cleaning and purifying are at hand without recourse to chemicals.

In washing blankets choose a clear, bright day, when there is no other washing to be done. If there are bindings of ribbon, rip them off, and if they are cut apart at the end where they are folded, so much the better. They can then be washed and handled much more easily, and when washed and dried may be finished at the ends with a border of worsted or Germantown done in blanket stitch. Have ready a tub full of warm soap suds, made of white soap. Never use the brown soap, which contains rosin, for washing flannels, as it fills and knots the wool. For every two gallons of water add a tablespoonful of household ammonia. Take care that the water is no hotter than you can bear with your hand in it comfortably. Shake the blankets thoroughly to remove all dust. Then lay in the water and, after "sousing" them up and down a few times, let them soak for an hour or two in the suds. Any specially soiled spots should be removed before putting in the suds. For grease use benzine, and for stains a brush and board and soap and cold or lukewarm water, according to the nature of the stains. When the blankets have soaked enough, begin washing in the strong suds, sopping and squeezing and lifting and dropping until the dirt is removed. A strong man or woman is required to do this work thoroughly. When the blanket looks clean, put into a second tub containing light suds and borax or ammonia in the same proportions as before, taking special pains to have the water of the same temperature as that in which the blankets have been washed. Repeat the sousing and pressing in the second suds. Then rinse in clear water of the same temperature. In wringing the blankets fold and press loosely through the wringer. On no account twist or wring spirally. Hang on a firm line in the shade, where dust or the direct rays of the sun cannot reach them, using an abundance of clothespins to hold them in place.

In bleaching linen wring out of clear water and spread on the clean grass where the sun can strike it. As soon as the article is dry dampen again, using for this purpose an ordinary flower sprinkler. If there is no danger from thieves, leave out over night for the dew. A good, brisk shower is also an advantage if the grass is thick enough to prevent the mud coming through or spattering.

If there are stains on linen remove before bleaching. For fruit stains rub with butter, then scald, holding the linen over a bowl and pouring the boiling water through it.

Wine Stains.—Spread salt over them while damp, then rinse with boiling water or dip in a pan of boiling water in which a tablespoonful of ammonia has been dissolved and lay in the sun. Tea stains, cold water and soap; coffee stains, boiling water poured through; blood stains, dip in kerosene, then wash in lukewarm suds; machine oil or vaseline, soap and cold water; grass stains, alcohol or molasses; red iron rust, a thick paste made of lemon or pie plant juice, salt and starch, then expose to the sun. If extremely obstinate moisten with cold water, spread "salts of lemon," which is another name for powdered oxalic acid, over it in a thin layer, taking care that none spreads elsewhere on the cloth. As soon as dissolved, and it must be carefully watched, rinse thoroughly in boiling water and spread in the hot sun. As oxalic acid is very poisonous, it should be plainly labeled and kept out of the reach of children. It will remove fruit stains, leather or ink stains, but should only be used in obdurate cases, and then thoroughly rinsed out, as it eats the fabric.

ARMOUR IS OUT

Strong Impression That He Has Dropped His July Line.

Market Looks Like It—Flax Active and Very Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 7.—The sentiment is strong that Armour has slipped out of the July option in Chicago unloading the greater part of his line within the past two or three days. There have been heavy offerings of July that it is said could have come from no other source. The action of the Chicago market today was confirmatory of this also, for there was a decline of 1c in the July option there with Duluth only down 8c. Minneapolis only a sunde lower and New York 8c off. The Armour interest in the May option is undoubtedly still held, however, although there were doings in that option today, there being at one time a decline of 1½c and the close being 2½c off.

The wheat market started out weaker today and then rallied slightly, but fell off again and ruled lower throughout the morning. The cables were lower under the influence of the lower American markets yesterday and the weather in the wheat growing districts was generally favorable. In the Duluth market there was an absence of the buying by Eastern millers which has been experienced on a moderate scale almost every day lately. There was absolutely no foreign business doing either. Minneapolis reports the millers there as buying a little all the time and that there are two big lines of it being wheat, there which are not affected much by market changes. Duluth millers complain that prices of wheat are too high to allow sales of flour.

The Liverpool market closed ½@¾d lower. Paris unchanged to 1c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

The Argentine shipments for the week are estimated at 1,850,000 bus by one authority, while another places them at 2,000,000 bus. Primary receipts of wheat were 245,000 bus, last year 1st 1,000 bus. Shipments 520,000 bus, last year 383,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 443,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d lower to ¼d higher. July corn declined ¼d. Chicago July corn declined ¼c and July oats closed unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 562,000 bus, last year 779,000 bus. Shipments 262,000 bus, last year 225,000 bus. Clearances were 60,000 bus.

On the Duluth board trading in wheat was fairly active in the July option, but there was nothing doing in the May option, which closed with a decline of ⅝c at 75¾c and sold ⅛c lower than that. The July option opened ⅛c lower at 76⅝c, sold up to 76⅞@⅞c within the first half hour and then declined to 76@c at 10:45. Within the hour following it sold between 76⅝c and 76⅞c and then held steady after that at 76⅞c, closing at 76⅞c bid. This was a decline of ⅛c. In Chicago July was ⅛c lower and May ⅛c lower. In Minneapolis May was off ⅛c and July a shade. Cash No. 1 hard was ⅛c and July ⅛c.

Cash sales were 7000 bus at May price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2 northern.

Flax was active and very strong, May and July both selling up 1½c early in the morning and then receding ½c. The close on May was 1½c over yesterday at $1.104, and July 1c up at $1.08. September and October were also 1c up and November 1½c up.

There was an advance of ½c in oats to arrive.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 76¾c; No. 1 northern, 75¾c; No. 2 northern, 73¾c; May, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; July, 76¾c; September, 69¾c; Flax—In store, $1.14½; to arrive, $1.12½, on track, $1.13½; May, $1.14½; July, $1.15; September, $1.17½; October, $1.19½; November, $1.18½. Oats—On track, 32½c; to arrive, 33½c; May, 32½c. Rye—On track, 56c; to arrive, 56c; May, 54c. Barley—35@45c. Cars inspected Wheat, No. 1 hard, 25 cars; No. 1 northern, 5 cars; No. 2 northern, 1 car. Barley, 1 flax. Receipts: Wheat, 59,000 bus; oats, 7,200 bus. Shipments: Wheat, 87,000 bus; flax 6,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Developed Weakness Soon After the Opening.

Chicago, May 7.—Favorable weather and lower cables caused an easier opening in wheat today, July being a shade lower, at 72⅝c, and with liberal commission house selling with but little support the market developed weakness soon after the start, July selling off to 72c. Outside markets were also somewhat easier, which helped in the decline. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 8 cars, which, with local receipts of 34 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 122 cars, against 114 cars last week and 121 cars a year ago.

Liquidation supposed to be on account of prominent longs was the feature throughout the day, and within the last half hour of trading a sharp break occurred, July selling off to 71½c and closing 1c lower, at 71¾@¾c. May was also decidedly weak and sold off 1¾c to 1⅝c, sales being made at 75c, but a rally occurred during the last few minutes, the price advancing to 75c and closing at 77½c, a net loss of 1¾c for the day.

Corn opened steady with cables, but trading was quiet and featureless. There was some selling on the weakness in wheat, but the offerings were not large and prices showed little change. July opened a shade lower to be higher, at 44⅞@45c to 44¾c and held steady around 44⅝@⅞c. Local receipts were 182 cars, with four of contract grade.

The weakness in wheat affected prices in the corn pit, but the market held comparatively steady, July closing only ⅛c lower, at 44⅝c.

There was little trading in oats, but the sentiment was rather bullish on the crop prospects. Opening prices were steady on a good commission house demand, July being unchanged at 31⅝c and with light offerings the market held firm. Local receipts were 125 cars.

Provisions opened easier on liberal receipts of hogs and lower prices at the yards. The market was quiet early in the day and there was little change in values, July pork opened 2½c lower at $17.10, July lard was off 5c at $9.07½ and ribs down 2½c at $9.32½.

Close: Wheat—May, 77½c; July, 71⅝@¾c; September, 69⅝c. Corn—May, 45⅝c; July, 44½c; September, 44½c. Oats—May, 31⅝c; July, 31⅞c; September, 29⅝c. Pork—May, $18.50; July, $17.35; September, $16.72½. Lard—May, $9.00; July, $9.12½@15; September, $9.30. Ribs—May, $9.30; July, $9.37½; September, $9.30@9.32½. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 443,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d to ½d lower to-day. July corn declined ¼c. Chicago July corn declined ⅛c and July oats closed unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 562,000 bus, last year 779,000 bus. Shipments 262,000 bus, last year 225,000 bus. Clearances were 60,000 bus.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was active and weak. Yesterday the pit was in doubt as to Armour's position in the market and today they credit him with selling at least five million bus of July wheat. This is the opinion of the market locally. The seaboard reports a moderate export business, but general cash trade is slow. A few complaints from Kansas on growing crops, but nothing of importance. Pacific coast says rain is still lacking and conditions unfavorable. The prospect for no bigger crops than last year. There is no change in the European crop advices. The buying in this market today was of a general character and mainly by commission houses on small orders. Estimated cars, 30.

Corn—The market here was fairly steady. It was strong early on backward tendency of planting, but turned weaker on the decline in wheat. The cash situation is a moderate one. The general estimate is that in many places it has been too wet and the general conditions are rather backward, but not enough yet to cause any damage to the European crop advices. The buying in this market today was of a general character and mainly by commission houses on small orders. Estimated cars, 30.

Oats—The market was very quiet and steady. The prevailing feeling is that the acreage is slightly smaller than last year and that the crop is not making rapid progress so far. On this the country is disposed to buy the September and July deliveries. The cash situation is not much of a factor at the moment. Estimated cars, 115.

Chicago Record-Herald: For two days there has been increasing gossip that Armour was well out of its July wheat line. Yesterday there was a good deal of confident talk of this and the speculative market has not acted for two days as if anyone was trying very hard to support it, and there was especial lack of energy yesterday. If it is a fact that the big packer is out of his July wheat, he has a very much more comfortable undertaking left in the May. There is no question but that there is short interest enough to make it easy to compel a liberal price in settlement. There is no danger of new wheat in May. If Armour is out of the July he is probably out with some profit, for the July sold under 75c in March, and Valentine can be relied upon to scalp toward a profit as well as anybody. The gossip may be all wrong in the surmise about Armour being well out of July, but the market rather supports them. There were quite liberal deliveries of wheat yesterday afternoon, 665,000 bus going into store. A good deal of it is the wheat being made by the elevator people. The contract wheat which is being made with such rapidity is being turned out mainly by Peavey and Bartlett, Frazier & Co., New York wired that Armour had taken ocean freight room for 400,000 bus of wheat.

New York says the government crop report Monday will be issued in the afternoon and not in the morning as was wired the telegraph companies here from Washington.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Our Argentine agent wires that the wheat shipments to Europe this week amount to about 2,400,000 bushels, compared with 2,136,000 bushels last week and 612,000 bushels a year ago. He estimates the corn shipments will be about 1,500,000 bushels, against 734,000 bushels last week and 824,000 bushels a year ago. The weather has continued to improve there during the past week.

* * *

Broomhall cables: Revision of Russian wheat stocks make them much smaller than reported last week, and the decrease in and afloat for Europe was 3,700,000 bushels instead of 11,200,000 as cabled. The correction will probably be made next week publicly.

* * *

Cincinnati Price Current: Wheat condition further lowered moderately, general average remains good. Corn planting progressed more favorably past few days, but still backward. Week unfavorable for oats, some re-seeding, timothy prospects very good.

INVESTIGATE SCHEDULES

St. Paul, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—In order to effectually dispose of all the rate troubles on the iron ore roads, the state railroad and warehouse commission has decided to investigate the schedules in force on merchandise at the same time as the inquiry is made into the rates now in force on coal and lumber on those lines.

The coal and lumber hearing has been set for next Wednesday and that on merchandise rates will be held immediately at the close of the first hearing. The purpose of the commission is to have these rates readjusted to bring them more in conformity with the schedules prevailing on similar articles in other parts of the state. Owners of independent mines in the iron regions and the consumers generally, most of whom are employes of the iron companies, will be benefited by the proposed readjustment.

Any readjustment ordered will reduce the cost of provisions to those working for wages for the iron companies, and numerous complaints have from time to time been presented to the commission concerning the alleged exorbitant rates now in force. No special complaint has been received of late which would justify a special hearing, but as the question of the coal and lumber rates is to be decided, the members of the commission thought it best to dispose of the other at the same time, when all the parties interested will be represented. The railroads in the case are the Duluth & Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe & Northern.

FLEET FOR SALONICA.

Paris, May 7.—A division of the French Mediterranean fleet has been ordered to sail tonight for Salonica.

PRICES OF STOCKS

Sagged on Limited Trading But Rallied Near the Close.

Strength of Copper Had a Temporary Sustaining Force.

New York, May 7.—Disappointment in London over the retention of the bank of England rate reflected some depression here at the opening in the international stocks, but there was strength at other points. There was a string of transactions in Rock Island, which lifted it ¾. St. Louis & San Francisco rose 1½ and Mexican National preferred about a point. Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred sold 5 points over the preceding sale prices.

Profit taking in Rock Island and a rise in Missouri Pacific, rendered the trading in the other speculative favorites confusing for a time. But before 11 o'clock the pressure of selling orders carried the entire market under yesterday's close except Amalgamated, which moved upward a point. St. Louis & San Francisco lost its rise and the second preferred. Toledo, St. Louis & Western, Delaware & Hudson, Pacific Coast and Sloss-Sheffield, lost 1½@2. New York & New Jersey Telephone advanced 1½ and Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. a point.

The strength of copper had a temporary support, but prices dropped again. Losses were not in excess of fractions, except in Atchison and Metropolitan Street railroad, which lost a point; Gas 1½, and Pacific Coast second preferred 2½. Apprehension of gold exports had a depressing influence. Bonds were steady at noon.

Increasing offerings of western stocks were made, which fell a fraction all around and the overnight loss reached about a point in Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Union Pacific, Sugar and Metropolitan, and 2⅜ in Colorado Fuel. A spasmodic rally of 2 points in Colorado Fuel caused a pause in the decline. The lack of support for various prominent stocks discouraged the bulls and prices were easily forced lower. Southern Pacifics, Reading, St. Paul and Rock Island were the especial points of attack and lost a point each as did also a few minor stocks. Delaware & Hudson dropped 2⅜.

Prices continued to sag on a limited volume of dealings. Central of New Jersey lost 2, Northwestern, 1¾ and Pennsylvania, Louisville and Nashville, Illinois Central, Chicago Great Western, Reading first preferred and a number of the Gould Southwestern a point or more. American Express rose 3. There were a few slight rallies and the closing was about steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: There seems to be pretty good proof in support of the rumor which Wall street had yesterday that the Rock Island-Frisco deal is again on. An authority on these stocks said that at no time has the deal been definitely off, but the postponement of the plans for two reasons—one was the Northern Securities decision and the other was the difference of opinion as to the commission to be paid to J. P. Morgan & Co. The Moores are reported to have declined to pay the commission which Morgan & Co. asked for its services as brokers in the deal. It is now said that Mr. Morgan's partners in the absence of Mr. Morgan have consented to a re-arrangement of the commission to meet the views of the other parties to the deal.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Many low industrials offer good prospect for profit at little risk. International Paper preferred has always paid 4 per cent dividends regularly. The common stock bulged up yesterday to near 19 and may react a point or two, but is likely to sell in the thirties within a reasonable time. Leather preferred sold yesterday at the highest price on record, but the common is where it was years ago. Hide and Leather preferred is down 50 points and might easily regain a third to a half of its loss and so on with many others. Of course, the high priced stocks are better but they cost more. Subject to normal reactions of a point or two I am a bull on this market and expect materially higher prices before July. Recessions will be in order this afternoon, but if weak Friday morning stocks should be bought.

* * *

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Speculative sentiment despite the continued dullness in the market is optimistic and the best opinions favor the purchase of stocks on moderate recessions. There is talk of a reduction in the Bank of England's rate of discount today. Locally time money is extremely easy and some excellent judges of the situation think that their loans carrying borrowers over January 1 next will soon be obtainable at five per cent flat. They are now quoted at 5¼ to 5½ per cent. The railroad earnings which have been reported this week have amazed pessimists. The government crop report to be issued Monday, though expected to show a general lowering in the condition of winter wheat, is likely to indicate a crop over 500,000,000 bushels. The bond department of the stock exchange reflects improvement and the labor situation is less disturbing than for some time. Such are the points made by conservative houses in favor of a higher range for stocks, preferably Missouri Pacific, of which there is said to have been large absorptions by the Gould-Rockefeller interests and Atchison, which has also been accumulated by capitalists who were instrumental in advancing the stock to 96 less than a year ago. There are predictions long before the St. Louis exposition is open Missouri Pacific will be placed on a six per cent dividend basis. The buying of Rock Island is one intimation that this stock will get a dividend in August. Big earnings and favorable dividend prospects are used as a bull argument on the Coalers and many traders are so impressed by these that they are willing to buy the stocks and take the chances of the government bringing suit against the coal trust. Norfolk, C. & O., and Erles are the coal stocks most in favor and there is talk of much better prices for them during the next few weeks. Recent efforts to inject politics into stock market conditions have not been very successful. It is argued that the presidential campaign conventions being a year off are too far in the future to cut much of a figure speculatively.

* * *

Coe Commission Co.: The market opened practically unchanged with the exception of a few of the leading securities, which showed a fractional advance. The market remained dull and steady until about the noon hour, when a slight selling movement took place. The market is very dull and narrow. The rumor that the government crop report to be issued next Monday would show a slight falling off in the condition of the growing crop tends to confine operations to a limited degree. Even if all these pessimistic predictions of the bearishly inclined traders were to come true it would only cause a slight temporary set-back, but we don't believe they will even get that much satisfaction. Stocks are a purchase on the enormous earnings of the railroads and the general prosperity of the country.

* * *

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Amalgamated showed strength on the advance in the price of metal in London. The movement seemed rather manipulated, but it is said there was a short interest of about 15,000 shares and there was some hope of forcing it in.

* * *

New York to Coe Commission Co.: It is declared that M., K & T., has largely completed its extraordinary improvements and is in a position where it can begin the payments of dividends upon its $13,000,000 of pfd stock.

* * *

Walker Bros. to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was extremely dull all day with a declining tendency. The Wabash and C. P. & I. sold off a point or more. There was no special feature to the market and commission business was light. We look for a somewhat narrow market for some days to come. If the market opens no higher tomorrow we are disposed to think that stocks can be bought for a turn, although advantage should be taken of any rallies to secure profits.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is heavy and lower. It reflects simply a repetition of the experiences of the last eight months. Two or three days of strength is followed by an effort to sell some stocks and the buyers are lacking. Country shows no disposition to invest and the load is too big for Wall street. London is rather flat. The plain fact remains, however, that the total volume of transactions on the New York stock exchange is to small to maintain a bull market and that the market is all the time sensitive to anything unfavorable. The market is constantly in danger of gold exports. We think stocks should be sold on the hard spots.

* * *

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was quiet and irregular, influenced by lower range of prices from London. Missouri Pacific was strong on purchase of 50,000 shares by Gould brokers and the belief that the pool was preparing to advance the stock on any evidence of outside interests. In the early part upon the market eased off under offerings of traders and rumors that French fleet had been ordered to Salonika thereby opening up of the present Eastern question. The rise in Amalgamated was continued by the same interests who advanced and we consider that this stock is book for considerably higher prices.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper is firmer. London quotations came higher again today. New York advices state that Calumet and Hecla and other large producers are holding their copper for 15½. The same reports are being circulated that some lots of lake are offered below 15 cents. There was a further improvement in the buying demand for Amalgamated and other coppers and it looks as though we would have a higher range of prices.

* * *

W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: Directors of the Greene consolidated say of the 2 per cent dividend just declared, that it was decided to pay merely "a dividend of 2 per cent" in view of the fact that during the months of November, December and January the production of copper was less than the designed capacity of the plant owing to the impossibility of obtaining coke and coal in sufficient quantities, and further in view of considerable expenditures authorized for improvements at Cananea for the purpose of increasing the output of copper and reducing the cost of production.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 7.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance $223,697,447; gold, $110,499,979; silver, $21,951,140; U. S. notes, $5,568,550; treasury notes of 1890 $58,881; national bank notes, $2,956,194; total receipts this day, $1,723,370; total receipts this month, $9,576,194; total receipts this year, $476,295,829; total expenditures this day $1,680,000; total expenditures this month, $10,050,000; total expenditures this year $441,049,855; deposits in national banks $155,354,572.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 7.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 25@30 points, and without being active was very nervous and irregular with a disposition to sell the new crop positions on better weather, although operations in this direction were checked by the continued supremacy of the bull pool as to the old crop positions. Towards noon there was a net rise of 35@43 points on the old crop months and 16@23 points on the new crop months, public orders were scarce on account of manipulation and the volume of business was small.

Cotton spot closed dull, 10 points higher. Mid ups, 10.95; mid gulf, 11.20. Sales, 6721 bales. Cotton futures closed very steady. May, 10.86; June, 10.21; July, 10.15; August, 9.79; September, 9.05; October, 8.74; November, 8.66; December, 8.66; January, 8.66.

DECREASE IN COMMERCE.

London, May 7.—The April statement of the board of trade shows decreases of $11,988,000 in imports and of $1,780,500 in exports.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Weather Service Used More Than Ever By Ship Masters.

Steamer Easton Is the Boat Capt. Singer Is Buying.

In an article written for the 1903 Ship Masters' Directory, Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, discusses the storm warning service for mariners which is maintained by the government weather bureaus throughout the country.

"The weather bureau," the article states, "employs every means at its disposal to convey to ship masters information regarding approaching storms, and its daily forecasts of wind force and direction and weather and special storm warnings are given the widest possible distribution and prominent display at upward of 100 storm warning display stations on the lakes.

"The facilities thus afforded by the weather bureau for furnishing information to the ship master, lead up to a point where, in order to profit by the information, the ship master must perform his share of the co-operative work and I am free to admit that in my experience the ship masters of the great lakes are recognizing more and more the business necessity of taking advantage of the knowledge at their disposal, not only as relates to storms, but also as it applies to the ordinary winds and weather that may even in a slight degree aid or impede their daily runs."

"The Duluth office is being used more and more each season by the lake captains," said Mr. Richardson, of the local bureau in speaking of the article by Mr. Moore. "They are recognizing the importance of the service and it is the usual custom of the catains to ring up the office just before leaving port and secure the latest report of the wind and weather. When we are installed in the new building, which is being planned for us Duluth will have the best of facilities for furnishing such information to lake seamen."

THE STEAMER EASTON.

That Is Boat Which Capt. Singer Is Buying.

The steamer which was reported last evening to have been purchased by Capt. Singer, of the White Line Transportation company has proved to be the steamer Easton, of the Dunkley-Williams Transportation company.

The Easton was formerly on the run between South Haven and Chicago. She is a propeller of 460 gross tons. Her length is 155 feet, her beam 30 feet and her depth 10 feet. She is rated A 1½ and was built in 1896 at Baltimore, Md. The price said to have been paid was $50,000.

The Easton is guaranteed to make sixteen miles an hour and is licensed to carry 300 excursionists. She will replace the Iroquois on the run between Duluth and the copper country, Isle Royale and Port Arthur. The Bon Ami, of the White line, will make the run between Duluth and Ashland and the Mabel Bradshaw will take the north shore run.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY.

Stony Point Station Has Power to Reach Duluth.

Experiments with wireless telegraphy, which are being conducted at lower lake ports are proving highly satisfactory. The stations at Stony Point and Cleveland have been completed and the Detroit and Chicago stations will be completed within the present month. The Stony Point station will have sufficient power to communicate with Duluth should a station be established at this port.

The steamer City of South Haven, of the Dunkley-Williams line, will be equipped with the wireless apparatus for experimental purposes. Some of the steamers of the Goodrich line will also have the apparatus installed and other lines are only awaiting the result of the experiments with the City of South Haven to adopt the system.

The experiments are being watched with eager interest by vessel owners at the different lake ports.

The De Forest system of wireless telegraphy is being used.

THE PARENT HERE.

Arrives With Limestone on Her Maiden Trip.

The steamer S. N. Parent arrived in port this morning with a load of limestone from Kelly's island.

The Parent is one of the new boats of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation company, and this was her maiden trip. She is the first of the new fleet of the Great Lakes St. Lawrence company to arrive at Duluth. Ten new vessels have been built for this line. They will carry grain and package freight between Duluth and Quebec.

The Parent left Detroit on May 1 for Kelly's island. It is the first time in many years that a new boat has started on her first trip on Friday, but in this case the old superstition of sailors was overlooked.

WALDO AND VIKING RELEASED.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer Waldo was released by the tug General last night, and passed down at 8a. m., apparently uninjured. The General also released the Viking, which proceeded on her way. The lightered cargo was replaced on the steamer Leonard, and she left at midnight for Duluth.

THE BOTHNIA SOLD.

Kingston, Ont., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Montreal Transportation company has purchased the steamer Bothnia from the Pennsylvania Coal company. The Bothnia has been engaged in carrying coal from Charlotte to Ogdensburg. The new owners will use the steamer in general lake transportation.

PASSED DETROIT.

Detroit, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Up: Lafayette, 10:30 last night; Chemung, 11:40; Colonel, midnight; Wisconsin, 12:40 a. m.

RUMORS OF SMALLPOX

Reports From Hibbing That Are Apparently Exaggerated.

Persistent rumors are afloat in the city of a serious outbreak of a malignant form of smallpox at Hibbing. Parties returning from Hibbing report the presence of cases of severe smallpox there, the number of cases given differing from a few up to twenty or thirty. One report gives even a higher number of cases. There is much reason to believe the rumors are exaggerated.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern company is thoroughly fumigating its cars and a physician is present at the depot to see that no suspected cases get on the cars. The management of the Missabe road has been informed by the health authorities at Hibbing that all cases are under strict quarantine and that the situation has developed into a scare more than anything else. Efforts were being made this afternoon by the railway officials to learn the exact conditions of affairs at Hibbing and whether any member of the state board of health has been sent here in connection with the reported outbreak.

One of the county commissioners stated this afternoon that he had heard smallpox is prevalent at Hibbing and that there were as high at 31 cases, but that the report had not been confirmed.

Dr. R. C. Reed, health officer of Hibbing, in talking of the matter over the telephone today, denied that there were any cases in Hibbing of a more violent type of smallpox than has been prevalent for some time in the Northwest. There are some cases, he said, but they are all well under quarantine and there is no cause for alarm.

ENTHUSIASTIC A. O. H. MEETING

Degree Work Exemplified and Excellent Progress Reported.

Division No. 1, A. O. H., of this city, held its last meeting of the year last evening in Odd Fellows' hall. The attendance of the members was very large. The degree team of the division exemplified two degrees of the order on a large class of new candidates, who were initiated into the order.

Duluth Hibernians are building up a large division in this city and are working hard enthusiastically with that end in view. They hope to reach the 301 mark before the end of the year and intend to have a large delegation at the next state convention. A large number of applications for membership were received at the meeting.

At the close of the regular business of the society appropriate remarks were made by a number of the members for the good of the order. State Treasurer John Flood reported his visit to Division No. 2 at Eveleth. He said the range town will have a flourishing division within a few months, the members taking great interest in the work of the order. An effort is to be made to organize a number of the other range towns, and the local division will use every means in its power to accomplish the good work.

METROPOLITAN HANDICAP

Won By Gunfire, With Old England Second.

New York, May 7.—Gunfire wins the Metropolitan handicap; Old England, second; Luxeaste, third. Time, 1:38⅘.

The time for the race, 1:38⅘, breaks the track record for the distance.

HERMIT MURDERED.

Lancaster, Pa., May 7.—Isaac Stigler, aged 55, a farmer living in Rapho township, was murdered last night, presumably for his money. For 20 years Stigler has lived the life of a hermit. About a week ago he displayed a bag containing about $5. Last night neighbors heard a pistol shot and today, Stigler's body was found lying across across the doorsill of his house. The bag of money was gone.

Actors, Singers, Talkers.—Are all more or less subject to bad throat, hoarseness, tonsilitis and catarrh. Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder never disappoints. "I can but proclaim Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder a wonderful medicine for actors, singers and public speakers. Myself and my wife have tried everything, but have never found anything to equal this great remedy for quick action; it certainly is a wonderful worker."—Al. Emmett Foster, New York City. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.—25.

LABOR DEMAND IS PICKING UP

Large Number of Orders —Elkins Law Complained of.

A renewal of activity in employment circles over the Northwest was apparent today by the large number of orders that were received at the local employment offices and the number of men that were being sent out of the city to the work. Employers of labor are complaining that the Elkins law has put them at a disadvantage this year, for the reason that the railroad companies have refused to give special rates on crews of men that are being sent out to work in Minnesota and Wisconsin away from the head of the lakes. Last season some of the roads made special rates for parties of ten or more. Sometimes as high as 30 and 40 men were sent out at a time and the saving of fare amounted to a considerable figure. This year no special rates being given the men are refusing to consider jobs that will take them some distance from the city and for which the regular fare is said to be excessive when the amount of wages paid is taken into consideration.

THE BOAT CLUB.

Secures Andrew O'Dea as Trainer For Two Months.

The Duluth Boat club has decided to issue ten more life memberships. The club desires to have the new building as free from debt as possible when it is opened and the memberships have been placed on sale to clear up the indebtedness incurred by the expense of the new club house.

The new memberships will be sold for $150 each. There are at present forty life members. The original forty life memberships were sold at $100 each.

Life membership in the club carries with it freedom from all dues and further expenses.

Andrew O'Dea, the University of Wisconsin trainer, has been secured by the club to catch the crews and will spend two months of the summer in Duluth.

THEFT AND MORPHINE.

What Catherine Winner is Charged With.

She was tall and divinely spare, wore one of those extravagantly negligee "Japanese" kimonas, and a grief-twisted expression.

She was charged with petty larceny and surcharged with morphine. When arraigned in the municipal court she tried to cry but instead of producing moisture her efforts only produced a dust.

"What have you been drinking?" inquired the court.

"You are wrong again, my dear judge—you are wrong again. I've not been drinking. Here I'll show you what it is," and reaching down in the top of her shoe she produced a small bottle of white powder.

Her name is Catherine Winner and she does not look the part. Tomorrow morning she will be tried on a charge of stealing a dress from a little girl about half her size.

EIGHT WERE KILLED.

Fatal Cave-in Of Tunnel Near Egleston, Va.

Huntington, W. Va., May 7.—A special from Bluefield to the Herald says: A tunnel on the Norfolk & Western railroad caved in, near Egleston, Va., last night, burying fifteen men beneath hundreds of tons of dirt. Eight were instantly killed, their bodies having been recovered. Two others were taken out alive but they cannot recover. Names of dead unobtainable. Traffic suspended. All parties were colored.

IN CALIFORNIA.

President Makes First Speech In Golden State.

Barstow, Cal., May 7.—President Roosevelt, who entered California last night made his first speech in this state here this morning. The stop here was for ten minutes and the president's address was necessarily brief. Secretary Moody and Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the university of California, will joint the president at Redlands today and go through the state with him. Governor Pardee will also meet the president at Redlands and will formerly welcome him to the state.

TWELVE MEN CREMATED.

St. Paul, May 7.—A Winnipeg special to The Dispatch says: Twelve men were burned to death and eight seriously injured in a wreck fifty miles west of Port Arthur, Ont. The caboose was attached to a tie-train which left the track. the car was overturned and took fire with the above results. Owing to a heavy windstorm the wires are in bad shape today and details are meagre.

PHYSICIANS IN SESSION

New Orleans, May 7.—Five hundred doctors gathered at the Charity hospital today to witness another demonstration by Dr. Adolph Lorenz of his method of bloodless surgery.

The house of delegates continued its session today, taking up the matter of the proposed revision of the code of ethics.

The American Medical Temperance association listened to a paper by President W. A. Hall, of Chicago, on nature immunization of the race against liquors.

Dr. W. L. Rodman, of Philadelphia, in behalf of the portrait committee of the American Medical association, has presented for the hall of fame a portrait of Dr. Hunter McGuire, of Virginia, a distinguished Confederate surgeon and former president of the association.

Dr. W. A. Saunders, of Alabama; Dr. R. D. Murray, of the Marine hospital service, and Dr. J. M. Lindsay, of Cuba, participated in an interesting discussion before the section on hygiene on the question of health powers and their exercise by the national state, country and municipal authorities. The section also listened to an interesting paper on leprosy by Dr. Isadore Dyer, of Louisiana, and Dr. Dyer invited a party of the doctors to visit the Louisiana leper hospital today. The section nominated for officers today: Dr. G. T. Swartz, of Rhode Island, president, and Dr. John Fulton, of Maryland, for secretary. Dr. Joseph McFarland, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the section on pathology and physiology, and Dr. Henry A. Christian, of Boston, secretary.

IN CONVENTION.

Teachers Learn Something Not In the Class Books.

A number of young women attending a teachers' convention at Oklahoma City some time ago learned a valuable lesson in hygiene through a sister teacher, who says: "About a year ago I had my first attack of poor health, and it seemed a terrible thing for me for I had always been so well and strong. My stomach distressed me terribly; it seemed like it was raw, especially after breakfast, and it would burn and hurt me so I could not rest. I was soon convinced that it was caused by coffee drinking and at the request of a friend I gave up coffee and began to use Postum Coffee.

"The change in my condition was something marvellous. I had actually given up teaching because doctors were unable to help my stomach trouble, but since I quit coffee and used Postum my troubles have disappeared and I have gone to teaching again.

"Some time ago I attended a convention at Oklahoma City and determined to have Postum at my boarding house, where there were eight other teachers, four of them suffering from coffee sickness. My landlady did not make the Postum right, but I showed her how, and we all found it delicious. We all drank it the rest of the time we were there and the young ladies in question felt much better and declared that their heads were much clearer for study and their general health much improved. I have their names if you care for them." Names furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SHERIFF HAS SIX

Who Are Implicated In Little River Murder.

Caruthersville, Mo., May 7.—Sheriff J. A. Franklin has returned from the Little River neighborhood, having under arrest six men charged with being members of the mob that killed Constable W. J. Mooneyan and "Rev." D. J. Malone last Saturday night. Their names are Ed Chitty, D. C. Esper, Bob Godair, Kim Prince, "Hat" Nichols and Jeff Nichols. All deny guilty knowledge of the affair and claim to be able to prove an alibi.

FIGHT WITH BURGLARS.

Elizabeth, N. J., May 7.—Citizens of Suringfield, a village six miles from here, last night had a desperate fight with five supposed burglars, two of whom, William Cronin and John Murphy were wounded and captured. The other three escaped. A complete burglars outuit, including dynamite, having been found in a barn, a watch was set to see who came for the outfit. At midnight five men appeared and the citizens opened fire. The men responded.

Fifty thousand pansies at Seekins' greenhouses. Leave orders at the Glass Block.

TAMARACK COMPANY.

Boston, May 7.—At the annual meeting of the Tamarack Mining company which was held here today the old board of directors were re-elected. In answer to a question from a stockholder, President Bigelow said the No. 5 shaft was a disappointment, adding that the expense was similar to those encountered in all of the company shafts. Mr. Bigelow further said that he did not expect a dividend to be paid on the stock before the latter part of the year, or "until we can see how we are coming out."

RIVER IS FALLING.

Washington, May 7.—Because of the rapid falling of the Mississippi river, it may be necessary for the monitor Arkansas to be relieved of some of her fittings in order to enable her to get to New Orleans in safety. Commander Charles E. Vreeland has notified the navy department that the channel is choked. The Arkansas is anchored at St. Genevieve, Mo. The department is not anxious about her as it will be easy to reduce her draught, if necessary.

FUNERAL OF BISHOP HURST

Washington, May 7.—Funeral services over the remains of the late Bishop John Fletcher Hurst, of the Methodist Episcopal church, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Metropolitan M. E. church. Prior to the church services, a brief preliminary service was held at Cedarcroft, the villa of Aldis B. Browne, in Bethesda, Md. At the church addresses were delivered by Bishop Charles H. Fowler, of Buffalo, and Bishop Charles C. McCabe, of Omaha, who succeeded Bishop Hurst as chancellor of the American University. The Rev. Dr. Henry A. Butts, president of Drew seminary, offered the prayer. The interment at Rock Creek cemetery was private.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL ANNUAL.

Detroit, May 7.—The annual meeting of the Michigan Central railroad was held here today with E. D. Worcester and D. W. Pardee, of New York, the only representatives of the Eastern stockholders present. But one change was made in the board of directors, the selection of J. P. Morgan to succeed F. S. Winston, of Chicago. The question of the proposed international bridge across the Detroit river was not discussed at the meeting.

TO CARRY NONE

Senior Girls Vote to Carry No Flowers at Commencement.

Stage Will, However, Be Decorated By School Board.

Senior high school girls this afternoon voted not to carry any flowers on commencement evening. A meeting of girls was called by Principal Smith and Superintendent Denfeld, who discussed the question thoroughly.

The meeting occupied about half an hour before the decision was reached, and there was much interesting discussion. The question on which the girls voted to settle the matter was whether they would each carry one flower given by the board of education, or whether they should carry none, and the stage should be prettily decorated with potted plants and American Beauties at the expense of the board. The latter proposition won by a good majority.

Many suggestions were made in regard to the flowers, and one of them was that the young men of the class should furnish flowers for the girls. This looked like an easy way out of the difficulty and it immediately received consideration.

One of the masculine members of the class happened into the room about this time, however, and he immediately swooned. After he had been resuscitated he gathered a bunch of warriors in the corridor to do things when the meeting broke up. But his timely fainting served as a warning, and the motion was given up.

Nothing was said about flowers to be worn in the hair, but the general understanding is that they will not be worn either by the graduating girls. After foregoing the pleasures of carrying flowers the girls will be rewarded by a beautifully decorated stage.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Washington, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Original—Charles W. Hayes, of Lynx, $6. Increase—William Douglass, of Padua, $40; Jacob M. Burbank, of Duluth, $55; Josiah P. Davis, of Pine City, $8; John E. Lewis, of Hewitt, $8.
